"Mr. Speaker, this is very important because I reference a publication titled 'Business Insider' that just appeared February 26th. The title is 'Tesla Just Took Its First Step Toward Obliterating The Power Companies.' And in this it talks about Tesla's plan to start pumping out lithium ion batteries like 'M&M's' at its planned gigafactory. And obviously, that's big news for electric vehicles, as that should bring down the cost of those vehicles. But more important, it has huge significance for renewable energy.

"Power storage is the key to unlocking wide-spread renewable energy. And for renewables to be truly cost competitive with existing power sources, they need to be able to provide a continuous current flow, something difficult to achieve when the wind isn't blowing or the sun isn't shining. So I go back to Tesla's popping out 'M&M's' of the battery storage.

"And then a report from the Rocky Mountain Institute states, 'Whereas other technologies, including solar PV and other distributed resources without storage, net metering, and energy efficiency still require some degree of grid dependence, solar-plus-batteries enable customers to cut the cord to their utility entirely.' That means cut the cord with Hawaiian Electric. And then they note, 'The coming grid parity of solar-plus-battery systems in the foreseeable future, among other factors, signals the eventual demise of traditional utility business models,' these authors wrote.

"And Mr. Speaker, unless Hawaiian Electric listens and changes its business plan, it will be obliterated by companies like Tesla that are going to pump out the batteries like 'M&M's'. So, this bill is extremely important to allow the Legislature to work with the utility. It has to change, and on its own, it's not doing that. So I strongly support this measure. Thank you."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the measure. I would hope that all of the young people in this Body will be really on the cutting edge of new ideas, because this actually sets up the structure by which we can change the thinking, change the paradigm. I know my paradigm has been, let's get away from the mainframe IBM mindset of the old, into the PC. The old IBM is the present grid, the PC are the micro-grids that every house with solar and batteries, or PV and batteries can make.

"If there is not a quick change in adaptation, it's possible that HECO will have everybody offline, because of the 'M&M' factor here. And they'll wonder, well what happened to us? Mr. Speaker, times change. Darwin said, 'it's not whether you're smart, it's not whether you're strong, it's whether you adapt to the situation.' And I think this legislative oversight or task force will hopefully speed up this whole element of alternative energy and make HECO adapt to what are the people's needs.

"Quite frankly, Mr. Speaker, since 2008, costs have almost doubled. In 2008 is when this Body and the Legislature or the Governor's office said, we are going to have renewable energy and it's going to come in 70 percent in 2020, 2030. Mr. Speaker, all the people have seen is their bills increase. So, we've got to do better if this is kind of an insert of our mana'o if you will. But I hope it's the young people who take these new ideas, the new technologies and really take it and run with it. Because we have the potential, not only to be the best in the nation, we have the potential to be the best in the world in terms of renewable energy. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Fale rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in opposition. A couple weeks ago, in preparation for meal, we went and shot a 734 pound pig. Now, we initially took a .22, and it took six shots with the .22. A pig that size, we might as well have been throwing mosquitoes at it, until we got a .30-06 and finally did the job. Mr. Speaker, the previous speakers, what they had to say is an attempt to try and help the measure. It's bringing a .22 to shoot a 734 pound pig. All it's going to do is make the pig unhappy.

"This doesn't deliver what we need. This isn't going to set the precedence that we need as far as making sure that HECO is prepared for delivering the energy of the future and making sure that we're laying the platform for success, as far as our energy policies go.

"If we're going to do this, lets approach it in a way where we're actually working with the utility, they're going to have to be a partner with this. Mr. Speaker, I think maybe for too long we've maybe demonized the utility company, when we're going to have to work with them to resolve the issue. And if we don't reach out, if we don't build those bridges to make sure that we're on the same page working towards the same goal, I think we're going to fall short and the people of Hawaii will get hurt in the process, Mr. Speaker. For those reasons, I think this measure doesn't help us achieve that, and I'm opposed to that. Thank you."

Representative Lee rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. Here in Hawaii we pay three times the national average for our energy costs, and those costs have doubled in the last five years. Let me say again, those costs have doubled in the last five years. And that's subject to the volatile price of the fuel that we import on a regular basis, and that's something I think we can all agree we need to move away from.

"But there's a changing market at hand here, which is looking beyond our own RPS goals and the clean energy we want to move to. There is a transition in technology that for the first time in 100 years is changing the very face of the utility model and its business model and how it makes money.

"There is a study that has looked into this, as some of the previous speakers have mentioned, and it found three basic things. The first expectation is that customers are expected to see favorable defection economics in 10 years. And what that means is that in 10 years, nationally, customers are expected to reach parity and be financially incentivized to leave the grid.

"Here in Hawaii, because we pay three times the national average in costs, some argue we have already reached that point today. And there are companies out there right now, some solar companies in fact, who are changing their own business model to begin offering packages that include battery storage and other alternatives to completely remove people off the grid. And as the cost of electricity from our traditional utilities goes up, that incentive to leave goes up, and the cost to get off the grid and save money is more and more in the customer's favor.

"The second thing is that utilities will see significant losses. And this is true, we're seeing this already. Already we're getting reports, which we've seen through the PUC and other places, that indeed the financial infrastructure and the financial future capacity of our utilities is uncertain at best.

"And three, it found that there will be the demise of traditional utility models. Which means, the traditional utility, which has for nearly a century and longer in some cases produced money by generating energy and selling it, will no longer be viable in the face of people generating their own energy and saving money themselves.

"Now we've talked about this a little bit here in the state. This is the first year that this debate is really coming up into the public fore. And in public hearings, we have asked our utilities to come to the table and answer, what is the business plan? What is that evolution? What does it look like into the future? And what we've got at the table, in front of cameras, is no answer. Literally, we have no answer. Or two, we're going to start charging people to leave the grid and up costs to make up the difference for people who are leaving us.

"That is something that I think is absolutely not anywhere we want to go. It is not a real solution and it is a band-aid, a very painful band-aid, that I think is being proposed here.

"The IRP studies, the planning process that the utilities have gone through, has been found to be in some cases inadequate and some cases missing pieces of the puzzle.

"Right now the utilities, on the other hand, are on the verge of signing long-term PPAs, looking at decades into the future to lock in costs of energy, which may be beneficial, maybe not, depending on the energy environment in those decades down the road. We just, quite frankly, don't know enough to determine either way. But we can, before these utilities and these contracts get locked in, ask ourselves which way we want to go.

"The PUC has stated, 'in light of the changing landscape and complexity of the modern electric system, a review of the fundamental electric utility customer relationship is warranted.' And that's what this bill is about.

"It is the responsibility of the Legislature and the sole responsibility of the Legislature here in the state to issue franchise agreements for utilities. It is up to us to take a look at what those agreements are going to look like into the future. And these questions right now are beyond the scope of the PUC, which is why this bill is before us and why it's going to have to be something that we address.

"Already to date, 20 other states have started to ask these questions and have passed legislation in 19 of them to look at a fundamental paradigm shift in the business model of their utilities. Options could include, for example here in Hawaii, do we move to a utility that acts as a distributor of electricity rather than a generator? Do we have multiple utilities to encourage more competition to lower prices? What do these options look like? We've never before seriously vetted these questions and asked them. And we've certainly never gotten answers.

"Mr. Speaker, this is the first time in a hundred years that we have an opportunity, a historic opportunity to chart the next hundred. It's going to look radically different than the hundred that came before, but it's our responsibility to do that. Our utility at best has a decade of life left in its existing business model before it faces severe financial consequences. At worst, they've got a few years time at most. We owe it to our constituents to change the status quo, because we're all paying and we all know the high cost."

Representative Say rose to yield his time, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Lee continued, stating:

"Thank you. We all know the high cost of electricity that we're all paying now and we're expected to pay for some time to come. But failure to adapt will only increase those costs for ourselves and our constituents, years into the future. And we cannot let that burden fall upon ratepayers or taxpayers, should the utility model fail and need to be bailed out. It is up to us, and this is the first step in that direction. Thank you very much."

Representative Lowen rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. I'd like to request to have the words of the previous speaker entered in the Journal, and just a few brief comments.

"So, as we've heard from other people, this report recently came out that talks about grid parity, and that is when it becomes, actually, equal for customers to go off the grid. It'll be equal in cost and equal in reliability as it is to stay on. And we've reached that already in Hawaii, we're the first state to reach that for commercial, and the prediction is for 2022 for residential. So as we approach that day and more people go off the grid, that's going to lead to even further increasing prices for those that are still on the grid.

"I'll just read a quick paragraph from this report, which just states that, as this begins to happen, new market realities are creating a profoundly different competitive landscape as both utilities and the regulators are challenged to adapt. Utilities thus must be part of helping to design new business revenue and regulatory models. It's basically, adapt or the utility won't be able to remain in business.

"So I think that this bill that we're discussing is something that will help push things in that direction, and that will be for the good of those who are going to be stuck on the grid and aren't early adopters and are going to have to pay increasingly high rates. Thank you."

Representative Hanohano rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mahalo ho'omalu 'ōlelo. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Kako'o 'ole. In opposition. Ho'o komo kana 'ōlelo mai ka luna maikaainana mai Laie i loko ka puke hale luna maka'āinana no ko'u mana'o. 'Oia ku ka mo 'ōlelo e pili ana ka ho'o make ana o ka pua'a. Pololei kana 'ōlelo.

"I'd like to have the words of the Representative from Laie as my own, especially the story about the pig. I agree with the story, because I've been in that same situation. Shot a pig with a .22, thought it was dead. It looked like it was dead, wasn't moving, felt it and all. Left it, came back 10 minutes later, and it was gone. So, it's a true story. Well, it doesn't matter what size it is, because a .22 does not kill a pig, unless you're going to cut the throat right after. That's what I forgot to do, okay. I left the knife in the truck so I had to go back and get it, so, but that's okay.

"Well, they talk about all of these things, about the electric companies trying to do all of the things that they say they are doing. I have the only geothermal community in the State of Hawaii, and we haven't saved a penny, a nickel. We keep spending more and more on our electric bill and we still pay the highest rate, although we're on geothermal. And this is 20 years ago. So I cannot believe what they want to do, so that's why I'm still in opposition of what's happening. And I agree with my colleague from Laie. Mahalo."

Representative Fale rose to respond, stating:

"Second time, still in opposition, Mr. Speaker. Maybe what one of our previous speakers mentioned, was actually identifying what the problem is. Mr. Speaker, I've sat in some of these committee hearings where we've had bills that would have added anywhere from $600 million to a billion dollars worth of new costs, thrown onto the backs of HECO. And then HECO, if we had passed that measure, HECO would have to go back after this legislative session and figure out how they're going to squeeze $600 million to a billion dollars out of the ratepayers.

"That's one of the major problems that I have, Mr. Speaker, is that as was said, this Body essentially bears the most responsibility for policy and the way the utilities carry out their business.

"So why do we have HECO in the hot seat? If we're the ones who are responsible, send the bullets this way. And that's the problem, Mr. Speaker. They show up and maybe they're going to walk away with $1 billion worth of new costs. It's impossible to develop a business plan, a business model, when you don't know what you're going to get from day to day.

"So maybe we've actually identified the problem. And especially when you're dealing with a boss, that may change every two years. You know, this boss wants this over two years. Two years later another boss wants another thing. Mr. Speaker, maybe that, maybe we've pinpointed it today? Maybe we need to lend a little more autonomy or a little more self-governance to an organization that comes and gets mandates every other day and that may change from day-to-day, from week-to-week, from year-to-year. And that's something that we really need to take into consideration.

"I can't imagine having to operate and having to put together a business plan and a model that will function when I don't know what the boss is going to want tomorrow. And for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, we need to reassess. I haven't seen my electric bill go down. I haven't heard any of my neighbors' electric bills go down. I haven't heard anybody. And this Body, if this Body's been in charge, what have we been doing? Going back to things that we talked about earlier, Mr. Speaker, it's the accountability and delivering.

"Mr. Speaker, we need to be able to sit down with HECO and say, what does the picture look like and what set of parameters can we lay out, that we can give the organizations certainty, that we can say, if you give us this, we will deliver that. And it's that certainty, Mr. Speaker, that we're still lacking, and this measure definitely doesn't resolve the core fundamental problem with this, and we still have to address that issue, Mr. Speaker. For those reasons, I'm still opposed."

Representative Ing rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In strong support. I just wanted to adopt the words of our Kailua delegation, the Chair and Vice Chair of EEP. Also, just a brief comment. It was mentioned that the Legislature should take the hits, that we should help, we should be in the hot seat and help craft a new plan. And that's exactly what this bill is about. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I need to disclose a potential conflict of interest. I own some shares of stock in Hawaiian Electric Company," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Oshiro continued to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, I'll be voting in support of this measure. Thank you very much."

Representative Jordan rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I need to disclose a potential conflict of interest also. I do hold shares in Hawaiian Electric also," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Jordan continued to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I am in support of this measure. Thank you."

Representative McKelvey rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I too have a potential conflict I'd like to disclose and I regret not disclosing it earlier. I'm a ratepayer of Maui Electric Company," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative McKelvey continued to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Strong support, comments to the Journal, Mr. Speaker."

Representative McKelvey's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, Hawaii's utility service sector and associated regulatory model are both part of an operating environment that has undergone sweeping change in recent years. This change has led to a number of issues, chief among them is an apparent disconnect between the traditional role of the electric utilities and the needs of the public.

"Today, the proliferation of distributed generation and other advancements in the energy sector have led to a far more complicated electric system. While the majority of customers remain completely reliant on the electric utilities for electrical service, a growing number of customers are capable of generating their own electricity. What happens though is due to the intermittent nature of the technology used by customer-generators, these customers generate electricity to be used on-site or can send excess power back to the grid. They also take standard electric service from the grid in varying degrees especially when unable to generate electricity.

"Mr. Speaker, the various policies adopted by our state have led to the incorporation of greater amounts of energy, both renewable and fossil resources, supplied by independent power producers who sell generated power to the electric utility, who then use that power to supply electricity to their customers. Consequently, the traditional regulatory compact does not encapsulate the range of relationships that today's electric system incorporates. With the changing landscape and complexity of the modern electric system, I believe that a review of the fundamental electric utility customer is warranted."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 1999, HD 3, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ELECTRIC UTILITIES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes to 1 no, with Representative Hanohano voting no.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 893-14) recommending that H.B. No. 2116, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.B. No. 2116, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, slight reservations on this measure."

Representative Awana rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Strong support, written comments."

Representative Awana's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support. This bill establishes new factors to be considered in sentencing those convicted of an offense committed while under the age of 18 and a sentencing modification process for the same. This measure also eliminates life without parole for juvenile offenders.

"As stated in the contents of the bill, 'The legislature further acknowledges that the United States is the only country in the world that allows children to be sentenced to life imprisonment without parole, in violation of Article 37 of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child, which categorically bars the imposition of capital punishment [or] life imprisonment without the possibility of release…for offenses committed by persons below eighteen years of age.'

"We don't allow children under 18 to vote, enter into contracts, buy tobacco or alcohol or even work in certain industries because we recognize their immaturity and lack of decision-making ability. This bill aligns with other aspects in our society and culture.

"I would like to also thank those proponents of this measure, in particular, James Dold, Advocacy Director for the Campaign for the Fair Sentencing of Youth, Christian Mitchell who is a current UH Richardson Law School Student and represents the Richardson Students for the Rights of Children, Kat Brady of the Community Alliance on Prisons. I would also like to thank the Chair of Human Services, the Chair of Judiciary, and Vice Speaker, for their efforts in supporting this important bill. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Fukumoto rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise today with reservations on HB 2116, HD2. I am supportive of prison and justice reform—particularly efforts to improve rehabilitation. However, I do have concerns that we're moving too quickly. We need a system that emphasizes but does not depend on rehabilitation. Additionally, I would note that the juveniles in question would already be eligible for a commutation. So this bill may be unnecessary. For these reasons, I vote with reservations on HB 2116, HD2. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Carroll rose in support of the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Carroll's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I am in support of HB 2116, HD 2, which eliminates sentences of life imprisonment without the possibility of parole for juvenile offenders. The Legislature acknowledges and recognizes that children are constitutionally different from adults, which means in some aspects they are not always subject to the same standards as adults. This is especially true in our judicial system, which is evident because we make the distinction between juvenile and adult offenders.

"However, our judicial system falls short when it comes to the sentencing of juveniles for crimes of a more serious nature, sometimes referred to as 'adult crimes'. The fact that we still sentence juveniles to life in prison without the possibility of parole not only violates our commonly held belief that children are not the same as adults, but it violates international law as well. According to Article 37 of the United Nations Convention on the Rights of the Child, 'no child shall be subjected to torture or other cruel, inhumane or degrading treatment or punishment. Neither capital punishment nor life imprisonment without possibility of release shall be imposed for offences committed by persons below eighteen years of age.'

"A life without parole sentence when imposed on a juvenile offender, which is defined as a defendant who was under 18 at the time of the crime, violates international law and standards which are almost universally accepted around the world. These standards maintain that, however severe the crime, juveniles, who are still developing physically, mentally and emotionally, do not have the same level of culpability as adults. Due to this variance in accountability, juveniles require special treatment in the criminal justice system that is in accordance with their youth and immaturity. The primary objectives should be the child's best interests and the potential for his or her successful reintegration into society.

"Furthermore, juveniles, because of their immaturity and the fact that they are still developing, are a group that present the best possibility for rehabilitation and reincorporation. This is a group whose negative behavior can be corrected, they deserve that chance to reintegrate back into our society. Bottom line is that we shouldn't be throwing these children, who are not yet mature adults, into our prison systems without the possibility of parole. It does our society no good to deny these children the basic right of a second chance.

"Mr. Speaker and distinguished Members of this Body, I urge everyone to please take careful consideration of this bill and to vote yes on HB 2116. Thank you."

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 2116, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO SENTENCING FOR JUVENILE OFFENDERS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes to 1 no, with Representative McDermott voting no.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 894-14) recommending that H.B. No. 2302, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 2302, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO BEHAVIORAL SUPPORT REVIEW OF RESTRAINTS AND SECLUSION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 895-14) recommending that H.B. No. 2565, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.B. No. 2565, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, slight reservations on this measure also. Thank you."

Representative Awana rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In strong support, written comments."

Representative Awana's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support. This bill establishes a coastal memorials task force to review, evaluate, develop standards, and makes recommendations regarding the practice of erecting coastal memorials.

"Permanent memorials are being built throughout our coastal areas in parks, on reefs and along the shoreline. Meanwhile, governmental agencies are pointing fingers and not taking responsibility. The intent is not to be disrespectful, but to be proactive in addressing this issue so that the general public can be informed with guidelines reflecting a consistent message from all governmental agencies.

"In 2011 an identical bill was introduced in the House. DLNR opposed this measure and stated in part, 'We respectfully ask that this matter be tabled to give the Department more time to consider how to manage the situation within its current regulatory and management framework, prior to compelling us to form a new task force that will further inhibit our ability to manage the core functions of the Department.'

"In 2014, DLNR again provided testimony in opposition to this measure. When a question was asked by the DLNR representative as to what was being done since 2011, their response was, 'Absolutely nothing.'

"Mr. Speaker, if we do not pass this measure, my fear is that absolutely nothing will be done. For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support for a measure to address coastal memorials. Thank you. Mr. Speaker."

Representative Hanohano rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mahalo ho'omalu 'ōlelo. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Kako'o loa. In strong support. 'O kēia pila e ho'o mana'o ohana mai ka makalai. 'O ka 'ohana he mea nui no na po'e kahiko a me na 'ohana o ko 'a. This bill is about coastal memorials. The family is valued in Hawaiian families and other families. Mahalo."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 2565, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO MEMORIALS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

At 4:20 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 2442, HD 2
H.B. No. 2490, HD 2
H.B. No. 1971, HD 2
H.B. No. 1999, HD 3
H.B. No. 2116, HD 2
H.B. No. 2302, HD 2
H.B. No. 2565, HD 2

At 4:20 o'clock p.m., Representative Saiki requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 4:37 o'clock p.m.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 896-14) recommending that H.B. No. 2276, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.B. No. 2276, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Johanson rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise with reservations. I wanted to give a speech on this just because in concept I think we are all, including myself, very supportive of increasing educational opportunities for all of our children. An obligation is one of the themes that I'm going to be talking about in this speech, and I do believe that we have an obligation to make sure that there is a strong public education system, and those opportunities inherent within it for our children.

"Why I do have reservations on this particular measure, but why I will be supporting it and appreciate that there is a defective date so that we will be able to continue the discussion, is several fold. One of them being, the plan continues to change and morph. We've heard several different models, and I realize that this is just the enabling language post a potential approval of the constitutional amendment.

"But it gives me pause when the fundamental model that the early education program is based on continues to change and continues to morph and continues to be unsettled when it potentially is serving a very worthy population. But in doing so, this particular bill mentions three- to four-year-olds as the population. But in doing so, there are also significant costs associated with that, and I don't necessarily mind that this state bears those costs. Because again, I do think that it's a worthy obligation to be educating our children.

"But what I worry about is, as we are creating a new program, and again, no one doubts the worthiness of the program, but as we are creating a new program, not fully looking at what the obligation may be in terms of what the taxpayer is going to have to bear, what the state is on the hook for. As we continue to debate whether other programs are fully funded and whether other worthy endeavors by the state are operating at capacity, at 100 percent efficacy. I really think those are serious concerns.

"One other serious concern that I have with this, the early education executive director did also note that in terms of looking at the continuum of providers, we still don't have enough agreement where, even if the population wants to enter, and say we pass this bill and the constitutional amendment passes, that there may be enough providers in the private sector in order to accommodate what we are setting up.

"So the gist of my reservations centers largely around there are many unanswered questions for a largely new governmental program that we will be creating that comes along with significant obligations. And I just think it's incumbent upon this Body to continue to flesh those out and really, for the administration, to have a concrete, solid plan before pursuing this and before going down what is probably a very worthy, but very major change for state government. Thank you."

Representative Fukumoto rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Johanson be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Matsumoto rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Johanson be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Fale rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Johanson be entered into the Journal as his own, and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Fale's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations regarding HB 2276, HD 1, a measure that establishes the Early Childhood Education Program in the State of Hawaii.

"Mr. Speaker, this measure is premature at this point in time. In order for this measure to be enacted, there must be a constitutional amendment first that allows privately run preschools to accept state funding.

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations regarding HB 2276, HD 1."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations. Mr. Speaker, we've talked on this Floor about the social determinants of health. We might talk about the educational determinants of life, in the sense that we have been told that there are haves and have nots. There's really a bifurcation of society becoming where it's educated and not educated. This is one that should level the playing field.

"My reservation is, it's the easiest thing to do poorly. We can get the kids in there, but if we don't really get them with the right training and not just babysitting them and all the funds that will go in. And if it's the wrong group, like, as you know historically, we spend $83 billion on Head Start. And the kids that were watching Sesame Street were the middle-class kids, not the kids that should have been in there to be up to speed and on level with the other kids.

"So with those things, education is really what's going to determine the future of this state, the future of our nation, and quite frankly now, we are so far behind in the world, we've got to do everything we can. This is not to say that this is an elixir and it's a panacea, but it's something we've got to try to see if it works and there should be very stringent measurements to make sure that what we intend to do with this money, what we intend to do with the kids, actually happens and we can measure it. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 2276, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO EARLY CHILDHOOD EDUCATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 40 ayes to 11 noes, with Representatives Aquino, Awana, Carroll, Cullen, Fukumoto, Hanohano, Ito, McDermott, Say, Tsuji and Yamane voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 897-14) recommending that H.B. No. 2597, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 2597, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TEACHERS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 898-14) recommending that H.B. No. 2263, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.B. No. 2263, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Morikawa rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I need to declare a possible conflict. I will be a beneficiary of sick leave conversion," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Morikawa continued to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you. In opposition. After working 36 years, I think I deserve my two years of additional service time, thank you. I know that we need to address policy that ensures the solvency of the Employees' Retirement System, but I disagree that this bill will help do that. There are approximately 21 working days per month for government workers.

"Currently, when workers retire, they can convert 20 days of sick leave for one month of service credit. This new proposal for prospective employees would double to 40 days of sick leave that can be converted to only one month of service. Does that sound fair? An employee needs to work almost two years to earn 40 days. Where is the incentive for an employee to save their sick leave? I can see where this will lead to abuse of using these leave credits instead of saving it for retirement.

"Furthermore, this proposal is thought to save money tomorrow, but in actuality will cost money today, especially when employees decide to use their leave when earned. Employees can also donate their sick leave to other employees, which passes the employers' cost to another individual. This policy will not save money. It is only another disincentive for government employment. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Woodson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Onishi rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Morikawa be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Ichiyama rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Rhoads rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ing rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative McKelvey rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ohno rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Reservations, Mr. Speaker. Real quick. I think it might have, I think the Representative of Kauai kind of alluded to it. It may have the unintended consequences of having a 'use it or lose it' policy for some of our state employees. And I think that might affect the actual savings for state government. Thank you."

Representative Tokioka rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Morikawa be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Aquino rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Carroll rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ito rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Tsuji rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Yamane rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Takumi rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Kawakami rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Morikawa be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Har rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Morikawa be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Takayama rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Morikawa be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 2263, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE EMPLOYEES' RETIREMENT SYSTEM," passed Third Reading by a vote of 41 ayes to 10 noes, with Representatives Cullen, Fukumoto, Hanohano, Johanson, Kawakami, Lowen, Matsumoto, Morikawa, Onishi and Takai voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 899-14) recommending that H.B. No. 1994, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.B. No. 1994, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Onishi rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Wooley rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. I would like to insert written comments but make just a couple of brief comments to explain this. I just want to share my thoughts. This bill is not perfect. It has a defective date of 2030, to begin with. But, I just want to emphasize the critical discussion that we will have.

"We've been talking about the effect of invasive species, and it starts with the effect on our environment. But what we have realized is that, and it's inextricably related to our economy, and our economy is suffering significantly as a result of the introduction of multiple invasive species. We've been looking to the Department of Agriculture, in particular, to try to address the challenges, and they've had their own set of oversights and mistakes maybe, but they certainly are working hard to address the problem. One of the things that we're realizing is, they don't have complete control. Some of the species that are coming in are getting spread throughout the islands by our very own businesses.

"Some of the examples include the coqui frog. Now the most dangerous one is the little fire ant. But we have had so many. We have fountain grass, apple snail, devil weed, spiked pepper, glory bush, fireweed, cape ivy, the list goes on and on. And once these get here, it actually requires we continue to spend money. It's often very difficult to eradicate. We end up just spending money on control.

"I would like to address the concerns that the nurseries have in particular. I'm actually very happy to see them coming to the table, because for many years, if not decades, the Department of Agriculture has been trying to work closely with them to prevent the very spread of invasive species. This is really the first time where they're coming to the table to talk about what those solutions might be.

"If I might have permission to enter in, also, a couple of emails that I have received, from Lori Buchanan who identifies why the nurseries in particular are so critical in this discussion, as well as one from Teya Penniman from the Maui Invasive Species Committee. It also shows two maps about how the nursery stock is ending up propagating and being sent to every island.

"So, I just want to emphasize that this measure is critical in our effort to address the alien species that are coming into the state, and I look forward to continued discussion. Thank you."

Representative Wooley submitted the following:

"Aloha Representative and Senator,

I cannot thank you enough for your efforts to protect Hawaii. The inter-island movement of pest has been a historical and costly problem for Hawaii. For example, the island of Molokai does not currently have a number of game changing pest like coqui frog, little fire ant, miconia, apple snail, fountain grass, albizia trees and various other pests that "hitchhike" on plants and materials all the time.

The best and most recent example of an intra-island pest movement fiasco is the recent spread of little fire ant on hapuu logs (from BI) widely distributed to big box stores and nurseries on Maui and Oahu! Dah! The pest is "out of the bag", this is a disaster with monumental impacts and it could have been avoided.

MoMISC-Molokai/Maui Invasive Species Committee has personally caught live cogui frogs on fruit tree shipments arriving on Molokai from a well-known nursery on Hawaii Island. Ants, and various other established pests also make their way on the plants. Some of these shipments come with an "inspected" sticker from ag.

I just received a community report last night of a shipment of coconut and palm trees that arrived on Molokai at the harbor yesterday. Where have these trees come from? Did they come from an area infested with the new coconut rhinocperos beetle? Fire ants? Coqui frogs? I need to respond quickly!

MoMISC and the other island based invasive species committee's work hard to chase these constant incursions of pests and it is crazy to know that shippers/sellers of goods have no consequence for introducing harmful species to an island/area that works hard to keep clean.

Mahalo Plenty for your diligence to protect Hawaii.

Lori Buchanan
MoMISC-Molokai"

"Aloha Rep. Wooley,

Thank you for your continued support to address the inter-island movement of harmful pest species. You asked whether we had any information or data to show that pests such as coqui frogs or little fire ants are moving between islands, and in particular on nursery stock. I have attached two maps related to the continued introduction of coqui frogs to Maui Island. One map shows all known "population centers" of coqui frogs, which means locations with five or more calling males. The map shows which ones have been eradicated (12/19) and which ones are under active control. Many of those eradications took years to accomplish. In nearly all cases, it was possible to establish that the frogs arrived on nursery stock. Unfortunately, there are several locations that we consider to be "revolving doors" – nurseries or plant sellers where coqui continue to arrive. Our crews continue to go to the site to do control work, but we can't be there every day/night and we don't get them all on a single visit. So we know that coqui continue to be moved into the larger community despite our best efforts.

The second map shows what are typically single frog detections, from September 2010 to August 2013. Of course only the males call, so we don't really know we "got them all" and these are only those reported to MISC. These sites often result in hand captures of the frog and perhaps some spraying of citric acid. Of great alarm is the increase in the number of reports we had last year. During 2013, we had three times the number of single frog reports than we did over the average number of reports for the three previous years, suggesting that more frogs are arriving on contaminated nursery stock.

Regarding little fire ants, the Hawaii Department of Agriculture has told us that they are intercepting the ants at least one time a week on cut flowers, ti leaves, fruit and/or nursery stock. Of course we know the ants were moving on hapuu ferns and became established at several garden shops on Maui and at least 10 different locations (stores, nurseries, distributors) on Oahu.

I'd be happy to answer any other questions you might have.

Teya M. Penniman
Maui Invasive Species Committee"

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Tsuji rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support, but with deep and grave reservations. I'd like to say 'in support', and I will because I am a strong believer in agriculture and sustainability in our state. But I do say 'deep reservations', because this legislation as addressed and written may have unintended grave consequences. There has been discussion about the impacts of the economy in the State of Hawaii. I can say if we don't address this bill cautiously and properly and understand this legislation, it can devastate the entire Big Island and the rest of the State of Hawaii, especially when it deals with intrastate commerce.

"This bill will stop the export, not only of fruits, vegetables and floriculture, coffee, but think about other export industries from the Big Island and the state. Motor Vehicles, cinder, timber, bio-fuels, and even we human beings that go from island to island. This bill affects such intrastate movement.

"We want to have the state become more import independent. But with this type of legislation, we will be more dependent on imports than ever before. And that means what? Less exportation of our agricultural products, economics won't say, what, employment in agriculture goes down and we will never reach a level of sustainability, whatever that we're trying to desire.

"Let me give an example in one section of the bill that talks specifically about quarantine. Let's picture this scenario. Let's say Honolulu Airport, or the Honolulu Harbor, all are suspected of import commodities, vehicles, passengers. Under this legislation, all items including human beings, again, will have to be inspected. The cost is tremendous. I got some figures from some authority very hastily. He said, 'If you do everything, it's over 14 million of parcels that will be movement in these two areas alone on an annual basis.'

"The roadway system will have to be improved. You've got to design and provide for inspection and treatment areas, will cost the states into the hundreds of millions of dollars. This is a possibility, as invasive species has the greatest potential to inhabit, establish in the ports and harbors that I mentioned.

"Another example. I'll give an example of a location, let's say Waimanalo. If Waimanalo was dedicated as a quarantine area, and this is a possibility, in fact a high probability right now. No cars, trucks, green waste or trash can leave Waimanalo without inspection and treatment. That's the definition of quarantine according to state statute, DOA administrative guidelines, and what the bill is trying to follow.

"Therefore, every morning, even commuters have to be quarantined and inspected. You don't like TSA at the airport, imagine yourself trying to go to work on time in the morning or getting back to home after work. I'm not sure about what the city and county would say to this, with the trash removal in the vehicles in the morning."

Representative Hashem rose to yield his time, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Tsuji continued, stating:

"Thank you very much. I'll close and say, with that said, I believe in sustainability. I believe in agriculture. I believe in sustainability of economics as a whole in the State of Hawaii. With that said, I support this legislation with reservations. Thank you."

Representative Awana rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise with grave reservations and I ask that the good Representative from Hilo's comments be entered into the Journal as if they were my own," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Lowen rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with reservations. I do support the intent of this measure, but I think that there's some language in it that really still needs to be worked on. But we need to take a careful look at it. So until that happens, I have reservations. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with the same very grave reservations as the Representative from Hilo, and can I have his comments entered into the Journal as my own," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Wooley rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Just in brief rebuttal. We can talk about fear and things that we're afraid of, but I want to emphasize that there's something real that is here now that we should be very afraid of. And that's the little fire ant. I'm looking at a report that talks about the potential decreased management costs if we are able to control this. And that's $5 billion savings, including $540 million in reduced damages, and 2.1 billion fewer sting incidents over a 35 year period.

"So when we're talking about the economic impact on all of us, we have to be very careful and think about what we already have here, and why we have it here, and how we're going to prevent that from happening in the future, so that all of us are not living in a place with a little fire ant. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with reservations. I'm in support because I believe the Chair of the Agriculture Committee is correct. This is before us right now, we need to do something about it. And I really hope the Legislature passes out some measure to deal with the fire ants, as well as other invasive species.

"I remember standing here maybe 10, 15 years ago when our Representatives from the Big Island were talking about the coqui frog. And I think at that time none of us really took the threat seriously, to the point that today, we're not talking eradication, we're just talking about containment. For one of those communities on Oahu who actually was exposed to the coqui frog through intrastate shipment of some, I think it was ferns or hapu'u or some indoor plants from Hawaii Island, I know what it's all about. Fortunately, we were able to get together, Department of Agriculture and some volunteers, and go out there and actually hunt them down and kind of isolate them, so that as I speak today we know of no coqui frog in Wahiawa area.

"But let me assure you this, it's here. It's out in the Windward side, it's out in Koolau, Koolaupoko, Koolauloa. It might be up in Aiea, it might be up in Pearl City, it might be up in Manoa. So until it becomes a crisis, I think we need to try and address it. But again, the former Chair of Agriculture, my friend from the Big Island, does raise some questions regarding the effect upon the intrastate shipment of plants and those products.

"But again, I think we need to do something, so I encourage the committee members who are going to work on the bill to try and get something out, because this is an opportunity. And it would really, really be a lost opportunity if we weren't able to address it, especially with the fire ants. People who've been down south, South Pacific islands where you have fire ants, it makes outdoor activity impossible. So I think I've heard her concerns, and these are the reservations I have. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Onishi rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, still with grave reservations. This bill, as it reads, targets the agriculture industry only, as my good friend, the Representative from Hilo, spoke. This issue is not just the ag industry. This affects everything that we move intrastate. Whether it's cars, whether it's products, whether it's home furniture. Any kinds of things that are moved intrastate would need to be inspected to ensure that invasive species are not traveling along. I heard a story where a sofa was infested with fire ants, and they moved from the Big Island over to Oahu, and then found out that the sofa was infested and had to be destroyed. Who's going to be monitoring that?

"I talked to a friend of mine who works for the Department of Agriculture on the Big Island, and he said that we would have to set up facilities similar to what we do at the airports that would check everything at every port. Airports, harbors, different means of transportation interisland, in order to stop the spread. The good Representative from Wahiawa spoke about how coqui frogs have already been transmitted to Oahu.

"The problem is much broader than just affecting the ag industry. But the fines, $10,000 or the value of the product, whatever is higher, as a penalty for this being detected. Right now there's no protocols. I asked during our hearing in Finance what was the Invasive Species Council doing in regards to little fire ants, and what were the protocols established to ensure that the little fire ant was addressed on the Big Island and would minimize the spread of little fire ants to the rest of the state? And basically, the answer was, nothing is being done. After all of our history with the coqui frog, and what happened with the coqui frog, the Invasive Species Council has still not addressed statewide protocol for invasive species.

"This bill will go nowhere to make them address these issues. I think that that should be the focus, that they should be held accountable, they should be developing the protocols and the processes by which invasive species are controlled. Thank you."

Representative Yamane rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, standing up with reservations. Mr. Speaker, my reservations actually are very similar to those from the previous speaker in regards to the impact on our harbors. One of the conditions, not only the $10,000 which would have some question on who that would be imposed on, if it would be imposed on a shipper who's moving a container unknowingly containing fire ants. But also, Mr. Speaker, there are some requirements here that the inspector has to be notified 48 hours prior to this service being needed, and also having an area assembled on premises for the inspector to do what is necessary for the inspection.

"As you know, Mr. Speaker, our harbors are highly congested. Products move in and out at all times of the day, almost. And some of these conditions do not conform to the movement of product and would actually have some negative impacts on the movement of fresh produce. Thank you."

Representative Har rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representatives Tsuji and Onishi be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with reservations. I just would like the words of the speaker from Wahiawa and the two speakers from Hilo entered into the record as if they were my own. I just hope as this measure moves forward, that we look at also possible effects on less than container loads, Mr. Speaker, which we know are very important for small businesses and others to try to ship things interisland with not having to have a whole container. Thank you very much."

Representative Takayama rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Yamane be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Cullen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Onishi be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Ito rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 1994, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO CIVIL LIABILITY FOR THE INTRASTATE TRANSPORT OF INVASIVE SPECIES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 900-14) recommending that H.B. No. 1841, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.B. No. 1841, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations and a few comments. Mr. Speaker, we have multiple programs that address homelessness. And I think we should remain focused with the recommendations from the Homeless Interagency Council as well as our Housing First project before we start stepping in to new grounds of homeless projects. I think we need to stay focused. I think we are on a target to help end homelessness within 10 years, especially our most vulnerable homeless. That would be our mentally ill or maybe our individuals with substance abuse. And that's what the Housing First project addresses.

"But Mr. Speaker, I have to rely upon the testimony that was given during the Housing Committee. And during that testimony, the department had stated that we're going to need almost 10 individuals to help implement this program. So, if we want to be effective on what we're doing, I'm not so sure if we want to continue to grow that homeless department within the Department of Human Services. I think we should channel the dollars straight into our homeless individuals, Mr. Speaker.

"Unfortunately, we weren't able to get any testimony from the Department during Finance hearings. But according to what I see in the Housing Committee, I'm not so comfortable with moving forward with this, as well as growing that department. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Fale rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Jordan be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Tokioka rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cachola rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak in strong support of this bill. Way back in 1992, we passed a bill similar to this, but it only allows five homes per census tract. The rationale for this, is this. There are two types of homeless, working homeless and special needs homeless. At this time, and even before, all the homeless are being housed together, especially with working homeless with families. The kids are stigmatized when they are with special needs homeless.

"Having private homes to house just the working homeless is one way to address the number of units, or homes, or places that we can place our homeless. This is only geared towards working homeless. And the way I look at it, if you are coming up with, I think, 16,000 units needed to house the homeless. One way of doing it is, rather than spending hundreds of millions of dollars to build homeless shelters and units to house them, we have existing homes. All we have to do is incentivize owners to at least allow those homeless to stay with them.

"During my invocation I said something about a lady named Liz Marie who is homeless, but some people took care of her to a point that she is now owning an apartment in Manhattan. The other thing is, if you saw the movie 'The Blind Side', those are cases wherein they live in a home setting.

"So this bill will help address homelessness. And just like I said, it's cheaper and it will only address working homeless, especially those with kids. They will be in a home setting, and they will not be looked at as being homeless. Those families can also help out by, if they have skills like cooking, they can help the owners. If they have skills in landscaping, they can tend the yard. Like my wife used to be a babysitter when we were in San Francisco.

"So to a point, there are a lot of positive things that can happen. It's not 100 percent proof that this will address homelessness, but it's one way to address it by providing shelters to the working homeless. Thank you."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support, just briefly. We have a very severe homeless problem as most everyone is well aware, and I think this bill deserves to move forward so that we can examine every possible avenue for helping the homeless. I think that the working homeless are probably, in many cases, in many respects, the easiest cases to deal with because they want out. They're living on the streets or in a shelter because they have to, not because they want to. I hope we will pass this bill forward and give it serious consideration. Mahalo."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'll be voting in support with some reservations. My reservations stem from the comments of the Representative from Waianae. So I hope that we can find the necessary funds and create the necessary positions to properly run this program, if we're going to go down this path. Thank you."

Representative Cullen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Jordan be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Yamane rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"I'm rising with reservations, to support my brother in Ewa. Thank you."

Representative Aquino rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 1841, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HOMELESSNESS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes to 1 no, with Representative Hanohano voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 901-14) recommending that H.B. No. 2580, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.B. No. 2580, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Johanson rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise with reservations. Thank you. I did want to start off by noting, and I know that I've mentioned some of these things, but I just think they bear repeating. But I did want to appreciate, publicly, the changes that continue to be made to the bill. I think it represents an earnest effort by our chairs and by the Body to grapple with an important but complex issue on how to reduce poverty and how to uplift the worker. I think that really needs to be applauded. I also appreciate that the House, in particular, is moving some other measures that I do think, personally, might have greater effect in uplifting people out of poverty. So there are other mechanisms to do that, and I appreciate both of those things.

"With respect to this bill and why I'm rising with reservations is because I think that, while this is a good faith earnest effort, I think that we can do more and we can do other things to reduce the cost of living more broadly for a greater swath of people, not just those people on minimum wage. I think that requires significant commitment by our Body, not just in terms of rhetoric but also in terms of resources, because much of the most broad-based tax relief does come with significant price tags attached to it.

"What I worry about in particular with this measure, and I like some of the changes that have been made. Specifically, I think these are some difficult increments for business to weather each successive year. I'm not philosophically opposed to the minimum wage, but I do think successive increases, year after year after year after year, are difficult for the business to absorb. I do think because there's some regularity in the law, at least they can plan for it.

"But many of these businesses are small businesses. And a small business owner, like the worker, is also a person, and I think that sometimes we can forget about small business owners, particularly in this Body, also as a class of people who struggle. Many of them are struggling especially, and that's who I really have a heart for. Mostly, the mom and pops who probably are going to struggle most with this particular bill, because they're operating with the least profitable margins and just trying to keep the business afloat.

"I worry that this bill may have some unintended consequences either with respect to these mom and pops and their potential closure, or I worry that for the worker, any gains mandated by these increases will be offset by people shedding certain hours, still keeping people employed because I think a lot of the mom and pops want to operate their business, they want to keep people, their staff, employed. But I do think that if they can't afford the same number of hours at a higher price, naturally they will start to reduce those hours.

"I think that those are some significant concerns that I have. I do, again, appreciate the intent of the measure. I don't philosophically have a problem with the minimum wage as a concept, but I think those are some very significant concerns that we need to continue to address as we consider both the Senate Bill, and as they consider this House Bill. Thank you."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support with reservations. My reservations are somewhat different than the former speaker's. I share his concern about the jump up. It's been since '07 since the minimum wage has gone up. And yes, when you go seven years now and there's no increase, it is a shock to the system as a business owner, that all of a sudden, if you went in one step up to the former rate.

"That's why my reservations have to do with dropping the CPI, because with the CPI, you have a lot more predictability. You know that in any given year the rate, as a business person, you know that any given year, it's not going to go up by more than the rate of inflation from the previous year. And if you set it up right, it will go down if there's deflation. That is actually a much more predictable way to do business than waiting for the Legislature every six or seven years to up the wage in big increments.

"In addition to the problem, for the workers themselves, every year that goes by that they haven't had an increase that's because of inflation it's an actual decrease. So they're living on less and less money facing higher and higher costs of living because inflation doesn't stop, or at least not usually. There was a very minor deflation, I think, in '08 it went down. The deflation rate was 0.1 percent.

"So, I hate to see the CPI go, because it would make things more predictable and it would keep, actually keep the wage constant instead of this continual cycle where we set it and it drops due to the cost of inflation and then we pop it back up, and then it drops due to the cost of inflation. It's just, it's unpredictable for everyone and I think it would be much better if we kept the CPI in. Mahalo."

Representative Tokioka rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"As an owner of three restaurants, and still have interest in one of them, I want to ask for a ruling on a potential conflict," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Tokioka continued to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise with reservations. My reservations are, if you look at the tip tax credit was figured out and drafted in the bill, and I know that the Labor Chair and the Finance Chair worked really, really hard on this and there was a lot of good discussion, there was a lot of good testimony from the restaurants. But I think the wording in this bill, Mr. Speaker, will really, really hurt the small little restaurants, the Washington Saimins, the small little Chinese restaurants throughout the State of Hawaii. Because what they're going to have to do to figure this out is hire somebody like the Representative from Manoa, because that's what it's going to take. I don't know how they're going to figure this out.

"I know that there was a lot of thought put into this. But I do know that restaurants survive on pennies and nickels, these restaurants that we're talking about, the small little restaurants. They're not the ones that make the big, high average check. They're not the ones that you see on TV. They're the ones that are just trying to struggle and scratch and claw day to day. These are the people that I'm afraid that this bill may hurt.

"I know it still has a long way to go, but I am concerned that the date on the bill is a clean date. So it may or may not come back. I'm sure the Senate is going to be looking at this very closely as well. So for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I stand with strong reservations and I thank you for the opportunity to speak. Thank you."

Representative Cabanilla rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"I would like to get a ruling on a possible potential conflict. I'm a small business owner," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Cabanilla continued in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Johanson be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Cachola rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"A possible conflict, my wife owns a business," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Cachola continued to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise to support this bill with reservations. I know that this bill is still a bill in progress. If you look at the amount of money that is incrementally going to increase the minimum wage, the first increase is 50 cents. Then the following year up to 2018 is 75 cents. Businesses are complaining, especially the small businesses, that it will be hard for them to come up with these increases. On the other hand, we know that we haven't raised the minimum wage since 2007. Something has got to be done.

"A possible compromise is to see whether or not we can come up with increases but not this steep, and possibly come up with an assessment every year as to the impact of those increases. Because some businesses, they might go down the drain. Some businesses, if you increase the minimum wage, it is just like a domino effect whereby every range of employee will get a rise upwards.

"So, if we can assess every year the impact of those increases, that we might be able to come up with ways to make certain adjustment as we go along. If it so happens that you're going to lose jobs because of these increases, the businesses statement is correct and it will be us, the taxpayers, who will be also paying increases in the services as well as other products we consume.

"So to a point, I support this bill, but it's still a bill in progress. We should incrementally assess the impact of this as we go along, not just come up with a bill and be stuck with it if there's some negative impacts. Thank you."

Representative Thielen rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Johanson be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, first of all in support with very strong reservations. May I have the words of the Representative from Moanalua adopted as my own, with a few brief comments, Mr. Speaker. I'd like to reemphasize the importance on the impact this is going to have on mom and pop operations. Remember, the small little restaurants, and also may I have the words of the Representative from Kauai adopted as my own.

"The effect on mom and pop operations, especially like small little convenience stores, small little restaurants, they're going to be the most negatively impacted by any increase in costs, Mr. Speaker. Not the big, not McDonalds, not Applebees, not Chilis, not any of these big operations, because they have the deep pockets to go into.

"What we're going to do is we're going to adversely affect the small operations. And then we're going to come back and then everyone's going to decry the decline of mom and pop operations and that we're turning into the mainland with all these big retail stores. Walmart is going to be able to absorb this cost, not a problem. But the small little stores that are out in Hauula, that are out in Kahuku, they're the ones that are going to be hurt the most, Mr. Speaker. And what are we going to do? We're going to send more people to Walmart, and Walmart's going to send more money out of the state.

"Next, Mr. Speaker, I would like to point to the study that UHERO performed and that identified the increase of the minimum wage as one of the least effective ways to address poverty in the state. I think that's a matter of deep concern. Mr. Speaker, if we're going to do a job, let's do it right. And let's not use the least effective ways to address an issue, let's meet it head on.

"I point to North Dakota. You know what the starting wage is in North Dakota, in McDonalds? $15 an hour. Not only that, Mr. Speaker, you get a $300 signing bonus. If you go and sign up to work at McDonalds in North Dakota, they give you a $300 signing bonus right away, then you start at $15 an hour. Why is that? Because there's an economic boom out in North Dakota, Mr. Speaker. And this, this points to another vacuum of leadership, Mr. Speaker, that we need to address.

"If we were to properly work the economy the way we should be, we should be paying our minimum wage people $15 an hour. In fact, the goal is $33 an hour. To make it in the State of Hawaii, you need about $33 an hour. So this small increase is an unfortunate, in that same UHERO study, Mr. Speaker, it says, 'Legislatures like to increase the minimum wage because it's the easiest way to go.' For politicians to do that, Mr. Speaker, it's the easiest thing to do. You get a piece of paper, you write an increase on it, raise your hand, okay, alright. We did our work for the little guy, we can all go home now.

"I don't think that's the best way to do that, Mr. Speaker. We need to address the real issues, real concerns. This small increase, Mr. Speaker, is not going to raise. I make a prediction, Mr. Speaker. We're going to raise the minimum wage, the poor families that are poor today, after this increase will be poor tomorrow and they'll be poor the day after that as well, Mr. Speaker. We know where this goes, and it doesn't raise those people that desperately need the help out of poverty that they really need.

"Lastly, Mr. Speaker, and this has to do with, there's a number of costs that are increasing for small businesses. Remember, Mr. Speaker, we promised them on their healthcare costs that they were going to go down. Yet, we approve increase after increase in premiums. For insurance remember, we're supposed to get $2,500 decrease per person, per family in our healthcare cost. None of that came through.

"We have been making promises that the costs of energy are going to go down. All these things we say are going to go down, going to go down. Never happened. So, why are we are going to throw another increase on them because of our shortcomings? Why do small businesses, why do the mom and pops have to pay for our shortcomings? But I guess it's better to give them some help than no help. So, if we're not going to come through in the ways that we should, then maybe we'll take the shortcut. We'll at least extend something.

"For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I have serious reservations with this. I think there's a lot more that needs to be done, and let's do the hard job. This is the easy thing to do. Let's do the hard work, Mr. Speaker. For those reasons, I have very serious reservations."

Representative Onishi rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, ruling on a potential conflict of interest. My wife and her family owns a small business that hires employees at entry level at the minimum wage," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Onishi then asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Wooley rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. If I could just note that we have another seven pages to go, and request that we call for the question."

At this time, Representative Wooley called for the previous question.

At this time, the Chair stated:

"The question has been called. Members, I'm not going to stifle the debate. Can I put this out to the Members, if you could submit written comments in support, in opposition or with reservations."

Representative Souki rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with no reservations. I believe we need to hear someone that has no reservations, as far as the minimum wage is concerned. I have no compunctions in passing this bill. It's been seven years or more since they've had a raise. I've never seen anything come out of this Body here, or anybody, nationally, to find solutions to help the poor. This is one of the solutions, not the only solution to help the poor.

"Now, Members, this is going to be done, this bill says do it over four years, to give the small businesses time to adjust. The minimum wage is not going to hurt the business, what's going to hurt the business is the other costs. My wife and I, I was an accountant. My wife's an accountant. We take care of the books for small restaurants, I know how difficult it is. I also know how difficult it is for the workers of the small restaurant. People have been working there for 15, 20 years at minimum wage because they don't have the skills to go somewhere else.

"Now, this $3 raise will help them. I know of the woman who takes care of the cars that goes into the cars that go into the hotel in and out, she's waiting for this raise. She's waiting for this raise. There's a lot of people out in the community who are looking upon us as the Body that can help them. So let's help them. Relative as to the difficulty, all they've got to do is call the Department of Labor. They have the schedule that comes up once a year to determine the poverty rate, and in this case it would be about 250 percent above the poverty line, or 200 percent above the poverty line. That figure is available. And most of these people have some accountant taking care of them. So all I ask of you Members is, please be generous to the people who are poor. Thank you very much."

Representative McDermott rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, no one has said any opposition, so I think I need to say something. Mr. Speaker, minimum wage is not meant to be a living wage. It's meant to be an entry level wage, a training wage, where young people, marginally employable people, handicap people, senior citizens, can go and work. For the youngsters and those who have disabilities, it gives them an opportunity to learn to show up on time, discipline, punctuality, responsibility and accountability. It's not meant to remove people out of poverty. We could raise this to $13 an hour and it's not going to get people out of poverty.

"In fact, we have a safety net. We've done a very good job in this state of creating a safety net. So if someone is getting paid $12 an hour, they're still not out of poverty. So what makes up the difference? The difference is made up in food stamps, in QUEST, in healthcare and all those other programs that are out there. So we pay for it one way or we pay for the other. It doesn't really matter. But what this will do is put high school kids out of work.

"Frank Fasi said, 'Liars can figure, and figures can lie.' And every time the minimum wage goes up, people hire less people. It's just a fact. No one expects to live on it. I bet everybody in here started off as a minimum wage employee. I know I did, and I wanted to aspire to something greater. Let the market take care of it. Companies that are going to hire good people are going to pay more than the minimum wage. That might be $8 an hour, it might be $8.50, it might be $9. I don't know. So those are the reasons to rebut my good friend over there. Thank you."

Representative Belatti rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you. In strong support, and may I have the words of the Speaker of the House inserted as if they were my own," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With reservations. I appreciate the Speaker and what he said, because he's absolutely correct. There's no substitute for a high minimum wage, if in effect it's the symptom rather than the cure. It's a symptom of not having good job training, it's a symptom of not having high paying jobs, it's a symptom of having a weak economy, it's a symptom of having a tourism economy that doesn't really provide the high paying jobs.

"The point is, Mr. Speaker, we've got to upgrade our people. Not just give them a wage that's going to keep them in a sort of a steady state where they're going to be satisfied and stay around for 15 years. Nobody should have to stay around 15 years in one job. We don't have the incentives with the job training, and the job creation, and the economic development, and the economic attention that we don't pay enough to in this organization here, to be able to give these people a rising tide so all boats will rise.

"For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, it's the macro things that we have to focus on, not just the micro like this. Even though this is helpful, this is not a cure, it's only a symptom. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Lee rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, in support. I just note very briefly that, as a former entry level minimum wage employee, and noting that the vast majority of employees today aren't entry level employees, and that had it kept up with inflation over the last 40 years, minimum wage today would be well over $20. I strongly support this measure. Thank you."

Representative Say rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, may I request a ruling on a potential conflict? I'm an employer of five employees," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Say continued to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker and Members of the House, to be very candid and honest with you this evening, on Second Reading I voted no. On Third Reading, Members of the House, once again I will vote no based on the process that we have here before the House. Earlier during the session there were stories in the paper that maybe the House and Senate would convene a conference committee on this particular measure.

"Simply put, I do support increase in minimum wage, but the biggest hang-up for the past four years has been the tip credit. To simplify it, there are two parts. The incremental step increases, which I agree 110 percent, because my employees get more than $10 an hour. But more importantly, the tip credit was the biggest hang-up even for last year.

"Mr. Speaker, with this particular draft I personally felt it convoluted what we're trying to do, because a lot of us did not have a discussion on the Floor of the House on the HD 1 until today. I did not have an opportunity to say yes or no on this 250 percent federal poverty level. It would have been nice if this particular measure was referred to the Labor Committee then on to Finance. And I respect the decision that was made by the leadership in having it be referred to the Committee on Finance and having a hearing without any of us who were not on Finance knowing what the HD 1 would look like. But simply put, if that's the strategy of the House, I will continue to vote no and tell the public I do support minimum wage with some form of tip credit at this point in time.

"The company that I work and hire these individuals will not benefit from a tip credit. Understand that, Members of the House. I'm a wholesaler. I'm a service company, not a restaurant. So let's get on with it, with the Senate at this point in time, and find out when we will decide to have the bill that's in conference or Senate Bill 2609, Senate Draft 1, SSCR 2813 that passed before the 1:46 deadline today when they recessed.

"All I'm saying, okay, what's the vehicle as we move into the second part of the session? And that's all I request from the leadership to share with the Members of this Body. What vehicle are we going to use? Because we have too many different messages coming across that the general public out there does not know. So, that's where, for my friend who's in the gallery, I do support minimum wage. I just want to get it resolved with this crazy concept of tip credit, even though I will not benefit from it. Thank you very much."

At 5:38 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 5:40 o'clock p.m.

Representative Say rose, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, may I be recognized just to apologize to this Body, the Labor Chair. I apologize to this Body for not knowing what the first draft was, which wasn't a draft. It was the original draft in the HD 1. So I apologize to this Body, to the Chair of Labor and the Chair of Finance. But as this measure evolves, it's changing so much. That's all I'm saying. So is this the position of the House as we go into conference or to the Senate? Thank you."

Representative Luke rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support, and I do appreciate the comments of the Speaker Emeritus because we wanted to just correct the record. At this stage, we don't know what the vehicle is. That's part of the legislative process. There's a bill in conference for other bills that are there that we're continuing to pass. But minimum is important enough for us to continue that discussion.

"The bill in conference is, right now, I think the two conference committees agree at $9.50. I think both the subject matter committees in both the House and the Senate, instead of being stuck to that position, wanted to have different positions come out this session, and we'll see what happens at the end.

"And talking about the legislative process. The bill that came out of the Labor Committee, I think had a lot of concerns shared by a lot of Members, including the repeal of the tip credit and the CPI. And a lot of the Members addressed that. As a result, because of the legislative process, in Finance Committee, with the concurrence of the Finance members, because they had problems with those parts of the bill, and with the concurrence of the Labor Chair who was gracious enough for us to have substantive changes, we took those portions out. Otherwise, today, the House position would be no tip credit with CPI, and I think if that was the House position, people would have a lot different positions than what we're dealing with today.

"A lot of things have been said about the poverty trigger. That's something that we put in to address the situation like the Representative from Laie talked about. UHERO opposes minimum wage, because what they want to do is living wage. Living wage is what we put in, in this minimum wage. Thank you very much."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"I stand in support of this measure. I just wanted to first of all have the words of the Speaker on the minimum wage and the increase as my own. Number two, I appreciate the work of the Finance Chair and the Labor Chair. I'm glad the House position, as far as I know now, does not include a CPI adjustment, does include an increase in the tip credit, and does increase the minimum wage. Thank you."

Representative Lowen rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support and just really briefly, I would point out that the real dollar value of our minimum wage has fallen over 20 percent since it was first implemented, compared to what it would have been in 1968 when it was first implemented and hasn't been raised in over six and a half years. So, I think it's time for a raise. Thank you."

"Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. For a moment there, I thought I wasn't going to be able to put my support with reservations on the public record because, Mr. Speaker, this is upon approval and this looks like a clean measure to me. And I was getting a little nervous that I couldn't put it on record, so I appreciate you recognizing me so I can do that.

"I support the increases in here for the minimum wage. I support the tip credit in here. Mr. Speaker, I was once a bartender and a waitress. And I understand what it is to work. And I made great tips. $1,000 a night bartending was pretty awesome when you're 20 years old. But, Mr. Speaker, my reservations with this measure happens to be the calculation of the additional poverty credit in here, in the tip calculation. That's where my reservation stands with this. And it's mostly with the calculation put upon the businesses to try and calculate that, especially if an employee works multiple jobs.

"So that's my only reservation with that. Other than that, we should have moved the minimum wage last year and be done with it. But I'm glad we are addressing it, and I want to say thank you to the Finance Chair to be open with the Labor Chair in allowing the Finance Committee to make those adjustments in this, so we can keep this vehicle moving forward. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Takumi rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. In support. Just a brief comment. Someone mentioned that even when this minimum wage bill passes, that person who's poor actually making $7.25, after the bill passes that person will still be poor. Mr. Speaker, that person will still be poor, but he or she will be less poor. It's sort of like when on July 1st of last year we took our 20 percent raises. My household still is not rich, but we're less poor than that. And it seems to me, that if we can take raises last July 1 and this January 1, we can do the same for workers across the state. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Woodson rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"May I have a ruling on a potential conflict? I am a small business owner with employees," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Woodson continued to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Just very quick, brief comments in support. I just want to say very fast, that I have to pay my workers more than the minimum wage because the market dictates as such. It was important to mention that in the Finance Committee, we asked the business community if in fact they would support a minimum wage if we detached it from the CPI. We took that into consideration, and the bill that was passed out did in fact detach it from the Consumer Price Index. For that reason, Mr. Speaker, I'm in strong support."

Representative Yamashita rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. With reservations. Really quickly, just to address some of the comments that were made as far as the spread that happened over the years. Part of what happened was the Prepaid Health Care Act. Since the Prepaid Health Care Act, that's when the splits started, because what happened in the late '60s and '70s, and that's when, if you look at the numbers and you see how it has grown over the years, and you know the prepaid health costs has grown over the years, that's where the split. If you look at the graphs and everybody has those graphs because they have copies of the testimony. That's when it happened, was with prepaid health. And we're the only state that has prepaid health. So that's number one.

"Number two is, I think the very people that we're trying to help, my concern is, and I don't have a crystal ball. But my concern is that the very people we're trying to help, we're going to hurt because with any increase in wages, especially a floor, there may be inflation. And that, again, can hurt the very people we're trying to help. I don't know if that's totally true, but I think that's a concern. And with that I'd like to submit the rest of my comments into the Journal."

Representative Yamashita's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I would also like to add a few more comments. A large increase in the minimum wage may cause businesses to reduce hours or benefits or put off hiring new workers to compensate for higher labor costs. According to the U.S. Bureau of Labor Statistics, in 2006 and 2007 when the last minimum wage increase went into effect, several low wage jobs in the food preparation industry saw job loss of 4-15 percent or about 2,490 jobs.

"While I know that the public supports an increase in the minimum wage philosophically, they will make their final decisions at the cash register with higher prices. Consumers still have only so much money to spend in their wallets and may choose to buy less or buy less often, which in the end affects businesses and their employees."

Representative Creagan rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, I'd like to have the words of the Speaker entered as my own. The only comment I'd like to make is that this is not a living wage, but it is a compassionate wage. Thank you," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Ing rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. I was going to be in reservations, but after hearing the remarks from our Speaker of the House, it's time we passed minimum wage. If it's going to be a compromise then so be it, this is needed. There's a few comments I need to make, and I apologize in advance, but this discussion isn't just about us. It's about the people watching from home, our staff that stayed late who may be future legislators. I think they need to hear at least other sides of the issue as well.

"For me I'm looking at it through a free market perspective, just like a lot of my Republican colleagues. So, yes, so there's often an argument that unemployment goes up when you raise minimum wage, it's positively correlated. But in fact, we see states with very high unemployment and low minimum wages. We also see states with very low unemployment and very, very high minimum wages. We also see cities, right next to each other, that show the same results. In Hawaii, the last four times the minimum wage was increased, employment actually went up significantly, significantly, as over 2 percent or 2.5 percent. That's not saying that there's a causal relationship, but it is saying, because there's no negative correlation, that there is no causal effect in terms of jobs being lost.

"Now, so the unemployment argument usually goes that because there's an employee that gets paid $7, if you were to raise his salary to perhaps $14, then you're paying him twice as much what he's worth. So if you have two of those employees, you've probably got to cut one. But, if you look at the productivity of our employees, low wage employees, it's gone up. It used to be right aligned with productivity and wages until 1965, and then the gap widened. It's at a point now where productivity is 250 percent of what these employees are being paid. So there's plenty, plenty of cushion for employees to pay them more. I just wanted to offer that as a rebuttal to the Representative from Ewa.

"There's also, we can't look at the labor market like any other market. If I were to go, if I wanted a sandwich, I went into Subway and it was like $25, I'd be like, 'Man this is ridiculous.' I'll go to somewhere else. Quiznos, right? Now, in the labor market, I don't have that luxury. If I'm working, especially as a low wage employee at McDonalds or Subway, and they decide that I don't get paid this much or I don't get bathroom breaks or this and that. I can't just get up and find another job. These people, they lack skills, they lack education, they lack mobility. It's us that are going to have to balance it out for them and make their situation fair.

"There's been lots of instances where government did intervene in order to give more utility for these employees, including, I'll list some examples here, paid sick leave, weekends, bathroom breaks. These things didn't exist until we offered these ideas. And I think now, the business community is plenty comfortable with these ideas.

"I also want to bring up the argument that this only affects a small portion of our workers, teenagers mostly. And that's also not true as well. There's an anchoring effect. There's a great essay by Barry Schwartz written about this. Like good employees, when you raise the wage floor, then it also, they pay people, there's tiered, right? So the $8 employees would get paid $10, the $10 will get paid $12, and it will bring a lot of people up all at once.

"Economists also say that 20 million people nationwide will be lifted out of poverty. So the idea offered by the Representative from Laie, that it wouldn't help people get lifted out of poverty is just false. In Hawaii, that translates to thousands of our neighbors. To me, this is a moral issue. It's, are we as a society okay with seeing people working full-time, sometimes more than full-time."

The Chair addressed Representative Ing, stating:

"I'm sorry, Representative Ing. It's your opinion that the opinion of the Representative from Laie is false."

Representative Ing: "The statement's already recorded in the Journal."

At 5:53 o'clock p.m., Representative Souki requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 5:55 o'clock p.m.

Representative Ing continued, stating:

"Was I out of line? Very quickly, it's a moral issue. Are we okay with people working full-time, sometimes more than full-time? When you go to Jack in the Box, these aren't often teenage workers. The majority of our minimum wage workers are over 21 years old. Some are raising families. Are we okay with them still being impoverished? To me that's very dismaying.

"It's a relatively new phenomenon with the growing inequality we're seeing in societies with, CEOs used to get paid 17 times more than the average employee 40 years ago. Now, it's over 360 times more than the average employee. There's a reason why businesses like Applebee's are struggling, these middle class businesses. McDonalds is thriving, because there's a lot of people in that income level. While Alan Wong's is thriving because there's a lot of people in that income level, the middle section of the market is falling."

Representative Aquino rose to yield his time, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ing continued, stating:

"There's a reason why that's falling. So, this won't necessarily hurt businesses. As a matter of fact, it will probably give a lot more buying power to these people and allow this family that could only afford McDonalds to now afford Applebee's. That could only afford furniture from Walmart to now be able to afford Ashley Furniture. So, for these reasons, in the interest of the free market and the interest of supporting small businesses here in Hawaii, I support the measure.

"My only reservations that I was going to mention is about the tip credit and the loss of the CPI connection. Also, let it be on the record that with the Ninth Circuit decisions about pooling tips, that the argument that the tip credit, we needed to bring pay to the back of the house, that will soon be rendered moot, hopefully, so long as there's no Circuit split in the Supreme Court or written decision. It's already not enforced in Hawaii and all other Ninth Circuit states. Thank you."

Representative Carroll rose in support of the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Souki be entered into the Journal as her own, and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Carroll's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I am in support of the intent of HB 2580, HD 1, which aims to increase wages of low wage earners. However, I have concerns about the possible unintended effects of the measure.

"My concerns are mostly about what this would mean for our small and local businesses, especially those in my district on the islands of Moloka'i, Maui and Lāna'i. There is potential for this measure to have a negative impact on employers, employees, and the overall economic climate. Without a comparable increase in tip credit, businesses, especially those in the food service industry, will be forced to make difficult decisions that will in turn further negatively affect the economy. Those decisions would include things like: reducing starting wages for new hires which will create a disincentive in employment, and also, but not limited to, reduction or halting of any further in-house wage increases for other non-tipped employees. This is not in tune with the intent of this measure, in fact, it is opposite of its intent.

"Apprehensions about this measure's negative impact on non-tipped employees is not the only area of concern. I strongly caution this Legislature to be aware of the issues surrounding tying minimum wage to inflation and the consumer price index, which will cause minimum wage to continuously increase. This becomes as dangerous as not evaluating and adjusting minimum wage in the first place because it allows the minimum wage to grow unevaluated and without regulation. Regulation of the minimum wage should be done very carefully and should take a lot more things into account than inflation and the Consumer Price Index.

"While I do support the intent of this measure, as stated before, it is due to these potential, negative, and unintended consequences, which would impact our local businesses, their employees, and our overall economic well-being, that I have concerns on this matter.

"Mr. Speaker and distinguished Members of this Body, I urge everyone to please take careful consideration of this bill and to note my concerns on HB 2580. Thank you."

Representative Ito rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in support with reservations with brief comments. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. First of all, I want to thank the Speaker of the House for his very passionate speech. I don't think that anyone really has issues with what he's having to say. But what my concerns stem with, my reservations regarding the current draft, is the treatment of our tipped class employees.

"Mr. Speaker, many moons ago I was a food server. Call me a waitress, whatever. I'm not saying I was the best, but I loved that job. And the reason I loved that job was because of the tips. Quite frankly, when I got that two week paycheck, which was my minimum wage, that was just gravy on top of everything else that I made. So, I've been in the restaurant industry for many years, and because of that I feel that I do have some place on which to speak about this bill.

"In addition, I've spoken with many restaurant owners. And these are local people, Mr. Speaker. These are people, this is, I'm not talking about the big chain restaurants, I'm talking about our small mom and pop restaurants who are struggling to make it here in the State of Hawaii. Based on the current draft it is clear that the current problem is accurate reporting of cash tips. It is widely known that tipped class employees underreport their cash tips to avoid having to pay taxes. As a result, numbers that the Department of Labor & Industrial Relations used in their Finance testimony underreport the income of tip class employees.

"The use of a tip threshold perpetuates a culture of underreporting. We have to remember this, Mr. Speaker. Tipped employees are not minimum wage employees. Nobody can refute that. They are not minimum wage employees. Not only do they make their tips, but on top of it they make the minimum wage. So they're in a very, very different position than those who work for small businesses straight at a minimum wage.

"Without a recourse for business owners to collect more accurate reporting, or to assume a fair approximation for cash tips, the current bill will perpetuate a culture of under or misreporting, further perpetuating a culture where a class of employees do not pay their fair share in taxes. Essentially we are making the rich richer under the guise of egalitarianism, which is a slap in the face of democracy.

"The Non-Partisan Congressional Budget Office has reported on a similar federal minimum wage increase, devoid of any tip credit. They forecast that while 900,000 people would be lifted out of poverty, 500,000 additional workers would be plunged into poverty after losing their jobs. It is fair to assume that the approximate advantages and disadvantages would be proportionate here in our Aloha State. If there is a lesson out of this, it is that we must proceed in a manner that will mitigate all negative impacts of the increase to our state's minimum wage.

"The testimony before the Finance Committee has shown that restaurant owners, mom and pop enterprises specifically, that they are the ones who are on the first lines of defense against poverty. They employ and train unskilled individuals, and they are the ones who stand to lose the most under the previous and current iterations of the bill. I would note the testimony of Mr. Lane Muraoka of Big City Dinner. He talked about the fact that he employed veterans who are out of work. He employs those who are disabled. So again, they are on the first line and they are doing their best to mitigate the effects because they understand their role as business owners, as local business owners here in our state.

"Finally, Mr. Speaker, the problem that I have with this version is that the current language in the bill is that the poverty rate is not prorated to the number of hours worked. So the same poverty threshold is used for a 20 hour employee, as is a 40 hour employee. The fact of the matter is, is that many of our food service workers are not full-time employees. They work under 40 hours, and so they will never be able to make that $33,500 that is required annually because they are not full-time workers.

"While I know that this bill is still a work in progress, I do wish it had progressed more than this. But I am thankful, and I want to commend the Finance Committee for deleting the CPI and reinserting the tip credit. But I did hope to offer my full support on this measure, but based on the foregoing issues, I must respectfully vote with reservations at this time. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Hashem rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Kobayashi rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Nakashima rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Strong support. Thank you. In 2007, the last time that the minimum wage was increased, gasoline was $3.19, bento with drink $7.52, and dinner for four at a burger restaurant $22. Today that's gone up to $4.39 a gallon of gas, $10.50 for a bento and a drink, and about $30 for the family of four eating at a burger joint. That equals an increase of 5 hours, 2 hours and 4 hours for a minimum wage employee, additional that they have to work to pay for those increases in price. And those prices increased, Mr. Speaker, in spite of the fact that the minimum wage had not increased.

"There's been much said about whether or not it's a living wage, or really a training wage, and I think that what we're trying to do is we're trying to ensure that the training wage continues to rise as the marketplace continues to pay more. The majority of the employers that came in indicated that they were already paying above the minimum wage. However, there are those employers that continue to just pay all employees the minimum wage, regardless of how much training they've had or how long they've worked for them. So I think that by increasing the minimum wage on a periodic level as the Legislature has done, will continue to ensure that even at the very bottom of our pay structure, those employees are seeing a little bit more to spend and to kind of keep up with the increase in cost of living.

"Much has been said about the tip credit. The tip credit is only applicable of one sector of our businesses. It's the restaurant sector, basically the food service folks. And even there, the fast food guys don't have the tip credit. Our grocery stores don't get to have the tip credit. Our friends in the gas industry don't get to apply the tip credit. It's only in the restaurant industry. So that we're expending so much time and effort on trying to satisfy that one sector of our businesses is kind of difficult. But we did try to do that. And as I look across all of the tipped classes, in my district I see no one making $60,000, although they have come to hearings telling me that their tipped employees are the highest paid, they make $30,000 to $60,000.

"Because of that, I tried to think of a way where we could cut across all of these different levels of tipped employees. And the poverty threshold is the one that we came up with. And yes, it is a blunt instrument. It does not account for an employee that has many different jobs. If you look at the language of the bill it refers to the employees' employer, not the employees' employers. So you know, we're just talking about that one individual business being able to apply the tip credit to their employee at the point that they hit the threshold. I don't think that it's that difficult a calculation. The employers, in some of the methods that they have brought forward to us, indicate that they already keep this kind of record keeping.

"As we look at it, I think the Representative from Kapolei is right. There is an underreporting of tips. And I don't know how we're going to address that. But it's not going to be in this minimum wage bill. Finally, Mr. Speaker, I'd like to point out that, basically it's my feeling that any money given to the minimum wage earner does not get saved. It goes right back into our economy because they are paying their bills. The story is, do I buy drugs, do I buy medication or do I buy food?"

Representative Morikawa rose to yield her time, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Nakashima continued, stating:

"Thank you. And, I think in this small way, we are able to help them make that choice a little easier. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Kawakami rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I'd like a ruling on a potential conflict. Both my children are employed in the restaurant industry," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Awana continued to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you. Mr. Speaker, I'd like to vote with reservations and ask that the words of Speaker Souki, as well as the good Representative from Kapolei be entered into the Journal as if they were my own. And just a few brief comments. I truly support minimum wage, but I think we truly need to look at living wage as a viable solution. In addition, I'd just like to include written comments into the Journal. Thank you."

Representative Awana's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support with reservations. Perhaps we can include the food service industries under this bill in a separate section. The minimum should not be the standard. We need to take a closer look at a living wage for the people of Hawaii. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Lee rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Still in support. I just want to make a correction. Earlier I mentioned a statistic that had minimum wage kept up with inflation today it would be over $20. I meant worker productivity, rather than inflation. Thank you."

Representative Fukumoto rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With reservations, and can I request that the words of the Representative from Moanalua, and the Representative from Laie be adopted as my own. Also, just a brief comment. The Representative from Kihei mentioned that jobs had actually gone up after we increased the minimum wage the last time.

"The one thing that he didn't mention is that there was one industry in which jobs actually were lost, and that was the food and beverage industry. I think in that particular case, those are the people that are coming here telling us now that there will be jobs lost if we increase the minimum wage too high. So I think we need to keep that in mind. The last time we increased the minimum wage, jobs did go up, but not in the one industry that's claiming, again, that jobs will be lost. Thank you."

Representative Matsumoto rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Johanson be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Fale rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, still with very strong reservations. May I have the words of the Representative from Kapolei entered into the Journal as if they were my own, as well as the remarks of the Representative from Mililani. I certainly do appreciate the economics lesson that we received, Mr. Speaker, from the good Representative from Kihei. Unfortunately, Mr. Speaker, the statements that I did make were not false.

"If we go back to every single time, I can show you, Mr. Speaker. I can tell you exactly right now. The impoverished communities, when we last raised the minimum wage, Mr. Speaker, are still the impoverished communities today. And before that, the impoverished communities before the last time we raised the minimum wage, two hikes ago, are still the impoverished communities today, Mr. Speaker. You tell me which communities have been raised out of poverty by increasing the minimum wage.

"When I approach something, Mr. Speaker. I love my sports, love my football, love my rugby. When I get on a team, when I'm working with a group of young individuals, I don't tell them we're going to lose less, or we're going to fail less. What I tell them, Mr. Speaker, is we're going to win.

"When I go to these communities and I knock on those doors and I talk to them one on one, I don't tell them, 'I want you to be less poor.' I don't tell them, 'I want you to have a little more money.' I want them to thrive, Mr. Speaker. Thrive. In some respects, Mr. Speaker, you could constitute that as inhumane, an inhumane treatment of these people. To just throw them a little bread just to get by from one day to the next and not give them exactly what they need to make sure that they thrive and grow, Mr. Speaker.

"You ever done that? I have a little plant by my door. Every time I leave, when I forget to give it a little water, it starts to wilt and leaves start to crinkle up. And then I give it a little water. Because I'll get the fertilizer and I'll give it the real water it needs tomorrow, tomorrow. And you see the stunted growth, right? I mean, it's alive. It's alive, Mr. Speaker. It's been alive for the last 16 months or so. And you see the frail, stunted growth of that plant. It's kind of ugly.

"It's the same principle, Mr. Speaker. If we don't water our communities with the proper resources that they need."

Representative Hanohano rose to yield her time, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale continued, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, if we look back at these communities, the ones that I'm talking about, the ones that have been generationally impoverished time after time we've increased. That's like, the little bit of water you give it. You see the stunted little growth, you see crime flourish, you see all these other activities that shouldn't be going on if they had a healthy, vibrant community. It's the same thing, Mr. Speaker. We throw them a little crumb. We throw them a little crumb every now and then, just to keep them going. Not really enough to get them going, but just enough to limp along.

"Mr. Speaker, that's not good enough. We could do better, Mr. Speaker. We should do better. I don't want to make anyone less poor. I want them to make sure they thrive. For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I still have serious reservations in regards to this measure."

Representative Tokioka rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, once again with reservations. I forgot to add something, and it's going to be less than 10 seconds, Mr. Speaker. We did have a lot of testimony that was submitted to the Finance Committee in the hearing. And it was a stack about this big. But what was obvious in that stack was that there was not one piece of testimony that came from any server, food server, bus person. Not one asking for us to increase, or to not allow their employers to take the tip credit.

"When I did ask the Department of Labor if they've ever had a complaint from anyone who was a tipped employee, asking about them having to complain about minimum wage, they said no. So, Mr. Speaker, I think if we're trying to help those servers with a better wage, they're not asking for it. Not one piece of testimony was proven in the Finance Committee. So thank you, Mr. Speaker. I just want to make it clear as Speaker Emeritus did, I do support the increases and the step increases in the minimum wage. So, thank you."

Representative Fukumoto rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations on HB 2580, HD1 which would steadily increase minimum wage over the next few years. I believe the end goal of HB 2580, HD1 is to find an appropriate way to help families afford the high cost of living here in Hawaii, which significantly affects our residents. The minimum wage is one way to potentially help our lower income population avoid poverty, but I strongly believe that we should be focusing our legislative efforts on lowering the cost of living.

"As I've spoken with small business owners in my community, many have concerns that raising the minimum wage too high could adversely impact their businesses, and I agree that a large increase would only increase poverty if business owners find themselves unable to operate and provide jobs.

"Previous versions of this measure would have been much more detrimental to the business community, and I appreciate that this measure attempts to strike a balance between the needs of job providers and workers. However, I still have concerns that this bill does not do enough to ensure that businesses will be able to afford the increases and continue to provide jobs for Hawaii's families. Most business owners will be able to afford the initial increase, but the Legislature will need to watch the issue and its impact on the economy closely as the increases in this bill take place.

"For these reasons, I vote aye with reservations."

Representative Har rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har's written remarks are as follows:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker, for the opportunity to provide additional written comments on HB 2580. While I support the intent of ensuring that the minimum wage is temporally appropriate to the price and value of one's labor, I too have strong reservations regarding the draft that has been presented for consideration. To reiterate, the proposed measure before us has received two hearings before standing committees in this Chamber – and I do not believe the current draft reflects the amount of input that it has received.

"It is important to note that the fundamental reasoning for a minimum wage increase is so that the lowest echelons of our workforce would continue to receive a wage that is not just commensurate with the quality and value of their labor, but takes into consideration the cost of living and other expenses. To be clear, the minimum wage was and is not intended ever to be a living wage. As someone who has been paid minimum wage before, for everyone but the tip classes it is intended to be a 'training' wage that is only probationary in nature. The competitive work environment demands that businesses valued individuals in excess of the minimum wage to secure their loyalty and their continued employment.

"More importantly, the minimum wage was a tool to ensure an egalitarian society. Egalitarianism treats every person equally, regardless of any previous socio-economic classifications that they might have previously been characterized. It is the self-same concept that permits the upward mobility of many immigrant or impoverished classes within our society. I would simply call this the 'American Dream' – where anything is possible with hard work. In this respect, can and should always be rewarded. In the rare exceptions to this axiom, hard-working individuals are encouraged to seek out more rewarding opportunities in the marketplace of employment.

"While I have personally benefitted from the hard work of my parents in addition to the fruits of my own labor to participate in the 'American Dream,' I have serious reservations regarding the current draft before us for its treatment of tip-class employees. As someone who previously enjoyed the benefits of being a tip-class employee, I must make clear that these positions are not tip-class positions. Both my own experiences, the testimony of many restaurant owners and my conversations with many other individuals clearly reflect this. House Draft 1, currently before us for consideration, treats individuals that often collect wages and tips in the range of $25 to $40 an hour as minimum wage employees and gives them the same wage increase that the hard working kitchen staff and dishwashers need to make a living wage.

"House Draft 1 is nothing more than a thinly-veiled attempt to make the rich, richer. As a life-long member of the Democratic Party, this is a particular proposition that I have grave reservations toward. If rising tides were to float all boats, then this is an attempt to ensure that the gilded yachts of a handful of privileged individuals continue to ride higher than the dilapidated junks of the very people that we are trying to assist. Under the proposed increase, the same individuals that already take home pay at a rate of $25 to $40 an hour would receive a $2 pay raise IF they accurately report their tips.

"While tip-class employees are required by law to accurately report all tips, the worst kept secret in the labor industry is that cash tips are at best inaccurately reported. The very same inaccurate reporting skews labor statistics used by the Department of Labor and Industrial Relations and other related agencies to accurately report a baseline poverty threshold. By using a 'poverty threshold', the House Finance Committee has done nothing more than perpetuate a culture of inaccurate reporting. It can be reasonably expected that any tip-class employee would skew their tips to ensure that their reported wages fall beneath the poverty threshold so that they would benefit from the additional one dollar increase to their base pay.

"To be clear, tip-class employees take home the same amount of money regardless of how accurately they report their cash tips. The 'poverty threshold' proposed in the HD1 would encourage borderline cases to perpetuate the culture of misreporting to ensure that each tip-class employee can make an additional dollar.

"Mr. Speaker, with respect to tip-class employees, it is no longer a matter of making a living wage. It is instead a matter of gamesmanship – using existing labor laws to ensure that they take home more than their fair share. While non-tipped employees are forced to pay their 'fair share', tip-class employees that fudge their reporting pay less into the same system for what they receive from government.

"And the status quo supports this culture of misreporting.

"Mr. Speaker, where is the fairness in that? Where is the egalitarianism? And why are we perpetuating bad behavior. Other bills that we are considering are supposed to level the playing field so the proletariat can make a decent living while the bourgeoisie continue to exploit tax loopholes to support their lavish lifestyles. We are supposed to be closing loopholes, not opening them.

"The appropriate treatment of tip-class employees is integral to ensure that our businesses, especially our small businesses, can weather this storm. It is therefore paramount that the minimum wage increase is received by only the individuals that need it the most. An increase to the price of business is the unenviable drawback on the path to ensure that the minimum wage is temporally appropriate. By awarding a two or three dollar pay increase to tip-class employees who do not need it, we risk the solvency of many more small businesses than necessary. Small businesses. Mom-and-Pop businesses.

"Mr. Speaker, I remember when I could buy a manapua on Waialae Avenue for less than a dollar. It was less than 10 years ago. Are we willing to trade our mom-and-pop businesses so that the rich can just get richer?

"On a final note, the poverty threshold is not pro-rated toward the number of hours an employee works in a week. Consider a tip-class employee that works two part-time jobs for 20 hours a week at each job. Let us say that this employee takes home $25,000 per year from each of the part-time jobs. When considered en totale, this very same employee is paid in excess of a $30,000 poverty threshold to the tune of $50,000. This same employee who clearly exceeds the poverty threshold would be entitled to the one dollar tip credit that is being reserved only for the individuals who require it the most. Each employer would be required to pay this tip-class employee the one-dollar tip credit because they do not meet the poverty threshold for each individual employer.

"This is just further evidence that the minimum wage measure before us, proposed with the most egalitarian of intentions, is nothing more than a tool to make the rich, richer. I hope to have the opportunity to fully support a temporally appropriate wage for all employees in future iterations of this or related measures. In order for this to happen, all potential abuses of labor law should be addressed to ensure that the most egalitarian of intentions are not corrupted by the bourgeoisie.

"For these reasons Mr. Speaker, I continue to have reservations regarding this measure."

Representative Kawakami rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Tsuji rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 2580, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO LABOR," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes to 3 noes, with Representatives Hanohano, McDermott and Say voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 902-14) recommending that H.B. No. 1911, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.B. No. 1911, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ing rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Just strong reservations."

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, strong reservations."

Representative Kawakami rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in opposition. Mr. Speaker, I know that the current bill has been amended to be just a study. But, Mr. Speaker, in its original form it was a bill that would impose a nonresident, noncommercial, so it would be a recreational saltwater fishing fee.

"Now, I have no bones to pick about charging visitors a nominal fee, especially if we establish retail locations as licensed agents. It could definitely help bring in foot traffic to our local mom and pops that specialize in selling fishing supplies, much like what Alaska does.

"However, if you review the testimony from DLNR as it pertains to the original bill, you'll note that the department wants to create a license and fee for both residents and nonresidents. In fact, they say, and I quote, 'The scope of the proposed bill should be broader to include both residents and non-residents who engage in non-commercial fishing. However, the licensing mechanism will require further analysis to determine how it should be implemented.' Thus, Mr. Speaker, the study we have in front of us at this very moment. I have the utmost respect for DLNR in the work that they do, but I have not been convinced that this is necessary.

"Mr. Speaker, here in Hawaii, fishing is more than recreation. It's a way of life. Just as much of a way of life as hunting, surfing, lei making, hula, and so on and so forth. And here, Mr. Speaker, we have tasked the very department that has already said that they wish to have residents be required to be licensed. Well, Mr. Speaker, I can almost tell you what the results of the study is going to be.

"Currently, Mr. Speaker, we require everyone who freshwater fishes, ages 15 and up to 64, be required to pay and attain a license. Ages 9 to 15 are required to pay a reduced fee and must attain a license. Nine and below require no license, but they must be accompanied by a license holder.

"Mr. Speaker, I know some youngsters who have parents that work two or three jobs, some are from families with one parent. But for these kids, for these kids who are not involved in football, baseball, basketball, soccer, and some of them that are without adult supervision, fishing is their babysitter. It keeps them occupied, it keeps them safe, it keeps them off the streets.

"Mr. Speaker, I stand with respect to the author of the bill and the Department of Land & Natural Resources, but I humbly disagree. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Tokioka rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition and I'd like to ask that the words of the Representative from Kapaa and Hanalei be inserted into the Journal as if they were my own, and especially his passion about this issue. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Ward rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, same request for the same remarks. Mr. Speaker, I would only give one analogy. This is like we passed the Law of the Splintered Paddle, but then we say, 'By the way you got to get a license to pass by this thoroughfare here.' I think this is really anathema to the Hawaiian lifestyle and who we are as Hawaii being distinct from other places that you've got to have a license and a 'mother may I' to do everything.

"This is really contrary to the Hawaiian sense of place, the spirit of Hawaiiana, and I totally agree with the Representative of Kauai. This will change our lifestyle. But again, it's just for the sake of getting some money. That's what the whole thing's about. So let's follow the money, let's follow this thing and kill it. Thank you."

Representative Cullen rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Kawakami be entered into the Journal as his own, and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Cullen's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to HB 1911, HD1.

"I rise in opposition because of its sole purpose – to require the Department of Land and Natural Resources to conduct a study examining the feasibility of establishing a noncommercial fishing license program. By doing such, the bill is not protecting our aquatic resources.

"Instead, by charging our residents a fee for a sport that is supposed to be recreational and enjoyable … and free … we begin to diminish a favorite form of gathering for many families. History has shown that it is inevitable for a fee to not increase over time, and I believe that in time, if the Legislature does pass this bill and it becomes law, the fee for the required noncommercial fishing license will increase.

"It is a hidden tax on our residents.

"It is a hidden tax that we will eventually realize that not many residents will want to pay, and as the number of residents who fish recreationally slowly decreases, I am afraid that a part of our culture will die before future generations are able to enjoy and experience a sport that generations before them were able to enjoy and experience."

Representative Awana rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Kawakami be entered into the Journal as her own, and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Awana's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition. Mr. Speaker, as a youth, my cousins and I spent much time fishing. There was much to be learned fishing – patience while waiting for a bite on the hook, humility when the fish got away, and teamwork when we helped each other bring the big one onto the shore. Even the thought of going down this road to study whether or not we are allowed to practice our native Hawaiian rights just turns my stomach. I am sure the discussion of engaging and spending funds and labor hours in such and endeavor is not pono. I am in strong belief that many of our local people are not aware of what is going on. I will not go back to my district and inform them that I voted in favor or that I voted with reservations. Fishing is a local pastime that helps to bond families, learn about our culture, and experience Hawaiian traditions. For this reason, I rise in opposition."

Representative Evans rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in support. As the Chair of Water & Land, we heard the bill in our Committee and we changed it quite a bit, actually. What we said is, the Aquatic Resources Division has a responsibility to really look at our natural resources and manage it. I hear the Representative from Kauai who does not have trust in the department, but I want to point out that what this bill is about is looking at a study and bringing it back to the Legislature. So the people we have to fear is ourselves if we're worried about this.

"Part of it I want to point out is, we want them to look at our gathering rights, traditional and customary. We want to look at reporting requirements, if there's fish that's taken. Should or should there not be restricted areas for fishing? Should there be penalties if people are violating and maybe overfishing? I mean, it was just this big attempt to look at, are we really managing our fishery? Is this the time to really look at that? It's interesting that we're afraid of ourselves, because again, I think this is about the aquatic resources. If we're going to have resource management in Hawaii, either we step up to the plate and do it or we just back off and we don't do anything. I think doing nothing is not the way to go. But again, I think this study can come back and maybe we just say, 'hands off, we're not going to do it.'

"The other thing that I want to point out is, there was a lot of discussion in our committee about the administrative rules process and how there's maybe, are they doing marine reserves? Are they doing no-take areas? Are they using administrative rules to move forward on resource management? And if they are, they're actually doing it without any oversight by this Legislative Body. And is that what you want, too? Because reality is, they may be out there managing it and we don't like what they're doing, and we wouldn't even know, because they may be doing it by administrative rule. So, it may be time to really take a look at what this department is doing if we don't trust them. So, I think the study could help us. So, thank you."

Representative Onishi rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations. I also have reservations about this bill in regards to licensing local fishermen who are doing it recreationally. This has been something that historically we've done for forever. And I think to impose that kind of licensing on our local fishermen is really against everything that we stand for.

"DLNR, in regards to how they conduct their business, I also have some concerns about that. Just recently they ruled that you can no longer do any diving or spearfishing on the west side of Hawaii, Hawaii Island. I think that it caused a lot of people a lot of concern because what they said is they're going to do the ban and then they're going to study whether or not it needs a ban. So again, I stand in reservations. Thank you."

Representative Kawakami rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Still in opposition. I'd just like to correct for the record that it is not a trust issue, as the Chair of Water & Land has said. It is not not having trust in the department. It's just humbly disagreeing. When we allocate millions of dollars for the Rain Follows The Forest program, we are putting a lot of trust in the department. So it's not a trust issue. It's just an issue of disagreement. Humble disagreement. Thank you."

Representative Evans rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you. The Representative from Hawaii Island reminded me. I just want to point out to my colleagues that regarding we do charge a license for our hunters that use our land. And we do that I believe, hopefully, for game management. But having said that, there's some bills this session to try to deal with DLNR doing a better job of game management areas. So, thank you."

Representative Tsuji rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mahalo ho'omalu 'ōlelo. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Kakao'o 'ole loa. In strong opposition. He pila hewa kēia. This is a wrongful bill. Ike ole ke ke'ena na waiwai 'o Hawaii 'o kēia ke'ena a'ohe hana ko lako kuleana. DLNR has not been knowledgeable about what they're doing and it's not being responsible. Mahalo."

Representative Yamane rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, standing up with reservations. Mr. Speaker, I would like to highlight that in this bill it states very clearly that is the purpose of this act is to, '(1) Require the department of land and natural resources to conduct a study examining the feasibility of establishing a noncommercial fishing license program.' So, Mr. Speaker, it states in the bill itself, that the sole purpose of this study is to determine if local residents will be charged, the feasibility of charging them a licensing fee.

"Also, Mr. Speaker, in Section 2 under 'the study shall consider', the number one issue that they will consider is whether a noncommercial fishing license program should be established.

"Mr. Speaker, this is not looking to see if our fisheries are viable. Mr. Speaker, it's not looking at if DLNR is good stewards of the ocean. This is specifically targeting the issue of having residents, local residents, for recreational purposes, to get a license to fish.

"Mr. Speaker, I am not a fisherman. I don't have the patience. However, I do want the opportunity, and I think many families do, if my sons want to go to fish, I would like the opportunity to take them fishing and teach them the importance of protecting the 'aina. Thank you."

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Matsumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Aquino rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Kawakami be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with reservations, if I may. I would like the words of the speaker from Hilo entered into the record as if they were my own. However, I do see that this mechanism could provide a way to keep the department from pursuing things through rules, like what happened in West Hawaii. So that's why I am with reservations. Although, I do have a correction from the speaker from Mililani, because I see him fishing for compliments all the time. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Har rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representatives Kawakami and Onishi be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Hashem rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Lowen rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, in support with some slight reservations. I know that might surprise some people because everyone thinks of me as a big environmentalist. And I do think this is very well intended and that we do need to make sure we're protecting aquatic resources for future generations. But because fishing's such a huge part of the culture here in Hawaii, I think that we have the best chance of success of protecting these resources if we make sure the effort is community led.

"If we start with education and outreach about what the existing regulations already are and how to be a responsible fisherman, if we try to impose a fishing license with a fee from the top down, just even judging from the number of reservations that we're hearing right now, I think it would be likely to just be a non-starter."

Representative Takayama rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ichiyama rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Jordan rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"May I have ruling on potential conflict of interest? Mr. Speaker, I sit as the chair of an advisory group that is discussing fishermen and entering a state park. Thank you very much," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Awana rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I'm just compelled to speak on this issue because it's so near and dear to my heart. I'm still rising in opposition. As a youth my cousins and I spent much time fishing. And there was much to be learned. Patience while waiting for a bite on the hook, humility when the fish got away, and team work when we helped each other bring the big one onto shore.

"Even the thought of going down this road, to study whether or not we're allowed to practice our native Hawaiian rights, just turns my stomach. And I'm sure the discussion of engaging in spending funds and labor hours in such an endeavor is not pono. I'm in strong belief that many of our local people are not aware of what's going on. For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I still stand in opposition."

Representative Thielen rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Reservations please. Mr. Speaker, I see that two introducers of the bill have changed their position. One is now a 'no' and the other is 'with reservations'. I think that it may be a better situation to recommit the bill to committee and possibly go with a resolution asking for a broader study, where you reach out to the local fishing community. I'm not making a motion to do that, but I thought that if it would be possibly in the best idea to do that, and we could take a recess possibly, and people could think about that recommittal. Thank you."

Representative Yamashita rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

At 6:31 o'clock p.m., Representative Tokioka requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 6:33 o'clock p.m.

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 1911, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO AQUATIC RESOURCES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 39 ayes to 12 noes, with Representatives Awana, Cullen, Fale, Fukumoto, Hanohano, Har, Ito, Kawakami, McDermott, Morikawa, Tokioka and Ward voting no.

At 6:36 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 2276, HD 1
H.B. No. 2597, HD 2
H.B. No. 2263, HD 2
H.B. No. 1994, HD 1
H.B. No. 1841, HD 1
H.B. No. 2580, HD 1
H.B. No. 1911, HD 1

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 903-14) recommending that H.B. No. 1499, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.B. No. 1499, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

At 6:36 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 6:37 o'clock p.m.

At 6:38 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 6:38 o'clock p.m.

At this time, Representative Oshiro offered Floor Amendment No. 1, amending H.B. No. 1499, HD 1, as follows:

"SECTION 1. House Bill No. 1499, H.D. 1, is amended by deleting its contents in its entirety.

SECTION 2. House Bill No. 1499, H.D. 1, is amended by inserting the following:

"SECTION 1. The legislature finds that House Bill No. 1499 was intended to amend the Hawaii State Constitution to address one aspect of the United States Supreme Court's controversial decision in Citizens United v. Federal Election Commission, 558 U.S. 310 (2010). The legislature shares concerns about Citizens United, but has serious reservations about the measure in both its original version and the House Draft 1 version. Unfortunately, the proposed constitutional amendment, if ratified, cannot have any practical effect. The State of Hawaii remains subject to the Citizens United ruling construing the federal Constitution, regardless of any amendment made to the Hawaii State Constitution. Consequently, the legislature declares that House Bill No. 1499, and its subsequent version, House Draft 1, cannot effectuate its intended purpose.

The legislature further finds that amending the text of the Hawaii State Constitution is within the State's power, but doing so in this manner will have no practical legal effect due to Citizens United and earlier case law from the United States Supreme Court, including Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1 (1976), interpreting the federal Constitution. Buckley is the foundation of modern campaign finance case law. Among the many rulings in that case, the United States Supreme Court held that contributions and expenditures of money made for the purpose of influencing an election are entitled to the protections of the First Amendment. Id. at 15-17.

The federal Constitution is the supreme law of the land. Therefore, even if this measure, in its original form or in the form House Draft 1, was enacted and ratified into law, the State of Hawaii would still be subject to the ruling in Buckley, as well as the ruling in Citizens United that corporations are entitled to make unlimited independent expenditures regarding elections. Even if the Hawaii State Constitution was amended, state laws would still be subject to the United States Supreme Court's federal constitutional rulings about money used to influence elections. Only an amendment to the federal Constitution – or a subsequent overruling decision from the United States Supreme Court – can undo the Citizens United decision or the broader proposition regarding First Amendment protections for contributions and expenditures under Buckley.

In addition, the legislature acknowledges that if this measure, in its original form or the House Draft 1 form, is placed on the ballot, it would create the impression that it would be legally effective to address and overturn the unpopular Citizens United ruling. Because the proposed amendment would not have such legal effect, this impression would be misleading.

Accordingly, the purpose of this measure, in the version House Draft 2, is to make this measure inoperative in light of Taomae v. Lingle, 132 P.3d 1238 (2005).

SECTION 2. This Act shall take effect upon its approval.""

At 6:39 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 6:39 o'clock p.m.

Representative Oshiro moved that Floor Amendment No. 1 be adopted, seconded by Representative Say.

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The floor amendment before us basically will do several things. First of all, it will have the effect of stopping House Bill 1499, House Draft 1 from passing from this Chamber. I've shared with the Body many times in previous discussions. I believe there's a fatal flaw, not so much in this bill itself but a fatal flaw in our approach to what this measure seeks to do.

"My understanding is that this bill seeks to undo a terrible, terrible, terrible Supreme Court decision called Citizens United. By which, you have different organizations including public unions and corporations unfettered expenditure through non-candidate committees. And it's a terrible decision because it basically set aside almost 50 years of good law on the books and in practice by many states and the federal government.

"But the flaw in this bill, Mr. Speaker, is that this will have no effect on the Citizens United case. In fact, according to the Attorney General, this might have the unintended effect of maybe misleading our voters as to what this constitutional amendment would do.

"I've been around long enough, Mr. Speaker, to know that you don't amend the constitution without a darn good reason, a very good reason. It is the fundamental foundational doctrine or law of the land. And so, when we look at constitutional amendments of any provision in any sorts, you need to look at it as a very measured and limited proceeding for extraordinary requests and needs.

"In this case, my understanding is that it will have merely a symbolic, symbolic effect upon the nine Supreme Court jurists at the United States Supreme Court, and/or maybe the Congress in Washington D.C. But it would have zero effect upon the Citizens United decision. I find that very troubling, Mr. Speaker, so I've taken it upon myself to attempt to slow this bill down, to maybe set it aside through this amendment.

"This amendment, because it's a constitutional amendment and according to a Hawaii Supreme Court decision, which is still good law, would basically kill this bill should it pass through this Chamber and should it be endorsed by the Governor, for constitutionally being a defective bill, not having the requisite Three Readings. So that's what it does.

"But I would really encourage the Members to just look at the amendment itself that's before you. It's about a page and a half. It's basically a recitation of the Attorney General's submittal to the respective chairs, raising the concern and pointing out the black letter law, the simple truth, the simply legal fact that this constitutional amendment will have no legal effect, will not do anything to address the Citizens United decision, and in fact would be misleading to our voters.

"I wish I wasn't standing before you, Mr. Speaker. I wish there was another way of doing this. Maybe we should look at putting in a concurrent resolution and address it to our congressional delegation to implore them to seek a change in the campaign spending laws to address the gaping loophole that Citizens United created, and the evils that we all agree exist today.

"But this doesn't do it. I'll be the first to sign on a concurrent resolution asking our congressional delegation to do that. I'll be the first to even write a letter to the Supreme Court justices, asking for them to reconsider the Citizens United ruling in current cases pending on the current docket, as we speak. But again, Mr. Speaker, this won't do it. And that's why I have this floor amendment before us. Thank you."

Representative Belatti rose to speak in opposition to the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition to this floor amendment. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With all due respect to the Attorney General's Office, their testimony is simply just a statement that this amendment would have no legal effect. I do not see any citations to legal principles, principles of constitutional construction, or case law. I would submit that it is an open question, an open legal question that will only be determined by either our Hawaii Supreme Court or the United States Supreme Court on what effect this amendment would have.

"And I would state for the record, Mr. Speaker, that there are principles of constitutional construction that allow us, as a state, with the sovereign right to adopt in its own constitution, individual liberties more expansive than those conferred by the Federal Constitution. We need only look at the fact that there's the resign-to-run rule that allows for sitting Members of this, at the state level, to be able to run for federal office. But we don't have that same kind of constitutional right. For us to run in another state office, if we were sitting in an office, we'd have to resign.

"So there are different levels of constitutional protections, and I again submit, Mr. Speaker, what we have before the United States Supreme Court, McCutcheon v. FEC is Citizens United two. And if the Supreme Court decides to strike down all overall contribution limits, perhaps the only thing that's going to protect the state election process and the floodgates of corporate money infusing our system would be an amendment such as this one. So, Mr. Speaker, in strong opposition to this floor amendment. Thank you."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in opposition to the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"In opposition to the amendment. The amendment is, I can't say I've ever seen anything like this in my seven years in office and six years as staff before that. It basically is an amendment that says we should vote against the bill. So I would say reject the amendment and let's debate the actual bill. Mahalo."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the amendment. Mr. Speaker, this Body has in the past voted things that are marginally constitutional, but those were in-house. Those were bills that represented our opinions. That was inside baseball. This one says, 'Let's go out to the public.'

"Now no one has talked about the special session, but the special session, everybody saying, 'Hey, 1998, you guys did a constitutional amendment and it said thus and such.' I would submit, Mr. Speaker, our credibility is on the line if we pass this, the way it is with this amendment. It's going to be what you guys said, that Citizens doesn't count in Hawaii. Isn't that what you put it up to us for? Even though, quite frankly, this is just a statement of this Body and should be to this Body, not something we bring out the public and confuse them again like we did 1998. Even though technically it was pure in terms of how it was meant, it was misunderstood.

"I think this one would certainly be misunderstood, because I don't think anybody in here is saying, 'Hey, all corporate money, we want to take it all on. All labor money, we want to take it all on.' No. But to do it in this way in putting it before the public, rather than as a resolution or a bill that passes within this bill representing our opinions, rather than taking it out and confusing the public. I think it's very risky the way we're dealing with this. And that's why this amendment makes it very straight. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support of the floor amendment. Because, Mr. Speaker, I'm not in support of the current version of HB 1499, and this gives me an option. And I would like to be on the record in support of this floor amendment currently.

"I don't feel very comfortable moving things forward that gives our constituents some symbolic thought to put out there. I understand the mechanisms of what the introducer is trying to do with this, I truly do. And I think a resolution going up to our congressional delegation will be a lot more effective. And that will be public record. We didn't have to do something like this, without trying that first step first. So, I'm in support of the floor amendment currently, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Rhoads rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you. Still in opposition. I did want to point out that last year, we did pass H.C.R. 10 out of this Body, which requested the United States Congress to propose a constitutional amendment to overturn the United States Supreme Court's holding relating to corporate independent expenditures in Citizens United. So we passed it, the Senate did not. But this Body did, and this is a stronger statement than the reso, but we have tried the resolution very recently.

"With regards to the confusion on a ConAm, well there's a lot of confusing ConAms that go out there. If you asked a regular guy who's never had to deal with SPRBs to try to get them to explain what they're voting about for adding SPRBs for agricultural purposes or, there's a whole variety of them. Most people don't know anything about bonding, don't have any idea what that is. So I think you assume in a democracy that people are going to be informed, and if the instructions for the ConAm are, translated out of legalese, it shouldn't be any more of a problem on this proposed ConAm than on any other ConAm. Thanks again."

Representative Fale rose in support of the proposed floor amendment and asked that the remarks of Representative Ward be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Say rose to speak in support of the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I recognize it's going to be voice vote. Can I state my vote right now? Aye for the floor amendment."

The motion that Floor Amendment No. 1, amending H.B. No. 1499, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO THE HAWAII CONSTITUTION REGARDING THE FREEDOM OF SPEECH," be adopted, was put to vote by the Chair and upon a voice vote, failed to carry, with Representatives Belatti and Rhoads voting no, and with Representative Morikawa being excused.

(Main Motion)

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'm going to be standing in opposition to the bill before us. Again, I wish I wasn't standing here in front of this Body and my colleagues. I think we all know what this bill does and does not do. I'm looking at the State Constitution, so my colleague from Makiki is correct. We have a provision, Article II, Section 7, Resignation From Public Office. And that's part of the 1978 Con-Con. Back in 1978 it was part of a package of election reforms that were passed back in 1978, and thankfully, fortunately, adopted, ratified by the voters.

"It's part of the Article II, Sections 5, 6 and 8, which dealt with partial public financing, spending and contribution limits, and elections. And it authorized the Legislature to have the authority to establish a campaign fund to be used for partial public financing of campaigns, and the Legislature shall provide a limit on the campaign spending of candidates. That's from 1978, ratified November 7th of 1978. Article III, Section 6, limitation on campaign contributions to any political candidate or authorized political campaign organization for such candidate for an elective office within the state shall be provided by law. Again, it's a constitution amendment, 1978, ratified by the voters November 7th, 1978, and of course, the other resignation from public office. Those are all part of the general election ballot, 1978.

"I think we had 34 different amendments coming out of the constitutional convention. I think it was one of the last times we had a state constitutional convention. So I reviewed some of the minutes on the discussion and debate. Buckley v. Valeo was being discussed. It was the Supreme Court's ruling at that time. But at that time, Mr. Speaker, these delegates knew what they were doing. In fact, someone mentioned his name earlier today, former Governor Waihee. And Governor Waihee understood the import and what we could and couldn't do without State Constitution and our state campaign laws, at the United States Supreme Court's Buckley v. Valeo decision.

"If this thing goes out, Mr. Speaker, as a constitutional amendment, and we can explain what a special purpose revenue bond, SPRB is, a type of mortgage that's going to be serviced by those who are benefitting from the expenditure of funds, having a revenue stream to build or erect some building or infrastructure. That can be explained. But I don't know how I'm going to explain this to my constituents, by saying that this constitutional amendment, that you are going to be paying for, that you're going to be buying through your endorsement or not, is going to have one iota of effect upon the federal constitutional as interpreted by the federal United States Supreme Court in the Citizens United case.

"Because if anyone asks me that, the answer to them would be simply, 'no'. And so, if they ask me why am I using public monies and putting this on the ballot with some other important constitutional amendments, such as using public funds to erect the universal early education program through the State of Hawaii, or to allow, again, special purpose revenue bonds to be used for agricultural purposes. If they ask me about this particular amendment, the only answer I can give them is to send a message for the symbolic value that it has. But as far as any effect upon our laws or the constitution of the United States of America as interpreted by the United States Supreme Court, it would have none. And that's why I'm voting no, Mr. Speaker. I ask for permission to insert further written comments. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I am strongly opposed to this bill. For the life of me, I cannot understand what it is with Majority Leadership and the Chair of the Judiciary Committee. Let's be very clear – approval of this bill misleads our people. It will make people believe we are approving meaningful campaign spending reform, but in fact, if this bill is approved, we will be asking our citizens to ratify an amendment to our State Constitution that even if ratified, would not change a single thing.

"As discussed at length during the debate on Floor Amendment No. 1, the only way the Citizens United and Buckley decisions can be overturned is by either amending the FEDERAL Constitution – not the State Constitution – or having the United States Supreme Court reverse its decisions in those hallmark cases. As testified by the Attorney General of the State of Hawaii, our top legal official, amending our State Constitution will have no effect whatsoever on the application of Citizens United and Buckley.

"So why are we doing this? My colleague from Chinatown, the Chair of the Judiciary Committee, says it is a 'symbolic gesture. 'Symbolic gesture'? Is he serious? If he wants to make 'symbolic gestures', he should take his $50 bill and buy a ream of paper, and start a petition within his community. He can then use the rest of the money for postage to send the petition to the Chief Justice of the United States Supreme Court. That would be a lot more effective than wasting our taxpayers' time and resources on a measure like this. Putting a $50 bill in front of a microphone and asking it questions might get funny media play, but it just makes all of us – ALL OF US – look incompetent.

"I am deeply offended that this measure is actually up for Third Reading. How will anyone take what this Body does seriously?

"For the record, I attach herewith the Attorney General's written testimony on this bill before the House Committee on Judiciary, dated January 28, 2014. What does anyone not understand of the testimony? To even contemplate amending the Hawaii State Constitution, the highest law of this state, in this fashion destroys any credibility this Body has with the public.

"If this Body wants to get serious about campaign finance reform, the proper way of doing it would be to ask our Congressional Delegation to introduce FEDERAL legislation to undo the Citizens United and Buckley decisions. They would need to propose a bill to amend the United States Constitution to clarify that the Freedom of Speech guaranteed by the First Amendment not apply to corporations or unions. We could also request the United States Supreme Court to reverse its decisions in Citizens United and Buckley in cases that are currently before that body. But the way to do either or both is not through the passage and ratification of a bill proposing an amendment to the Hawaii State Constitution. It would be through the adoption of a Resolution.

"And so, as I stated during my remarks on the floor amendment, I will be introducing a concurrent resolution that would do just that, and I strongly urge every Member of this Body to support it.

"That is the proper way of addressing campaign finance reform. Not this.

"I would also like to rebut a point raised by my colleague from Kakaako, the Majority Leader, who said there is precedent in amending the Hawaii State Constitution to counter a decision rendered by the United States Supreme Court.

"He cites Article II, Sections 5 and 6 of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii, which reads:

CAMPAIGN FUND, SPENDING LIMIT

Section 5. The legislature shall establish a campaign fund to be used for partial public financing of campaigns for public offices of the State and its political subdivisions, as provided by law. The legislature shall provide a limit on the campaign spending of candidates.

CAMPAIGN CONTRIBUTIONS LIMITS

Section 6. Limitations on campaign contributions to any political candidate, or authorized political campaign organization for such candidate, for any elective office within the State shall be provided by law.

"The Majority Leader said that the Hawaii State Constitution was amended in this fashion knowing that the limitations proposed could not be effectuated in light of the Buckley decision. He stated that despite this the Hawaii State Legislature proposed an amendment to the Hawaii State Constitution as a 'symbolic gesture' to oppose the Buckley decision.

"The Majority Leader should do his homework. First, the provisions that make up Article II, Sections 5 and 6 were not initiated by the passage of a legislative bill. It was actually recommended by the Constitutional Convention of 1978, and placed on the ballot after those provisions were approved by that body. In other words, the conventioneers and not the Legislature proposed the amendment.

"In the debates of the Committee of the Whole on September 11, 1978, the comments of Delegate Weatherwax explain why these provisions were recommended:

"The next section deals with public campaign financing; it directs the legislature to begin a public financing fund for the purpose of assisting candidates in partial public financing along the lines of a matching fund concept, which was one of the concepts discussed in the committee. It also talks about a spending limitation – and again these concepts should be kept separate. For instance, the spending limitation would be on the candidate, and under present constitutional law this is permissible, under the case of Buckley v. Valeo, when in fact public financing is provided. So if the candidate accepts public financing, a spending limitation may be imposed on him. The committee proposal, however, does take it a step further and suggests that spending limitations be included for all candidates running for office. There is some question as to the constitutionality of this. However, I believe it was the intention of the committee that a reexamination of the Buckley v. Valeo case should be undertaken to determine whether in fact it is constitutional or unconstitutional. And this would be a beginning step toward that." [See, Proceedings of the Constitutional Convention of Hawaii of 1978, Volume II Committee of the Whole Debates, page 701.]

"In other words, Delegate Weatherwax said that while there is some question as to whether a restriction can be legally imposed, the provision should be enacted to ensure that the courts further examine this issue. This is a very different statement than what is being proposed in this bill – a situation where legal experts know conclusively that such an amendment cannot withstand muster. Again, the Attorney General's written testimony is a very clear recitation of what would be described as 'black letter' law.

"Delegate Weatherwax continued by stating:

"There, of course, have been some questions as to the spending limitations, and I would hope that you remember that contribution limitations, the disclosure requirements which are presently in the statutes, and the public financing. Presently under Buckley v. Valeo, spending limitations are permitted when in fact voluntary financing is undertaken. I believe there is a possibility that Buckley v. Valeo should be examined by the State and by the courts again as to whether or not in fact there is an infringement on the First Amendment right. I believe in balancing the two problems of the First Amendment right to free speech, that the infringement is not that great, and that in fact political corruption is an evil which should be corrected. . ." [Id., page 787. Emphasis added.]

"Again, because the Constitutional Convention was convened (July 5, 1976) after Buckley was issued (January 30, 1976), Delegate Weatherwax believed there was much uncertainty at the time on how that decision would be implemented and how it would affect campaign finance laws in Hawaii and across our nation. And it was because of this uncertainty that he and his fellow delegates put forth the text found in Article II, Sections 4 and 5. . . to let the courts further harmonize the principles of campaign finance laws with the freedom of speech.

"I say again. . . what Delegate Weatherwax said was this – The Constitutional Convention put in these provisions to HARMONIZE our Constitution with the Buckley Decision, not to put in defective language just to make a point. After all, as he stated, 'Presently under Buckley v. Valeo, spending limitations are permitted when in fact voluntary financing is undertaken.'

"If, for sake of argument, the Majority Leader meant that the Constitutional provision was inserted despite not knowing whether it would pass muster, yes, there is some truth to this. But keep in mind, at the time of the Constitutional Convention, the Buckley case was less than six months old, and it was approved by a 5-4 vote. At that time, no one knew what the ramifications of that decision would be.

"And so, for sake of argument, even if those provisions were put in to make a statement, it didn't make it the right thing to do. Don't take my words for it, take the words of then-Delegate Joseph M. Souki who stated:

"My fellow delegate from Haleakala said that if this is not in violation or unconstitutional under federal law, it should be. I would like to give him the good news that it may well be. In April of this year, the U.S. Supreme Court, in First National Bank of Boston v. [Francis X.] Bellotti, declared unconstitutional a Massachusetts law which prohibits corporations from making payments, expenditures or contributions for the purpose of effecting the vote on referenda matter; and Justice White in his dissenting opinion says that by holding that Massachusetts may not prohibit corporate expenditures for contributions made in connection with referenda involving issues having no material connection with the corporate business, the court not only invalidates the statute which has been on the books in one form or another for many years but also casts considerable doubt upon the constitutionality of legislation passed by some 31 states restricting corporate political activity, as well as upon the Federal Corrupt Practices Act. So we find ourselves again putting into a constitution a mandate to the legislature, or a direction to the legislature, to take some action which is currently at least of questionable constitutionality. We are not making a constitution when we do this, we are legislating. Not only are we legislating but we are legislating in a very irresponsible way, because we are telling them to do something but we are not taking the responsibility of figuring out how it should be done, and we're not taking the responsibility of making the hard decisions which should go with legislation – that is, how much does it cost, how can you do it in a way that is practical, how can you do it in a way that is constitutional. Again we are venturing into areas where we do not belong, and I would urge you to stay away from those areas." [Id., p. 806. Emphasis added.]

"So even if you agree with the Majority Leader that there is precedent, we should heed the words of Delegate Joseph M. Souki those many years ago – that this is the wrong thing to do.

"Mr. Speaker, the insightful comments from the Representative from Lahaina should also give us reason to pause and reconsider what the majority is attempting to do. He raised a valid point of significant consequences that I believe has not been considered by the House Leadership or the Chair of the Judiciary Committee – What happens if the proposed Constitutional Amendment is defeated by the electorate? After all, considering the more than $3 million that was previously set aside for voter education on ballot measures was eliminated from the budget in part due to problems resulting from the 1998 Same-Sex Marriage amendment, and that blank votes count as 'no', there is a strong possibility that our people will not know what they will be voting on and as such, the ballot question might be defeated. What then? Does this mean our collective opposition to the Citizens United decision will now be trumped by the will of our constituents and voters?

"In the nearly 20 some-odd years that I have been a Member of this House, I have never come across a bill that so makes a mockery of our laws and the legislative process as this. This measure is utterly contemptuous and reveals a low regard for the Constitution of the State of Hawaii and its people. As a legislator whose forbearers sacrificed all for the rights and privileges of citizenship under our Constitution, I can stomach no more this insult to their sacrifice and legacy. I can no longer bite my tongue. It grieves me tremendously and leaves me stunned beyond words. It is unbelievable that this bill will likely pass Third Reading today. I can only hope that the Senate will do the responsible thing and kill this bill."

Representative Oshiro also submitted the following:

TESTIMONY OF
THE DEPARTMENT OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL
TWENTY-SEVENTH LEGISLATURE, 2014

ON THE FOLLOWING MEASURE:
H.B. NO. 1499, PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO THE HAWAII CONSTITUTION REGARDING THE FREEDOM OF SPEECH.

BEFORE THE:
HOUSE COMMITTEE ON JUDICIARY

DATE: Tuesday, January 28, 2014 TIME: 2:00 p.m.

LOCATION: State Capitol, Room 325

TESTIFIER(S): David M. Louie, Attorney General, or Deirdre Marie-Iha, Deputy Attorney General

Chair Rhoads and Members of the Committee:

The Department of the Attorney General understands that the intent of this bill is to amend the Hawaii Constitution to address one aspect of the United States Supreme Court's controversial decision in Citizens United v. Fed. Election Comm'n, 558 U.S. 310 (2010). The Department shares the Committee's concerns about Citizens United, but has serious reservations about this bill. Unfortunately, the proposed constitutional amendment, if ratified, cannot have any practical legal effect. The State of Hawaii remains subject to the Citizens United ruling construing the federal Constitution, regardless of any amendment made to the Hawaii Constitution. Consequently, the Department respectfully urges this Committee to hold or defer this bill.

Amending the text of the Hawaii Constitution is within the State's power, but doing so in this manner will have no practical legal effect due to Citizens United and earlier case law from the United States Supreme Court, including Buckley v. Valeo, 424 U.S. 1 (1976), interpreting the federal Constitution. Buckley is the foundation of modern campaign finance case law. Among the many rulings in that case, the Supreme Court held that contributions and expenditures of money made for the purpose of influencing an election are entitled to the protections of the First Amendment. Id. at 15-17. The federal constitution is the supreme law of the land. Therefore, even if this proposed amendment passed and was ratified, the State of Hawaii would still be subject to this ruling from Buckley, as well as the ruling from Citizens United that corporations are entitled to make unlimited independent expenditures regarding elections.[1] Even if the State Constitution was amended, our laws would still be subject to the Supreme Court's federal constitutional rulings about money used to influence elections. Only an amendment to the federal constitution—or a subsequent, overruling decision from the United States Supreme Court—can undo the Citizens United decision or the broader proposition regarding First Amendment protections for contributions and expenditures from Buckley.

Testimony of the Department of the Attorney General

Second, we are concerned about the breadth of the provision as it applies to expenditures to "promote lobbying." Page 1, line 16. Read literally, this provision could be read to deny the State Constitution's free speech protections for all activities supporting lobbying, because those activities would involve "the expenditure of money[.]" Lobbyists are generally governed by a distinct set of laws. See chapter 97, Hawaii Revised Statutes.

Finally, the Department also has concerns that this measure, if placed on the ballot, may confuse the public. If placed on the ballot, this measure may create the impression that it would be legally effective to address and overturn the unpopular Citizens United ruling. Because the proposed amendment would not have such a legal effect, this impression would be misleading.

For these reasons, the Department of the Attorney General respectfully requests that the Committee hold this bill.

[1] "Independent" expenditures means when a person or organization spends their own money without coordinating with any candidate for office.

Representative McDermott rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'm in opposition to this measure. I know that the Judiciary Chair, my good friend, is very passionate about this, and this is a real bug-a-boo for him and he wants to make a statement. I certainly applaud his passion and his desire to do such. But I think what was said earlier about a resolution, I know we sent them, they are, in fact, cheerleading vehicles, if you will. We could do that again, and let them know how we feel year after year.

"I think the Representative from Wahiawa has some good points. Putting a constitutional amendment on the ballot that would have no effect is troubling. Imagine if you would, for a minute, that if we passed out a constitutional amendment that said you couldn't have an abortion in the first trimester. Everyone in this Body would say the Supreme Court already ruled, you can't do that.

"So it's the same, but like Elvis would say, it's the same, 'cept different. I'd also like to echo the comments of my friend from Hawaii Kai, who talks about our credibility being at stake. This is really an exercise in futility, and it is fruitless. I don't know why we would do this. I appreciate the passion and the desire to make a point, but it is an exercise that we will lose more trust from the public. Thank you."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thanks, in support. I think the idea that somehow that just because it has no immediate legal effect or binding precedent or it doesn't become the law of the land because it's a state constitutional amendment compared to the federal question when it's largely a federal question, doesn't mean it has no effect. The effect it has is that people inside the state and outside the state will realize that we in Hawaii think that the Citizens United decision was a terrible one. And it's one that's going to corrupt our political system here in Hawaii by just pouring money into it so that to have any voice in politics, you'll have to have hundreds of thousands of dollars to spend. That is an effect. It's not strictly a legal one, at least not until litigation has occurred, as the Representative from Makiki has mentioned.

"But to say that is has no effect, not at all. I worked on Capitol Hill for six years. Washington is a city in the world that looks outward almost entirely. They do hear what the states say because it's the United States of America. And when the states start saying, 'Hey, this doesn't make any sense. You can't do this.' Or, 'We want to do things differently.' You bet Washington listens. Wherever you are on the pakalolo issue, the fact that Washington and Colorado have said, 'You know what, we're going to do this despite the fact that it's against federal law.' You don't think that changes anything? It sure does. And this effort, yes, there's no guarantee, there's no guarantee of anything in this business. But if we pass this bill, it will send a strong message that we reject Citizens United and that we think that money needs to be regulated in politics. Mahalo."

Representative Jordan rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. In opposition. As I stated, I was going to be in opposition when I talked on the floor amendment. When we talk about our constitutional amendment, that's something sacred. That really is. And I don't think we should keep throwing stuff arbitrarily out there. I understand what this is going to say symbolically, but I don't think we should use that mechanism of saying, 'Okay. It's okay, just throw a ConAm out there.' We should think seriously when we put constitutional amendments out there.

"There was a constitutional amendment out there for the definition of marriage, way back when. There's currently going to be a constitutional amendment this coming election period on seeing if you're going to expend dollars for early education. Those are serious issues. I'm not saying this isn't serious, but at this point in time, tell me it's going to be serious. I don't want to say, constituents vote on something that might happen down the road. We can send the message in multiple levels. I don't look at me as an elected official. I don't worry about big dollars rolling into my campaign. I go and walk and talk to people and get to know them personally. And it is what it is. I'm not going to stop that. If I'm good at what I do, I'll be reelected on no money or big money.

"So I don't think we should be putting this before voters. How are they going to be able to understand it? Is somebody going to do a campaign blitz out there in the media to really explain it to them? Or are they just going to say, 'I don't know what it is,' and leave it blank. Really? If we lose at the polls with this, what are we going to look like then, when we have other mechanisms currently? I understand what the 'legal beagles' in here are talking about. I am not a 'legal beagle'. I am somebody that respects that constitution and respects on what the things we put in there, and what we use it for.

"We shouldn't just arbitrarily keep throwing stuff out there. We got enough slaps from saying, 'You guys did something wrong because we didn't understand it.' I don't even know how I'm going to explain this to constituents. I have no clue. I'm probably going to say, 'Well, read what the definition is they put on that ballot for you. I voted no.' And that's what I'll tell them. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In reservations. Mr. Speaker, this nation has a rich history of money in politics. We have a rich tradition in this country of controlling money in politics. The Tillman Act of 1907 established corporations, you cannot give unlimited money. In 1943, the Supreme Court, the same Citizens Supreme Court said, unions, you can't give unlimited money to money in politics. This heretofore up until the Citizens was very much under control. How much money you can spend, how much money you can collect, and how much you can have limit, like here it's $2,000 per individual.

"We've always had money in politics as a very serious issue in this Nation. Citizens decision is not an unhinging of who we are as a people. That's my point. Mr. Speaker, the same way that we feel, some of us at least, that 40 cents on every dollar that we spend is borrowed. Some of us feel that's unacceptable for our country. But for this state to say we have a constitutional amendment for a balanced budget amendment, is going to be useless. Some of us feel very strongly, like the state here that has to have a balanced budget before we can get out of our session, that we should have it at the federal level. But passing it at this level is different than telling them there.

"My point is, those are the big league wars that are going on right now. This is not just unique to Hawaii. This is going on at a national level in all the legal minds that have always been piercing this veil to get more money into politics succeeded, but they're in the process of having other ways of not being able to defend it. I think what we need to do is to be patient to see what's going on at the federal level. And a little burp from Hawaii, which is an inside baseball issue, is not going to make that difference. The point is, not only is it not going to make a difference, but we're going to confuse the people of Hawaii thinking that inside baseball is really their game, and in fact it's our game. So if we want to do this it should be for and among ourselves, and then send it to Washington and not try to bring in the people of Hawaii to do it. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Ing rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In strong support. Mr. Speaker, I agree with a previous speaker that our Constitution of Hawaii is very sacred. What is also very sacred to me is our democracy. Unfortunately, the Citizens United case has threatened the viability of the democracy being for the people. I also agree with the previous speaker that said that there are other methods we could approach this.

"Just like the previous speaker, I'd gladly sign onto a letter to the courts. I'd gladly support a resolution, which I did last year. And I'd gladly support a resolution, which I offered this year to support the Congressional Government by the People Act. But what is a stronger way to send a message than a constitutional amendment, saying that we do not support this ruling. A corporation is not a person, and actually it doesn't really say that. That money is not free speech.

"I want to note that in addition to the examples given, offered by the Judiciary Chair, there are four states with minimum wage laws that are lower than the federal minimum wage. They do this for one reason, that if the federal minimum wage does go lower, that they'll be prepared for that. But also to send a message saying that we do not support this. And I think this bill is along those lines.

"I want to end with that the Citizens United case goes beyond campaign finance. There's a case right now that might be heard, that's expected to be heard this month. Is Sebelius v. Hobby Lobby, where Hobby Lobby is a defendant, they're a toy store and they're invoking the Religious Freedom Restoration Act of 2003, stating that the government shall not substantially burden a person's, a person's exercise of religion to build a case that, essentially Obamacare is unconstitutional and the employer mandate should not force them to give coverage, or they shouldn't have to participate in the employer mandate because their employees may use it for contraception, which goes against their religious beliefs. And when I say 'their', I don't know, I mean it seems that when you form a corporation, you forfeit your religious conscience. I can understand, corporations have political rights and I don't agree with it, but that's the basis of Citizens United.

"Now this is a whole few steps up and it's really unraveling everything we worked for. Whether it's equality or fairness or the aloha spirit here in Hawaii. And that's one of the things we really need to fight against, and this is why it's very important to take the strongest stance as possible against this ruling, and the constitutional amendment is the best way I can think of to do that. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, first of all, in opposition. I'd like to have the words of the Representative from Wahiawa adopted as my own. Mr. Speaker, in addition to that, I'd like to make a few comments. What I find most disturbing, Mr. Speaker, is there's been a lot of discussion about democracy. Okay, democracy in regards to constitutional amendments. When this very Body saw an unprecedented outcry in the history of the State of Hawaii, this Body refused to listen."

Representative Saiki rose to a point of order, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, point of order. The Representative should discuss the underlying merits of this bill."

The Chair addressed Representative Fale, stating:

"Stay focused on the merits of the bill, please."

At 7:09 o'clock p.m., Representative Fukumoto requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 7:10 o'clock p.m.

Representative Fale continued, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'll continue to talk about the actual merits of the bill and what it actually means. But this is one of the great things, Mr. Speaker. We could send this constitutional amendment out and people vote yes on it and it actually means no. Or they vote no on it and it actually means yes. Or they could vote no or yes and it doesn't matter what they say, we'll decide what the intent was, this Body will.

"So, I like the flexibility that I've seen of what happens with constitutional amendments, Mr. Speaker, from 1998 until now. You never know what those things mean. And I'm severely concerned that we're going to send this measure out and people are going to say, 'Yes, we want to curb the influence of money in politics.' And then when they ask me after they see more money in politics and were like, 'Hey, we voted on this constitutional amendment.' 'Well, you know, it really didn't have any binding impact because the Supreme Court has already decided this issue.' 'Well it was on the ballot.' 'Well, that doesn't really matter, that was a symbolic measure and we just kind of put that out there because we wanted to feel good about it.'

"Mr. Speaker, I think the Representative from Waianae very eloquently addressed that issue, Mr. Speaker, and the sacredness with which we should treat our constitution and the amendments we make to it. It shouldn't be because an individual feels like, 'I want to make a point and I want three to four hundred thousand people in the State of Hawaii to come along with me to make that point.' Mr. Speaker, let's work on issues that we will have a material impact on. Let's not put something out there that we're later going to have to explain when the people voted for or against it, had no real meaning or no real value.

"I think that's something, Mr. Speaker, that, especially given what happened recently, that we need to be very sensitive to and very cognizant of. We're trying to repair, we're trying to do a little repair and maintenance, Mr. Speaker, and this measure doesn't help us do that. For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I am very much opposed to this measure."

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Creagan rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I strongly support this bill brought forth by our leader of our Judiciary Committee. When we told the King of England that we were a free country, he said, 'That statement has no effect.' But our voices were eventually heard, and loudly, by that king. In this bill, we are standing up to the rich, the new kings of this country, inaugurated by our Supreme Court. And starting perhaps with this bill, our voices will be eventually heard. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am in support, however I do have some reservations, if you could permit me just a few seconds, I'll be very brief. The reason why I'm going with reservations and not down, as to go down on the bill would be to send a message to the public that somehow I support Citizens United, which I absolutely do not. To give a legal, fictional entity the same rights as a natural born person is so incomprehensible, I still can't even fathom it.

"But what also worries me too, Mr. Speaker, is that if we put this out for a ConAm, the parties that will probably show up to advertise about this will be the very same super packs that have benefitted from Citizens United. And if they show up and advertise, this is terrible. Vote no and it fails, Mr. Speaker. Then the message to the world at large is that the citizens of Hawaii support Citizens United and basically told the Legislature to take a hike.

"As the good Judiciary Chair has said before, 'Washington listens to the states', Mr. Speaker. What would then happen if Hawaii's voice of rejection or support of Citizens United through rejection of this ConAm goes to D.C.? What if this starts in other states, Mr. Speaker? What if, through this very action, we consecrate Citizens United through lack of congressional action because of a perception that the people of Hawaii support it?

"But I can't stand Citizens United, I think it's a travesty of justice, and while symbolic, it is ineffectual. I just worry about the ramifications that could spin back upon us by going through this. And that's why I have reservations, but I do support the measure. Thank you."

Representative Yamashita rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative McKelvey be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Cullen rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative McKelvey be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Fukumoto rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition with just brief remarks. As someone who relies actually very heavily on small donations from middle-class working families, I have very serious concerns with the Citizens United decision because it really has wreaked havoc on our elections system. But that said, I also have very, very huge problems with changing the constitution when we're not sure of what we're doing. And I think in this particular case, we would be changing the constitution, which as the Representative from Waianae said is a sacred document that we're supposed to uphold as legislators, and if we have reservations with any changes that we're making, we shouldn't be making them. Thank you."

Representative Yamane rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Takayama rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Matsumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Aquino rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Saiki rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support of this measure. Brief comments to address the point or the contention that this proposal would run afoul of the United States Constitution. I'd like to just note that our constitution already does run afoul of the U.S. Constitution with respect to campaign spending limits and expenditure limits. In 1978, the Constitution Convention of Hawaii adopted two proposals to limit campaign contributions, and to allow the Legislature to provide limits on campaign expenditures. And that was done in response to the Buckley v. Valeo decision that issued in 1976.

"The Buckley case ruled that government cannot impose expenditure limits and that government can set contribution limits. The 1978 Constitutional Convention in its legislative history challenged the Buckley decision in adopting these two amendments. In effect, the Constitutional Convention set fourth two amendments that directly question the reasoning of the U.S. Supreme Court. Those amendments are still contained within our State Constitution. They haven't been challenged yet, but they are inconsistent with the Buckley case and with subsequent decisions of the U.S. Supreme Court.

"So in this respect, there is precedent for our State Constitution containing provisions that are inconsistent with federal law. This is not uncommon. Other states have also adopted constitution provisions that conflict with the U.S. Supreme Court's decisions and with the U.S. Constitution. Thank you."

Representative Har rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition, brief comments. Mr. Speaker, in my humble opinion, the Legislature does have a history of providing misleading and cavalier ConAms. Based on the 1998 ConAm, we thought that the people and the people thought they were educated and we know now they were not."

Representative Saiki rose to a point of order, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, point of order."

Representative Ward rose, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, point of personal privilege. This is the marketplace of ideas. If people aren't able to cite something in 1998, this is a dictatorship. This is twice he's interrupted people."

At 7:20 o'clock p.m., Representative Souki requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 7:24 o'clock p.m.

Representative Har continued, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. So, in my humble opinion we do have a history of passing out misleading and cavalier ConAms. And in my opinion, to pass out another one would essentially be a slap in the face of democracy.

"Mr. Speaker, I do want to rebut the points of the Majority Leader. While he says that there is precedent for this, the fact of the matter is this. Even though there's precedent, has it changed the results in the Buckley versus Valeo case. I would submit it has not.

"In addition, Mr. Speaker, again, we all understand, I appreciate the words of the introducer of this measure regarding the symbolism that this bill would, in effect, effectuate. However, again, why do we do constitutional amendments? We pass out constitutional amendments because we want the voters to amend the constitution to have a legal effect and not a symbolic effect.

"So for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I cannot, as an officer of the court, as an attorney, I cannot in good faith support a measure that will confuse the voters, who, which has been stated before, who don't have a lot of faith in the Legislature right now. So for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I respectfully stand in opposition. Thank you."

Representative Lee rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. I'll be very brief. Citizens United in that decision was not only undemocratic, it was in my opinion un-American. And this is something that clearly must be corrected. While it is out of our power directly to influence it, this is one step toward taking action.

"One of the previous speakers had asked, well what if this effort fails at the ballot box? What if we make a statement that is unsuccessful? What effect will that have? And I pose the question instead, what if we are successful? What if Hawaii leads the charge across the nation, and state after state start adopting similar provisions that in the end gets the federal government to listen and capitulate and restore democracy to Americans? What if? We will never be successful without trying. That is what we do here. We pass laws, not knowing that they're going to be 100 percent effective, 100 percent successful. But we go with our best intention and hope for the best result.

"I've been consistent in supporting constitutional amendments that expand basic rights to all Americans and not take them away. And Citizens United took away the right of an equal vote, an equal political influence, to Americans across this country. That is something that needs to be restored, and that is why it's important that we take this step forward, educate our public, allow this debate to move forward, and hopefully at the end of the day, correct the great injustice that has been done toward Americans in our political process by overturning Citizens United. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Ichiyama rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative McKelvey be entered into the Journal as her own, and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Ichiyama's written remarks are as follows:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise with serious reservations on HB 1499, HD 1. This measure proposes a constitutional amendment be put onto the ballot this November to provide that freedom of speech does not include the expenditure of money to influence elections. I understand the intent of this measure is to make a symbolic statement that Hawaii does not support the U.S. Supreme Court's ruling in Citizens United v. Federal Election Commission, 558 U.S. 310 (2010) and I personally do not support the Citizens United decision or that corporations should be considered as 'natural persons' for the purpose of free speech rights. At the same time, to put this kind of amendment on the ballot, for consideration by the voters of the State of Hawaii, is improper for several reasons.

"First, it is absolutely clear that this amendment will have no legal effect on the Citizens United decision. The Supreme Court based its holding on federal Constitutional law. Under the U.S. Constitution, Article VI, the U.S. Constitution is the 'supreme law of the land.' Article VI, in relevant part, reads as follows:

> This Constitution, and the laws of the United States which shall be made in pursuance thereof; and all treaties made, or which shall be made, under the authority of the United States, shall be the supreme law of the land; and the judges in every state shall be bound thereby, anything in the Constitution or laws of any State to the contrary notwithstanding.

"Mr. Speaker, this amendment will have no legal significance, which the Judiciary Chair has recognized in the Judiciary's Committee Report, HSCR 245-14.

"Second, this proposed amendment will confuse the voting public. I draw the Members' attention to the testimony submitted in support of this bill to the Judiciary Committee. The League of Women Voters testified that this bill would 'remove expenditures intended to influence elections or promote lobbying, from the Constitution's protection of freedom of speech.' The authors of this testimony did not understand that this amendment, if passed, would have no such effect. Only federal action can overrule the Citizens United decision.

"Finally, I understand that in 1978 Hawaii made 'symbolic' amendments to the State Constitution regarding campaign and election laws. I note that we have chosen not to do so since. Our State Constitution is the supreme law in Hawaii and we should not use it as a tool to make political symbolic gestures. Again, I fundamentally disagree with the outcome in Citizens United, however, Mr. Speaker, as the old adage goes, 'two wrongs don't make a right.' Thank you."

Representative Oshiro rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, just to rebut some of the assertions of the Majority Leader. I have before me the Journal comments of the 1978 Constitutional Convention delegates. In particular, a delegate Weatherwax. And it's relevant and germane to this argument. What they are trying to do, Mr. Speaker, because Buckley v. Valeo came out several years before that. In the Constitutional Convention, what they were trying to do was to reconcile state law with the Buckley decision.

"So I'll read. 'Presently under Buckley v. Valeo, spending limitations are permitted when in fact voluntary financing is undertaken.' Let me read it again. 'Presently under Buckley v. Valeo, spending limitations are permitted when in fact voluntary financing is undertaken.' That's what they're trying to do here. They were well aware of what they could do. They were well aware of that. Let's set that straight.

"Another point, my good friend from Lahaina made a very important point. What would happen if the constitutional amendment failed? Would that mean that for all of us will follow the will of the voters who did not ratify a constitutional amendment condemning the Citizens United case? We'll all have a change of heart? Will we all endorse the principles and policies of the Citizens United? Keep in mind, Mr. Speaker, it is easy to defeat a constitutional amendment. It is difficult to get one approved.

"If people don't understand and they don't vote, that's not a positive vote, it's a no vote. And so the concern that was raised by our friend from Lahaina is a very relevant one. To my colleague from Waimanalo, I agree. Citizens United was a terrible decision. It set us back as a democracy, it's anti-democratic, it's anti-empowerment. I believe we should hope for the best, prepare for the worst.

"Maybe the Supreme Court currently looking at that case, alluded to by the Representative from Makiki, I think it's an Arizona case, McCulloch case. Maybe they'll pull back and amend and go back as far as Valeo, beyond Citizens United, and correct what they did. But if they don't, if they don't, and this ConAm goes out and by happenstance, it fails to get ratified by the voters, what do you do? I don't want to risk that, that's too dangerous. Thank you."

Representative Rhoads rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'll be brief. First of all, could I have permission to insert additional written comments, in support. I did want to address the issue of what happens if we fail. It's pretty common that ConAms do fail, I'm just looking at the 2012 list of ConAms that were proposed and a couple of them failed. I don't think that it reflects badly on this Body that we put a ConAm regulating to dams and reservoirs on there that people rejected, or that they rejected the retirement age of judges as well, which was another ConAm that we put on in 2012.

"We teed up the question for the citizenry and they chose not to accept it. If they did that on this proposed amendment, if it gets that far, we're no worse off than we are right now. So, I don't see what the political danger is of going forward with something like this. We make the statement that this is what we believe the way things should be, and I think there's pretty much universal acceptance that Citizens United was wrongly decided and pretty much a disaster for democracy. But if it fails, we're no worse off than we are right now. So thanks again for the time."

Representative Rhoads's written remarks are as follows:

"The purpose of this bill is to symbolically nullify the Citizens United v. Federal Election Commission decision, by ensuring that the definition of speech in our state's Constitution does not include expenditures of money to influence elections.

"Modern campaign finance law is rooted in the 1976 U.S. Supreme Court case Buckley v. Valeo. Buckley stands for the proposition that limitations on expenditures by candidates and independent groups violate the First Amendment's protection of free speech. Essentially, spending money to influence the outcome of elections is constitutionally-protected free speech: money equals speech.

"The Citizens United decision took this concept a step further in 2010 by striking down long-standing precedent limiting independent expenditures by corporations to influence federal elections. As part of its holding, the Court declared for the first time that the First Amendment not only protects a person's right to speak but the act of speech itself, and thus protects the speech of corporations whether or not we consider a corporation to be a person. Combined with Buckley, this means that any limits on corporate money for election purposes are unlawful bans on free speech.

"Since 2010, we have been living with the excessive unlimited independent expenditures that Citizens United endorsed. The manipulation of the political process by special interests hiding behind the cloak of the First Amendment was well-evident in the 2012 elections and is already kicking-up for the next election. Unlimited amounts of money are right now being dumped into the political process to assail and influence voters with biased information and to drown out opposing viewpoints. Yet, as long as these expenditures are not openly coordinated with political candidates, the U.S. Supreme Court has said this is acceptable.

"This bill seeks to restore the principle that the First Amendment protects individual speech, not speech by corporate entities. Spending money is not a form of speech and should not be entitled to First Amendment protections.

"As powerfully stated in Justice Stevens' dissent in Citizens United:

The conceit that corporations must be treated identically to natural persons in the political sphere is not only inaccurate but also inadequate to justify the Court's disposition of this case.

In the context of election to public office, the distinction between corporate and human speakers is significant. Although they make enormous contributions to our society, corporations are not actually members of it. They cannot vote or run for office. Because they may be managed and controlled by nonresidents, their interests may conflict in fundamental respects with the interests of eligible voters. The financial resources, legal structure, and instrumental orientation of corporations raise legitimate concerns about their role in the electoral process. Our lawmakers have a compelling constitutional basis, if not also a democratic duty, to take measures designed to guard against the potentially deleterious effects of corporate spending in local and national races.
558 U.S. 310, 394 (2010)

At bottom, the Court's opinion is thus a rejection of the common sense of the American people, who have recognized a need to prevent corporations from undermining self-government since the founding, and who have fought against the distinctive corrupting potential of corporate electioneering since the days of Theodore Roosevelt. It is a strange time to repudiate that common sense. While American democracy is imperfect, few outside the majority of this Court would have thought its flaws included a dearth of corporate money in politics.
Id. At 479 (emphasis added)

"As citizens of this great state, we have the right to say, this practice is detrimental and needs to stop. We do not need to welcome into our democratic process well-financed corporations and individuals who are attempting to control public policy in their own interests. We have a duty to rescue our elections from being tainted by invisible actors who can influence and maneuver without financial restraint. Let us restore and strengthen democracy at home by taking action against a decision that was wrongly decided. We know that Citizens United was wrongly decided and this bill will provide our constituents the opportunity to oppose it.

"Obviously, until Citizens United is overturned there will be no legal effect of the amendment. What the bill will do, however, is send a powerful message to the Supreme Court that protecting unlimited expenditures of money is detrimental to the political process and such expenditures are not a form of constitutionally-protected speech.

"As the bill progresses, I believe that an explanatory statement could be added to the ballot question so that voters understand that it will not have a practical effect without action by Congress or the Supreme Court. Since this measure would be placed on the ballot which needs to be printed for other votes, its inclusion will not be an additional cost."

Representative Awana rose in opposition to the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition. Mr. Speaker, as stated by many of my constituents who testified in opposition, 'The legislature no longer has the public trust to issue new constitutional amendments……this amendment is meaningless and confusing…..posting a meaningless and confusing constitutional amendment is a waste of taxpayer dollars and hearing a constitutional amendment that has little or no support is an exercise in tyranny.' As a side note, the vast majority of testimonies came in opposition. The Attorney General's Office also testified in opposition and asked that the bill be held. For these reasons, I rise in opposition."

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Oshiro be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Fale rose, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, it's been a very curious debate and I'll actually change my position from opposition to very strong reservations with this measure. But I find it, it's curious. Very interesting discussion, and maybe I would like to see this on the ballot. But I think there's still some pretty serious concerns. I would like to have the words of the Representative from Wahiawa adopted. But I find also very curious that the same words of undemocratic, un-American and the equal right to vote were all mentioned in the same sentence, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Souki rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, first of all I want to speak strongly in favor and I wish to have the remarks from the Representative from Kona as my own. Thank you for your strong remarks. I just want to give a little basic history lesson. Our forefathers came out with this strong statement years ago. Let not the federal government infringe on the states' rights. And many of you who wished you were called Jeffersonians are familiar with that. They also gave the congress only and the federal government one right and that was to wage war. That's all they had.

"In the meantime, of course, they have made many amendments, and come into this amendment, which is a horrible amendment. It takes away the individual right of those candidates with limited revenue. Only the rich and the powerful can control. This is Tammany Hall all over again, but unfortunately, done by the government.

"I believe, if we can pass this measure, the public will applaud us for at least taking a stand against a horrible bill. And as the Representative from Kona said, let this message then go forward. Thank you very much."

Representative Ward rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, second time with reservations. I happen to have a bust of Thomas Jefferson in my office. In fact the first thing you see when you come into my office is Thomas Jefferson, because he believed in the common sense of the common people for the common good, and states' rights were part of that.

"But Mr. Speaker, what's missing in that argument is when we passed our budget a few weeks ago here, did you know that almost 40 percent of our budget is federal money? And with that, our mandates that we do in effect, Mr. Speaker, we've sold out to the feds as states. The states are beholden to the federal trough. So to say that we are going to rise up and tell the federal government what to do, we have been so wimpy because all we want is their money. We say, yes, we'll have helmets on this if we can get those federal monies for this transportation et cetera, et cetera.

"So I think sending a statement to the federal government is best through our delegation, is best through those people who represent that level, and as I said earlier, there are many, many forces in the process of overturning this decision. We come from a country with a great limit on campaign spending, on contributions, we lead the world in transparency.

"Mr. Speaker, I worked for the office of democracy and government at USAID. I have authored a book on money and politics, the value of disclosure, because there are many countries that never even call upon their politicians to show where they got their money. And when they learn that the drug lords had actually put a person in office, they threw them out.

"So we are at the higher level where speech obviously is a mockery of what money is, the way that this has been put forth. But freedom of speech shall not include the expenditure of money. I'm not sure even people, if it gets on the ballot, are going to understand what that means, the way that this thing is going to be worded. So, Mr. Speaker, we've not only sold out to the feds, this may even risk being jeopardized in their eyes even further. For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I continue with reservations."

Representative Ing rose in support of the measure and asked that the remarks of Representatives Souki and Rhoads be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Awana rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representatives Har, Jordan and Oshiro be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Har rose in opposition to the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to HB 1499, HD1.

"The ability to propose an amendment to the state constitution is one of the most important authorities that have been assigned to the Legislature. Like the ability to appropriate taxpayer dollars, this is not an authority that the Legislature should take lightly. While the appropriate way to respond to the Supreme Court of the United States (SCOTUS) regarding the unfortunate Citizens United decision requires the precision of a scalpel, the proposal before us prescribes a sledgehammer. As the comedian Gallagher has demonstrated, the indiscriminate application of force due to poor choice is liable to leave everyone covered with watermelon. Except this is not funny.

"This Body has demonstrated a pattern of misrepresentation and arguably a blatant disregard toward voter intent on constitutional amendments. Within the last year, both the Governor as well as this Body disregarded the 1998 constitutional amendment regarding same-sex marriage. Mr. Speaker, please understand that previous actions by this Body as well as other entities of this government are in fact germane to this measure because they are necessary to demonstrate a pattern of behavior. I would appreciate your indulgence while I establish this pattern of behavior in order to address the measure before us, and how this measure is part and parcel of this pattern of behavior.

"While authority is granted to us vis a vis the State Constitution, our authority is much more organic as it is granted by the consent of the governed. This comes in the form of 'trust', and it is poor form and an erosion of this same public trust when government comes back and says, 'Yeah…that last vote didn't count.'

"This Body has historically done just that. I would like to address the Members' attention to the November 14th, 2013 decision of Judge Karl K. Sakamoto. On page 33 of the court's transcript, Judge Sakamoto opined on the constitutional ramifications of the 1998 amendment by stating:

Accordingly the court concludes that the plain and unambiguous language of Article 1, Section 23 is construed to empower the legislature to reserve marriage to opposite sex couples. It does not give the legislature the power to constitutionally recognize marriage to same sex couples under Article 1, Section 23. The people of Hawaii did not ratify the constitutional amendment of Article 1, Section 23 to allow for the expansion of the legislature's constitutional power there to include same sex marriage.

"The intent of the constitutional amendment and the constitutional ramifications were clear on its face. However, the Attorney General argued that this Body could disregard public intent using other authority granted to it by the constitution. In essence, the 1998 constitutional amendment was clearly misleading.

"Circling back, this constitutional amendment is also clearly misleading. Based on testimony by the very same Attorney General who argued McDermott v. Abercrombie, the measure before us misleads the public to believe that their vote on this measure would ameliorate the sinister impacts of SCOTUS' Citizens United decision on democracy. The previous floor amendment attempted to stamp this measure with what I like to call an 'Attorney General's warning'. Similar to the warning we stamp on a pack of cigarettes or a container of alcohol, our democracy is wholly reliant on having an informed electorate. This 'Attorney General's warning', like a Surgeon General's warning clearly stated:

…the proposed constitutional amendment, if ratified, cannot have any practical effect. The State of Hawaii remains subject to the Citizens United ruling construing the federal Constitution, regardless of any amendment made to the Hawaii State Constitution. Consequently, the legislature declares that House Bill No. 1499, and its subsequent version, House Draft 1, cannot effectuate its intended purpose.

"As this floor amendment was rejected, I have no reasonable basis to approve the bald-faced deception contained in this measure. This amendment is misleading and cavalier. If placed on the ballot, this measure can facilitate the impression to the people that it is authoritative and indissoluble.

"While comedic in his intent, the lesson from Gallagher is regarding the misapplication of tools. With reference to tools, there is an adage amongst carpenters and other builders to 'measure twice and cut once'. Based on testimony submitted before the Judiciary and Finance Committees as well as the debate on this Floor, it is clear that we have cut without even measuring. Like my colleagues in this Body, I find the Citizens United unfortunate even under the best of circumstances. But I cannot in good faith support any measure that will (a) be part and parcel of this Body's pattern of deception, (b) erode the public trust in the authority of this Body, and (c) have no meaningful or practical effect.

"If this Body were truly concerned with symbolic gestures and the sinister impacts of the Citizens United decision, it would instead prod our legislative delegation toward meaningful action on the federal level. Congress is the only entity with the authority to counter the SCOTUS and its Citizens United decision. I would eagerly be the first to sign or adopt any such measure. The Legislature has done so in the past via HCR 282 (2010), and the lack of any action by our Congressional delegation leaves my constituents to believe that they are indifferent to this cause.

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I stand in opposition to HB 1499."

Representative Fukumoto rose in opposition to the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition of HB 1499, HD1. This bill proposes a state constitutional amendment decrying the Citizens United ruling regarding campaign spending. Mr. Speaker, as an individual who receives most campaign donations from small, individual donors, I find the Citizens United decision problematic. However, the proposal outlined in HB 1499, HD1 would neither amend the Citizens United ruling nor change the ruling's outcome, as Citizens United is a federal ruling. Federal law will take precedence over state law. Because of this fact, it would be very misleading to voters to have them vote on something that cannot be changed legally despite the outcome of the votes. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 1499, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT PROPOSING AN AMENDMENT TO THE HAWAII CONSTITUTION REGARDING THE FREEDOM OF SPEECH," passed Third Reading by a vote of 35 ayes to 15 noes, with Representatives Awana, Carroll, Choy, Fale, Fukumoto, Hanohano, Har, Hashem, Ito, Jordan, Kawakami, McDermott, Oshiro, Say and Tsuji voting no, and with Representative Tokioka being excused.

At 7:39 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bill passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 1499, HD 1

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 904-14) recommending that H.B. No. 2529, HD 2, as amended in HD 3, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.B. No. 2529, HD 3 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose in opposition to the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to HB 2529, HD 3, a measure that relates to the Hawaii Health Connector website; creates the Connector legislative oversight committee to review the financial and operational plans of the Connector and establishes a sustainability fee.

"Mr. Speaker, this measure has some serious problems. In December of 2013, National Review Online reported that Hawaii was 'the worst state-based exchange in the nation' with participation of only '257 Hawaiians . . . all of them individuals who earn enough to be disqualified from subsidies.'

"Clearly the roll-out of the Hawaii Health Connector has been a disaster for our state. Now, after a flawed and reckless spending of a $200 million federal grant to establish the Hawaii Health Connector, we are now asking the people of Hawaii to take over the administration of Hawaii Health Connector and to pay for this poorly managed federal program.

"Mr. Speaker, the Hawaii Health Connector was supposed to save the people of Hawaii money. Why is it costing us money? It seems that this is becoming a fiscal black hole. None of the promises were delivered regarding the lowering of health care costs for the people of Hawaii.

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to HB 2529, HD 3."

Representative Awana rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cullen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ichiyama rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Matsumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in opposition. This is a bill that would make the connector the official, as it is the Obamacare and the Obamacare policies. I want to commend Mr. Matsuda who's the connector director, for his assessment that he gave in the Finance Committee. He basically and frankly said that, even though they have $205 million and they've got a website, they have $48 million that they have created a website that unfortunately is not working very well. But they have also given, I think a sustainability factor of $5 million per year that they're going to need to use this, to keep it sustainable. Mr. Speaker, he basically has said that it's not sustainable. There's not going to be the funds.

"So I don't see how we can throw good money after bad, and as the saying goes, 'if it looks like a duck, walks like a duck, it probably is'. It's a losing proposition, Mr. Speaker. I know it's mandated at the federal level, to have a connector. There's supposedly 100,000 people who don't have health insurance provided for them. However, 50,000 are in Medicaid, another 50,000 are somewhere out there and they have for the last few months tried to round them up. Guess how many they've rounded up? 4,000 something, maybe less than 5,000. Mr. Speaker, there was going to be an assessment by which they could be assessed a fee. Unfortunately, it's not going to happen.

"The problem is, Mr. Speaker, it's not viable and why should we throw good money after bad? You know the old saying, 'You got to know when to hold 'em, when to fold 'em.' This is one of the things we should fold up, and I would cite the Star Advertiser that said, be careful Legislature, don't get sucked in to making this part of the government. Don't get sucked in and saying that it doesn't work as a non-profit. Which supposedly it is, but it isn't, it's one of those ambiguous in-between, being private and being public. But it's where, if we get caught up into it and make it part of government, that is a big mistake. For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I'm against this bill."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. First of all, hopefully we'd be working off the same House Draft 3 and not House Draft 1, which is the one that tried to move the connector into state government. The connector did receive it's 501(c)3. Mr. Speaker, this is not a verdict or an endorsement of the connector. What this is an attempt, and I use the word 'attempt', to do, is to answer the concerns and outcry of many in the community who have seen this federally mandated apparatus not roll out the way it was intended, Mr. Speaker.

"Mr. Speaker, this is not about throwing money after something. What it's trying to do is put up a very strict system of total disclosure, so that we know where every penny requested is supposed to go, and that we basically know whatever revenue scenarios are there may work. But here's the thing, Mr. Speaker, we sunset pretty much everything in 2017. And why is that, Mr. Speaker? Because the Innovation Waiver Task Force, which passed earlier unanimously, as well as a coming resolution all bring us to the close of the connector in Hawaii.

"What this is trying to do is put the responsibility and accountability on the connector for the monies the taxpayers have already spent, Mr. Speaker. And to ensure that blank checks don't continue to go out, with price tags that go all over the place, Mr. Speaker.

"The reality, Mr. Speaker, is that yes, I agree with many of the things that have been said. We could've probably done this with Medicaid expansion and just having issuers handle the shop and individual medical plans for people with pre-existing conditions and probably closed our uninsured gap quickly.

"Prepaid health, Mr. Speaker, is what brought us to near universal coverage. It's ironic that prepaid health was the model for ACA, but yet ACA coming to Hawaii could undermine prepaid health. And that goes to the question, well why don't we just give up, chuck it, let the feds come in and run the whole thing like they're planning in other states? It's because we will lose prepaid health, Mr. Speaker. That's why.

"So the question is, what do we do with something that's been foisted upon us from the federal government, including a mandated fee. We tried to make it as responsible as possible and tie in other legislation to wind this down through the innovation waiver process so that we can come up with something that'll allow us to close this manini gap with not driving up healthcare costs, or worse, creating inefficiencies so people with healthcare won't have the right information.

"Mr. Speaker, this brings brokers into the picture to answer questions about not being able to get insurance options given to people. This puts very strong control insofar as trying to make a federally mandated fee discretionary, insofar that we're forcing the connector to use every penny and every revenue idea possible before a sustainability fee would even be considered.

"So we've done everything we can to make responsible and try to reign in something which the citizens are very concerned about. But this is not an endorsement of the connector. What this is, is trying to get a handle on what has already been spent and make sure that it just doesn't continue. And again I do echo the speaker of Hawaii Kai for Director Matsuda, who is doing a great job in trying to reign this all in and drive down costs. But he supports this measure, Mr. Speaker, as does the AARP, by the way, because it brings transparency and accountability to something that hasn't quite frankly existed.

"So I appreciate the reservations, I hope the reservations on the Floor will come with specific concerns and questions. But please, this is not an endorsement of Obamacare, ACA or anything else, what it's trying to do is to put controls and oversights and transparency that the community has wanted on something that the federal government has had us roll out.

"I believe state innovation waiver is our end game. I believe that hopefully we can get a suspension of certain parts of the ACA immediately, because we are doing the job with prepaid health and Medicaid expansion. But until the meantime, I feel that to not move anything, Mr. Speaker, is to say, 'You know what, it's great the way it is, it's perfect. The money that was spent was awesome. Beautiful. Nothing's wrong, everything's perfect.'

"I'm not going to do that, Mr. Speaker. I'm not going to go out to my community, who's up in arms, and say we did nothing. We turned our back and said all good, we just complain about how bad ACA was. What we're trying to do is put responsible controls. I find it very ironic that the minority would be so up in arms with reservations when zero-based budgeting is an ALEC Republican position, which we borrow from Colorado, Mr. Speaker, to bring accountability and transparency to the connector to make sure that whatever monies, whatever monies, hopefully not much is allocated through a sustainability fee, is done with rigorous controls and oversights.

"So again, Members, I'll use this statement one more time, I'll use this analogy I guess that I've used before. When my good friend from Manoa brought this to my attention in August, because this was not on the CPC hit parade. He said, 'Boss, boss, there's two things you can do here. You can be like the Matrix, you have the blue pill and the red pill. You can take the blue pill, which means everything's great, hunky dory, it'll fix itself, people just don't get it, and it'll all go away.'"

Representative Choy rose to yield his time, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative McKelvey continued, stating:

"Or, you can take the red pill, Mr. Speaker, and open your eyes to what is going on. Open your eyes to the concerns of the community, AARP, of citizens, everything else, and try to fix this and make it responsible while we have it, Mr. Speaker.

"So that's in an essence, sometimes I joke with him, I say, 'I should've taken the blue pill.' But, you know what? To not open your eyes, to not say anything, to not try to fix it, would be a dereliction of duty to our constituents. I know it's not perfect, and it's not an endorsement. For God's sake though, join me in coming up with fixes. If the concerns are not addressed in the bill, then let me know what they are. But I'm doing this for your constituents who are upset and want some of this accountability, transparency, and other things to make sure that what money has been spent, doesn't just simply go away, thrown to the street. And that's my point, Mr. Speaker.

"But again, I respect the decisions of everyone, I just hope that people will articulate their concerns and reservations so we can try to make this something that at the end of the day will allow us to justify the dollars that were put in and try to bring value back to the people and not just simply trying to endorse something that isn't working and people are upset about. Thank you very much."

Representative Fale rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, still in opposition. I'm a little concerned about the pills they're taking over in that section over there, Mr. Speaker. Still in opposition. I'm just a little bit concerned that after $200 million has kind of disappeared into a vacuum, suddenly we're going to put in rigorous controls and monitor everything. Mr. Speaker, I'm just very concerned. We launch into investigations over $250,000 that disappeared, but when it comes to like $200 million and who knows how many other millions of dollars that have just been absolutely squandered, Mr. Speaker, I'm very concerned. As the Representative from Hawaii Kai mentioned, do we want to engage in further effort in something that may not be in the best interest of the people in the State of Hawaii.

"So those are just very real concerns, Mr. Speaker, and it would be good to see the rigorous controls in everything in place prior to hundreds of millions of dollars disappearing, Mr. Speaker. But for those reasons, I'm still opposed."

Representative Kawakami rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. I'd like to take the purple pill, but I'd like to adopt the words of the Chair of CPC as if they were my very own. Thank you," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Belatti rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In strong support. I too am glad that the Chair of the CPC Committee took the red pill. I also want to commend all the members of the Health and CPC Committees that have sat through numerous briefings on this issue.

"I wanted to just clarify a couple of things. First of all, there is about $90 million still unencumbered and unobligated with the health connector. So these measures to bring more transparency and accountability are much needed and can help the health connector as it moves forward.

"I'd also like to add that the fee that we've imposed in this is time-limited in response to many of the concerns that were raised through the legislative hearing process.

"Finally, Mr. Speaker, I wanted to point out the addition of the agents and brokers as a way to help bring up enrollment in the shop side. One of the things that, as we're learning about the ACA, as we're moving forward with the state innovation task force, one of the things that we're learning is that the monies for the innovation that states are going to be engaged upon, the federal monies that will be due to the states, are tied towards those tax credits that are being drawn down now by individuals and employees of small businesses.

"So it's incumbent upon us, between now and the time that we are able to qualify for a state innovation waiver, to make sure that the health connector can run and function as best as it possibly can and enroll those folks, both on the Medicaid side, the individual side, as well as shop employees, because that will give us a better picture and a better outcome as we move forward with innovation. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Luke rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support and I just wanted to show my appreciation to both the CPC Chair and the Health Chair for their hard work. There's a lot of misinformation about the health connector. One piece of misinformation is that it has $200 million. It does not. It had authority to draw down $200 million, but it only drew down about $110 million, and that's what the Chair of the Health Committee was alluding to, but we have no idea what they spent the $110 million on. And it was only through the efforts of the two chairs that we're finally getting the answers we need.

"Just because it's federal money doesn't mean we shouldn't do our due diligence on how these monies are spent. These monies are here to assist the citizens of Hawaii to get health coverage. And if it's not doing the thing that it should be doing, then it is incumbent on the State Legislature to look and demand accountability, and it wasn't until these people got involved and for them to continue these discussions, I think it's going to be a long way before we get to some type of response or some type of true result on what we want to do with the connector. But if we don't do anything, then we would really have failed. Thank you."

Representative Har rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Just very briefly, in support with reservations. Mr. Speaker, I want to admit that I actually did submit a green slip, and it was really only based on the fact that I had looked at the testimony of Mr. Tom Matsuda, the interim Executive Director of the Hawaii Health Connector. Based on his comments submitted to the Finance Committee, for those reasons I had submitted a green slip.

"But based on the very passionate speech and all the hard work done by both the Health Chair as well as the CPC Chair, respectfully, I will be voting with reservations. I do recognize the continued promise, but I do have great respect for both chairs and the work they provided. So for those reasons, I understand this is a work in progress, and for those reasons I will be voting with reservations. Thank you."

Representative Tokioka rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with reservations. Can I ask that the words of the Representative from Kapolei be inserted as if they were my own, except for the part, I didn't turn in a green slip. Thank you," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Oshiro rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I'm going to be voting with reservations. First of all, let me shout out and give some kudos to the Chairs of the Health Committee and Consumer Protection & Commerce. I think they've been doing a terrific job. I think they have been kind of shy in really explaining to us how critical the next several weeks will be.

"We're already in the month of March, and according to testimony given by Tom Matsuda from the Health Connector, they were supposed to present to the committee members and the chairs a business plan, setting forth for several different models of how this connector going forward in 2015 will have a sustainable revenue source to operate its system and program. They haven't spent all the federal monies, about $110 or $105 million, and they're hoping to get an extension from the federal agency to allow further expenditure beyond 2015.

"But what we learned in the hearing is quite remarkable. We all talk about a March 31st or end of March deadline. The truth is, Mr. Speaker, that deadline is in about two weeks. Two weeks. That means if those we are targeting right now, about 100,000, let's say 50,000, do not sign up by March 15th, get enrolled, the next open day I think is back in November.

"So there's really a crisis at hand and I really admire the work of the chairs and what they are doing with it, and the assurances from the CPC Chair, that this will not become part of the government apparatus. So I appreciate that.

"But I encourage all the Members to support them and provide any good ideas on how to work this thing out. This is uncharted waters, Mr. Speaker. No state has gotten it right, there's no best practices. So I really support them. Thank you."

Representative Awana rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Oshiro be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 2529, HD 3, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HEALTH," passed Third Reading by a vote of 42 ayes to 7 noes, with Representatives Fale, Fukumoto, Ito, Johanson, Matsumoto, McDermott and Thielen voting no, and with Representatives Ward and Wooley being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 905-14) recommending that H.B. No. 1866, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.B. No. 1866, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Before I begin, may I request a ruling on a potential conflict? I am a litigator and I specialize in land use litigation," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Har continued to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you very much. Based on that, Mr. Speaker, I do have many concerns about this bill. First and foremost, the amount of litigation and I could potentially be going into court and making lots of money off of this bill. And for those reasons I am in opposition. But I have other concerns.

"First and foremost, Mr. Speaker, I have concerns about the composition of this board. I think it's important for people to understand that back in 2012, less than two years ago, the entire make-up of the Board of the HCDA, community development boards, was in fact changed. And the reason being, in 2012, what we did in the Legislature was we had then at that time created the Heeia Community Development District. At the request of many of the members of the Heeia Association, they had worked very hard on this community development district. And with the help of HCDA, they had now requested that a formal community development district be now promulgated. And that in fact was something we thought was worth merit, given the fact that they had done so much rehabilitation work in the area of Heeia.

"In addition, the Heeia Community Development members asked us to please create a separate authority for Heeia. Specifically because of the issues that fell within the purview of Heeia, and Heeia only. They felt that the members of the Kakaako Board would not understand the intricacies and what they had done to in fact create this development district and the anomalous issues pertaining only to Heeia. So for those reasons we then decided to create this separate Heeia Community Development District along with its board.

"At that same time, and at that time I was the Representative of Kalaeloa. Kalaeloa was a community development district, it remains a community development district. And at that time, the board members of Kalaeloa were also upset because they felt, with all of the issues we have in Kalaeloa, and first and foremost, Mr. Speaker, we do have a plethora of issues in Kalaeloa. There are a multitude of land owners. As we know, Kalaeloa was formally known as Barbers Point and in 2006 after Congress had, after we went through BRAC reorganization, what had happened was, we had a multitude of land owners in Kalaeloa, and as such we have a multitude of issues.

"So the Kalaeloa members felt that they didn't want people from Kakaako who didn't understand all of the issues, and particularly those people who had actually worked on the Kalaeloa plan, they wanted some control over Kalaeloa because they are the constituents and residents who live and work in that district. They understand all of the problems, they were part of the Kalaeloa development plan. And so they requested too, to have the same parity as the Heeia development district. And for those reasons, that's when we created these three separate boards.

"In addition, we were asked to add on a cultural specialist from the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands to the Kalaeloa development district, because of the fact that the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands owns so much land in Kalaeloa.

"So now all of a sudden, less than two years later we're going back to one central board, and we are going to say that this central board will understand all of the issues in the Heeia and Kalaeloa development districts, without living there, without knowing the specific issues that exist and basically saying that the Kakaako members will know better than those residents who live there?

"Mr. Speaker, I have so many concerns about this bill. Secondly, I think one of the concerns I have too is the additional oversight of the authority through prohibiting the authority from delegating its powers to approve variances, exemptions or modifications of community development plans. I mean, I understand the concerns and I do understand the reason for the introduction of this bill. But if we're going to go in this direction, why are we limiting the authorities' hands?

"The fact is, is that Kakaako is in the urban core. You are supposed to be building up in the urban core. Had we been building up in the urban core, the way we were supposed to under our basic urban planning principles, we wouldn't have the urban sprawl today. For God's sake, Kapolei may not even have been built, all of the houses on the West side and all of the urban sprawl that we have today, had we been building on and developing under basic urban planning principles. And now all of a sudden we're saying, 'Nope, you can no longer build in Kakaako. You're going to have all these restrictions.'

"We are only going to further exacerbate the problems of urban sprawl. We must really take a holistic approach and look at what we're doing with Kakaako. Kakaako is in the urban core, we have failed. HCDA has failed with respect to workforce housing and affordable housing. And there are certain parts of this measure that at least address that. But at the end of the day, Mr. Speaker, we continue to have so many problems with this particular measure. And this is not the way in order to get the affordable units that we need in Kakaako. For these reasons Mr. Speaker, I respectfully stand in opposition. Thank you."

Representative Awana rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in opposition. I'd like to ask that the words of the Representative from Kapolei be entered into the Journal as if they were my own. I'd also like to include in my comments the testimony that came through Kamehameha schools. I'm not too sure if this is a possible conflict of interest, but I had worked in their land management division at the schools around this time when they were also working in the Kakaako area," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Awana continued, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With that said, I think something that speaks volumes is that the State Legislature back in 1976 supported this effort in Kakaako and HCDA. And Kamehameha Schools, among many other land developers, state and city, has been working diligently at making sure that the master planning that has been going on for decades now comes to fruition. I'd hate to see that all of the efforts of decades and decades of hard work and effort would simply go to the wayside with the passage of this measure.

"My other concern, Mr. Speaker, as the good Representative from Kapolei had made mention, is the exclusion in the bill for representation from Heeia, as well as Kalaeloa in a sense that it doesn't necessarily name individuals to represent on the board here.

"In conclusion, it is also my thought that it may not be in the best interest of those additional areas if they don't have representation, and decisions may be made without their best interest. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Awana submitted the following:

WRITTEN TESTIMONY TO THE HOUSE COMMITTEE ON FINANCE
By
Walter F. Thoemmes III, Chief of Staff
Kamehameha Schools

Hearing Date: February 26, 2014
2:00 p.m. Conference Room 308

To: Representative Sylvia Luke, Chair
Representative Scott Y. Nishimoto, Vice Chair
Representative Aaron Ling Johanson, Vice Chair
Members of the House Committee on Finance

RE: Comments and Requested Amendment for House Bill No. 1866 Relating to the Hawaii Community Development Authority and House Bill No. 1867 Relating to the Kaka'ako Community Development District (collectively, the "Bills")

Chair Luke, Vice Chair Nishimoto, Vice Chair Johanson and members of the House Committee,

As an organization dedicated to the education of Native Hawaiians, and longtime steward of legacy lands to perpetuate that mission, Kamehameha Schools (KS) provides the following comments to the Bills.

KS has spent years and valuable resources developing the Kaiāulu 'O Kaka'ako Master Plan (the "Master Plan") for its legacy lands. The Master Plan is more than a set of zoning rules. Instead, it is a plan of holistic and comprehensive development framed by careful study, extensive community input and a commitment to stewardship of our lands in Kaka'ako. Accordingly, the Master Plan is rooted in three core values: (i) a deep understanding and commitment to the surrounding community, its economic and social vitality, and its vested stakeholders; (ii) the creation of a sustainable and vibrant cultural life through sustainable land and building practices; and (iii) as first articulated by the State Legislature in 1976 and re-affirmed by enthusiastic community support in 2004, the cultivation of a mixed-use "urban village" and "urban-island culture" within the Honolulu's core.

These values (and the current Master Plan) were developed in concert with extensive stakeholder meetings and workshops with representatives from the Kaka'ako Improvement Association, the Kaka'ako Neighborhood Board, Enterprise Honolulu and the Hawaii Community Development Authority ("HCDA") solicitation and input over the last ten years. The parties understood that developing an urban village involves substantially more than creating new building structures and constructing residential housing. It requires a commitment to the community and providing the types of urban-island lifestyle choices demanded by those who make Kaka'ako their home. In this way, the Master Plan serves as the community's collective blueprints for the economic and social fabric of Kaka'ako.

Prior to KS' Master Plan application submission to HCDA in November 2008, KS met with HCDA staff, planning professionals, and its greater community to develop the Master Plan. Since then, the public had the opportunity to comment on KS' Master Plan. HCDA took formal action to ensure public input on the plan including (1) mailing almost 12,000 flyers to persons on its "Connections" list, (2) posting the Master Plan on its website, (3) inviting comments from the public through an on-line site and a telephone comment line, (4) holding a community meeting for additional public input, (5) working with KS to address public comments, (6) conducting a contested case hearing (noticed and open to the public), and (7) holding a public hearing for final decision making.

By September 2009, when the Master Plan was adopted, the public had the opportunity to review and comment on the Master Plan for more than nine months and HCDA provided numerous comments to KS on changes to the Master Plan to address public input.

Like blueprints for any major project, changes to carefully crafted rules should not be made in piecemeal without regard to its effects on the whole community. Throughout the formulation of the Master Plan, stakeholders understood the importance, for example, of density in order to create a critical mass within the Master Plan area to ignite and sustain the revitalization of the Kaka'ako area. Simultaneously, planners balanced urban density with natural open public space to promote a healthy and sustainable community with renewed energy and spirit. Thus, spot changes to carefully reviewed plans and rules would undermine the economic and social fabric woven by the community without regard to the consequences on the entire neighborhood. Early entrants into this developing community should not be able to thwart the opportunity for thousands of new residents.

In reliance on HCDA's various acts and approvals (including the approval of the Master Plan), KS has devoted its resources over the past four years to have its blueprint implemented by the completion of Six Eighty (a reserve housing rental project), to continue its development of the SALT project (with a focus on nurturing developing small businesses), and to continue its work with developers to provide a variety of housing alternatives. KS is asking for these pieces of a complex puzzle be allowed to finally come together to create the urban village with an island-urban culture as envisioned by the Master Plan, for the benefit of the larger community of Honolulu and its residents. Time is of the essence.

Many provisions of the Bills are in conflict with what has already been approved under the Master Plan. Implementation of the Master Plan is well underway and changing the rules at this point is fundamentally unfair. Accordingly, KS respectfully requests that each Bill be amended to provide that "development rights under a master plan permit and master plan development agreement issued and approved by the authority are vested under the community development district rules in effect at the time initially approved by the authority and shall govern development on lands subject to such permit and agreement. These rights are not modified by the provisions hereof." This addition will confirm certainty for KS' multi-year efforts to deliver housing alternatives in the urban core in reliance on the Master Plan, which is important to keep the current momentum of developing a vibrant, sustainable community of people, culture, business enterprises and natural open spaces.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide our comments and proposed revisions to these Bills.

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. In support with reservations. I do understand this does have a defective date. This clearly came out totally different from the original three measures that went into Finance, or possibly four measures. So I appreciate the continued dialogue going forward.

"My reservations is with removing the Kalaeloa board and the Heeia board. I mean, those two communities need representation and possibly their own boards out there to deal with separate types of issues. But again, this is a work in progress from what I see, 2020. We'll see what happens. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Saiki rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this measure. I just have some brief comments. I'd just like to note that area elected officials and I have stated repeatedly in public that we support the development and modernization of Kakaako. And with that, we also support the modernization of the agency that has jurisdiction over that area, which is the Hawaii Community Development Authority.

"We have been working very diligently on the legislation that is before us. It is self-explanatory, but I would just like to summarize the major points of this bill.

"First, it will amend the composition of the HCDA board. Currently, there are three separate boards for Kakaako, Kalaeloa and Heeia. I would note that since May 2013, the seats that were designated for community representatives and cultural experts on each of these boards has been vacant.

"Second, this bill will increase public notice of development applications.

"Third, this bill will codify the existing and current practice of requiring the HCDA board and not the Executive Director to approve variances from development standards.

"Fourth, this bill will clarify the procedure for contested case hearings. And this is important, because currently, one of the projects has been in limbo for the past five months because the HCDA has not yet decided whether or not it has the authority to conduct a contested case hearing on the application.

"Fifth, this bill will codify the existing height limit in the Kakaako district.

"I wanted to thank all of the parties who have been involved over the past three or four months in discussing this legislation and coming to a potential compromise, and I'd like to just briefly explain who these parties are. First, it's the major developers and land owners in Kakaako. Second, the Pacific Resource Partnership. Third, the Hawaii Construction Alliance, which consists of the operating engineers, Hawaii Laborers Union Local 368, Hawaii Masons Union Locals 1 and 630, and the Hawaii Regional Council of Carpenters. Also involved in the discussion has been the HCDA board and administration, and Senate leaders, including the Chair of the Committee on Economic Development & Business, and the Senate Majority Leader who represents the Kakaako district.

"I just want to thank Members for their patience as we work through this legislation. It is truly a work in progress, but in the end I believe that we will have legislation that will be a win-win for all of the parties that I just mentioned. Thank you."

Representative Say rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition once more, which I did on Second Reading. But this evening, what I wanted to share with the Members of the House was a different perspective not shared with us by the Representative representing that particular district. Earlier on Second Reading I stated for the record that in this development cycle there will be over 4,000 units. Low and moderate, workforce housing, reserve housing and rental.

"It is these individuals who do not have a voice at this period in time. If this is the way to address the housing shortage in the county of Oahu, I truly believe we should all be behind this particular measure, because every year, I believe the Housing Chair recognizes it, that we have been chasing. We need to build more homes for the present generation and future generation.

"What I would like to share with all of you, before I begin, was to first say this to all of you. May I incorporate the statements I made on the four bills on Second Reading as part of my testimony this evening?" and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

"But more importantly, this really hit my heart, with your indulgence Members of the House and the Speaker. And this was addressed to Chair Evans, Vice Chair Lowen and other Members of the House. This is dated February 29th, the day after our public hearing.

"'I would like to thank you for taking time out of your Saturdays to listen to the public at the hearings regarding the Hawaii Community Development Authority. As a current Kakaako resident, I appreciate the care and attention that has gone into my neighborhood. I chose not to testify yesterday, but would like to make you aware of my thoughts. I was present for the entire day, over seven hours, and noticed something interesting about the testifiers. They were all older residents of Kakaako. I saw very few people from my generation. I am 28 years old and have recently achieved the dream of owning my own home. I bought a unit in 801 South Street, Building A, and I am the definition of workforce housing. I am supportive of the Hawaii Community Development Authority and the changes they are making to our community.

"'While I agree that the number of buildings currently being built are alarming, I can understand the reasons. The housing market is finally climbing and developers once again have a chance of making a profit and selling the units they are building, and there is a demand from the public for more housing. What surprised me was that all of the people who testified yesterday, many claim to be in support of affordable housing, but just don't seem to want it around them. This is unfair to my generation. Many of the current buildings in Kakaako are older than I am. Just because these people were here first and were able to purchase units in their buildings, does that mean that my generation shouldn't be allowed to have those same opportunities?

"'After purchasing my unit, I visited the sales office many times to sign a stack of paperwork larger than my hands can hold, and I can personally tell you that I saw and met many of my future neighbors. Almost all of them were around my age, late 20's to early 30's. I personally know another person moving into 801 South Street. Her family is from Waianae and she is a teacher in town. She currently gets on the road at 5 a.m. to drive for two hours into town to get to school by 7. She purchased a one bedroom at 801, and she is going to be able to cut her commute from two hours to fifteen minutes, and is very excited to be closer to her students.

"'I could tell you of the other stories I learned from others that I have met, but I hope my point is clear. And that is why I do oppose all these bills regarding the HCDA and to support the development in Kakaako.'"

Representative Oshiro rose to yield his time, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say continued, stating:

"'It is a shame to deny my generation and those to come the opportunities of living and working in town because the older retired generation has nothing better to do than complain about smells and their views being blocked. Thank you for your time and service.'

"I'd also like to state for the record that I am concerned about the draft, because in the second part of the biennium budget, the operating budget is blanked out. We approved the biennium budget last year for the two years, and in this draft two it is blanked out, meaning that there may not be an authority if the House prevails in their operations and administration, because that is the House position going over to the Senate. Not unless, because you can say it's a defective date, can you guarantee me that the House will restore the funding that is in the biennium budget at this point in time.

"People have said, Mr. Speaker, that I am one that's all for the big developers. No. I'm very proud of the authority. Because why? They have extracted 4,000 plus units from these developers in the 20 percent reserve or cash in lieu. Where do you find housing that is being developed on behalf of the people of the State of Hawaii, the younger generation, in living in Honolulu proper, for the betterment of society today? Can you tell me where are we building more homes, using state monies with the appropriations that we appropriate for housing? Very little.

"I was there that afternoon when we had a joint hearing or informational briefing with Senator Chun Oakland and Chair Hashem in regards to housing, where the four different agencies made their presentation, the Hawaii Community Development Authority, the Housing Finance and Development Corporation, Public Housing, and finally the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands. Every department or every agency, state agency dealing with housing, are struggling in trying to develop and construct housing for the greater good of our community.

"This afternoon we had a lively debate. Which is when I say lively, a debate that was very educational. When one of our colleagues said, 'Yes, we were taking the low interest housing tax credits from the counties and giving it to the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands.' That is correct. It came through the Committee on Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs, and I supported that measure.

"But the four agencies are struggling to provide homes where we are not being as responsible as we can, possibly, to provide more general obligation bonds for public housing. To deny the development of 4,000 units in Kakaako, that is why I am opposed to any legislation this session in regards to an authority that is doing its very best, which has taken them 37 years to achieve what they have developed and fruition.

"So in closing, I'm not in the driver seat, I don't know what the chairs have in mind, but I would hope and pray that we can preserve the Hawaii Community Development Authority and let them run the authority the way they should. These individuals who are on the authority are all volunteers. And in the minutes, I've read that the authority has to vote to grant the Executive Director the authority to consider the negotiations of variances, modifications, et cetera, in getting a project of this nature off the ground.

"So in closing, I would say this to my friends who are part of my journey, which is Mr. Ray Suefuji who was the first executive director from the County of Hawaii. Second, Mr. Rex Johnson. Third, Mr. Mike Scarfone."

Representative Fukumoto rose to yield her time, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say continued, stating:

"Thank you very much. Fourth, Mr. Dan Dinell, if you folks recall Dan Dinell? Fifth, Ms. Jan Yokota. And today, Mr. Tony Ching, who has seen the evolvement of the authority in accomplishing its goals and objectives of 1976. Thank you very much."

Representative Belatti rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. Mr. Speaker, I want to thank the previous speaker, the Representative from Palolo, for sharing with us that email from that 28-year-old who has the possibility to buy in Kakaako. One of the things that I really appreciate in this bill is that pages 20 and 21. It's not just about this one 28-year-old, it's about 28-year-olds in perpetuity. And what a very important measure in this bill would make that reserved housing, those 4,000 units, reserved housing remaining affordable in perpetuity.

"When you talk with folks in other jurisdictions and you ask them how do they keep and hold onto their affordable housing, it's very common to find 'in perpetuity' clauses in other states and jurisdictions, and it's been the hardest thing to get in this jurisdiction. So I think it's not just about that 28-year-old who sent that very moving email, it's about all future 28-year-olds, so that this 4,000 units remains affordable. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Lee rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. Following on some of the discussion that's occurred. I'm absolutely in support of redeveloping our urban core, it's the place that we have to go. It is the only place we can develop, to put more density, more housing and to provide more homes for my friends, many of whom who are 28 years old. Myself, hopefully one day, since the median price of a house in my district is nearly a million dollars at this point.

"But I do have concerns, and these concerns were fleshed out in the hearing. Number one, that the reserved housing that's being provided be built for those folks from Hawaii. For folks who are 28-year-olds who want to be able to afford homes. To be reserved housing that isn't going to be falling through a loop-hole and ending up at a market rate for those folks who can't afford it.

"That is something that the director of HCDA sitting at the table said specifically that he supports a statutory fix to make sure that that doesn't happen. And I think pushing these bills forward to continue that conversation is what we need to do to follow through on our end to make sure that indeed these reserved housing units end up as reserved housing and end up benefitting the people that we want them to benefit. Thank you very much."

Representative Luke rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, thank you very much. Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak in favor of this bill. Thank you. There's nothing in the bill that said that this bill would stop any development from happening. The current development, which is still being planned, is going to be going through regardless of what happens in this bill.

"The thing that impresses me about this bill is it requires more transparency, requires more public hearing process, and requires the Legislature to have more input in the make-up of the board. And the reason why I say that, is this bill is not just about Kakaako. One of the things that I requested from the Majority Leader, along with others who were drafting this amendment, was that the other section be included as well, because I saw how HCDA treated the people of Kakaako.

"I saw how, in spite of tons of concerns, the Kakaako board has neglected to listen to some of the concerns. Currently in Kalaeloa there is some discussion about putting not one prison, but three prisons in Kalaeloa. So when we think about the future generation and what's going to happen to Kalaeloa and the Leeward side, at least this will ensure that there's enough public input. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this bill with serious reservations.

"There are two points I'd like to make. First, I note that the draft before us still has the provision that eliminates all funding for the Hawaii Community Development Authority, and to that extent, I submit my comments at Second Reading, to wit:

"Standing Committee Report No. 550-14 states that the purpose of this measure is to enhance oversight of the Hawaii Community Development Authority (HCDA), but curiously, the bill does much more. It would effectively kill this agency by eliminating all of its state funding for Fiscal Year 2014-2015.

"The practical impact of this bill would be to make it impossible for new development in Kakaako to commence.

"During the public hearing on this bill, your Committee on Water & Land found that 'the public has been very vocal about community engagement, public notice, and public hearing procedures currently utilized. . .' by HCDA, and that 'public transparency concerns have often been tied to addressing the issue of whether [HCDA] plans have adequately accounted for infrastructure concerns.' By taking this approach, your Committee on Water & Land would appear to have made a much more direct finding – that HCDA has not provided adequate due process for the residents of Kakaako, and accordingly, should not be allowed to authorize any new development there.

"If that is truly the case, arguably, the residents of Kakaako already have access to the courts to contest HCDA's actions under the Hawaii Administrative Procedures Act, Chapter 91, Hawaii Revised Statutes (HRS), as well as Chapter 206E, HRS. There are general principles of common law that also are affected providing aggrieved parties the ability to challenge the decisions of an administrative agency.

"General due process considerations of fairness directly limit the manner in which an agency may exercise its designated responsibilities. A practice which violates due process cannot be excused because of mere administrative inconvenience. (See, State Dept of Environmental Protection v. Stravola, 103 N.J. 425, 511 A.2d 622 (1986))

"There are no simple answers as to what constitutes fundamental fairness, and each case must be considered and evaluated on its merits, giving weight to the effect of the decision on the agency's public policy.

"The controlling case would appear to be Mathews v. Eldridge, 424 U.S. 319, 96 S Ct 893, 47 L Ed 2d 18 (1976). Under the Mathews balancing test, to determine whether an administrative procedure satisfies due process, a court must weigh:

(1) The private interest that will be affected by an official action;

(2) The risk of erroneous deprivation of such interest or procedures used and the probable value, if any, of additional or substitute procedural safeguards; and

(3) The government's interest, including the function involved and the fiscal and administrative burdens that additional or substitute procedural requirements would entail. (See, Am Jur 2d., Administrative Law §56)

"But rather than let the courts figure out whether HCDA has violated fundamental fairness and entrust the implementation of well-established public policy to the HCDA – that our urban core be developed to meet our vast, unmet needs, including the lack of suitable affordable housing, insufficient commercial and industrial facilities for rent, residential areas which do not have facilities necessary for basic live-ability, such as parks and open space, and areas which are planned for extensive land allocation to one, rather than mixed uses – we endeavor to micro-manage HCDA to the point where it would no longer serve any effective use.

"If that is the will of this Body, so be it, but let's not kid ourselves and just repeal HCDA. If that is the new policy for the state, then how does House Leadership propose we address our growing unmet needs? Push development out to Leeward or Central Oahu? Windward Oahu? Use agricultural lands for residential housing? Sure, it is very easy to placate NIMBY residents in Kakaako by supporting a measure like this. But let's not forget that we've already invested hundreds of millions of dollars into Kakaako's infrastructure which according to experts has not come close to reaching its capacity. What about our unmet needs? Where are the solutions in this bill? And, please don't tell me that these individuals acquired their units unaware that future development was foreseeable. No one can claim that they purchased their homes believing no future high rise or similar building would be built.

"If House Leadership want this bill so badly, I'll play along. But I for one will not stand by and let them dismantle thirty years of urban planning without obtaining solid consensus on what we should do as an alternative. And if House Leadership truly want to lead this Body, I can hardly wait to see what they have to offer. Until such time, I cast my vote with serious reservations."

"Second, I would like to incorporate the words of my colleague from Kapolei as if they were my own. I agree that should this Body eviscerate HCDA, the people of Kalaeloa and Heeia will be especially aggrieved since HCDA is also charged with administering the Kalaeloa Community Development District and the Heeia Community Development District.

"For these reasons, I vote in support with strong reservations."

Representative Har rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Still in opposition, just brief rebuttal to the Finance Chair. I appreciate her comments, however, again if we're going back to the make-up of the board, that is why it's incumbent that we continue to have the community members involved in that planning. You take away that oversight, then you take away their abilities.

"In addition, I would ask the Members to look at the testimony specifically of the HCDA, as well as of the Attorney General's Office, regarding what this means to the previous composition of the authority, provided that a native Hawaiian cultural specialist would serve as a voice for the host culture. The current proposal does not make this position available to the authority. Notwithstanding the fact that the position has been vacant, that's not the point. The point is that the host culture would still be represented and would be represented in the current make-up of the board. If we are going to do that, once again we disrespect the host culture. I continue to submit that this current bill is flawed. It is not going to address the affordable units.

"Also, I'd like to address some of the comments regarding perpetuity. For those of us who have a background in real estate development, we understand how affordable units work. The fact is that a developer is not going to build affordable units unless the numbers pencil out. Even with the land given to them, free of charge, the numbers still do not pencil out unless you are given some type of subsidy through government. That's the only way you can make affordable reserved housing units work for a developer to want to build them. You've got to incentivize that development. And so to say, 'Oh, we want to keep reserved housing in perpetuity.' Yeah, we can do that. It's called public housing. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

At 8:25 o'clock p.m., Representative Carroll requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 8:26 o'clock p.m.

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.B. No. 1866, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE HAWAII COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY," passed Third Reading by a vote of 35 ayes to 14 noes, with Representatives Aquino, Awana, Cachola, Cullen, Fale, Fukumoto, Hanohano, Har, Ito, Kawakami, McDermott, Say, Tokioka and Yamane voting no, and with Representatives Ward and Wooley being excused.

At 8:28 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 2529, HD 3
H.B. No. 1866, HD 2

At 8:28 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 8:29 o'clock p.m.

Representative Cachola rose, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, there seems to be a mistake as to the vote on the HCDA 1866. Yes, I did not submit any green slip, but my comadre here said I voted no, but I did not. I'll be supporting it. Thank you."

The Chair then stated:

"Okay, I apologize, I got a clarification from the Clerk. For the record, Representative Cachola, your no vote, unfortunately though for this vote, it's counted as a no vote."

At 8:30 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 8:41 o'clock p.m.

THIRD READING

H.B. No. 2054, HD 1:

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, H.B. No. 2054, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE UNIFORM POWER OF ATTORNEY ACT," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2246, HD 1:

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, H.B. No. 2246, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO MENTAL HEALTH," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2139, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2139, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered." [Note: Representative Fale later changed his vote to a no vote.]

Representative Fukumoto rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition. Thank you. I just wanted to read two things for the Members. This first one is from Beverly Keever and talking about the Sunshine Law when it was first enacted, and that's what this bill is seeking to water down. 'Initially the Sunshine Law was passed by the Legislature in 1975 in the wake of the Water Gate Scandal, so that opening up closed doors of government would allow sunshine in, that acts as a disinfectant to reduce mismanagement and even illegal and unethical decisions.'

"In our own state law in the HRS, it states that the declaration and policy and intent of this law is that in a democracy the people are vested with the ultimate decision-making power. Governmental agencies exist to aid the people in the formation and conduct of public policy. Opening up the governmental processes to public scrutiny and participation is the only viable and reasonable method of protecting the public's interests. Therefore, the Legislature declares that it is the policy of this state that the formation and conduct of public policy, the discussions, deliberations, decisions and actions of government agencies shall be conducted as openly as possible.

"Mr. Speaker, my concern here, and I understand that we're doing this to make it easier for some of our county councils to be able to get together and talk about things, but I don't think we should be reversing things that were meant to bring more transparency to government. I think maybe we should be looking at how we can bring that to other places, instead of going back in time. Thank you."

Representative Matsumoto rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Fukumoto be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 2139, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PUBLIC AGENCY MEETINGS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes to 2 noes, with Representatives Fale and Fukumoto voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

At 8:45 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 2054, HD 1
H.B. No. 2246, HD 1
H.B. No. 2139, HD 1

At this time, the Chair stated:

"Page 26. Members, I'm going to take two bills out of order. House Bill 1415, there is a motion to recommit."

H.B. No. 1415, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that notwithstanding the recommendations contained in Standing Committee Report No. 646-14, that H.B. No. 1415, HD 1 be recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 1415, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO SERVICE BY PUBLICATION," was recommitted to the Committee on Judiciary, with Representative Wooley being excused.

At this time, the Chair stated:

"Next measure that we're going to take out of order is House Bill 1750, House Draft 1. I believe there is a Floor Amendment."

At 8:46 o'clock p.m., Representative Saiki requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 8:47 o'clock p.m.

H.B. No. 1750, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 1750, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

At this time, Representative Oshiro offered Floor Amendment No. 2, amending H.B. No. 1750, HD 1, as follows:

"SECTION 1. House Bill No. 1750, H.D. 1, is amended by changing its effective date from upon approval to July 1, 2020."

Representative Oshiro moved that Floor Amendment No. 2 be adopted, seconded by Representative Say.

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This floor amendment is very simple, is very straightforward, and gets to the point. What this does would be to set the effective date as July 1, 2020 in this bill. The current draft of this bill, on Section 4 of page 2, is upon its approval. So that's the substantive amendment in this floor amendment, to change the effective date, instead of upon approval, to July 1 on 2020.

"In brief, let me explain to you why I think this is an appropriate amendment. I call it a friendly amendment, Mr. Speaker. I draw the attention of the Members to Standing Committee Report Number 648-14, House bill 1750, House Draft 1, third paragraph. 'Your Committee notes that without a malice element, the application of the offense created under this measure is potentially very broad and could have unintended consequences.' Unintended consequences. 'Given the possible reach of the proposed offense, it may raise constitutional concerns under the First Amendment.' Constitutional concerns under the First Amendment. 'Your Committee respectfully requests that as this measure moves through the Legislature that further discussion take place concerning whether such concern is warranted, and whether further limits should be placed on the offense to ensure that it is more narrowly drawn.'

"That suggests to me, Mr. Speaker, that it was the intention of the committee and the committee members and the chair that this bill would not pass from this Chamber with a clean effective date so that it could be adopted by the Senate, but that in fact they had intended to pass this out with what we call a 'defective effective date' for further discussion pertaining to the concerns raised in the standing committee report.

"For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I propose this floor amendment as a friendly floor amendment to ensure that they are giving ample time to consider these important issues raised in the committee report. Thank you."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in opposition to the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in opposition to the floor amendment. The information about the possible constitutional problems with this bill did not arise until after the committee had voted on it. So there was no mistake about the effective date, because we weren't aware of the problem until after we'd voted on it. I'm the one who requested to put the committee language in there to flag the next committee, so that it didn't pass on without further consideration, and I think the floor amendment is unnecessary for that reason. Mahalo."

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support of the floor amendment. Now that I've heard the Judiciary Chair explain that committee report a little bit better to me, even more in support of this 'friendly amendment'. If his hands were tied at the time the vote was taken and it was upon effect at that point in time, found out this information afterwards, then we should have the opportunity right now to say, 'You know what, maybe we should put a defective date on it right now so it can be cleaned up.' Because right now, you know if we pass this out of here upon approval, we're saying, 'It's an okay bill,' when we clearly say in our committee report it's not an okay bill, Mr. Speaker.

"So I'm hoping we will have people hear this and support this friendly amendment. We're not killing the bill. We're allowing it for more discussion and we're supporting that committee report by changing this date, Mr. Speaker. Thank you very much."

At this time, Representative Saiki called for the previous question.

The motion that Floor Amendment No. 2, amending H.B. No. 1750, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PUBLIC ORDER," be adopted, was put to vote by the Chair and upon a voice vote, failed to carry, with Representative Rhoads voting no, and with Representatives Johanson and Wooley being excused.

(Main Motion)

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, let's look at the current bill before us, obviously notwithstanding the committee report in the prior discussion that I would reference in this debate. It appears that this would be the will of this Body to move this thing forward as is. It's effective upon approval. And understand what that means. Not only does this contain the House position on this particular issue, a very, very important issue. Recall, I think they call it 'revenge porn.' It's something sick, it's something diabolical, it's cruel, it's heartless, and it seriously injures people and their lives. So it's dealing with a very important bill to criminalize this evil behavior.

"The concerns I have on this draft, Mr. Speaker, that's why I think there is some truth of the committee report, because if these issues of the mindset mens rea is not addressed, you could have a defective law in place that purports to get protection, but absolutely not. And you won't learn of that consequence, you won't learn of that consequence until it's too late and the case needs to be dismissed for obvious due process of constitutional defects.

"The First Amendment issue is also of concern, whether this abridges the practice right now where certain peoples using social media, like Facebook or Twitter or whatever those other things are, take pictures of their friends at the beach or at a party. You don't want to inadvertently catch them up in a crime as serious and terrible as this.

"If you look at the draft of what they've done here, it deviates very far from what was proposed by Imua Alliance, Mr. Coffield, who basically echoes the same suggestions of setting forth this law as also put forward by the Department of the Prosecuting Attorney and the State Attorney General's Office, and I'll direct the attention to those members. And this is what they state, City and County of Honolulu, 'We're supporting the intent of House Bill 1750 and proposing a House Draft 1, attached for your consideration. While the current language of House Bill 1750 attempts to address a problem that is certainly known to our department, we believe a slightly different approach will be more effective in establishing this behavior as a new criminal offense.' And the draft is contained in the record.

"Again, it's echoed by the Attorney General. 'The Department of Attorney General supports the intent of this bill. This bill creates a new offense regarding disclosing without consent nude images or images of a person engaged in sexual activity with the intent to harm the depicted person. The Department of the Attorney General agrees with and adopts the reasoning and amendments proposed in the testimony provided by the Department of the Prosecuting Attorney of the City and County of Honolulu, a copy of which is attached hereto. We respectfully ask the Committee to pass this bill using the proposed amendments provided by the Department of the Prosecuting Attorney of the City and County of Honolulu.'

"Two other points. The current draft before us sets the penalty as a misdemeanor. The proposal that was promoted by the Prosecuting Attorney's Office, Attorney General's Office, and Mr. Coffield from the Imua Alliance would make it a class C felony. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In support of the bill. It seems to me like the concerns raised here underestimate the ability of the Senate to address the known flaws of the bill, particularly since we've already put in that I've already voluntarily signed off on a committee report that included them. So, I think we should move the bill across and take care of the problems. I think it's an important enough issue that we need to address it and we shouldn't end its journey right now, and we should send it to the Senate and let them work their will on it, and I'm 100 percent certain that this will not be the final draft of this bill. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support with strong reservations. May I have the words of the Representative from Wahiawa adopted as my own. Mr. Speaker, I would just have a preference that we do our own work. The last thing I want to do is rely on somebody in the Senate to do what we already know needs to be done. And for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I think we should fix the problem."

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, since the floor amendment failed, I will stand here, with no other choice but to say strong opposition. Well, no, I'll do support with strong reservations for this time being. Only to say, this discussion should go forward. I don't, hopefully I don't want to say no on this because I don't want it to be publically out there that I said no. But I have some serious reservations with this going forward.

"I have said this time and time again. If we're going to pass things out of this Body, we better be serious about it. I understand the chair has stated in his committee report, and we provided an opportunity, which we have rules and we can propose amendments. Obviously, that didn't happen this evening. But I'm somebody that likes to stand on, this is our word and this is what we're going to stand by going forward, especially if we're going to put 'upon approval' in it. Those are serious words to me. So, right now, I will stand with strong reservations, Mr. Speaker. Thank you."

Representative Har rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, thank you. In opposition, just brief comments. I want to thank the Chair of Judiciary, I think he is very well intended. But, by his own admission, this bill is flawed, so the opportunity to fix it was offered via floor amendment to ensure that the House and the House's concerns could be addressed in conference, and yet we turned down that opportunity.

"We're essentially conceding the House position, and as the Vice Chair of Judiciary, I'm not comfortable with that. For those reasons, may I please have the words from the Representative from Wahiawa entered into the Journal as if they were my own, and may I please request permission to insert additional written comment into the Journal. Thank you," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Har's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to HB 1750, HD1. Mr. Speaker, this bill is intended to address a great injustice that many people face when they unfortunately fall victim to unconsented media distribution of themselves in a sexually exploitive fashion. No one can deny that these acts are intended for social defacement, revenge, harm, and antipathy. While I support the intent of this bill, I have grave concerns that this bill creates more problems than it solves. As such, I do not believe that it is appropriate for the bill to advance in its current form.

"It is clear from testimony before the Judiciary Committee that the issue at hand is not just that of malice, but that of consent. The bill is silent on what constitutes consent, only that consent must be made at some point. As it is currently written, the consent of a sexually abused minor to the taking of a photograph would be sufficient for a pedophile to avoid prosecution under the offense identified in this bill.

"Additionally, in the standing committee report, the Chair of the Judiciary Committee notes:

"Your Committee notes that without a malice element, the application of the offense created under this measure is potentially very broad and could have unintended consequences. Given the possible reach of the proposed offense, it may raise constitutional concerns under the First Amendment."

"While I understand that HB 1750 is being advanced for discussion purposes, it is perplexing that the bill is advancing without at least a defective date. As demonstrated by the floor amendment proposed by the good Representative of Wahiawa, this Body does not seem concerned with the 'unintended consequences' and the 'constitutional concerns under the First Amendment'. However, the inaction of this Body to address this grievous oversight instead leaves the public to believe that the advancement of HB 1750 past Third Reading is a tacit endorsement of the 'unintended consequences' and the 'constitutional concerns under the First Amendment'.

"It is for these reasons Mr. Speaker, I am forced to oppose HB 1750, HD 1."

At this time, Representative Saiki called for the previous question.

Representative Tokioka rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. I'll be voting with reservations. And the reason why I'm voting with reservations is that there is no other vehicle that I know of. But I ask permission to submit written comments. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I speak in support but with very serious reservations.

"As noted during the debate on my previous motion to amend this bill, I want to make very clear that this bill is flawed, and by including a 'clean effective date' ('Upon approval'), there is a very strong possibility that this House might not be able to have a say on what it looks like before it goes to the Governor.

"The Chair of the Judiciary Committee himself recognized that this bill is flawed when he wrote in Standing Committee Report No. 648-14:

"Your Committee notes that without a malice element, the application of the offense created under this measure is potentially very broad and could have unintended consequences. Given the possible reach of the proposed offense, it may raise constitutional concerns under the First Amendment. Your Committee respectfully requests that as this measure moves through the Legislature that further discussion take place concerning whether such concern is warranted, and whether further limits should be placed on the offense to ensure that it is more narrowly drawn*."* [Emphasis added.]

"Let me translate for the lay person:

"This bill is not ready for prime time but maybe the Senate will fix it for us."

"Are you kidding me? Instead of relinquishing the authority of the House to make this policy like Chair of the Judiciary Committee proposes, I had asked this House to take responsibility for fixing this obvious shortcoming by simply inserting a defective effective date or effective date of July 31, 2050. I apologize for belaboring that point, but I think it is very important that the record reflects that that is exactly what the bill before us will do – it sends a problematic bill to the Senate without the House ensuring that it be fixed before obtaining Final Approval.

"And why should we care? After all, so what if a flawed bill goes out? Because there is the possibility the flawed bill will become law, and who knows how it might hurt people.

"The testimony of Kris Coffield, representing IMUA Alliance, is fitting. He wrote:

". . . [F]ree speech activists, such as the ACLU, have claimed that restricting an individual's ability to transmit lascivious material online, no matter how inflammatory, is unconstitutional. Citing recent U.S. Supreme Court decisions affirming the protection of unsavory speech (overturning laws banning videos that show graphic violence against animals in one case, while upholding the right of Westboro Baptist Church to engage in homophobic protests in another), these groups contend that the First Amendment is a guarantor of rights, not taste. Yet, as UCLA law professor Eugene Volokh has argued, vindictive and non-consensual pornography distribution is more likely to be deemed a form of obscenity, which the Supreme Court has deemed unworthy of First Amendment protection. Moreover, proscribing revenge porn would not impede the ability of someone to share salacious images that serve the public interest. Women who shared nude photos of former New York congressman Anthony Weiner, for example, would be protected by the Court's reasoning in Syder v. Phelps (the Westboro case), where the majority distinguished between speech concerning public and private matters, saying that more rigorously protecting the latter does not cloud society's interest in fostering a meaningful exchange of ideas."

"Because of this, Mr. Coffield and IMUA ALLIANCE did the right thing. They worked with the City Prosecutor's Office and the Attorney General's Office to develop amendments that would provide meaningful protections for the public while addressing very real constitutional problems with the bill. And to my dismay, the proposed amendments were ignored by the Chair of the Judiciary Committee.

"As noted by the City Prosecutor's Office:

"Hawaii's existing offense of Violation of Privacy in the First Degree covers scenarios where the perpetrator installs or uses a devise to record another person in a private place in a stage of undress or sexual activity, without the depicted person's consent. It does not, however, cover scenarios where the depicted person initially agrees to the photographs or video – often in the context of a romantic relationship – only to have one partner distribute those images via the internet after the relationship ends. The later scenario is a growing problem in Hawaii and across the U.S. Indeed, on October 1, 2013, Governor Jerry Brown (D) of California signed into law new legislation that prohibits a 'revenge porn' perpetrator from distributing sexually explicit pictures that were intended to be private. . . Since then, a number of other states have also begun considering similar legislation.

"Revenge porn violates the privacy of the person whose private image is spread across the internet, putting that person at significant risk, in terms of her (or his) safety, career, reputation, physical and mental health, personal relationships, and so forth. . .

"Given the growing problems stemming from this type of activity, the Department strongly agrees that a new criminal offense should be created to discourage and/or appropriately punish those who would violate someone's privacy in this fashion."

"What's most important from the Prosecutor's testimony was the recognition that MALICIOUS distribution of private material should be prohibited. Without establishing the element of malice into the statute, we may be criminalizing a host of activities which I believe were never intended to be criminalized.

"A good example is this. A proud father takes a video of his toddler daughter. She is in the back yard, shirtless in only a diaper, splashing in a plastic, inflatable pool trying to cool off on a hot summer day. The diaper gets overloaded and falls off as she trips in the pool.

"Under the bill as presently drafted, the act of taking the video of his daughter -- who being two years old is not capable of giving consent nor can she determine on her own whether being nude at the time was voluntary -- may be a misdemeanor.

"The proud father emails this video to his mother and father. . . the proud grandparents. The mere possession of the video by the grandmother and grandfather may be a misdemeanor requiring them to be fined not less than $1,000. Keep in mind that the amount of the fine is set in this bill, meaning that the Court would have no discretionary authority to reduce or waive the fine given the context of the alleged action. Can you imagine, some grandmother next year in court fighting charges of unlawful distribution of sexual representation for having a video of her two year old granddaughter playing in a plastic pool?

"And by making this bill effective upon approval, there is no guarantee that the bill would be further amended by the Senate, and there would be nothing the House could do to stop it. Do we simply leave it to the Executive Branch to save us from ourselves?

"Let's just hope the Senate Judiciary Chair takes his job a lot more seriously than we may be doing. After all, isn't this bill our attempt to address a new type of vile and despicable crime that harms a person's public and private relationships? Isn't 'revenge porn' a growing threat to our residents and visitors so that it is important enough to address in a mature and somber manner? Have we squandered an opportunity to protect the vulnerable and the oppressed? I hope not.

"On the other hand, there is no other vehicle to address this issue. Consequently, this is the only bill and only hope for victims as well as law enforcement to protect our citizens and bring to justice these criminals. This being the case, I cannot vote against the bill, but only caution my colleagues and other stakeholders of the current infirmity and defects contained therein.

"For these reasons, I have very strong reservations about this bill."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 1750, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PUBLIC ORDER," passed Third Reading by a vote of 47 ayes to 3 noes, with Representatives Choy, Hanohano and Har voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

At 9:01 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bill passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 1750, HD 1

H.B. No. 2205, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2205, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose in opposition to the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to HB 2205, HD 1. The purpose of this bill is to remove the probation option for sentencing upon conviction of habitual property crime without the possibility of furlough or work release.

"The Office of the Public Defender noted in their testimony that it is entirely possible for a more serious offender to serve a shorter term of imprisonment than a less serious offender, under the conditions of this bill. While it is well known that I am tough on crime, this bill goes against common sense as it creates the possibility of a non-violent offender serving a longer jail term than a violent offender. By subjecting non-violent offenders to these punishment stipulations while simultaneously removing the possibility of furlough or work release, we are categorically criminalizing these offenses on a scale similar to sex offenses or drug related crimes.

"In 2012 the Crime in Hawaii report from the Office of the Attorney General reported that property crime, burglary, and motor vehicle theft were at a record low since data began being collected in 1975. This trend is again, apparent in testimony provided by the Office of the Prosecuting Attorney from the City and County of Honolulu. Keeping these data in mind, it is curious why a bill like this would be introduced. Other avenues of rehabilitation for property crime offenders exist that don't mandate such Draconian tactics, which are clearly not commensurate with the crimes committed.

"For the foregoing reasons, Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition on HB 2205, HD 1. Thank you."

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'll be voting against this measure. Mr. Speaker, I think as this thing started out, I guess the impetus of this thing was to deal with the habitual property crime statute. But as I review the statute right now and the application thereof, I don't see a necessity to amend it as amended in this draft. There is no probation that is going to be allowed, but for those who are convicted under this statute, an indeterminate term of imprisonment of five years. So you just took away the discretion of the courts, and philosophically I have a concern with that, that extreme position. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations regarding HB 2205, HD 1, a measure that removes the probation option for sentencing upon conviction of Habitual Property Crime.

"Mr. Speaker, I am concerned that this measure may be too severe and removes flexibility for the courts.

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations regarding HB 2205, HD 1."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 2205, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO CRIME," passed Third Reading by a vote of 46 ayes to 4 noes, with Representatives Hanohano, Har, Jordan and Oshiro voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2408, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2408, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, may I request a ruling on a potential conflict? Mr. Speaker, if in fact this bill goes through and the letter 'H' is drawn first, I do believe I will be at an advantage and therefore I do believe that I have a potential conflict," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Har continued to speak, stating:

"With all due respect, Mr. Speaker, I would like to be recused from this vote. I am uncomfortable with this vote. Again, if the letter 'H' is drawn and if you read the preamble, it has been well documented that candidates who are listed at the top of the ballot are at an advantage and on average receive 2 percent more votes than had they been listed later on the ballot. I'm very uncomfortable to take this vote, Mr. Speaker. I would respectfully ask that you recuse me, if not, I'll be voting in opposition."

At 9:04 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 9:04 o'clock p.m.

Representative Har continued to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will be voting in opposition and in an abundance of caution, I don't want there to be any allegations that if in fact, there is a 1 out 26 chance that the letter 'H' could be drawn. statistically I would be at an advantage. I don't want there to be any allegations that this bill would directly benefit me, and in an abundance of caution, I will be voting no. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'll be voting no also, and ask that the words of the Representative from Kapolei be adopted as my own. My last name is Oshiro, so usually I kind of fall back on the ballot. Thank you," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Hanohano rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mahalo ho'omalu 'ōlelo. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I will also be going kako'o 'ole, in opposition, and I would like to have the words of the Representative from Kapolei as if they were my own, since we both have 'H' as our last names. Mahalo," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Tokioka rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, first let me ask for a ruling on a potential conflict. My last name begins with 'T' and it's normally at the end of the ballot," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Tokioka continued to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in opposition. Mr. Speaker, for that purpose, I think this bill kind of confuses voters when they go to the election booths, and I think what we're trying to do is get them more involved and not less involved, and less confused. So, for those reasons I'm voting in opposition, Mr. Speaker. I do understand the reasoning for this, but I just think that people are going to get more confused in the State of Hawaii. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Tsuji rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Har be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.) [Note: Representative Fale later changed his vote to a no vote.]

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In support. Surprisingly enough, only seven states use the alphabetical order like we do. Only six others, Alabama, Louisiana, Maine, Nevada, North Carolina, Vermont. Many other states, some use even less fair methods than we do where they, I think it was Nebraska, they list candidates by party in order of the party who received the most votes in the previous governor's race, which seems manifestly unfair to me.

"Others are even more fair than what this would be. Ohio for example, they rotate the names in each precinct. So it's almost completely random. So considering the advantages and disadvantage of where your name is placed, it seems to me that it is much fairer to do it in a random manner. Thank you."

Representative Awana rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I'd also like a ruling on a potential conflict. My last name begins with 'A'," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Awana continued to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise with reservations. Just a few comments with my reservations, just a small rebuttal on the Judiciary Chair about being fair and not fair. I think similar to the good Representative from Lihue had made mention, we're trying to make it easier for our voters to go in and vote when they're looking at the ballot, and many of our voters actually have backgrounds in different countries, in different languages. So to place it in an alphabetical order, I believe it would make it a little bit easier for them to understand the alphabetical order of it all.

"I'd also like to make mention that during an election, I wasn't the first person on a ballot, although my last name starts with 'A.' So to make that statement, it doesn't necessarily mean that you will be elected, as I was. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Fukumoto rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition. I do also have similar concerns that voters will be confused, because they won't be used to this system. Additionally, I think if we're going to be considering making changes to the ballot, we might want to consider putting the 'R' and the 'D' behind the name of the person, so that people are voting for the person first, instead of the party. So, just a suggestion if this comes up again later."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, H.B. No. 2408, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ELECTIONS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 44 ayes to 6 noes, with Representatives Fale, Fukumoto, Hanohano, Har, Oshiro and Tokioka voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2666, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2666, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'll be voting no on this measure. The current draft is upon approval, so if it goes over to the Senate and they adopt it, it becomes the law of the land. Several years ago when we passed this measure to basically assist the vendors who may have some concerns regarding the age of the individual seeking to purchase a age restricted product, we assisted then with this ability to go and check out the IDs if they had what we called at that time a 'reasonable doubt' regarding the age. That's no longer applicable to the businesses in this draft here.

"I draw people's attention to what was submitted by the American Civil Liberties Union, this is what they state. 'Scanning by private businesses raises serious privacy concerns: Hawaii driver's licenses contain bar codes,' and we talk about bar codes in the first section of this bill regarding machine readable zone. That's on page 1 of this measure. 'Hawaii driver's licenses contain bar codes with significant personal information, including name, address, date of birth, hair color, eye color, height, weight, gender, license expiration date, organ donor status, driver's license number, fingerprint, medical indicators and driver classification code. As more personal information is amassed in more databases, the likelihood increases that the information will be misused or stolen.' Misused or stolen. 'Individuals cannot protect the accuracy or distribution of their personal information when it is held by others.'

"Let me give an example. In the time it took me to go down there and touch the floor and come back up, I could've scanned all the information of your driver's license and have them taken with me as I leave the store or my place of business. That's the danger we're talking about today. It goes on further, I think the Office of Consumer Protection, I think Mr. Kim, also opposes the bill as currently drafted. He raises the concerns that we all are well aware of.

"This past year when Target, TJ Maxx, 7-Eleven, and other businesses, well actually I think it's Target, actually Target set the stage along with some other businesses. It made us realize our greatest fears of capturing and soliciting and distributing personal information, financial data about us. If there's a doubt as far as the patron or customer at one's place of business and if you question the persons age, the best bet for you is to take a more conservative approach and don't do business with them. If you doubt the authenticity of the driver's license or the passport or the birth certificate or the state ID, you think it's phony, fake, not real, doesn't jive with the person before you, don't do business with them. And that's the choice they have now, that's the choice they've had for years and years and years.

"So I think when I weigh the benefits of this program against the harm and evils that can arise from unauthorized use and capture of personal data, I need to fall on the side protecting the personal property of individuals who unbeknownst to them may be captured at some business entity or even some rogue or renegade shopkeeper, or rogue or renegade sales clerk who might ask to review the driver's license or passport or state ID or other age verification.

"So that's my concern here. I know what they're trying to do here, Mr. Speaker. But again, in an abundance of caution, if there's any doubt as to the age of that person purchasing or seeking to purchase that age restrictive item, don't sell to them. That's a safer route, and I think achieves what we're trying to do here without jeopardizing or exposing other innocent customers. Thank you."

Representative Jordan rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, maybe I'll provide a little more comments. Still with reservations. I was reviewing some of the testimony and some of it keeps referring to, if somebody doesn't look old enough to buy alcohol. Well, I distinctly remember, now I'm over 21, so my driver's license reads horizontal. And my understanding is we changed our driver's license to read vertical for people that were under 21.

"So, they don't even have to scan it. If they see it the other way, they know the kid's under 21. So then somebody will say, 'Well, this will help with out of state driver's licenses.' Well, listening to the good Representative from Wahiawa, I remember standing in line three months ago in a Longs Drugs, aka CVS. And there was a lady in front of me, very frustrated. And I was like, what's going on? And she was an out of state individual and handed her driver's license to Longs Drugs and they couldn't scan her ID, her driver's license, because she didn't have a bar code on there, and they were trying to fill something out for her. And then they finally had to call the manager over there, and how do you read this and how do you read that?

"So, I really don't want to get into the discussion about, well it's good for out of state driver's licenses. It's not. So this clearly tells me that there is an institution that could be capturing data, because they were capturing some data for this individual, for whatever application she was filling out for something she purchased at Longs.

"I have a serious concern on what they may or may not be gathering. I totally understand, we don't want youth buying alcohol, God forbid. I have picketed in my community, I know the bad places that sell it to my underage youth. I've worked with the liquor commission on how we can run sting operations. I totally understand that.

"But when we start talking about what businesses may be capturing and may be holding or not holding, or protecting or not protecting. When we hear large companies like Target get purged, that is very scary.

"I was comfortable with probably leaving another sunset date in this measure. This measure currently removes the sunset date. As you remember, we just passed this, what, two years ago? Not that long at all. I would be very comfortable if we left a sunset date in there. But what we're doing right now is removing the sunset date. And if I remember right, we put sunset days in there to keep testing it. I think we talked about a bill, the first one on this agenda, we kept putting a sunset date in there, to keep testing it.

"So, maybe I've just talked myself into opposition. Maybe I'll vote no on this for now, and hopefully when it comes back from the Senate, they'll put that sunset date back in for me, and then I can vote my reservations, my yes then. So for right now, Mr. Speaker, please note my 'no' on this vote. In opposition. Thank you."

Representative Kawakami rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. Mr. Speaker, I cannot disagree with the previous two speakers. Identity theft is a problem, it's real, it's on the increase. But let me tell you, Mr. Speaker, there's many ways to steal your identity. If you talk on your telephone, somebody can steal your identity. If you're on a computer, somebody can steal your identity. If you use an ATM, somebody can steal your identity. If you go into a restaurant and you use your credit card, somebody can steal your identity. If you're on the internet, shopping online, somebody can steal your identity.

"Mr. Speaker, I cannot object to any of those statements. It's real and it's something that businesses have been trying to address. And I can tell you, Mr. Speaker, but what this bill is about, is about providing tools. And like any tool, it can be used for good or bad. Take for example a hammer. A hammer can be used to construct or demolish. A screwdriver can be used to screw and connect or to unscrew and disconnect, Mr. Speaker. So tools are a double edged sword.

"What this tool will provide is for the industry, and based on the testimony from Hawaii Food Industry Association, an association that represents over 200 retailers, wholesalers, establishments where you buy your eggs, cookies, bread, and you also buy your cigarettes and your alcohol. Industries that are asking for a tool to become more efficient in keeping alcohol out of the hands of minors.

"Yes, Mr. Speaker, there are some risks. But in the high volume world of retail, it can be very stressful for the cashier. I understand that in Hawaii, we have a great identification system where yes, if you are a minor under the age of 21, your driver's license is vertical. It makes it very easy for the cashier to be able to distinguish who is under age and who is not. But, Mr. Speaker, as technology advances, the technology for fake ID's have also increased.

"And let me remind Members, that we are the tourist capitol of the world. We have 49 other states, and to keep track of 49 other identification cards can be challenging. So this merely provides a tool for retailers, to help prevent alcohol getting into the hands of minors. Mr. Speaker, thank you, in support."

Representative Yamashita rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker, a ruling on a potential conflict. I have a retail outlet that sells age appropriate products," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Yamashita continued to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. I'd also like to adopt the words of the Representative from Kauai as if they were my own. Thank you. Mr. Speaker, we in the retail business, we do everything we can to track to improve business and things like that. We have, one of the things when I actually did operations, was we tracked how much sales we have per transaction and we encourage our employees to try and maximize that. We do that by how we place items throughout the store and things like that.

"But one of our policies, Mr. Speaker, is that we don't sell anything, anything for any reason, to minors. And when in doubt, don't sell. When in doubt, forget the sales per transaction. Even if you think the ID looks perfect, but something tells you that it might be wrong, or this doesn't look right, don't sell. That's our policy. But employees get lazy, Mr. Speaker. And for whatever reason, they get busy, and then they forget to card somebody, and then as we all know there's stings out there, and they get caught. And we ask them, 'Why did you do that? You know the policy.' And they say, 'I'm sorry, I forgot, I don't know what I was thinking.'

"This happens, Mr. Speaker. So these types of tools are very, very useful. For those reasons, I stand in support of this measure. Thank you."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support with reservations. You've heard the voice of the empiricist, the actual experience, those two retailers. I'm a former retailer. Even though I didn't sell alcohol, I know there's difficulties with employees. The reality of this bill is, even though it could threaten an identity, it could also save a life. Mr. Speaker, the data says that there are 33,561 traffic accidents of which resulted in death nationwide. One-third, 33.3 percent of those, were under the influence of alcohol.

"Fast forward to Hawaii and its statistics. In Hawaii, there were 45 percent of all deaths from driving under the influence. And guess where we are nationwide? Number one. Number one death on the highways, followed by, I believe it's Connecticut and then North Dakota, in the 40 percentile of the deaths on the highway. So, Mr. Speaker, this bill that was passed before, as has been indicated, continues, and we don't know because there is an invisible data out there about how many lives this bill has already saved. So it's simply pushing it forward without an expiration.

"This is also to acknowledge however, that identity theft is a very real threat, cyber wars are very real wars. In the future, people are not going to be shooting at us, they're simply going to shut off our lights, shut down our banking, and we'll do the rest to ourselves. So identity theft is very real. Cyber wars are very real. But so is alcohol. As we all leave here after 12 hours of debate, we're going to be facing some people who may have already been drinking.

"Mr. Speaker, it's been a long debate on this, but I think it's balancing the two issues of security as well as safety for those young people who shouldn't be drinking, who with this bill hopefully will not be so. Thank you."

Representative Cabanilla rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In support, Mr. Speaker. With the issue of security or identity theft, on Section 1, number 2 of the bill, it says that they only card the individual 'if there is a reasonable doubt of the individual having reached the minimum age required.' Which means they don't card everybody, Mr. Speaker. But I think this bill is a good enforcement measure as well as a deterrent for those who want to access alcohol that are not of age.

"So I think this is a very simple measure, but it's very helpful. So with that, Mr. Speaker, I think we've had a long debate so I call for the question. Thank you."

At this time, Representative Cabanilla called for the previous question.

Representative Onishi rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, ruling on a conflict of interest. My wife's family owns a retail supermarket chain that does card you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Fukumoto rose in opposition to the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise to state my opposition to HB 2666. While I support the intent of the legislation, to prevent underage sales of goods and services, I am concerned with both the feasibility and necessity of continuing this program. If the goal is to determine whether a customer is underage, only a simple visual scan of the identification is necessary, especially since Hawaii and over 30 states have vertical licenses (instead of horizontal) for underage persons.

"Additionally, I have serious privacy concerns relating to private businesses scanning licenses. Hawaii driver's licenses include significant personal information within the bar codes, including name, address, date of birth, hair color, eye color, height, weight, gender, license expiration date, organ donation status, driver's license number, fingerprint, medical indicators, and driver classification code. Allowing private businesses to scan government-issued IDs at their point-of-sale (POS) terminals, which are often connected to the internet, means the consumer's information is in danger of being hacked, as was in the case of the recent Target store hacking. For these reasons, I must oppose HB 2666, HD 1. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Kawakami rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I'm sorry I didn't ask before, but could I ask for a ruling on a potential conflict of interest? Our family owns shares in a company that sells alcohol and tobacco," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative McKelvey rose in support of the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative McKelvey's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, in the age of the internet, minors can easily obtain high quality fake identification cards. The use of these skillfully altered identification cards has made visual inspection an unreliable method of detecting fake or altered identification cards. I believe that there is an approximate 20 percent failure range by licensees selling liquor to minors despite the use of Hawaii driver's license and state identification cards using vertical formats and clear notation on the card indicating the date on which the holder will obtain the age of maturity.

"Businesses selling liquor, tobacco, or other age-restricted products should be allowed to scan the identification of all customers for the purpose of verifying age before completing the sale of these products. By doing so, the business owner protects themselves from litigation and minors are further protected from a myriad of alcohol related problems.

"Furthermore, this measure also maintains the necessary privacy protections ensuring that the scan is solely for the purpose of verifying the age of the customer and the validity of the ID card."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, H.B. No. 2666, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PERSONAL INFORMATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 41 ayes to 9 noes, with Representatives Fale, Fukumoto, Hanohano, Johanson, Jordan, Matsumoto, McDermott, Oshiro and Thielen voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 1812, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 1812, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Tokioka rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cullen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Kawakami rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Aquino rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations regarding HB 1812, HD 1, a measure that requires additional detail and updating for annual reports to the Legislature of police misconduct.

"Mr. Speaker, the State of Hawaii Organization of Police Officers (SHOPO) had a number of concerns regarding this measure including the following testimony:

> "[T]he county police departments will be in violation of HRS section 92F-l4 (b)(4)(B) and this law should the descriptions they provide indirectly identify an officer who has been suspended, or was discharged without first having had the opportunity to exercise and exhaust fully all of the administrative remedies, which are specified in the collective bargaining agreement and in state law."

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations regarding HB 1812, HD 1."

Representative Yamane rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Tsuji rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Matsumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, H.B. No. 1812, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO LAW ENFORCEMENT," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes to 2 noes, with Representatives Hanohano and Ito voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

At 9:29 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 2205, HD 1
H.B. No. 2408, HD 1
H.B. No. 2666, HD 1
H.B. No. 1812, HD 1

H.B. No. 1926, HD 1:

H.B. No. 2573, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2573, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"In support with reservations, Mr. Speaker. I just want to flag this, I know it's late, but I'm actually getting inquiries about this from my district. My counterpart did vote no on this measure because of the fact that the many members of my district feel that the string guitar is perhaps more fitting of an instrument. However, in deference to the speaker in the Portuguese community, I'll just go with reservations for right now. Thank you very much."

Representative Ing rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in opposition. As a proud Portagee, yeah my mom was half, I grew up playing the 'ukulele. I caught the bug in fourth grade. Got obsessed with the instrument, learned Jake Shimabukuro songs. Performed with him on stage, later went on to teach 'ukulele at Palolo Elementary and a few other schools through a non-profit that me and my brother helped organize. Gathering volunteers, organizing their May Day, and bringing Jake down to go play with them. It was amazing.

"I love the instrument, won money off contests. That's me bragging. That being said, it made me into the musician that I became. It got me into guitar, slack key, other instruments, bass, Hawaiian music falsetto. One thing I was not able to learn was the steel guitar. It's very, very difficult. And I really admire Joseph Kekuku from Kahuku for the advent and what ultimately proliferated throughout the country, community, and world-wide. And we need to, I think if we're going to designate an official string instrument, obviously it should be that. And it's gaining a lot of public support, too. I'm sure that you guys got a lot of emails. But just out of respect to the originator of the instrument and our host culture, I went from reservations to opposition this reading. Thank you."

Representative Awana rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in strong support of House Bill 2573, HD 1. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The beauty of our island state is that we've been able to hanai the customs and traditions from those who have arrived here. Our local creole language known as 'pidgin' is an adaptation of those who worked on the plantation. A mixture of Hawaiian, Chinese, Filipino, English and Portuguese.

"Along with the Portuguese from Madeira, may I say the place where Speaker Souki's family is from, came the machete, 135 years ago, and as stated in the museum of making music, a 'ukulele's history, the machete, renamed ''ukulele' in the Hawaiian language meaning literally 'jumping flea', rose quickly to popularity among the native population and became regarded as Hawaii's national instrument.

"The key reason for this immediate acceptance was the patronage of Hawaii's royal family, most notably King David Kalakaua, an accomplished musician and composer who became an avid 'ukulele player. Augusto Dias, who introduced the 'ukulele to the royal family, had a long standing relationship with King Kalakaua. He regularly performed at Iolani Palace, demonstrating his unique Portuguese style of playing melody and accompaniment, and even taught the king to build his own 'ukulele.

"Apart from royal patronage, the creative design of the machete into the easier to play 'ukulele with its endemic koa wood construction and a slightly different tuning, helped the popularity of this portable instrument. Because of the use of Hawaii's native koa wood, which has been long associated with royalty on the islands, the 'ukulele became a symbol of aloha aina or 'love of the land', and of support for the Hawaiian sovereignty during that era of great political turmoil when the monarchy was struggling to preserve Hawaiian independence.

"So, Mr. Speaker, as you can see, nothing speaks closer to the hearts of our Hawaiian heritage then that of the 'ukulele. If the 'ukulele is good enough for our Hawaiian royal family, Mr. Speaker, it's good enough for the rest of us. For these reasons, I stand in support. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Kawakami rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, strong support and I'd like to ask to incorporate the words of the previous speaker into the Journal as if they were my very own. And I'd like to also remind the Maui delegation that their official flower is a pink rose. I don't think that's native."

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support, and just for the record, Joseph was from Laie, not Kahuku."

Representative Ing rose to respond, stating:

"I wanted to thank one of the previous speakers for her elegant speech, really softens the blow. But also to note that one of the reasons why 'ukulele is so popular today is because it resembles the ipu, you know, ute, u te te. It is now the preferred method of percussion in all Hawaiian music. So just that side note. Thank you."

Representative Souki rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Yes, it was true. I support this measure very strongly and I wish to incorporate the words of course from the Representative from Nanakuli, and I want to say this on behalf of my mother who was from the island of Madeira, and let me say she loved to sing Hawaiian music. Aloha."

Representative Tokioka rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I had a long speech, but it's late, so can I just insert comments into the Journal? In strong support to the children, the 'ukulele band from Kapaa Middle School and Chiefess Kamakahelei Middle School on Kauai and all the teachers that have prompted this issue to become a potential bill. So thank you for that, Mr. Speaker.

"I'd also like to thank my office for doing all of the research on this bill, and I'd like to thank the Chair of the Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs Committee because, as we all know, I wanted to make sure that this thing was pono. So I did check with the resources of the committee chair. And so for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I'm in strong support. I'd also like to add the words from the Representative of Nanakuli into the Journal as if they were my own as well," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Tokioka's written remarks are as follows:

"When I was a young boy on Kaua'i, sitting around with family and friends playing the 'ukulele was a weekly, if not daily, affair. I come from a musical family. My mother is incredible on the 'ukulele and an equally talented falsetto singer. In my 'ohana, it was always a musical trio. My mom, my brother --- and, the 'ukulele. She and my brother would sing and harmonize to na mele Hawai'i with the 'ukulele effortlessly accompanying them with its deep, rich and resonating tones. I would sit, listen and simply enjoy – occasionally catching myself singing along. The 'ukulele is MORE than just a stringed musical instrument. It is undeniably a part of Hawaii's musical history, just as it is a part of my own personal history.

"During Hawai'i's plantation days, circa 1879, Portuguese immigrants brought with them a 'small guitar' called the braguinha or the machete. King David Kalakaua, affectionately known as the Merry Monarch for his love of music, became quite fond of this new instrument. With a new koa wood design, a change in its strings' tuning and the Royal stamp of approval, this new instrument became what we know today as the 'ukulele. King Kalakaua, true to his nickname, loved music both traditional and new and embraced the 'ukulele. He incorporated the 'ukulele into his coronation and jubilee celebrations and became quite the 'ukulele player himself.

"Post World War II, the 'ukulele could be found state-side coming home with GI's whom were stationed in Hawai'i and the South Pacific. As was the case in Hawai'i, as the 'ukulele made its way around the world, so followed its popularity. Through the years, many notable individuals have not only enjoyed the 'ukulele's unique sound, but have also learned to play it themselves. Yes, amongst the incredibly long and distinguished list of 'ukulele greats here in Hawai'i – we add to it, an astronaut, a Prime Minister, 75 percent of the Beatles, a loveable red-head, the 'Oracle of Omaha', The King, POTUS, an actress from the golden age of Hollywood and yes, of course, the Green Goblin from Spiderman. Indeed, Neil Armstrong, Tony Blair, John… Paul and George, Lucille Ball, Warren Buffet, Elvis, President Obama, Gretta Garbo and James Franco all play the 'ukulele.

"Today, the 'ukulele is as essential to Hawaiian culture as it was at its introduction. Officially recognizing the 'ukulele as the state's string instrument would help to instill a sense of pride within and beyond the 'ukulele community. It would also link present and future generations of 'ukulele players with its illustrious past. This bill would also provide recognition for the 'ukulele that extends past the instrument itself paying tribute to the world class status of the 'ukulele, the world class musicians whom play it and forever coupling the beauty of the 'ukulele with the beauty of Hawai'i."

Representative Hanohano rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mahalo ho'omalu 'ōlelo. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Kako'o loa. In strong support. I understand both sides of the story. I can see the Representative from Maui trying to have the steel guitar as the string instrument. However, there's also other categories. So if you're really thinking about it, you could also have a category of Hawaiian made instruments by native Hawaiian, kānaka maoli, instead of putting it into the string instrument.

"But the only reason the 'ukulele is very fitting in this category is because it became Hawaii's icon. And a lot of people that come to Hawaii, you see them at the airports, they're all taking home 'ukulele. Or they all go to the 'ukulele shops to at least buy the instrument. Because when I'm at the airport, I see lot of, from keiki to kūpuna, always carrying their 'ukulele, and I know if they're tourists that came from the mainland or from Australia, from Japan, from Korea, carrying the 'ukulele. It makes them feel like they really had a Hawaiian experience, and that's part of the memories that they take home from being in Hawaii. Mahalo."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 2573, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE STATE INSTRUMENT," passed Third Reading by a vote of 47 ayes to 3 noes, with Representatives Ing, Lowen and Matsumoto voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2365, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2365, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Thielen rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I just would like to reference my 'with reservations' on Second Reading. Thank you," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 2365, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE STATE FIRE COUNCIL," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2584, HD 1:

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, H.B. No. 2584, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PERSONAL INJURY PROTECTION BENEFITS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2267, HD 1:

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, H.B. No. 2267, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO SECURE AND FAIR ENFORCEMENT FOR MORTGAGE LICENSING ACT," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

At 9:43 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 2342, HD 1
H.B. No. 2573, HD 1
H.B. No. 2365, HD 1
H.B. No. 2584, HD 1
H.B. No. 2267, HD 1

H.B. No. 2341:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2341 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

At this time, Representative Ward offered Floor Amendment No. 4, amending H.B. No. 2341, as follows:

"SECTION 1. House Bill No. 2341 is amended to read follows:

SECTION 1. Section 231-9.4, Hawaii Revised Statutes, is amended to read as follows:

"[{]§231-9.4 Credit or debit card remittances.[}] In addition to sections 237-31, 237D-6.5, and 251-5, as well as any other form of payment allowed under provisions of title 14 administered by the department, the director, by rules adopted pursuant to chapter 91, may permit the use of credit or debit cards for remittances made to the department. A service fee shall not be [~~required~~] assessed by the department for the use of debit cards [~~for remittances, but may be required by the department for the use of~~] or credit cards for remittances.

For purposes of this section:

"Credit card" shall have the same meaning as provided in section 478-1.

"Debit card" means any card, plate, or other single credit device issued with or without a fee to a cardholder to purchase goods or services or to obtain cash that is debited from the cardholder's checking or other bank account."

SECTION 2. Section 231-9.9, Hawaii Revised Statutes, is amended by amending subsection (a) to read as follows:

"(a) The director of taxation is authorized to require every person whose tax liability for any one taxable year exceeds [~~$100,000~~] $25,000 and who files a tax return for any tax, including consolidated filers, to remit taxes by one of the means of electronic funds transfer approved by the department; provided that for withholding taxes under section 235-62, electronic funds transfers shall apply to annual tax liabilities that exceed [~~$40,000.~~] $25,000. Notwithstanding the tax liability thresholds in this subsection, the director of taxation is authorized to require any person who is required to electronically file a federal return or electronically remit any federal taxes to the federal government, to electronically file a state return and electronically remit any state taxes under title 14 to the department. The director is authorized to grant an exemption to the electronic filing and payment requirements for good cause."

SECTION 3. Statutory material to be repealed is bracketed and stricken. New statutory material is underscored.

SECTION 4. This Act, upon its approval, shall apply to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2014."

Representative Ward moved that Floor Amendment No. 4 be adopted, seconded by Representative Fukumoto.

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This is a friendly floor amendment. It basically is going to save taxpayers money, and it's going to put more money in the state coffers quickly. This bill basically says, if you file your taxes electronically, you will not have to pay what otherwise now is 2.32 percent on your GET tax that is due.

"Mr. Speaker, we know that whenever you go to a store and you swipe your credit card, they don't then add on the 2.3 or whatever the Visa or the Mastercard or maybe a higher American Express 3 percent is. That's the cost of doing business. Right now, Mr. Speaker, we've got, I think, a dilemma.

"The way that people are sending in checks, it takes sometimes five to ten to even two weeks before it gets into the coffers of the state treasury, because it's checks. Right now we have 18 percent of our people who are paying electronically. This amendment simply says that if you pay electronically, which means quicker and faster that we can get the money, we're not going to charge you that 2.3 percent.

"It's an incentive, it's a simple thing, it's a user friendly thing and quite frankly, Mr. Speaker, when I pay the state on time, I don't think I should be penalized for that. And that's with my own GE Tax license. Why should we have to do that?

"This is a way of doing it, because we are now forcing people to file electronically. And if we're forcing them to file, we shouldn't be charging them for us to be getting their payment. That's basically all, it's simply a friendly amendment to make commerce go quicker and the treasurers of our state fill up faster. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Luke rose to speak in opposition to the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition. I do appreciate the comments from the Minority Leader Emeritus, and just because it's from a friendly introducer doesn't mean it's a friendly amendment. In this situation, the charge that is assessed to electronic filers is not a charge by DOTAX, it's a charge from the credit card and debit card companies. So what we have been trying to do between the Finance Committee and DOTAX is to change the behavior of DOTAX, so instead of DOTAX getting into a contract and having the debit and credit card assess fees, which DOTAX passes along to the users, what we want them to do is negotiate a contract for a flat fee.

"So I do appreciate the comments, and I think the better approach is for them to go and renegotiate the contract with the various vendors and the credit card companies and say, 'If you're going to do a credit card electronic filing, the state will pay a certain fee for you to provide that service,' then it won't make sense.

"In this situation, if you don't allow any assessment and fees, or assessment of use of debit and credit card, what that's going to do is there's no credit card companies and debit card companies that will want to do business with the state. And in that sense, we're going to nullify the e-filing systems.

"So I will continue to work with the introducer of this floor amendment, because I do think it's warranted, and we'll have further discussion. Thank you."

The motion that Floor Amendment No. 4, amending H.B. No. 2341, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ELECTRONIC FILING AND PAYMENT OF TAXES," be adopted, was put to vote by the Chair and upon a voice vote, failed to carry, with Representative Luke voting no, and with Representatives Carroll and Wooley being excused.

(Main Motion)

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations. My reservations, Mr. Speaker, is currently the measure reads anyone owing more than $100,000 annually is required to electronically file your payment. They're reducing that all the way to $25,000. That's a large group you're going to capture. Now, I get it. You want those revenues to come into our General Funds lickety-split. We can get it in a few days versus several days waiting for a check to be mailed.

"I just have some reservations on, is my system going to be able to handle this? Because you're talking a large populous. You have individuals that may owe more than $25,000 in total liability in one year. So, this is going to capture a large group. Again, I totally understand. We need to get our revenues in here a little bit quicker. I would be much more favorable of going to maybe $75,000 to see how my tax system is going to be able to handle that, because currently they're supposed to be putting a whole new system in there.

"So, other than that, I'm in favor of doing electronic filing of your payment. IRS has been doing it for a very long time. But I just have some slight reservations on how many people this is going to capture, and is our system going to be able to handle that. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, brief comment with reservations. Mr. Speaker, the former speaker is correct that as we move from $100,000 per year down to $25,000, that's a huge number that it's going to capture. That's about maybe $2,000 a month of gross excise tax. That means there's going to be a lot of people in this pool. And if there's a lot of people in the pool who don't want to pay, as the Chair of Finance said, this assessment that they fear that if they don't have it for the vendor they're not going to be able to do business with them. That's about $750, if it's a 2-3 percent, $500-$750, that it's going to cost them to use our website.

"Mr. Speaker, the bottom line is, we should make it easy for them to pay us. That was the whole point of the amendment and the whole point of what I hope is going to be negotiated as a lump sum, so people can pay through the electronic process, through the website, through the ehawaii.gov and not be penalized. But quite frankly, if you can send a check for whatever it is now, 45, 50 cents for a stamp. Twelve stamps is going to save you more than $500-$700. It doesn't make incentive sense is my point, Mr. Speaker.

"The cost of doing business is what every entity in the state has. And we are not practicing entrepreneurial sound principles by punishing people to pay us quicker, and the amount of money that we owe on time. So, for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, with reservations. We've got to update our DOTAX system. Fortunately, the Finance Committee had a tour, and it was almost embarrassing how outmoded the place is. They didn't have Lotus computers, but it was getting close to that. And with the lack of personnel, it needs upgrading to say the least. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 2341, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ELECTRONIC FILING AND PAYMENT OF TAXES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

At 9:52 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bill passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 2341

H.B. No. 2012, HD 2:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2012, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support with reservations on HB 2012, HD 2. The purpose of this bill is to create consumer safeguards from online ticket scalping sales for concerts and events in Hawaii. This bill makes it a violation to sell any ticket to a concert, game, contest, exhibition, game, or any other event at a price greater than the price listed on the ticket.

"It is important to ensure that consumers have access to fair and reasonable ticket prices for events and not be held hostage by computer software that circumvents online safeguards for the purposes of scalping, like what took place at a recent Bruno Mars concert. However, testimony on this bill's efforts to limit ticket prices on a secondary market to face value has made it clear that this may be difficult to enforce and have unintended consequences. Namely, these restrictions could force credible, online resale marketplaces to cease offering tickets for resale in Hawaii. If this happens, local residents may resort to street level scalpers and websites such as Craigslist, which offer no consumer protections. By resorting to these methods, there is no guarantee that purchased tickets are genuine.

"For the foregoing reasons, Mr. Speaker, I rise in support with reservations on HB 2012, HD 2. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 2012, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO CONSUMER PROTECTION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes to 1 no, with Representative Hanohano voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2043, HD 1:

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, H.B. No. 2043, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO REAL ESTATE APPRAISERS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 1503, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 1503, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Fukumoto rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"If you could just note my reservations. Just a very brief comment, which is that I don't have a lot of concern and I actually appreciate the measure because we've made an exemption for people who don't want smoking of any kind in their residences. But I do have a little bit of a concern that growing may create an attractive nuisance that could be dangerous for the property owners, and if there is a way that we can address that in the next versions of this bill, that'd be great. Thank you so much."

Representative Matsumoto rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Fukumoto be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Johanson rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Fukumoto be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Hanohano rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mahalo ho'omalu 'ōlelo. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Kako'o loa. In strong support. 'O kēia pila e kokua na po'e e puhi pakalolo ai'ole 'ai pakalolo no ko lākou ola ana. He pila maika'i loa. Mahalo. This bill helps medical marijuana patients. This is an excellent bill. Thank you."

Representative Tokioka rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With slight reservations. Thank you."

Representative Aquino rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I have reservations. Let me explain real quickly. The reservations I have is that I think right now they're going away from smoking marijuana to actually burning it through an electronic device. I think that might fall within the purview of this code right here. Thank you."

Representative Tsuji rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ito rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cullen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 1503, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE RESIDENTIAL LANDLORD-TENANT CODE," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 1525, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 1525, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Reservations, small comment please. Mr. Speaker, we have a Council on Revenues. We have a Tax Review Commission. Why do we have to create this Fiscal Responsibility Commission to tell us how to raise taxes? I think it's a redundancy, it's a waste of taxpayers' money, it's bureaucratic, and it's going to be, simply, what we already have through those other institutions. For those reasons, I don't think it's a good policy."

Representative Har rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Ward be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Ward be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 1525, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO FISCAL RESPONSIBILITY," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

At 9:57 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 2012, HD 2
H.B. No. 2043, HD 1
H.B. No. 1503, HD 1
H.B. No. 1525, HD 1

H.B. No. 1719, HD 1:

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, H.B. No. 1719, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TAXATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 1870, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 1870, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Thielen rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I'm voting aye, but I would like to point out some omissions in the bill. The measure proposes a tax credit for residential backup generators for the purpose of providing emergency power to individual residents. It's a great start in the right direction, but here's a couple of things. First of all, there should be a definition of the residential backup generator to clarify what type of generator it is, and it should include all types of electrical generators. Gas, natural gas, liquid propane and diesel. But the main thing, the main flaw in the bill, is that the tax credit should include alternative types of energy storage system technologies that provide the same residential backup energy. And these should be battery backup power, which are fast and easy startup, silent, emission-free operation, no need for external fuel to power the battery energy backup. And you can possibly configure your battery backup system to be recharged by a wide range of renewable energy sources, such as solar.

"So, while the bill is sort of a timid step forward, I would like to see it have more energy, and I hope that that will happen when it goes over to the Senate. Thank you."

Representative Lowen rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations. I also appreciate the intent, but I would just also note that maybe should also look at considering a residential credit for battery backup in addition to this. And then just noting that there was no testimony in support when it had its hearing in Finance."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 1870, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TAXATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 1893, HD 1:

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, H.B. No. 1893, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TAXATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2370, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2370, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Choy rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I waited 20 pages for this, so I guess I might as well do it. I rise in opposition to HB 2370, HD 1. I read a lot of tax bills, but this one was particularly troublesome to me. What this bill does is makes partial payments to the Hawaii State Tax Collector for delinquent taxes be applied equally to interest, penalties and taxes. I think the introducer of the bill had good intentions, they wanted to help the taxpayers. But this kind of stuff, when it relates to taxes, is never simple. So let me make a few points.

"First and foremost, it's important to note that we're talking about a person who has not paid all of his taxes. Second, in order for the state to service, and we really want to service these delinquent taxpayers properly, there must be sufficient motivation for the taxpayer to come forward voluntarily. If the taxpayer comes forward voluntarily, then the state should afford the taxpayer an opportunity to allocate their payments in a matter that is most beneficial to the taxpayer.

"The most beneficial allocation will not necessarily be an equal allocation between interest, penalties and taxes. For example, if you look at the taxes that you owe and there's some trust fund liability, you may want to allocate your payment totally toward that tax. If your penalties are not already fully assessed, you may want to, again, go toward that tax or you lessen your penalties. You may want to allocate your payments toward interest, if you're a business you can deduct interest. If you're contemplating bankruptcy, you may want to look at the age of the tax and allocate your taxes appropriately to that.

"You have to look at the tax and the assessment to find out what the best allocation is for your payment. And there is a tax collection service that allows this. They're called the Internal Revenue Service. Revenue Procedure 2002-26 states, 'If additional taxes and penalties for one or more taxable payers have been assessed against the taxpayer, at the time the taxpayer voluntarily tenders a partial payment that is acceptable to the service and the taxpayer provides specific written directions to the application of that payment, the service will apply the payment in accordance with those directions.' That's how you help the taxpayer. That is the better alternative.

"Mr. Speaker, I would like to request that Rev Proc. 2002-26 be entered into the Journal along with my remarks. This bill, I know it's trying to help, but it's not very well thought out, and it's for those reasons I oppose this bill. Thank you."

Representative Choy submitted the following:

"Rev. Proc. 2002–26

SECTION 1. PURPOSE

The purpose of this revenue procedure is to update and restate the Internal Revenue Service's position regarding the application, by the Service, of a partial payment of tax, penalty, and interest for one or more taxable periods. This revenue procedure supersedes Rev. Rul. 73–304 (1973–2 C.B. 42); Rev. Rul. 73–305 (1973–2 C.B. 43); and Rev. Rul. 79–284 (1979–2 C.B. 83).

SECTION 2. SCOPE

This revenue procedure applies to all taxes under the Internal Revenue Code, except alcohol, tobacco, and firearms taxes and the harbor maintenance tax. For purposes of this revenue procedure, the term "penalty" includes any additional amount, addition to tax, or assessable penalty.

SECTION 3. PROCEDURE

.01 If additional taxes, penalty, and interest for one or more taxable periods have been assessed against a taxpayer (or have been mutually agreed to as to the amount and liability but are unassessed) at the time the taxpayer voluntarily tenders a partial payment that is accepted by the Service and the taxpayer provides specific written directions as to the application of the payment, the Service will apply the payment in accordance with those directions.

.02 If additional taxes, penalty, and interest for one or more taxable periods have been assessed against a taxpayer (or have been mutually agreed to as to the amount and liability but are unassessed) at the time the taxpayer voluntarily tenders a partial payment that is accepted by the Service and the taxpayer does not provide specific written directions as to the application of payment, the Service will apply the payment to periods in the order of priority that the Service determines will serve its best interest. The payment will be applied to satisfy the liability for successive periods in descending order of priority until the payment is absorbed. If the amount applied to a period is less than the liability for the period, the amount will be applied to tax, penalty, and interest, in that order, until the amount is absorbed.

.03 Payments made pursuant to the terms of offers in compromise (or offers in compromise and collateral agreements) that have been accepted by the Government in compromise of outstanding tax liabilities, in accordance with § 7122 of the Internal Revenue Code, will be applied as follows:

(1) If an offer in compromise and collateral agreement have been accepted by the Government in compromise of an outstanding liability and the offer in compromise and collateral agreement provide for the allocation of payments made pursuant thereto, payments made pursuant to the agreements will be applied by the Service in accordance with the terms of the agreements.

(2) In all other cases, the Service will apply payments, whether paid in installments or in a lump sum and whether paid pursuant to the offer or a collateral agreement, to periods in the order of priority that the Service determines will serve its best interest. The payment will be applied to satisfy the liability for successive periods in descending order of priority until the payment is absorbed. If the amount applied to a period is less than the liability for the period, the amount will be applied to tax, penalty, and interest, in that order, until the amount is absorbed.

.04 If any part of a payment is applied to interest under the rules set forth in this revenue procedure, the amount applied to interest is treated for purposes of § 163 of the Code as interest paid in the year in which the payment is made. Under § 163, interest paid or accrued in a taxable year may be deducted in calculating taxable income for the year except to the extent such interest is personal interest as defined in § 163(h) and § 1.163–9T(b)(2) of the Income Tax Regulations or is otherwise disallowed under applicable provisions of the Internal Revenue Code and Income Tax Regulations."

Representative Rhoads rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hashem rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, can you note me down as in opposition. The previous speaker from Manoa just swayed my vote."

Representative Jordan rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Choy be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. Mr. Speaker, before I continue I would like to borrow the screwdriver from the good Representative from Kauai over there because we have a tendency to screw things up when it comes to the taxes, and we just need an additional tool to help unscrew things. And this is a situation, Mr. Speaker, where we just need to add a broader diversity of tools to our taxpayers out there, to give them the opportunity to best address the situation.

"As was mentioned, those tools are available. There's no wrong or there's no harm with broadening the toolset that taxpayers may have to assist them in, especially given this time of year and particularly sensitive to the taxes that people have to pay. So, Mr. Speaker, this is just one of those additional tools that will allow the people of Hawaii to better address and meet the needs, as they see fit.

"So for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I'm definitely supportive of assisting our regular folks out there. Give them a few extra tools to help them out. For those reasons, I'm supportive."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition. A few comments. I concur with the previous speaker a lot, except this bill narrows the toolset. It takes away the screwdriver, Mr. Speaker, and leaves you with just the screw. Thank you very much."

Representative Fukumoto rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you. In support. I just want to briefly say that this measure actually came from one of the taxpayers that this is purported not to help, according to some of my colleagues. And he suggested that this would help him, in fact. I'd also like to note for the Members edification that a similar measure, the exact same measure actually, was passed out of the Senate in 2009, Senate Bill 76.

"In their committee report, the Ways & Means Committee notes that, 'Your Committee finds that the application of a partial payment to interest, penalties, and principal, in equal amounts, will alleviate the burden on taxpayers who are making these payments. Your Committee believes that the benefit to taxpayers is of particular importance during this economic crisis.'

"Mr. Speaker, while the state is not in the same economic crisis that it was in 2009, there are still many taxpayers that are trying to rebuild and to dig out from the burden that they sort of got covered in at that time, and they're still trying to make up some of those payments. This measure doesn't reduce the amount of taxes that they would owe, it simply helps them pay their debt faster by reducing the interest they will pay in the long run.

"That said, this measure is a work in progress. In subsequent drafts it may be wiser to consider some of the IRS changes that are not in congruence with our current law, and that might be a better way to go. It was raised by the Department of Taxation and I certainly want to see the Senate consider that perhaps in the future. But as I said, I do want to stress that the Senate did pass this in 2009 under the understanding that this would help taxpayers. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, just a quick rebuttal. Yes, often enough when it comes into taxes, we were often more often than not left with the screw and not the screwdriver, Mr. Speaker. But just as a quick lesson as we've learned today, Mr. Speaker, that federal law does supersede our state law, and as the good Representative from Manoa clearly pointed out, that we have an awesome tax service Agency, the IRS, to assist us. And their rules and the tools that they afford us still supersede whatever it is we do with the state, Mr. Speaker. So I think that the toolset that the IRS so kindly gives us every year, Mr. Speaker, is still intact and would still apply."

Representative Choy rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. First of all, there are no CPAs in the Senate. And second, I don't want my good friend from Laie to screw himself into the ground anymore, but we need to conform, and we don't conform to the Internal Revenue Service. Thank you."

Representative Har rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representatives Choy and McKelvey be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Kawakami rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representatives Choy and McKelvey be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Cullen rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representatives Choy and McKelvey be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 2370, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TAXATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 27 ayes to 23 noes, with Representatives Aquino, Awana, Carroll, Choy, Cullen, Hanohano, Har, Ichiyama, Ing, Ito, Jordan, Kawakami, McKelvey, Morikawa, Onishi, Oshiro, Say, Takayama, Takumi, Tokioka, Tsuji, Yamane and Yamashita voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2432, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2432, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Morikawa rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'd just like to declare a potential conflict. I have a deferred comp account. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Onishi rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, ruling on a conflict of interest. I also have a deferred comp account," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Hanohano rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Potential conflict of interest. I also have a deferred comp," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Takai rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, same request. I have a deferred comp plan. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Oshiro rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, potential conflict of interest. I also have a deferred comp plan. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Tokioka rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, same request. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 2432, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TAXATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2464, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2464, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 2464, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TAX CREDITS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

At 10:12 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 1719, HD 1
H.B. No. 1870, HD 1
H.B. No. 1893, HD 1
H.B. No. 2370, HD 1
H.B. No. 2432, HD 1
H.B. No. 2464, HD 1

H.B. No. 2507, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2507, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ward rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to the Marketplace Fairness Act, but I want to say that it's the 13th hour of our debate and I'm pleased to announce that there's been a negotiated settlement between the honorable Member from Manoa and myself. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Choy rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Choy's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with RESERVATIONS.

"This bill provides an alternative for the states that has not adopted the Streamline Sales Tax Agreement, should the Marketplace Fairness tax bill pass the United States Congress.

"My reservations lie as follows:

1. This bill is aspirational and premature. We do not know what the final act would look like as it goes through the markup process.

2. The federal bill does not recognize that Hawaii does not have a Sales Tax. I have sent suggested language to Senator Schatz for the markup of this bill.

3. In my opinion, it would be easier to overturn Quill vs. North Dakota as mentioned in the decision by the United States Supreme Court.

"It is for these reasons I stand with RESERVATIONS."

At 10:13 o'clock p.m., Representative Hashem requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 10:14 o'clock p.m.

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, H.B. No. 2507, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO MARKETPLACE FAIRNESS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 42 ayes to 8 noes, with Representatives Fale, Fukumoto, Johanson, Matsumoto, McDermott, McKelvey, Thielen and Ward voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2554, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2554, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Takayama rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"In opposition. Mr. Speaker, this bill paves the way for OHA to build two, possibly even more, residential towers in Kakaako Makai. While I fully support the $200 million settlement that OHA feels compelled to achieve through these means, I do not support this measure and the method that the settlement would be provided to OHA.

"I believe the Legislature was wise six years ago to enact a prohibition against residential developments in Kakaako Makai. I believe the reasons are as valid now as they were then. Residential developments will foreclose the opportunity for public enjoyment of one of the last open areas in Kakaako Makai, and I believe that with the proliferation of developments mauka of Ala Moana Boulevard, that it's all the more reason that we need to preserve whatever open space we have in Kakaako Makai.

"Therefore, I will oppose this measure and I hope that our rejection of this measure will enable more time and opportunity for the state and OHA to explore alternative means of reaching their financial settlement. Thank you very much."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'll be voting against this measure. I think back in 2006 we made the right policy call. I think this Body, as well as the Senate, to draw a line on Ala Moana Boulevard, makai, towards the ocean, no residential. At that time we were looking at, I think Alexander and Baldwin, A&B, was looking to develop several high rises on their parcels on the makai side of Ala Moana Boulevard.

"I think at that time, we were approached by a similar group of folks who wanted to preserve the open space for public purposes, public use, public enjoyment in perpetuity. They came with red shirts and they rallied around and they brought the community together, and I think we made the right decision at that time. It wasn't popular at that time, Mr. Speaker. Let me assure you that some of our friends who were involved in the construction industry as well as in the land development industry who were looking to develop their properties, as currently entitled, were very upset with what we were doing. It was very controversial back then. But even now, I think we made the right policy choice.

"My only reservations I do have, and I'll state that, is that this pertains to the Office on Hawaii Affairs. I can't speak for the trustees, but I know that in 2012 when I was here, I did sit down with some of the trustees and the key legal counsel to the Office of Hawaiian Affairs trustees. Whether or not they were sure that they wanted us to go ahead with the settlement as proposed by the Abercrombie Administration to allow for them to acquire those 30-some-odd acres in Kakaako, under the current regulatory scheme and under the current land use and under the current HCDA jurisdiction rules and regulations, knowing the limitations that were opposed upon those lands back in 2006. And they assured me that no, they wanted us to move this bill through quickly or the settlement quickly and not allow for further time and discussion in a conference committee, but to move it out. The effective date was so called, clean.

"And I repeatedly asked them that, I repeatedly asked them that, if they wanted to have more time in the legislative session, so that they could have those discussions regarding the entitlements, what could or could not be done. And repeatedly, repeatedly they came to me saying, 'No, Representative Oshiro. It's fine. Please help us. We want to move forward with this settlement. It's so important to our people, our beneficiaries.' So with those assurances, I supported that settlement.

"But before that, Mr. Speaker, in 2006, again, we made the right policy call. That for all of the people of Hawaii, we would keep the last remaining shoreline in Honolulu proper between the harbor area, all the way out to Magic Island, to Waikiki, Keehi, for the people of Hawaii to enjoy.

"There is a date of July 1, 2030, and so there might be an opportunity as alluded to by the prior speaker to maybe have the Office of Hawaiian Affairs come back in for some other kind of accommodation. Given what they know today and what we know today, regarding what can and cannot be done with those lands, and the fiduciary duty that the trustees have to their beneficiaries. Thank you."

Representative Kobayashi rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'm opposed to this. I agree with the previous speakers that we, at the Legislature, have a fiduciary responsibility, but also we have many other responsibilities that go far beyond fiduciary, and the burden of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs is to settle their own fiduciary responsibilities, perhaps more narrowly than we do. We should look to the long term future and seek the wellbeing of all the citizens of Hawaii. Thank you."

Representative Say rose in opposition to the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to HB 2554, HD 1 relating to Hawaii Community Development Authority. This measure will grant OHA to conduct public hearings on lands controlled by OHA and allow for housing to occur in Kakaako Makai lands.

"In 2006 the Legislature passed ACT 317 to prohibit any residential housing in the makai/ocean side of Ala Moana Boulevard.

"Chapter 206 E –Prohibitions. Anything contained in this chapter to the contrary notwithstanding, the authority is prohibited from:

(1) Selling or otherwise assigning the fee simple interest in any lands in the Kakaako community development district to which the authority in its corporate capacity holds title, except with respect to:

(A) Utility easements;
(B) Remnants as defined in section 171-52;
(C) Grants to any state or county department or agency; or
(D) Private entities for purposes of any easement, roadway, or infrastructure improvements; or

(2) Approving any plan or proposal for any residential development in that portion of the Kakaako community development district makai of Ala Moana boulevard and between Kewalo Basin and the foreign trade zone.

"And so with the support of local grassroots organizations such as 'Save Kakaako' I am opposed to repealing ACT 317 and any proposed housing."

Representative Tokioka rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mahalo ho'omalu 'ōlelo. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Kako'o, in support. It's only because when this was negotiated in 2012, I wasn't here in 2006, so I didn't know what was settled between the Senate and the House being that there was no residential, in that Kakaako Makai. And when this issue was negotiated, I had the visit from our kia'āina, our Governor. Nothing was said about no development in Kakaako Makai. Had visits from the AG's Office, nothing mentioned about the restrictions there in Kakaako Makai.

"Also, the attorneys that were involved, they didn't divulge all of this information. It was after the fact when the bill got passed, then the Senate had a bill for entitlements. And already in the House we had passed out the bill in the agreement of the $200 million. And I kept asking the questions to these people that came to ask me for their support, because my na'au told me it was a bad deal. It wasn't in the best interest for all of our beneficiaries, especially when I have a lot of beneficiaries on other islands, Hawaii Island, Moku o Keawe, Maui, Piilani, Kanaloa, Kahoolawe, Lanai, Molokai, Kauai, and some Niihau, since they do pay taxes too and they are beneficiaries, because most of the people living there are of the blood.

"So this issue that comes up now, it comes up after the fact and it presents a really troubling issue right now, especially for me as a native Hawaiian. And trying to make sure our people, our native Hawaiians, are having their interests served for the betterment of all Hawaiians and all of the people of the State of Hawaii. Because it still has been, like you said, discussed in 2006, and then 2012 we have the new Governor, the new kia'āina it's presently now, and he's trying to make a statement of helping Hawaiians, and the former kia'āina also did the same thing by moving the DHHL new building.

"For me, even if I do support it, it's only because this is the vehicle we have to work with, and hopefully we will be able to fix it through a better negotiation and have a better position for native Hawaiians to look forward to a better future, because I know for a fact the lands are not worth $200 million.

"Those were the questions that I did ask a lot of the people that came to see me. And they all knew from the beginning that I wasn't on board with this, because I am the true believer of who I am, and I have a lot of pilina and relationships with our 'āina, na po'e, our people, and the waiwai 'o Hawaii, and the resources of Hawaii.

"So, I still stand in support, however, hopefully this vehicle can be the negotiating vehicle that will find that pane mai, the solution, for the betterment of our Hawaiian people. Mahalo."

Representative Ing rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In support. I want to adopt the words of the previous speaker. Thank you. I also want to note that the concerns raised by the Representative from Pearl City I think are very valid. If residential development is not in the desire of the community, then yes, this negotiation comes back on the table and maybe Hawaiians can finally get what they were promised in a full $200 million settlement, which may be possible given the state's fiscal situation. Thank you."

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. Although this measure is very broad currently as this is drafted, there is another measure that has come over to the House from the Senate, Senate Bill 3122, which kind of hones it down to maybe three parcels. And I think that's something that's a little bit more palatable. Personally, I think I'm more palatable to maybe just two parcels. But that's for a longer discussion.

"Mr. Speaker, currently this Body only gives OHA the monies from the 20 percent revenues driven off of public lands, and that's $15.1 million a year, which hasn't been changed in many years. And it was just arbitrarily picked as that figure many, many moons ago. And that's the only money they have to operate. Now, OHA provides grants, OHA provides support, OHA provides training. OHA has just started building Kana'iolowalu, which is very controversial in some people's minds. But you've got to understand, this is the only entity that we have right now.

"Personally, I'm not a beneficiary of OHA, although OHA does provide benefits to non-Hawaiians, when you're talking about providing educational components or many activities in many of our communities. You heard the trustees come here and talk about their new priorities regarding native Hawaiian health and the justice reinvestment programs. So, I am very open. We as a Body allowed them to have these properties. I know they're going to move forward with commercial development over there. And as we've been saying all day long, how do we make it work? We need residential components to make commercial work also.

"This is not the end all, be all. This currently has a 2030 date on here. That's why I'm supporting it. Again, the mission of our state, we are supposed to be taking care of the native host culture and the populace. Many people tend to forget that. We're holding their lands, and we're holding their money. And unfortunately, I feel we're holding them hostage. Those are harsh words, Mr. Speaker. But I truly believe we need to start paying attention to that.

"And I know there were agreements prior to me coming here. There were many discussions when this agreement happened in 2012. There were also discussions on the Senate side to allow some residential development over there. And everybody said put that on the side because we didn't want to lose the deal. Because this is finally something that had been negotiated upon. Mr. Speaker, I could probably talk on this all evening. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Evans rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise with slight reservations. When I met with the Office of Hawaiian Affairs they did point out something that I wanted to bring to the attention of my fellow colleagues. That was in 2012, Senate Bill 2783 that was the vehicle to move forward the transfer of the land located in Kakaako Makai to the Office of Hawaiian Affairs as a settlement.

"In it, in the standing committee report, it says, 'The property identified in this measure is virtually contiguous, suited for master planning, and located in an area of Honolulu that is already experiencing significant redevelopment. Your Committees recognize the value of these attributes and believe that property values could be enhanced by certain entitlements that, while not specifically provided for in this measure, could be obtained at a future date.'

"The reason I believe we're here today is because it was implied that they would come to get entitlements at a future date. My understanding is they hired a consultant to do a master plan of that land, and they came back and said for you to get the full $200 million value worth of the land, you will have to go get entitlements, because as it is today, it wouldn't be worth $200 million without the entitlements. So I believe what they're doing is the right thing.

"However, having said that, just like this says, you master plan, you think about it, you get community input, you get input from people about what's the right thing to do. I was actually kind of surprised that they felt residential development would be the highest and best use. Clearly, there might be a lot of money for office buildings. I suggested that if you were to look at other buildings around the United States you could have retail, and you could service the Hawaiian community with a lot of services that are needed, office space that's needed, programs that might be needed, and then maybe you do residential on top of it. But the thing is, I still was kind of surprised that they were totally focused on residential when they spoke to me.

"But having said that, I do think that the Legislature, when we passed the measure that eventually became law, we gave the impression that they would be coming back for entitlement. So I wanted to point it out. Thank you."

Representative Souki rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you very much. I fully support the measure. I believe we have a fiduciary responsibility. However, giving you a little history on this, during my tenure as Speaker in the '90s, we did provide a settlement with OHA then for approximately $115 million, and one of the conditions was, of course, then the 20 percent would cease. However, we did provide approximately $15 million a year in spite of the legislation being repealed.

"Now they have come across and there has been agreement again with the respective parties, the Governor and the Legislature, to provide additional settlement and revenues, approximately $200 million. So when we look at the properties, they may have fallen short in their negotiation, but I still believe that we have a fiduciary responsibility to make that $200 million good. Thank you very much."

Representative Carroll rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with some slight reservations. If I could have permission to insert comments, and also additional comments, if I may speak. You know I was here since 2005, so I was here when the people came and asked that no development happen on the makai side. And as a Hawaiian, you don't want to see development occur, especially on the ocean side. So I did support no development.

"Now here we are today, fast forward. I supported OHA in 2012 in this $200 million settlement. Part of that discussion was they were supposed to do their due diligence. And I understand that we do support the host culture. And I have a lot of respect for the Chair of our Hawaiian Affairs Committee because I hear her. As a former Chair of Hawaiian Affairs, you want to support the host culture. You're passionate about everything that comes forward and you try to raise all of the issues that may have come up 30 plus years before that.

"And so, I understand what she's saying is that she supports this, and I support it too because we do have a fiduciary responsibility, but if we can move this issue forward and continue the discussion and hopefully we can find that balance, so that through the renegotiation, through looking at policy, that we could do the right thing.

"Also, the Chair of Water & Land, I also respect the comments that she made in regards to coming back for entitlements. Yes, without the entitlements, that value doesn't go up. So, like her, I also felt when supporting OHA in this settlement that they were coming back as well.

"So I just wanted to say that today and also let you know that it's not something that is easy, but just think of it. If we could find that balance, how we can have that win-win situation so that we all can enjoy the makai but also fulfill our fiduciary responsibility to the host culture, we could live in a better place in Hawaii. Thank you."

Representative Carroll's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I am in support of the intent of HB 2554, HD 1, which is to increase available housing in the Kaka'ako area. However, I have reservations about the possible effects of this bill. Allowing the Hawaii Community Development Authority (HCDA) to approve residential development on lands owned by the Office of Hawaiian Affairs (OHA), specifically the Kaka'ako Makai area, is not in tune with the interests of the native Hawaiian community. OHA is supposed to utilize ceded lands for the betterment of the native Hawaiian community. I also should add that, the ceded land controlled by OHA is being held in trust for the native Hawaiian people and for OHA to go against this dynamic would be contrary to its mission.

"My fear is that this measure will not only negatively impact the native Hawaiian community in the Kaka'ako area, but the entire native Hawaiian community as a whole, resulting in more financial losses for native Hawaiians due to further mismanagement of crown lands.

"There is a reason for the 2006 prohibition of residential development in Kaka'ako Makai. It is not just because of the intense community opposition, it also has a lot to do with the fact that it is one of the last open public spaces along the south shore and it is for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, that I have reservations in regards to this measure.

"Mr. Speaker and distinguished Members of this Body, I urge everyone to please take careful consideration of this bill and to note my reservations on HB 2554. Thank you."

Representative Awana rose in support of the measure and asked that the remarks of Representatives Carroll, Hanohano and Souki be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. Minor, minor reservations, and I'll put it this way, the way I put it in the Finance Committee. The spirit of the moment, when it was settled in 2012 with the $200 million, there were many, many people in this very room who were there at the time who felt, let's put a residential entitlement in there already.

"So, I really appreciate the Representative from Waimea reminding us that it actually went into the committee report, because there was a real spirit of let's do it, to really make good on the $200 million. In fact, even maybe with a little bit of a tipping point on top of that.

"So, Mr. Speaker, this is nothing new, but it's something that I think for the sake of a clean bill, the $200 million never had the entitlements in it. But the intention, as was stated, was clearly there, so there shouldn't be any surprises on this Floor. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, thank you. In support. Just quickly. Considering the way the property, why and how the property was transferred, it seems to me like OHA, it just seems unfortunate that we not be giving, it's almost not a point of us giving them anything. It seems to me their right would be to do more or less what they wanted to it unless it had some seriously deleterious effect on surrounding properties. But it seems like a lot of latitude would be in their power as it stands now. Thanks."

Representative Oshiro rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I just want a couple of things. I ask permission to submit further written comments. But more important, to have the words of the Chair of the Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs Committee as my very own. She's a dear friend, and I heard her, and we've had discussions about this important measure.

"Still in opposition. Let me explain a little bit. Given what's going on with other bills regarding the Hawaii Community Development Authority, which is also referenced in this same bill here. Whatever we do with the other bills, and what we do with this bill, we can't escape the fact that they're tied together. We're talking about the authority here and the jurisdiction that currently exists. The only way you can give the Office of Hawaii Affairs free and clear entitlements, as any other land owner in the area, would be to repeal those provisions that currently restrict what can be done. And that's what we did back in 2006. So let's keep that in mind.

"But I understand the cries for justice, and I understand the cries of how we can maybe remediate what was done two years ago in 2012 and try and find some common ground with those who came in 2006 and asked us to set the policy regarding makai, in space for all people on the waterfront, the last remaining waterfront in Honolulu. And I hear it loud and clear.

"I think the Representative from Hana, and I also adopt her words as my own, expressed the conflict I think we have, if you really think about it, a very difficult one. It's not easy. But I rely upon the Chair of Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs to provide further guidance as this bill goes over to the Senate, and maybe as she examines the content of Senate Bill 3122. I think based upon those assurances, I'll be going with reservations. I'll go reservations. I have that trust and confidence in her. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this bill, but with strong reservations. The bill, as presently drafted, would require the Office of Hawaiian Affairs (OHA) to conduct a public hearing on any plan or proposal for any residential development in Kakaako on lands owned by OHA prior to submission of the plan or proposal to the Hawaii Community Development Authority (HCDA).

"At issue are some 10 parcels situated in Kakaako Makai that were received by OHA from the state as part of the 2012 settlement on revenues owed to OHA that were generated from the state's use of ceded lands.

"Currently, HCDA is prohibited from approving any plan or proposal for any residential development in that portion of the Kakaako Community Development District makai of Ala Moana Boulevard and between Kewalo Basin and the foreign trade zone pursuant to Section 206E-31.5, Hawaii Revised Statutes. The 10 parcels currently transferred to the OHA are located makai of Ala Moana Boulevard and between Kewalo Basin and the foreign trade zone.

"In the mid 2000s, the people of this state learned that Alexander and Baldwin (A&B) proposed the development of lands situated in Kakaako makai of Ala Moana Boulevard between Kewalo Basin and the Foreign Trade Zone. In addition to residential high rises, A&B planned commercial development to be incorporated with the recently constructed Kakaako park to build a modern urban community for the 21st century. This was in response to a Request for Proposal issued by the HCDA.

"The public was outraged and this Legislature acted by approving House Bill No. 2555, Conference Draft 1, which was enacted as Act 317, Session Laws of Hawaii 2006. Among other things, this law prohibited the Hawaii Community Development Authority from approving any plan or residential development makai of Ala Moana Boulevard between Kewalo Basin and the Foreign Trade Zone.

"At the time, your Committee on Water, Land, and Ocean Resources issued the following findings in Standing Committee Report No. 572-06:

"Your Committee recognizes the importance of proper planning and development of the [Kakaako] District. Reviewing the historical development of the District, your Committee understands the perception that Kakaako Makai and Kakaako Mauka are separate areas; however, they are not separate, but make up the entirety of the District where people work, live, learn, and play. Kakaako Mauka with its existing high rise residential projects was designed to be the residential portion of the District, and Kakaako Makai was designed to be the learning and playing area of the District with open space and learning facilities, like parks and the University of Hawaii medical school.

"Your Committee also recognizes the importance of protecting our unique and fragile environment and to properly manage our natural resources to encourage the beneficial use and enjoyment by our residents.

"Further, your Committee recognizes the need for additional housing. Your Committee understands that the sale of leasehold residential projects will generate funds for the State that can be used to further develop the District and other public purposes, such as affordable housing within and outside of the District. Some of your Committee members harbor a strong belief that the State should utilize more of its lands to generate funds for such public purposes while still providing for required amenities including parks and open space. Further, residents living in Kakaako Makai may energize the area during the evening hours and contribute to the security of the area."

"These same findings are true today as they were eight years ago. And today, we face the same conundrum that we faced eight years ago – what do we do with Kakaako Makai?

"And exacerbating the complexity of the problem, OHA may have a fiduciary responsibility to seek the highest and best use of its resources for the betterment of native Hawaiians. Wouldn't residential development be the highest and best use of their Kakaako Makai properties?

"At some point, this Legislature will need to decide whether to allow HCDA to permit residential development in Kakaako Makai, and to the extent that this bill will serve as a vehicle for more discussion, I am in support. But as noted in his remarks on the 'Green Belt' envisioned by Governor Waihee in the 1980s, Speaker Emeritus is correct to remind us that we all agreed in 2005 that the area known as Kakaako Makai would be preserved from residential development. And yes, when OHA agreed to the settlement with the state in 2012, they knew that the lands in Kakaako Makai were prohibited from developing residential projects. But how else would OHA be able to realistically generate sufficient income from the property to meet its fiduciary responsibilities?

"Mr. Speaker, I am very much torn by this bill. I have always supported the public's access to our shorelines, and as an avid surfer I know firsthand how important Kakaako Makai is as a recreational area for all our people. But I also see the plight of native Hawaiians and how much good could come from OHA fully utilizing these parcels to fund desperately needed programs.

"I was prepared to vote no on this bill, but what caused me to vote yes with serious reservations was the remarks from my colleague the Chair of your Committee on Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs. She assured us all that there is still time to forge consensus on this issue in a manner that honors not only native Hawaiians, but all of our citizens. On such a divisive issue, it is consensus and leadership that is needed.

"Lastly, I would like to mention for the record the concerns raised by the Attorney General on whether this bill would constitute a 'special' bill and raise the 'superferry' specter once again. It is my hope that should a bill be approved, that extra care is given to ensuring that the measure pass constitutional muster and not be subject to collateral attack.

"For these reasons, I will this day be voting with reservations. However, as I was an active House participant in both 2006 and 2012 Sessions, I have many questions that need honest and truthful answers, and will reserve my final judgment on this important bill."

Representative Say rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in opposition still. But let me just share with the Members of this House, Mr. Speaker, the historical perspective of how we came about preventing residential. The authority, with the consent of the previous Governor, was given the opportunity to develop the makai lands for residential. I believe in their request for proposals, they had two or three major developers who are interested. And in the end, in the end it was one of our local companies here that won that particular bid or project.

"For the Members of the House, this is totally different. Because why? On the makai side it was public lands. On the mauka side, a great deal of it is private lands. So, in 2006 the Save Kewalo organization came out in force saying, 'No development on the makai side.' And with the Legislature here listening to the groups and organizations who opposed the residential, the State Legislature agreed.

"The concern I have, Mr. Speaker, is that in the provisions of the bill in its original draft was just to have more community hearings or meetings first. But more importantly I get scared, because in the end if there is a provision for residential, what type of residential now? This afternoon I've been fighting for the low and moderate income. Will the Office of Hawaiian Affairs develop and build residential for low and moderate? You will not get the highest and best use doing a project for low and moderate income or rentals. Think about it.

"At the Committee hearing I had to state for the record. I truly believe in the State Supreme Court decision in PASH, Public Access Shoreline of Hawaii, where all of us and the future generations will have the opportunity and access to our shorelines. I recall Governor Waihee when he pushed his green belt. The green belt was the shorelines from Ala Moana Park to Kewalo to Kakaako. I'm very proud of that vision, Mr. Speaker. And that's why the Legislature took it upon themselves in 2006 to stop the residential.

"That's it. Okay, I know everyone's tired, but I'm just giving you folks a historical perspective of what happened. But in the meantime, I truly hope that in the end the conference draft will be something that will be a win-win, but more importantly a win-win for the Hawaiian community and the general public at large also. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, H.B. No. 2554, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HAWAII COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY," passed Third Reading by a vote of 42 ayes to 8 noes, with Representatives Belatti, Choy, Kobayashi, McKelvey, Ohno, Say, Takai and Takayama voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2135, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2135, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Choy rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Choy's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, with STRONG RESERVATIONS on HB 2135, HD 1, which makes our tax system conform to the streamlined sales tax agreement.

"My reservation is not on the concept of collecting taxes on internet sales, it is about the method of collection.

"Approximately 24 states that impose a sales tax have joined this initiative. It has had dismal results. The last statistics I read, showed a collection of about $300 million over a two year period. That's about $6 million per state per year.

"Now you might say $6 million is better than a poke in the eye. But here in Hawaii we have a problem; the problem is we don't have a sales tax. Mr. Speaker, a sales tax is imposed upon the buyer as an ad valorem tax. We have a General Excise Tax that is imposed upon the business.

"Now the simple analysis could be let's change 'um, let's change to a sales tax. And if that is the approach I could go along with it.

"If some brave soul in this Chamber is willing to explain to the people that our sales tax is now 11 or 12 percent and we are doing away with our 4 percent General Excise Tax. I think we would have a bigger revolt than not letting the people vote.

"If we change our General Excise Tax to a sales tax scheme then, of course, we should join the streamlined sales tax project. If we don't, the state tax department is saying that it will cost 10-15 million dollars to implement the streamline sales tax agreement.

"But Mr. Speaker, what this bill does is not change the GET to a sales tax, what it does is disguise the GET to make it look like a sales tax.

"So how hard is this to do, Mr. Speaker, look at this bill it is 158 pages long. And I did not go through every line to see if it was written correctly, I hope the introducers did.

"The bottom line is this taxing scheme will not work for a state that does not have a sales tax.

"I would like to insert the testimony of Tax Bill Service of the Tax Foundation of Hawaii which details the complexities of this bill.

"I would also like to shout out to Brother Lowell Kalapa. I really miss you!

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

TAXBILLSERVICE

126 Queen Street, Suite 304 TAX FOUNDATION OF HAWAII Honolulu, Hawaii 96813 Tel. 536-4587

SUBJECT: MISCELLANEOUS, Streamlined sales and use tax

BILL NUMBER: HB 2135

INTRODUCED BY: Mizuno

BRIEF SUMMARY: Adds a new chapter to the law to set out sections of HRS chapter 237 which establish transactions subject to the 0.5% general excise tax rate.

Adds a new chapter to the law to set out sections of HRS chapter 238 which establish transactions subject to the 0.5% use tax rate.

Adds a new chapter to the law to set out sections of HRS chapter 237 which establish transactions subject to the 0.15% general excise tax rate. The measure delineates provisions governing commissioned sellers of insurance to replace references to agents, general agents, subagents, or solicitors with the term "insurance producers."

Adds several new sections to HRS chapter 237 to establish sourcing rules to determine when a product or service is taxed, including telecommunication services. The measure delineates provisions defining "direct mail" and how the sourcing of direct mail transactions will be ascertained.

Adds a new section to HRS chapter 237 to allow a seller to take a deduction from taxable sales for bad debts.

Adds several sections to HRS chapter 255D to establish provisions relating to the determination of the proper general excise or use tax rates between different tax jurisdictions, rounding on tax computations, amnesty for registered sellers who pay, collect, or remit general excise or use taxes in accordance with the terms of the streamlined sales and use tax agreement, tax rate changes by a county, certified service provider, confidentiality of records, liability for uncollected tax and rate changes, and customer refund procedures.

Amends HRS sections 237-8.6 and 238.2.6 to prohibit a county to conduct an independent audit of sellers registered under the streamlined sales and use tax agreement.

Amends HRS section 237-24.3 to redefine the term "prosthetic device."

Establishes a committee to oversee the department of taxation's implementation, administration, and compliance of the streamlined sales and use tax agreement. The committee shall be administratively attached to the department of taxation. Requires the committee to hold meetings to carry out this act and serve as the state's official delegation to the streamlined sales and use tax governing board when establishing the state's criteria for compliance.

Permits the department of taxation to seek technical assistance with legal professionals that have a background and practice in taxation. The legislative reference bureau shall assist the department of taxation or contractor in drafting any legislation.

This act shall take effect when the state becomes a party to the streamlined sales and use tax agreement; provided that: the amendments made to HRS section 237-24 by this act shall not be repealed when that section is reenacted on December 31, 2018, by Act 70, SLH 2009, as amended by Act 164, SLH 2013.

EFFECTIVE DATE: Upon approval as noted in the measure

STAFF COMMENTS: The Streamlined Sales Tax Project's (SSTP) Model Agreement and Act is a project undertaken with other states that is intended to simplify sales and use tax administration as it relates to multiple sales and use tax rates, definitions, and taxing jurisdictions.

Goals of the project include the establishment of a single sales tax rate per state, uniform definitions of sales and use tax terms, requiring states to administer any sales and use taxes, and a central electronic registration system to allow a seller to register to collect and remit sales and use taxes for all states.

At the national level, there appears to be a number of difficulties in the negotiations and unanimous agreement is far from reality. Before jumping on the bandwagon, lawmakers should exercise care because Hawaii does not have a sales tax as found in other states. Our general excise tax, while viewed by some as comparable to a sales tax, actually is a far cry from the retail sales tax found on the mainland.

The bill, as presently drafted, attempts to turn Hawaii's gross receipts tax imposed for the privilege of doing business in Hawaii into a retail sales tax with respect to where the tax is imposed. Much of the bill is devoted to separating the wholesale rate tax from the retail rate tax and then reworking where the tax is applied otherwise known as "sourcing." The general excise tax, as we know it today, would be radically changed to accommodate the format adopted by the SSTP.

What is not evident in the measure is that by participating in the SSTP, Hawaii businesses will be required to collect the sales taxes of other states when purchases are made by residents of that state. The cost of collecting, accounting, and remitting those taxes will add even more overhead costs to operating a business in Hawaii. So why is there such enthusiasm on the part of the legislature to participate in the SSTP? Lawmakers have been promised hundreds of millions of dollars that could be had if the state would just participate in the project. The suggestion came to the 2001-2003 Tax Review Commission on the recommendation of their consultant who was already an advocate of the project.

If Hawaii businesses have to operate in a different mode relating to collecting and remitting sales taxes, will lawmakers compensate businesses for undertaking the collection of other states' retail sales taxes? Indeed, the law being proposed in this measure is a hybrid of the current general excise tax law and a retail sales tax. It retains the two-tiered wholesale/retail system and keeps the tax on services as well as on business-to-business transactions. So the measure attempts to have the best of both worlds – to force other states to collect our general excise tax while retaining the pyramiding features of the general excise tax. This is a major change in the state's largest source of general fund revenues.

Care should be taken in making this transition as it could alter not only the past interpretation of the general excise tax, but it may also have a major impact on the revenue producing capacity of the tax.

One of the key issues still under discussion among the members who have already signed on is "where" does the sale occur. For a number of the larger states like California, Illinois, and Texas that manufacture goods shipped to other states, the sourcing rules they favor are "origin" based rules, that is the tax that is imposed at the place from which the goods are shipped and not where the purchaser takes possession. Hawaii uses "destination sourcing" providing for taxation at the address to which the goods are delivered. It is this destination rule that causes the most problems for businesses as they must now deal with a plethora of rates depending on the number of states from which they receive orders. The SSTP theoretically sets up a mechanism to deal with those rates.

Again, a main area of concern is whether the states can afford the streamlined system itself. Given the promises that have been made and not delivered upon such as the software that is supposed to facilitate the collection and remittance of the various states' sales taxes, to the promise to pay the cost of funding the administrative structure of the governing board, it appears that the devil will be in the details. This proposal needs more discussion in the interim and further clarification as well as a discussion with taxpayers who must carry out the duty of the actual collection.

Not surprisingly, this is what the 2005-2007 Tax Review Commission recommended, that until the member states of the SSTP agreement come to a definitive conclusion, it is premature for Hawaii to jump on board.

The 2005 legislature had approved a measure to direct the department of taxation to identify issues that need to be resolved to effectuate the orderly enactment and operation of a streamlined sales and use tax based on the Streamlined Sales Tax Project's Model Agreement and Act. The act also repealed the streamlined sales and use tax advisory committee council which was to consult with the department of taxation on the implementation of the streamlined sales and use tax agreement in Hawaii. When this measure was sent to the governor, the governor vetoed it due to the repeal of the advisory council, unrealistic deadlines in the measure, and concerns of allowing a third party to access confidential tax return information. A special session of the legislature overrode the governor's veto and the measure passed as Act 3 of the Special Session of 2005.

In 2006 a bill that would adopt the streamlined sales tax agreement was introduced and nearly passed the legislature but for a small glitch in the closing moments of the session. This, despite the fact that the State Auditor had a consultant assess the revenue potential of participating in the project. Instead of the hundreds of millions of dollars the promoters of the project had promised, the consultant estimated that Hawaii would benefit at the very least by about $10 million and at the most $50 million.

At the same time, when the department of taxation was asked what it estimated it would cost the department to implement the project for Hawaii, the price tag was set at $15 million. Thus, it came as no surprise that when the Tax Review Commission looked at the issue, the decision was a no-brainer: Hawaii would stand to gain about $10 million in revenue, but it would cost the state $15 million to implement. And that doesn't include the cost to businesses in Hawaii that would be required to collect the sales taxes of other states.

So the Commission's advice to the legislature and administration was to wait. In its recommendation it was noted that "the largest states (by economic size) have failed to sign onto the project, jeopardizing the chances of becoming an effective vehicle for collecting the Use Tax. Until the Project shows greater promise of producing results, it is premature for Hawaii to incur the expense to join it."

The SSTP was formed in reaction to the 1992 case, Quill Corp. v. North Dakota, where the U.S. Supreme Court reaffirmed that the power of states to impose taxes on interstate commerce is limited by a "physical presence rule." As a result, national mail order sellers with no physical presence in Hawaii may sell to Hawaii customers without worrying about the Hawaii general excise tax. In such a situation the customer is legally required to pay use tax, but individuals with relatively small purchases almost never pay the tax – not only in Hawaii but in other states that impose a use tax.

The SSTP is a working group of revenue officials and experts with the stated purpose of bringing simplicity and uniformity to sales taxes in the United States. (The governance structure raises some questions of democratic accountability and whether SSTP receives or seeks genuine public input.) Member states must adopt reforms to align their tax codes with the SSTP. The hope is that simple and uniform sales tax statutes will allow the collection of interstate sales taxes without placing burdens on interstate commerce. If approved by the U.S. Congress, the SSTP's rules could displace the physical presence rules in Quill.

Simplicity and uniformity are both important goals, but the SSTP has, at best, mixed success in achieving them. There are nearly 8,000 sales taxing jurisdictions in the United States, each with their own bases and rates, and the enormous complexity involved in tracking borders and changes is a huge stumbling block to state efforts to impose taxes on online sales.

While the SSTP has made some progress on uniformity (they have succeeded, for instance, in a single accepted definition of "candy" – something everyone defined differently before), the SSTP appears to be giving up the effort on simplicity. At their New Orleans meeting in July 2008, for instance, the SSTP panel was asked if any effort was being made to reduce the number of sales taxing jurisdictions, and/or to align them with 5-digit zip codes. "No and no" were the short, but honest, answers.

Rather than requiring that states simplify before reaching out beyond their borders to tax out-of-state companies, the SSTP seems content to let states continue the status quo. One panelist noted that far from requiring substantial reforms, "States still get to do 99.9% of what they want to do" under the SSTP agreement. This demonstrates either disingenuousness or how little the SSTP recognizes that many existing sales taxes are in need of substantial reform in order to make meaningful progress toward uniformity and simplicity.

The SSTP already abandoned the notion of taxing like transactions alike when they adopted "destination sourcing" for online sales, but permitted states to adopt "origin sourcing" for intrastate sales. This, in effect, requires Internet companies to collect sales taxes based on where their customer is located, but allows brick-and-mortar stores to collect sales taxes based on where the store is located. In this way the SSTP prevents a level playing field between Internet businesses and brick-and-mortar businesses.

Coupled with the SSTP's non-worry about reducing the number of jurisdictions (they spoke optimistically of providing maps of sales tax jurisdictions, having rejected even aligning jurisdictions with 9-digit zip codes), full implementation of the SSTP, at this time, without serious reforms, could result in a serious and inequitable burden on e-commerce.

Another recent example involves clothing taxes. The SSTP requires that all states have a uniform definition of clothing, and tax all of it (or none of it) at the same rate. Minnesota did so, but then imposed a "separate" fur tax on fur sales. Rather than recognizing this as an end-run around tax uniformity, the SSTP governing body upheld Minnesota's action.

The SSTP is attempting to persuade Congress to permit SSTP member states to begin collecting sales taxes on online purchases, premised on the belief that the SSTP's simplification and uniformity mission has been accomplished. The SSTP has not accomplished its mission. The SSTP should look again at serious simplification efforts before declaring itself a success and seeking to expand state taxing power.

States should be willing to adopt uniform definitions worked out by the SSTP so as to reduce transaction costs between state statutes. However, the ability of any state to collect sales tax on online transactions is wholly dependent on the willingness of other states to simplify their laws and adopt uniform definitions as well. It is also dependent on the creation of a working alternative to the physical presence standard that provides certainty and prevents multiple taxation. Neither the wholesale adoption nationwide of uniform sales tax statutes, nor the development of a working alternative that provides the certainty needed for long-term investment, are likely in the foreseeable future.

For these reasons, lawmakers and other states should understand that SSTP membership does not lead to a sudden influx of free tax money. The SSTP's goals are good ones, but their success is mixed at best, and whatever effect it has will not be seen in the short-term.

A few years ago, a similar measure was vetoed by the governor. In her veto message, she stated that the "bill is objectionable because it would abdicate the authority of the state to establish, administer, and change its general excise tax structure; grants amnesty to certain taxpayers, absolving them of the requirement to pay taxes due the state, and treats out-of-state vendors more favorably than in-state vendors." She further stated that in order to comply with the Streamline Sales and Use Tax Model Agreement and Act (SSUTA), the state and each county would have to establish a single tax rate and once the state participates in the SSUTA, the state must certify to a national governing board that the state's law complies with the SSUTA and may relinquish control over the state's ability to determine its own tax revenue collections. The governor also had concerns about the provision of the SSUTA requiring the state to pay out-of-state vendors for collecting Hawaii taxes since the taxes the state would be receiving would be reduced by the collection fee paid to the out-of-state vendor, thereby giving out-of-state vendors an unfair advantage since local businesses are not compensated for collecting and paying required taxes.

Finally, the most recent Tax Review Commission (2010-2013) concurred with its consultant, Dr. William Fox, that enactment of federal legislation is the only viable means to provide states to collect on remote sales. Thus, it recommended that the "state urge the Congressional delegation to support and enact federal legislation to address" the litigation and "address the 'nexus' question would allow states to tax e-commerce sales and collect needed revenue."

Digested 2/18/14

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Opposition, Mr. Speaker. I just want to clarify, although I'm a fan of nexus, I'm not a fan of this. So just, boo. Thank you very much."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition and brief comments because I didn't get to speak last time. I just wanted to say, we've heard a lot about businesses supporting this bill, but it's because they're desperate for anything that will help them survive better in the state's unfriendly business climate. But collecting a tax on internet purchases isn't going to make them more competitive.

"People don't generally purchase online just to avoid paying taxes. People are purchasing online either due to an extraordinary difference in price that won't be compensated for by the application of a GET, or because they're looking for a wide selection of goods, which because we live in an island state can't be matched in brick and mortar stores just due to basic economics.

"If we want to help businesses, we need real changes. To argue that applying a GET to internet purchases will somehow keep Price Busters and other businesses in our state solvent is just giving false hope to consumers and business owners. So to continue to claim that we're doing this to help business would be incorrect and is misleading. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Yamashita rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, H.B. No. 2135, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TAXATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 41 ayes to 9 noes, with Representatives Evans, Fale, Fukumoto, Johanson, Matsumoto, McDermott, McKelvey, Thielen and Ward voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 2000, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 2000, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, H.B. No. 2000, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TAX RELIEF," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

H.B. No. 1849, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 1849, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Rhoads rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in opposition. I have been waiting for 31 pages for this bill. I'd like to first remind the Members that this measure would decrease taxes on cigars. According to the National Institutes of Health, cigar smoke is possibly more toxic than cigarettes because the smoke has higher levels of cancer causing substances. So to borrow a phrase from my predecessor, the tobacco advocate from Manoa should probably reconsider this effort to make smoking easier. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Cullen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Kobayashi rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'm in opposition. Very briefly, lower taxes on cigarettes encourages more smoking. Tobacco is the leading preventable cause of death, disease and disability. State of Hawaii of course pays for a lot of healthcare, especially through our employees, retirees, and Medicaid.

"Number two, lower taxes such as this decrease state revenues. The federal government lost approximately $1 billion in two years because of a change in tobacco taxes on the federal level.

"Number three, this loss of monies on the federal level was because of very clever and creative use in taking advantage of the tax changes that were made at that time. These included making small cigarettes into big cigarettes by, among other things, wetting them down with clay akin to kitty litter.

"And fourthly, this bill does not specifically benefit Hawaii cigar businesses. Rather, it benefits all producers, sellers, manufacturers of large cigars, regardless of origin. Thank you."

Representative Tokioka rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Aquino rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose in opposition to the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to this measure.

"At the heart of this issue, Mr. Speaker, is the health and well-being of our people. Tobacco use remains the single most preventable cause of death in the world. It is one of the leading causes of lung cancer, heart disease, and other chronic health conditions. Yet in this measure, Mr. Speaker, we are supporting it. Why then, Mr. Speaker, are we trying to carve out a tax break for a single tobacco product?

"Mr. Speaker, Hawaii is considered one of the healthiest states in the nation. We should be proud of this designation, because it did not occur overnight. A large part of this designation is attributed to our policies around tobacco use. We currently have one of the highest excise taxes on cigarettes and other tobacco products. We have a smoke-free workplace law that protects employees, as well as customers, from the dangers of second-hand smoke. We have funded tobacco cessation and control programs to help those individuals who want to quit using tobacco. And we have taken steps to restrict the sales of tobacco products near schools to protect our youth from this deadly product.

"Supporters of this measure, Mr. Speaker, tout it as a boost for agricultural and economic enterprises. Over the last decade this Legislature has made it a priority to encourage farming for the purpose of increasing locally grown food to support sustainability and food security. Let me be clear, Mr. Speaker, tobacco does not accomplish this goal. Tobacco plants cannot feed our families. Tobacco plants cannot feed our livestock. Tobacco plants cannot provide food security. Tobacco plants are grown for one purpose alone, to create tobacco products like cigars. For this reason, Mr. Speaker, I have no problems supporting the cultivation of taro, corn, and other food sources. I cannot, however, give the same support to tobacco.

"Supporters of this measure claim that it will make Hawaii cigar sales competitive with internet cigar sales; therefore a significant tax break is warranted. Mr. Speaker, there are hundreds of small business in our state that lose sales every day to internet retailers. Cigars are not unique. But instead of providing solutions for all small businesses, this bill is helping a single niche sector of business.

"Mr. Speaker, let's clear the air. Our state tobacco control policies are focused on the act of using tobacco, not on the individuals who use them. If we are truly trying to reduce the burden of tobacco use in our communities, we should not succumb to arguments over a tobacco user's age, income, gender, residency, or even the frequency of use. They are irrelevant to promoting strong health policies. Tobacco, after all, is still tobacco, Mr. Speaker.

"Finally, Mr. Speaker, I took an unprecedented approach to tobacco control this year by introducing a bill to prohibit the sale of tobacco products in the state. My hope was to generate an honest and frank discussion on how state government taxes tobacco while simultaneously advocating the cessation of use by Hawaii's citizens. How can we continue to reconcile the state government's receipt of over $130 million a year and the $30 million or so in expenditure of funds for tobacco cessation and use prevention programs? However, that measure, House Bill No. 2110, failed to even receive a hearing by your Committee on Health and cannot be acted upon during the remainder of the 2014 Session.

"If the Legislature is committed to improve the health of its people, we need to take bold steps. I believe proposals of that nature take us forward to achieve proactive health policies for our state. This proposal, however, is taking us backwards. Let's show the people of Hawaii that we will continue to only move forward. I urge my colleagues to take a stand for public health by not supporting this measure. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Yamane rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations. I would like to note that for years now, we've tried to address this issue of fairness in taxing tobacco products. And it was the cigar industry, when we were actually looking at addressing tobacco, wet tobacco, dip tax increase, the several times we increased cigarette tax increase, cigars did not go up accordingly.

"So this measure, Mr. Speaker, my concern is that it will actually reduce the amount of tax associated with cigars and may even then make it much more affordable and accessible for flavored cigars, which have been found to attract and be targeting our young children. Thank you."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The illustrious words of the two speakers from Mililani have moved me to vote with reservations."

Representative Tsuji rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Yamane be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Creagan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Carroll rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Lowen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 1849, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TAXATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 36 ayes to 14 noes, with Representatives Fukumoto, Hanohano, Har, Ing, Ito, Johanson, Kobayashi, Matsumoto, Ohno, Oshiro, Takayama, Takumi, Thielen and Ward voting no, and with Representative Wooley being excused.

At 10:54 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 2507, HD 1
H.B. No. 2554, HD 1
H.B. No. 2135, HD 1
H.B. No. 2000, HD 1
H.B. No. 1849, HD 1

At 10:54 o'clock p.m., Representative Har requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened 10:54 o'clock p.m.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Representative Yamane: "Mr. Speaker, quick announcement for those of you that plan to access H-1 freeway going westbound. Just to let you know that the on ramp at Punchbowl is closed. Thank you."

Representative Takai: "Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I wanted to remind you and the Members that we have a very special info briefing tomorrow with breakfast. So those of you up here bright and early at 8:30, I'd like to invite you to Room 312. We've invited many of the military leaders from Hawaii, as well as the Chamber's Military Affairs Council. And at 9:45, a few people including General Darryll Wong, Jennifer Sabas, and some people from the military will be briefing us about not only the importance of the military in Hawaii, but also what they're doing to reform the Military Affairs Council in Hawaii. So, all of this is in Room 312, and if you come early you'll have breakfast. Thank you."

At this time, the Chair stated:

"Members, please remember that you should have submitted to the Clerk the list of House Bills on the consent calendar for which you'll be inserting written comments in support or in opposition. Lists are due by adjournment of today's Floor session."

INTRODUCTIONS

The following introduction was made to the Members of the House:

Representative Woodson introduced visitors from Maui High School here to request assistance for their participation in the 2015 Rose Parade in January:

Maui High School Band Director, Mr. Kerry Wasano; and Maui High School Booster Club President, Ms. Ann Cua.

ORDER OF THE DAY

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES

Representative Takai, for the Committee on Veterans, Military, & International Affairs, & Culture and the Arts, presented two reports:

(Stand. Com. Rep. No. 906-14) recommending that H.R. No. 19 be adopted; and

Representative Saiki moved that the reports of the Committee be adopted, and that H.R. No. 19; and H.C.R. No. 36 be adopted, seconded by Representative Mizuno.

Representative Ward rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, potential conflict. Mr. Speaker, I was a translator and interpreter in Vietnam," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Ward continued to speak in support of both measures, stating:

"And thank you for serving. I think there are six of us here. Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support. Not only because we in the Army, the Marines, and those who were on the ground are covered by this particular presumption of exposure to Agent Orange, but our brothers and sisters who were out to sea or in the air are not covered.

"Basically what these resolutions say is, hey don't forget about those others who served in Vietnam. Even though they may not have directly been there, let us presume, like everybody else, that they have been exposed to this, because there's been a high incidence of a number of cancers.

"So, Mr. Speaker, I think this is the best thing to do for our veterans, and I know there are other issues that have come up with the Middle Eastern war veterans, Afghanistan, Iraq, et cetera, but this is the first step forward in encouraging our delegation to get the presumption back for those who were in the Air Force and those who were on the blue water oceans as Navy. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of both measures, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In strong support. Just a few comments. These resolutions are not only important for the reasons stated by the previous speaker, but in my discussion, this has become a teaching moment to many people of the younger generation who don't know what Agent Orange is.

"I had the chance to talk to some young people, I brought up Orange Crush, and they go, 'What's that, a soda?' And I go, 'no, Agent Orange,' and kind of described Agent Orange and what it did, alluded to the 60 Minutes report that many will remember, talked about the mixing of the chemicals with just white t-shirts on. They had no idea about it, Mr. Speaker. About the ramifications, about what happened, and especially how our service men and women were exposed to this toxic agent.

"So, Mr. Speaker, these resolutions are important not only for the veterans, but this is important to educate a new generation on what Agent Orange in Vietnam was all about. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the reports of the Committee were adopted and H.R. No. 19, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION URGING THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS TO RESTORE THE PRESUMPTION OF A SERVICE CONNECTION FOR AGENT ORANGE EXPOSURE TO UNITED STATES VETERANS WHO SERVED IN THE WATERS DEFINED BY THE COMBAT ZONE AND IN THE AIRSPACE OVER THE COMBAT ZONE IN VIETNAM," was adopted, with Representatives Cabanilla, Har, Ing and Takai being excused; and

Representative Johanson: "Thank you, Mr. Speaker. At the appropriate moment, I'd like to request a moment of silence for a constituent of mine, Boyd Andrade, Sr., former City Councilman, former Chair of the Honolulu Police Commission, and longtime police officer. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro: "Mr. Speaker, let me thank you very much for your generosity in making the House Chambers available to a dear friend of mine, Colonel Keith Tamashiro, now Brigadier General Tamashiro.

"Mr. Speaker, it's really an extraordinary occasion when we get to celebrate one of our very own being promoted to the position of Brigadier General. It really made his day for he and his wife Iwie, along with his mother who flew in, and his entire family and clan from Wahiawa, and Maui also, they have family on Maui also, Mr. Speaker.

"But it is true, I think the first time that we had a pinning ceremony done here in the House Chambers, and I really wanted to thank you on behalf of the families, Kakazu, Tamashiro families, for making it available. I also want to give a shout out to Sergeant-at-Arms, Kevin Kuroda and Lon Paresa. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

LATE INTRODUCTIONS

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Representative Oshiro: "Mr. Speaker, today is the last day for filing of substantive resolutions, so I did prepare one, and I invite any of the Members to sign on to it. Basically what it does is ask our congressional delegation to propose legislation at the federal level to address the Citizens and the Buckley decisions. Also, the same would be transmitted to the United States Supreme Court to also do the same. Thank you."

Representative Fale: "Mr. Speaker, in the same spirit, this being the last day to file substantive resolutions, I also have a resolution that would request the funding of all the polling places that were closed over the past 2010-2012. If we're going to fund, we're going to fund access for voters to be able to participate in the democratic process."

Representative Brower: "Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Just to give Members a heads up that there's some information on their desk in the Chamber regarding the Honolulu Festival, and if they want to read it or have any questions, please let me know. Thank you."

Representative Kobayashi: "Mr. Speaker, on the Honolulu Festival, two highlights of the Honolulu Festival involve fireworks. Nagaoka Fireworks from Niigata, Japan, as represented by Representative Ito's ancestors. And fireworks from Fukuoka, my grandfather's homeland in the fire-breathing dragon float, which is the finale float on the Sunday parade at the Honolulu Festival. Thank you."

At this time, the Chair stated:

"The Chair would like to inform Members that today is the deadline for introducing substantive resolutions. Please make sure you file your substantive resolutions with the Chief Clerk's Office by 6 p.m. tonight."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Representative Ward: "Mr. Speaker, I have an announcement. I was actually going to say this during the floor presentation, but I'll announce it now. The value that unions have done for the promotion of democracy in the world is untold. It's something that as, in USAID, I noted that the Polish union movement brought democracy, and what is actually going on now with their union and their brothers in Ukraine is invaluable for the promotion of democracy. So I was going to say it, but I didn't have it all together. The Republican Institute, the Democratic Institute, is very active, what's going on now in Ukraine, and if it wasn't for those forces of civil society promotion. So I wanted people to know that unions are good for democracy. That's my point. Thank you."

THIRD READING

H.B. No. 1700, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that H.B. No. 1700, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Luke rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise to speak in favor of House Bill 1700. I speak in favor of the House Draft of the Executive Budget.

"Mr. Speaker, first I would like to thank my two vice chairs. I look to them for guidance and direction, and they are truly my real partners in this process, and I can't do my work without them. So, thank you very much.

"I also want to thank all the members of the Finance Committee, who provide great insight from their various experiences. Last year, for many of the Finance members, including myself, it was a year about learning about the budget and about the financial plan, and balancing the time restraints and time commitments.

"This year, actually, was about putting all those experiences to work. To prepare for this session, the Finance Committee not only conducted site visits, but also did walkthroughs of departments and took on special projects during the interim. The amount of work that the Finance members did was tremendously helpful in crafting this budget. I can't thank each and every one of them enough for all the time that they put in. I just am very grateful to have served these two years with them.

"I would also like to thank the CIP Sub-Chair for his job in crafting the CIP budget. He had the tough job of balancing the needs of not just the executive branch, but the legislative branch and the judiciary branch, and still came out under the bond-authorization ceiling. Many times people think CIP is an easy job, but this year has been more difficult because of the huge amount of cash CIP that was proposed in the executive budget.

"I would also like to thank the GIA Sub-Chair for taking on the role of evaluating over 200 GIA applicants. This past Friday, the committee listened to the testimonies of the various GIA applicants. After listening to the pleas, I don't even envy what the GIA chair has to go through because he has a very tough job ahead of him. I have the utmost confidence in the GIA Chair to do another great job this year.

"However, I can't stress enough that this budget would not have been possible without the hard work of the Finance staff. Mr. Speaker, please allow me to introduce them at this point. Staff members, when I call your names, if you could stand. And Members, if you could hold your applause until I introduce everyone.

"We have analyst Donovan Lim. Next is Mallory Klum, Brandon Kumabe, Alicia Swanson and Tiffany Andersen. Also with them is our CIP Specialist Derek Shigano, everyone's friend. Budget Supervisor Albert Vargas, who came back to join us, and he has been such a tremendous help. And of course, I call him the Finance Chief-of-Staff, who doubled his time as not just the Finance Clerk, but also Budget Chief, Nan Kalupahana. I can't say enough how much I appreciate every one of you and all the hard work that you put in. So Members, if you could show your appreciation and give them a round of applause.

"I have to admit that there were so many times, it was around 9 p.m. and I kept telling them to go home for the day because the next day would be just as hard, and then they would refuse and they would wait for me to leave and sneak back. It was really hard to get rid of them. It shows the kind of dedication and the type of people who work for the budget staff this year.

"I would also like to thank the subject-matter committee chairs for their input on the budget. I was impressed again with their depth of knowledge and understanding of their respective jurisdictions.

"Again, like last year, I especially want to thank the Higher Education Chair for him dissecting every section of the UH budget. That really makes our jobs easier. So, thank you very much.

"Mr. Speaker, the budget is the work product of every single person that I mentioned. So every person, I would say a majority of the Members here, had a hand in crafting this budget. So every single person, I would like to thank you for trusting in us in giving us that confidence to work on this budget."

Representative Choy rose to yield his time, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Luke continued, stating:

"Thank you very much. Mr. Speaker, much has been talked about, about this $844 million surplus. However, as you know, this surplus was just a snapshot in time at the end of June 30, 2013. The committee passed this budget without knowing the new projections of the Council on Revenues, which was forecasted just yesterday afternoon. As expected by the Finance Committee, the Council on Revenues reduced its projection for Fiscal Year '14 from 3.3 to 0, which means no growth for Fiscal Year '14. And for Fiscal Year '15, from 7.4 to 5.5.

"Mr. Speaker, this signifies a substantial lowering of revenue projection for our current biennium budget. Having the foresight of this reduction, the committee took a conservative approach in tackling the budget and reduced the administration's operating budget by $53 million. And also thanks to the CIP Sub-Chair, we reduced the CIP cash expenditure by $127 million.

"This reasonable approach to the budget will prolong our economic stability and lessen the blow during drastic economic downturn. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, this is a reasonable budget, and I proudly present this for your consideration. Thank you very much."

Representative Nishimoto rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in strong support of this measure. Mr. Speaker, this budget showcases the collective and collaborative efforts of many individuals. The budget process is not an easy one, and I'd like to take some time to acknowledge individuals who played a crucial role in getting us to this point.

"First, I'd like to commend Chair Luke for her guidance, leadership, management, foresight and discipline required for the budget process. It is an honor to participate on this committee. I'd also like to express my gratitude to Vice Chair Johanson and all the members of the Finance Committee for their time and efforts in reviewing, assessing and studying the massive amounts of testimony, data and information that crosses their desks. I greatly appreciate their remarkable dedication and hard work on the committee.

"I'd also like to acknowledge the subject-matter chairs and their committee members for their significant input and participation in the budget process. Thank you very much for your commitment, perseverance and passion this session.

"Finally, thank you to the Finance staff for their countless hours of behind-the-scenes work to make this budget possible. They are invaluable to the budget process and are the unsung heroes of each session.

"Mr. Speaker, your Finance Committee was cautious in our approach as we prepared the budget. This Body saw signs appearing of slow economic growth, including smaller than expected gains in visitor arrivals and visitor spending, and lower than anticipated tax collections.

"In January, the Council on Revenues reduced their projections for Fiscal Year '14 from 4.1 to 3.3 percent growth, and just yesterday adjusted the prediction to a zero percent growth for the fiscal year, meaning a $180 million loss for the state. The Council on Revenue also reduced the fiscal year projections for 2015 from 7.4 percent, in January, to 5.5 yesterday. Another $100 million loss.

"Facing an anticipated smaller base budget and uncertain fiscal future, this budget bill reflects the foresight of the Finance Committee in taking a conservative approach. The committee also tried to continue our work from last session to increase transparency and accountability in the budget process, and create a more streamlined and efficient government. Thank you."

Representative Johanson rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in strong support of the measure. It's been an honor and a privilege to serve on your Finance Committee. As we began the biennium with a considerably improved fiscal picture, your committee made a concerted effort to balance fiscal restraint and an abundance of caution with the actual needs of state government.

"I wanted to begin by echoing the compliments to our budget staff for their tireless work in helping to provide a complete picture of the agency and budgetary landscape. They all engaged in a very rigorous and detailed analytical process in examining the efficacy of governmental programs, their functions, the necessity of their requested expenditures, as well as the justification for the Governor's requests. In many cases, the agencies were forthcoming with additional clarification and information on their budgets, missions and requests. In instances when the need was clearly justified, and the expense could be afforded, the departments were granted their requests.

"Conversely, there were also instances of insufficient information and/or justification for expenditures by the departments. In those cases, your committee responsibly reduced the request or did not approve the expenditure. The budget staff and the committee are to be credited for ensuring wise and prudent uses of taxpayer dollars in a fiscally responsible manner.

"Using that as a framework, your committee was willing to make tough calls and hard decisions regarding the Governor's budget. As has been mentioned by the chair, the supplemental budget recommended by your Finance Committee reduces the Governor's budget by $53 million in General Funds from the operating budget, $127 million in General Funds from the CIP budget proposed by the administration.

"This approach of willing to make the tough calls and not acquiesce to every single request seems increasingly necessary given the new Council on Revenues projections. These cuts to the executive budget continue the House trend of responsibly reducing the Governor's budget. At this point last year, the House had reduced the Governor's budget by nearly $600 million.

"I would like to thank the chair for her vision, her courage and her diligence in setting the Finance Committee on a course of budgetary reform. I'd also like to thank the vice chair and the committee for embracing that reform. Reform is never easy, however our chair has been willing to compel greater transparency and accounting, and begin to change the culture of how state government engages in the budgeting process. Whether it's fundamentally changing the way vacancies and vacation payouts are handled, exploring alternative budgeting models, or trying to break down the culture of mistrust and suspicion between the legislative and executive branches, significant reform has been undertaken, and the first fruits of that reform are being realized.

"It is this last reform that I specifically wanted to highlight. The regular tension between the executive and the legislative branches can often lead to budgetary dysfunction and a lack of maximum value for the taxpayer that results from that dysfunction in their government services. Often, departments treat legislative request for information and budget questions with suspicion and a corresponding guardedness.

"The legislative branch alternately assumes the departments and agencies are not revealing the full picture and also view the other with mutual suspicion. However, in these typical skirmishes, it is ultimately the taxpayer who loses out, because the legislative branch often may not be appropriating with a full picture of the agency's needs. That can mean that needed services are not provided. It can also mean that wasteful and fiscally irresponsible spending can occur. The taxpayer loses out in either of those situations.

"The first fruits of this budgetary transparency are evident particularly with the Departments of Labor and Industrial Relations, Agriculture, Defense, and the Attorney General, who have been willing to shed more light on their budgetary needs, and providing insight into the many management and accounting complexities that exist in their departments.

"Breaking down that culture of dysfunction is a significant budgetary reform, and ultimately one that will help ensure Hawaii's taxpayers are getting maximum value from government for their hard-earned taxpayer dollars. This is a responsible and a responsive budget. This is also a budget that continues long needed reform. Thank you."

Representative Morikawa rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in strong support. Transparency in budgeting. That is the message we want to send to the people. Massive budget cuts and various cost-saving restrictions imposed in recent years has disconnected the budget from actual needs. A significant cause of this disconnect is the way in which vacancies and vacation payouts are currently managed by agencies. Rather than solely examining the age of the vacancies, agencies were challenged to identify the unbudgeted expenses that cause shortages.

"We are beginning to identify various discrepancies in funding needs including positions which need to be re-described, vacation payout and overtime liabilities, vehicle and equipment turnover issues, and other current shortages like utilities, repair and maintenance, supplies, travel, et cetera.

"Vacation payouts are substantial because most employees can cash out over 100 days of vacation, plus any additional compensatory time earned, which can amount to almost half a year of salary. Last fiscal year, the state incurred an excess of $17.8 million from vacation payouts. These funds are unbudgeted, forcing departments to find money from within their appropriation to absorb the cost.

"Traditionally, departments absorb these costs by holding positions vacant, delaying the hiring of additional positions, or transferring funds from other current expenses to cover the vacation payout. This is not sound and transparent budgeting process. We need to stress that positions allotted by the Legislature should be utilized for staffing, they should not be used for other expenses. This method misrepresents the true budget picture and may result in a loss of confidence in how government provides services.

"As we move forward, we need to shift focus from defending individual positions, to identifying why positions are vacant, and assist agencies in developing solutions to fill mission-critical positions. Solutions may involve updating positions to more appropriately reflect current responsibilities, providing additional funding, or abolishing positions that are no longer deemed essential.

"Some departments have started communicating openly and have engaged in this process to bring greater predictability, stability and transparency to their budgets. The changes proposed thus far are a first step, and each solution is unique to the relevant agency and its needs. We need to continue engaging in this dialogue with the rest of state government to bring back more transparency in budgeting. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Onishi rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support. I first wanted to thank our House leadership, and the Chair and Vice Chairs of the House Finance Committee for their leadership and their foresight in establishing a budget that anticipated the flat revenue projections of the Council on Revenues.

"Mr. Speaker, although this budget does not fully address the severe drop in revenue projections, it does set the tone for what must be done. As a freshman, I am also especially appreciative to the Chair of Finance for having given me and my colleagues on the Finance Committee the opportunity to participate in visits to the departments, agencies, community organizations and facilities on Oahu, Kauai, Maui and Hawaii Island during the interim.

"These visits allowed us to get a firsthand look at their operations, their challenges, their needs and their potential opportunities to be more effective and efficient in serving our state. For me personally, these interim experiences enhanced what I learned during last session about how our state operates, and validated what many colleagues expressed to me about how I would learn a lot about how this state operates from my experience on the Finance Committee.

"Mr. Speaker, this budget is a work in progress and has many important positive measures that I'm sure my fellow colleagues will expound upon. But I would like to highlight some of the agricultural provisions that are very important to my district, Hawaii Island, and our state.

"Mr. Speaker, included in this budget is the continued recognition of the importance of agricultural sustainability and the need to provide greater support to our farmers, ranchers, and those who would choose to make this difficult and back-breaking profession their livelihood. This budget includes over $9.2 million in continued support to bring valued water throughout the state via irrigation projects, including the funding for improvements to the Molokai Irrigation System, the Kau Irrigation System, Waiahole Water System, Waimanalo Irrigation System and the Waimea Irrigation System. It also includes needed funding of $3.5 million for important watershed projects for Upcountry Maui and Hawaii Island's Hamakua districts.

"Mr. Speaker, the budget also provides support to our livestock industry. By recognizing that department staff is critical to the mission, eight positions have been converted from temporary status to permanent, and funding for a new livestock extension agent has been added.

"Another component necessary to the continuation of our livestock industry is trying to assist them with livestock feed cost. In line with this concept, funding in the amount of $3 million has been included in the budget for a zero-waste conversion project that will focus on the development of livestock feed and biofuel.

"Mr. Speaker, the House recognizes that aquaculture will provide an important role to the food sustainability of our state. Therefore, $300,000 has been allocated for a fish-feed feasibility study. Also in relationship to food sustainability, the budget includes funding for the national Ag Corps program, and for a Farm to School coordinator.

"Mr. Speaker, I stand in strong support of this budget and encourage my colleagues to pass this bill."

Representative Ing rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support. Before I get to these highlights, I'd like to just offer some thanks to the Chair and Vice Chairs of the Finance Committee, not only for their tireless work on this budget, but also for their willingness and ability to educate and mentor the younger members of the committee. I've learned a lot in this 30-day crash course.

"I'd also like to thank the staff, especially the budget staff for working tirelessly on these bills. I think their willingness to stay afterhours shows their ability to be really cognizant of gravity and importance of their work in deciding the states priorities.

"I'd like to start off with the Department of Accounting and General Services. This year we provided funds to accommodate more than 30 percent increase in energy and sewer costs incurred by Maui and Hawaii districts, and funding to support school repairs and maintenance on neighbor-island districts. Moreover, our budget also includes funding for a sports development initiative to promote, market and develop athletic events across the State of Hawaii, with a particular emphasis on professional events at Aloha Stadium. This will inspire our young people to get up and moving, and maybe even pull their faces away from their smartphones.

"Your committee has also provided General Funds to modernize our voting system, which I find very exciting. We provided two positions to support ballot operations and repair any cuts that were made that might have reduced the amount of polling places around the state. We've also included funding to support an online voting registration system. These line-items will go a long way in preventing voter fraud, increasing turnout, and engaging a new generation of civic participation.

"I also want to highlight some items from the Department of Business, Economic Development and Tourism. With the passage of the Hawaii Clean Energy Initiative, the State of Hawaii has established an ambitious goal of achieving 70 percent clean energy by the year 2030. We established several key initiatives that seek to expedite clean energy development, and with the tireless work of our good Representative from Kailua, the Chairman of Energy & Environmental Protection Committee, we have found noble priorities included in our fiscally prudent budget. We have recognized the need to aggressively pursue renewable and efficient energy alternatives, but remain heedful to the risk of such endeavors.

"A one-time appropriation in special funds has been made to the Energy Accelerator, an energy-focused economic development program that assists developing companies in formulating successful business strategies and attracting investment from state, federal and private institutions. The program has also received a $30 million award from the United States Navy, and the companies involved in the program have garnered investments totaling over $55 million, and created over 400 jobs.

"In addition to energy initiatives, establishing strong foreign ties is vital to attract foreign intellect, investment and spending to Hawaii, so your committee has approved funds to support the department's plan to build connections with Chinese and Taiwanese educational institutions. This specifically includes funding to support understaffed Beijing and Taipei offices, funding for an international student attraction program, funding for a China-visa streamlining project, and funding for fostering sister-state relationships.

"All these initiatives, Mr. Speaker, will help modernize our state, help move it forward, reduce the cost of living, protect our environment, and help make Hawaii more competitive in a globalized society. Thank you."

Representative Ohno rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. I'd first like to thank the Finance Chair and all the committee members for crafting a budget bill that is focused on putting students first. First let's start with our youngest learners. This budget provides $3 million for the Department of Education to implement pre-Kindergarten and school readiness programs to set these children and their families ready to make a strong transition into the K-12 system.

"In Hawaii's public schools, our educational communities are often diverse and they vary in implementing learning strategies that work best for their students. In recognition in support of this, the Finance Committee added over $14 million to the Weighted Student Formula. These additional funds provide individual schools with the decision-making power to use funds for accreditation if they desire, or the flexibility to implement other educational strategies that best fit the needs of their individual communities.

"Our charter schools are also working hard to provide unique and innovative learning communities for Hawaii students. As a part of the funding appropriated to the Public Charter School Commission, the Finance Committee provided $205,000 in General Funds for the commission's administrative costs. These monies were previously funded by each of the charter schools, but with this change, the charter schools are now free to dedicate those funds directly towards student learning.

"Another item I wanted to highlight is an issue that this Body has taken heat from students with, and that's the rising temperatures in our classrooms and the need for air conditioning. To assist the department with addressing the issues related to creating environments optimal for learning, the Finance Committee has allocated $25 million specifically for heat abatement initiatives, including air conditioning at some of our most critical schools.

"Finally, I'm happy to report this year that the Finance Committee has appropriated funding to restore and expand services at our Public Library System. Most notably, $300,000 will go directly toward expanding public service hours on our neighbor islands at Naalehu, North Kohala, Wailuku, Lanai, Molokai, Kapaa, Lihue and Waimea public libraries.

"I'd like to thank the Finance Committee and especially the Chair again, for their work to ensure that Hawaii students have the foundation, facilities and funding for the high quality education system they deserve. Thank you, Mr. Chair."

Representative Woodson rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I stand in strong support. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This budget is about the future, and I appreciate the approach that the Chair on your Committee on Finance took, along with her leadership, along with that of our Vice Chair. Because as we move forward, Mr. Speaker, it has become apparent that we are going to have to do more with less. So, Mr. Speaker, as was alluded to, your Committee on Finance took a very activist approach over the interim in preparing for this day. Mr. Speaker, not only did we do site visits, but we also individually took a look at various departments within the State of Hawaii.

"Mr. Speaker, I am very thankful to the Chair of Finance for allowing me to take a look at the Department of Education as it relates to its budget and effectiveness and efficiency. Mr. Speaker, as you are aware, in 2010

we received a significant funding from a federal Race to the Top Fund, of which I was very grateful that we were able to take a look at and meet with various department heads within the State of Hawaii and the Department of Education.

"Mr. Speaker, through a lot of discussions and talking to the department heads, we were able to get that $75 million federal funding source, which is now exhausted down to $5.6 million. It's important though, Mr. Speaker, because through the Race to the Top funds, our students have become very much more competitive in terms of international competitiveness, and we need to continue that trajectory onto the future. So I'm very thankful that, again, that $5.6 million is incorporated into the budget.

"Mr. Speaker, I would be remiss if I didn't mention something about housing. I serve as your Vice Chair for the Housing Committee, and I wanted to speak one minute about the Housing First initiative. Mr. Speaker, $1.5 million is incorporated into this budget with regards to that proposal. And again, with regards to the effectiveness and efficiencies, it's shown in other jurisdictions to be very effective, but there has been some discussion as to the amount that's spent, what is the return on investment.

"But when you take a closer look at the Housing First model, and you break it down on a monthly basis, and you take a look specifically at individuals and/or families and how much is expended per-month, it comes out to about $1200 per month. Mr. Speaker, I come from a working-class community, and I can assure you that there are no rents for a three-bedroom household or higher for $1200.

"So Housing First, as you know, not only speaks to housing individuals, its comprehensive services, and it allows for individuals to get additional assistance if they have drug issues or if they have issues with mental deficiencies. And Housing First is speaking specifically to the chronically homeless.

"So again, these types of wraparound services are needed, so that $1200 figure not only includes the housing, it also includes support services. And again, it's meant to be transitional, so actually when you take a look at it, it's very effective and efficient.

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I am in strong support of the budget, and I ask for my fellow colleagues to strongly support it as well. Thank you."

Representative Creagan rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in strong support. Department of Health provides our state the vital services needed to ensure and promote the health and well-being of our citizens. As both a physician and a first-year legislator, it is encouraging to me to see a budget like this, which funnels much needed resources directly into the quality medical services that each and every resident deserves. It is thus my pleasure to present some highlights to the budget proposed for the Department of Health.

"Mr. Speaker, the department is allocated a total of $1.5 billion in this year's budget for Fiscal Year 2015. Included in this is $482,000 for new equipment at the state laboratories. The state laboratories are responsible for conducting a variety of tests related to environmental and food safety regulation. This appropriation will ensure that the integrity of these tests are not compromised by outdated equipment.

"Mr. Speaker, almost $3 million for individuals with disabilities. The Department of Health provides a number of federally mandated services to population with disabilities. With an increase in clients has come an increase in the need for monies needed to appropriately service these individuals. This budget therefore proposes $1.4 million for the Children with Special Health Needs Branch which will provide valuable early intervention services to young children, and $1.5 million for the Developmental Disabilities Division. This latter appropriation is especially heartening to highlight today as we stand on the eve of Developmental Disabilities Day at the Capitol, which will be happening tomorrow.

"Lastly, Mr. Speaker, and particularly of importance to me, is $2.8 million for the Hilo Medical Center, Primary Care Residency Program. Our state, and especially the rural areas of our islands, such as my district in the Big Island, faces severe lack of quality healthcare. Supporting this program will help to address the shortage, while simultaneously building up the knowledge and skillsets of our local primary care providers through this interdisciplinary training model. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Kobayashi rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I stand in strong support. I've been asked to speak on two items, Kupuna Care and the Department of Human Services. Kupuna Care, of course as you know, was part of the joint House-Senate Majority Package. And while the Kupuna Care package has been set aside and will be handled in special bills, you can be assured that the funding for Kupuna Care and related senior citizen services have not been neglected. So the highlight of the Kupuna Care package is a $4.2 million add-on for this year to help support programs of a social service nature that prevent people from going into institutional nursing homes. With nursing homes costing $10,000 a month, $11,000 a month, that could be as much as $136,000 a year, far beyond what most families can support.

"So as we go ahead, we can expect, I think, that the Senate will follow through on its obligations with the House-Senate Majority Package, and will look favorably upon Kupuna Care and related senior citizen services.

"Within the Department of Human Services, there are three items I'd like to highlight. Number one, there is $2.6 million to increase, for the first time in approximately eight years, general assistance payments. General assistance goes to individuals, largely who are disabled, and their assistance funding has not been increased at a commensurate and timely manner.

"Number two, there is $3.5 million for two child care subsidy programs, the Child Care Connection program and the First-to-Work child care program. This is in addition to the money that has been put into the budget for other early education programs within the Department of Education.

"Lastly, there is $2.2 million for the REACH program for middle school, intermediate school students in afterschool activities. We know that students in middle schools are going through a transitional period in their lives, and this is also when they start getting into real trouble. So this money is to do some initial demonstration work to see how afterschool programs for this age group can better improve their lives. Thank you very much."

Representative Lowen rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in strong support. I also want to first thank the Chair, Vice Chairs and members of the Finance Committee, and the staff for their hard work on the budget. There are many important programs and projects and positions supported in this budget, and I'll just briefly highlight a few.

"First, this budget provides $1.7 million for much-needed funding and positions for DOCARE, the Division of Conservation and Aquatic Resources Enforcement. This will allow for the pilot program that was successful on Maui to be expanded to Kauai and Hawaii islands. The pilot program allowed for the creation of specialized units within DOCARE, increasing effectiveness in fisheries management and other areas by having teams that can focus on specific enforcement issues.

"Also in this budget is financial support for climate change planning in our state. One of the impacts of climate change that is already affecting us in Hawaii is sea level rise. There is growing recognition that if we begin planning for expected impacts today, we will save taxpayer dollars in the future. To that end, this budget provides for $340,000 in special funds for the purpose of projecting the degree of sea level rise that we are likely to see in the next 40 to 50 years, so that we can move forward with planning efforts.

"This committee also made the decision to support bringing the IUCN's 2016 World Conservation Congress to the United States for the first time. This is the world's leading environmental summit, and hosting it here in Hawaii would be an incredible opportunity to showcase our state's unique host culture and location as a bridge across the Pacific. This budget makes a commitment of $2 million towards the cost of hosting the event in Hawaii, and the rest of the needed funds will be raised privately.

"Again, these are just a few of the many worthwhile programs that we've been able to support in this budget. It's been an honor to sit on the Finance Committee with my dedicated colleagues, and I look forward to our continued work in the future. Thank you."

Representative Takayama rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In support. First, I echo the compliments of my colleagues towards the Chair of Finance for her outstanding leadership. Mr. Speaker, this proposed supplemental budget advances public safety in several significant ways. It appropriates $5 million to the State Department of Public Safety to begin planning and site-selection for the relocation of the Oahu Community Correctional Center, an expansion of our prison capacity to accommodate the return of the 1,500 inmates now housed on the mainland.

"In addition, this measure would appropriate $1.5 million for the planning and design of a new Maui Community Correctional Center. The replacement of OCCC and construction of a new Maui jail were identified by the Director of Public Safety as the two top priorities of our state's correctional system during a legislative briefing just last month.

"OCCC has long passed its usefulness as a correctional facility. It has been in its Kalihi location since 1930, and one of its original buildings still serves as a cellblock. Its obsolete design and inefficient configuration adds greatly to high operational and staffing costs. It was designed for about 600 inmates, and now houses more than twice that number, requiring two and even three inmates to be housed in cells designed for one.

"Similarly, the Maui jail was designed for 200 inmates and now houses more than double that number. There is no room for expansion in its current site, so these funds will enable the department to plan for its relocation.

"Finally, Mr. Speaker, this supplemental budget contains $1 million for the removal of trees growing on private property that have been identified as hazards to public safety. These are trees that pose a threat to neighbors in the event of breakage, but whose owners have refused to remove or trim them. A statute enacted in 2009 allows State Civil Defense to remove them and recover costs from the property owner. No funds were ever appropriated to carry out this law, so the proposed funds would enable Civil Defense to conduct hazardous tree removals for the next three years as a pilot project.

"We are grateful to the Chair of the House Committee on Public Safety for his leadership in helping develop these initiatives. These are first steps, but crucially important ones towards improving the safety of the people of Hawaii. Mahalo."

Representative Fukumoto rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. I would like to start by acknowledging and commending the Finance Chair for all of her hard work that she put towards developing this year's budget. Today I am proud to speak in support of the University of Hawaii budget and provide a few brief highlights.

"First, as a University of Hawaii graduate, I know how hard working and dedicated our faculty members are, and I am happy to report that the Finance Committee has appropriated $14 million to restore cuts that were made to the University of Hawaii Professional Assembly faculty salaries, and provide $19.5 million to fund salary increases for UHPA faculty.

"The committee also recognizes the negative impact that furloughs had on HGEA and UPW faculty, and has appropriated over $6.3 million to restore salaries for those valued workers.

"Additionally, this committee recognizes the importance of investing in the UH West Oahu campus, a project that is particularly important to me as a Representative from Central Oahu. As communities in Central and Leeward Oahu grow, enrollment at the West Oahu campus is rising, and it is imperative that the Legislature ensure that the provision of quality education is not diminished as a result. As such, the committee has added 50 new permanent faculty positions to support the growth of UH West Oahu, and has allocated $1 million for campus maintenance and other needs.

"Lastly, as there has been a lot of discussion recently regarding the status of repair and maintenance projects at the University of Hawaii, the committee has appropriated funds and added new positions to help further and support the University's efforts to help improve their campuses.

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I stand in support of this budget, and again commend the Finance Chair for her work, leadership and commitment to reform. Thank you."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support. I want to add a few reasons why this is a good budget. The first is that it's circumspect and it's conservative. A few reasons for that. Number one, the Council on Revenues basically zeroed out any growth and projected for the next two years really dismal, $500 million that's going to be taken out of this. So I say it's circumspect because in a way we kind of planned for that. We cut $53 million out of the Governor's budget.

"But in the long run, it looks like a few balloons are going to be popped by this budget. One is going to be on the fifth floor because of the, quote, 'surplus' that was always noted. And I think some of the programs that already have been announced very positively by Members of this Body as well as some department people are going to have to do some cutbacks.

"So, Mr. Speaker, I think it's wise to be circumspect under the present situation, but some of the processes that have taken place have really advanced the budgeting process in the State of Hawaii. It's been mentioned, and I'll call it by a different name, the 'cat-and-mouse' that heretofore the Finance Committee of which I sit on would play with the departments, or the staff primarily would be the guys that really catch them doing what they're doing, the way that they would sort of squirrel money into different spots. I think the Chair, to her wise decision and strategic thinking, is just about able and now to bust that out, this whole thing of squirreling money into the vacation payouts that come out of vacant positions that heretofore has been really abused. And I think there's a pilot project that's going to advance that tremendously.

"I would also encourage the vice chairs and the chair to continue on the zero-based budgeting that was announced in the Star-Advertiser recently. That is revolutionary. That is cataclysmic. That is changing the game of how we do budgeting in the State of Hawaii. And I know it's just starting out, but it's something I think definitely we should pursue and encourage.

"But lastly, Mr. Speaker, this budget is only halfway there. Remember, we've got to fight with the guys at WAM, we've got to fight with the Senate. So we're not really there yet, so all these accolades, they may be a little bit premature, because also in the context, in the background of this budget, we have to remember that tourism is dipping. We have to remember that 30 percent of our budget, this $12 billion budget, is federal funds. The federal government borrows 40 cents on every dollar that it spends. We're not out of the woods, Mr. Speaker, that's why we've got to continue to be circumspect, we've got to continue to be conservative. And that's why I like this budget. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with some reservations. My reservations aren't necessarily with the budget. I appreciate and I thank the Chair of Finance, the Vice Chairs of Finance, the staff of the Finance Committee that put this together. I think there was a lot of hard work that went into it, a lot of hard and thoughtful work that went into it, Mr. Speaker, and we definitely did the best that we could.

"It's also very pleasing to know that the House has consistently taken the most conservative approach between the Governor and the Senate, that we have been the most fiscally responsible in regards to our attitudes, towards spending the taxpayers' money.

"My reservations, Mr. Speaker, kind of stem mostly with the downgrades in the revenue projections. We were initially told that we were at $844 million in the black, Mr. Speaker. That kind of essentially overnight has disappeared. And what exactly is it that's driving these projections down, Mr. Speaker? We obviously need to take a hard look at what exactly is hurting, I guess the goose that's laying the golden egg, Mr. Speaker, and especially how we're impacting the private sector with the policies and the regulations and the taxation that we put forward that seems to be having a negative impact on the workhorse that essentially carries the State of Hawaii forward.

"Mr. Speaker, I think, I hope, the budget and especially the new projections and what we're looking at into the future will help us to more closely analyze what exactly it is we're doing and how we do it.

"Lastly before I close, Mr. Speaker, is that given what we were told what was going to happen during the special session was that we were supposed to see an economic boom in tourism numbers, and that we were supposed to be on a huge upward trajectory. In fact, Mr. Speaker, I think it's kind of the attitude, we're starting to see the results of some of the hostility we've expressed towards the private sector, such as the Pro Bowl now, which is seriously looking at moving from Hawaii to Arizona. There were complaints about the $4 million that we used to help the Pro Bowl come to Hawaii, which actually generated $28 million worth of economic activity. Now we're going to see that pick up and disappear.

"And the promises that were made in regards to the tourism after the policy decisions that were made during the special session, Mr. Speaker, were not…"

The Chair addressed Representative Fale, stating:

"Representative, I believe you are out of order, we're speaking on the budget, not on the special session."

Representative Fale continued, stating:

"Okay, thank you, Mr. Speaker. But I'm just saying that the economic boom that we were supposed to be heading to seems not to have materialized, and I'm just drawing the connections between that and the decisions we make in regards to the budget and the policy decisions that affect the future of Hawaii, especially our economic health and well-being, Mr. Speaker. So for those reasons, I do have my reservations."

Representative McDermott rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I stand in support of this measure. I want to thank the Finance Chair for all the hard work. I have no idea what it must be like to sit in those shoes, in a sense that when we all get elected, we have all these new friends all of a sudden. And when you're Finance Chair, and that's a position you held, Mr. Speaker, you have a multitude of new friends, and everybody is tugging at you, pulling at you, begging for things, twisting your arm. So it must be a very demanding thing to do. I've never had that. Well, I can't draw flies, Mr. Speaker, so I've never had that problem.

"But my good friend, the former school teacher from Downtown, mentioned the $25 million for heat abatement. If that's indeed in there, and I haven't looked at it, Mr. Speaker, I haven't gone through every page, that's a wonderful gesture on this Body's part to say to those young people who were here, that we hear you. So, thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.B. No. 1700, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE STATE BUDGET," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Kobayashi being excused.

At 1:28 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bill passed Third Reading:

H.B. No. 1700, HD 1

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Representative Thielen: "Thank you. Mr. Speaker, it appears that today is the Sergeant-at-Arms Office 'Bowtie Day', and it looks like everyone got the memo with one notable exception. Thank you."

Representative Brower, for the Committee on Tourism, requested a waiver of the 48-hour advanced notice requirement for the purpose of hearing the following measure on Thursday, March 13, 2014, at 9:15 a.m. in Conference Room 312, and the Chair "so ordered."

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES

Representative Evans, for the Committee on Water & Land, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 940-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2953, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2953, SD 1, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in weak support. Mr. Speaker, this is a bill that divvies up the royalties, but as a venue to make a comment, this bill reminds us that the land that we own in fee simple doesn't really belong to us, because we could find gold, oil, geothermal energy, and it doesn't really belong to the people of Hawaii, Mr. Speaker.

"I'm not questioning the wisdom of those who write the constitution, but the fact that you do not have rights underneath your land is a rare exception in the United States, that's why there was the gold rush, that's why there were places in America that when people went to it, they found stuff in the ground and it incentivized them to move and to be entrepreneurial. In Hawaii, we have the best entrepreneurial cultures in the world, but because of things such as this prohibition of being able to have their own resources underneath their land as their own, this is a bit of a disincentive.

"So, I think we're cutting the pie up here, it's deserved by the Department of Hawaiian Home Lands, it's on their land, but I don't think the state should own everything underneath the ground. But that's the way it is in the State of Hawaii. The state is the superior; the state is the one who owns all the resources because of the royalties that we have already in statute and the constitution. For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I'm in support of this, but in weak support. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2953, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO STATE RESOURCES ON HAWAIIAN HOME LANDS," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs, with Representatives Creagan, Say, Tokioka and Yamashita being excused.

Representative McDermott rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'm going to vote in opposition to this. I think it's a good concept, but the way I read it, and I could be wrong of course, I'm not infallible, but it seems to undermine parental rights. It allows children the age of 14 to seek help outside their parent's purview. Now there are bad parents out there, I certainly understand that, and if there are, the social workers should get involved and it should be adjudicated through the court processes.

"Once a 14-year-old says, 'Well, I don't like mom and dad,' and they may choose to run away and seek shelter or a safe place because their parents are strict or something of that nature, I don't know what the recourse is, and I don't know what we're doing here. It seems to me, that although well-intended certainly, and admirable trying to help youth, we may be undermining parental rights. So that's my concern. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative McDermott be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. Representative McDermott rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I stand in opposition. I'd like to make a few comments. The Chamber of Commerce is against this, and so are the electronics manufacturers. Again, a well-intended cause, but 80 percent of the population resides on the island of Oahu. If you really were serious about this, you'll work out a program with the city and have them collect it, take the precious metals out, and then they can burn the rest in H-POWER.

"This is part one of what I believe will be part two, which is then coming back next year and saying, the people who are tasked to do this, saying, 'we can't afford to do this.' And then we're going to put a tax, just like the bottle bill, a tax on every computer you buy, $10 recycling tax. You only get that back when you turn it in.

"And so, it's a well-intended measure. There are precious metals and things of value in these CPUs. The city could extract those, help offset their cost of running the bulky item pick-up, and then burn the rest in H-POWER for fuel. So I stand in opposition as this is a bad business bill. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative McDermott be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Lee rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you. In support, Mr. Speaker. Just very briefly, this measure is designed obviously to address the proliferation of heavy metal in our electronic devices, which is now going into our landfills. The issue is that those particular types of metals are extremely toxic, and as groundwater filters through our landfills, those toxins end up in our water table.

"There's also the issue in the neighbor islands, particularly with the current recycling program which we have, where communities in rural areas, remote areas in neighbor islands, and just neighbor islands in general, are unable to recycle their electronic waste. And the citizens there have very few options which, at this point, are limited in some cases to a mail-back. So if you want to get rid of your electronic device, you've got to box it up, pay to ship it off to some mainland facility.

"This is a big issue, but something that the electronics manufacturer's community is trying to resolve, I think in good faith with the state and coordination with the Department of Health, and the neighbor island counties, who are in support of taking proactive steps to fix our current program.

"Now, I'll note that the opposition from the manufacturers in large part to this point has been because of perceived mandates that they'd have difficulty meeting. What was done in the previous committee was changing those mandates to goals. So as long as you make an attempt, you're not going to be penalized for not collecting a particular weight of whatever it is you're trying to collect that you sell.

"In addition to that, we're ensuring that the Department of Health is able to fill in where manufacturing plans for recycling don't meet, don't pass muster and don't have support in neighbor island communities where there is no option for people to recycle. Department of Health will then be able to step in and collect those sorts of materials.

"So, happy to discuss this further, but in the meantime, it goes on to the next committee, so defer to that chair. Thank you."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Representative McDermott: "Mr. Speaker, I ordered lunch for 75 people, so the Members are invited to join us in the caucus room. I hope there's still some left, but I'll go through the line last, so there should be some. Also, Mr. Speaker, I want to thank Kevin and the Sergeant-at-Arms for the magnificent job handling the three presentations today. If we could give them a hand please. Thank you."

Representative Morikawa: "Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Today we're celebrating exactly four decades of awesome living. Let's wish the Chair of Health a very happy and wonderful birthday."

Representative Ward: "Chair, this is right in order with March 14th, because March 14, 1969, was the beginning of this Capitol. That was the day the Capitol opened 45 years ago, and it's a day that we should remember. And like the eloquent Representative from Kauai said about the tree, it's a good place to sit and call it the people's place, the people's House, or the marketplace of ideas, but one that's reaching maturation, having opened March 14, 1969. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Ms. Elizabeth Timball, 2014 Hawaii District Teacher of the Year, from Keaau High School; and

Mr. Justin Yamagata, 2014 Kauai District Teacher of the Year, from Waimea Canyon Middle School.

Representative Ward recognized the importance of teachers and their role in shaping our society and thanked them for their work.

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.R. No. 204 was adopted, with Representatives Ing, Saiki and Takai being excused.

The following resolution (H.R. No. 205) was announced by the Clerk and the following action taken:

H.R. No. 205, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION RECOGNIZING BROTHER NOLAND FOR A LIFETIME ACHIEVEMENTS AND HIS IMPACT ON ISLAND MUSIC," was jointly offered by Representatives Tokioka, Hanohano, Kawakami, Nishimoto and Oshiro.

Representative Tokioka moved that H.R. No. 205 be adopted, seconded by Representative Oshiro.

Representative Oshiro recognized Hawaiian Music and its role in Hawaiian culture, and honored Brother Noland's part as a music innovator who captures the essence of Hawaii in his songs, credited with the birth of Jawaiian Music.

Representative Kawakami highlighted the many achievements, awards and volunteer work of Brother Noland, thanked him for his music and wished him continued success in the future.

Representative Tokioka then introduced honorees seated on the Floor of the House:

Brother Noland Conjugacion;
Aunty Emma Ako, his mother;
Pomai Weigert, his daughter;
Aunty Laurie Walser;
Kapua Lee; and Aunty Elaine Ako Spencer.

Representative Tokioka also recognized the many friends and family of Brother Noland who were here to support him:

Band/Assistants: Jennifer La, Alex Martin, Donnie Martin, Jr., Fred Li, Pi'i Miguel, Blayne Asing, Steve Bader, Sam Bader, Paula Jepas, Vergel Jepas and Susan Susuki.

Family and Friends in the gallery: Greg Kam, Mike McCartney, Duane Kurisu, Moku Buchanan, Lori Buchanan, Joana Magno, Brenda Li, Tanya Li, Luke Rogers, Clark Spencer, Carol Spencer, Noe Burkett, Cora Fonseca, Mahea Fonseca, Wilma Hee, Ka'ili Heen, Kaipo Daniels, Gretchen Daniels, Freddie Gayagas, Rose Bader, Alexa Bader, Mele Coelho, Jennifer Yagodich, Frank Yagodich, Kalama 'Ohana, Greg Doi, Andrea Doi, Karen Sarsona, Kathryn Sarsona, and many others.

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.R. No. 205 was adopted, with Representatives Belatti, Ing, Kobayashi, Saiki and Takai being excused.

At this time, Brother Noland thanked his supporters and family, and he and his band members Fred Li, Vergel Jepas, Paula Jepas, Steve Bader, Sam Bader, Blayne Asing and Pi'i Miguel, performed for the House of Representatives, guests and audience the following songs:

Are You Native?;
Backfire;
Pua Lane;
Coconut Girl; and Big Ship.

At 1:19 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 1:37 o'clock p.m.

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 980-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2118, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

On motion by Representative Souki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2118, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO CAMPAIGN SPENDING," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Belatti, Fale, Ing, Lee, Saiki and Takai being excused.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 981-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2629, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Representative Souki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2629, SD 1, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McDermott rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'm going to cast a no vote on this. I did vote for it in committee, I just need a little more clarity to make sure that this doesn't apply to a citizen. I've talked to my good friend the Judiciary Chair and I'm trying to figure it out, he'd been very helpful. But my concern is that the average citizen comes down and beats the pavement, goes door-to-door, and can easily spend five hours here in one afternoon, with one legislator, by the way.

"So I want to make sure that the citizen is not impacted by this, only the people who receive remuneration for their efforts, the classic lobbyists. Thank you, sir."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. Just to point out that the definition of 'lobbying' and 'lobbyist' is in 97-1, which this bill does not amend whatsoever. So the definition of 'lobbying' and 'lobbyist' is in 97-1, this bill amends 97-3, which has to do with the timing of the reports."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2629, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO LOBBYISTS," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representative McDermott voting no, and with Representatives Belatti, Fale, Ing, Lee, Saiki and Takai being excused.

Representative Hanohano, for the Committee on Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 982-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2839, SD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Judiciary.

On motion by Representative Souki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2839, SD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE HAWAIIAN HOMES COMMISSION ACT, 1920, AS AMENDED," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Judiciary, with Representatives Belatti, Fale, Ing, Lee, Saiki and Takai being excused.

Representative Belatti, for the Committee on Health, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 983-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2349, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

On motion by Representative Souki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2349, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HEALTH," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Belatti, Fale, Ing, Lee, Saiki and Takai being excused.

Representative Belatti, for the Committee on Health, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 984-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2045, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

On motion by Representative Souki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2045, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE COLORECTAL CANCER SCREENING PILOT PROGRAM," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Belatti, Fale, Ing, Lee, Saiki and Takai being excused.

Representative Belatti, for the Committee on Health, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 985-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2855, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Representative Souki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2855, SD 1, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Hanohano rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mahalo ho'omalu 'ōlelo. Ke ku nei au me ke kanalua loa. 'O kēia pila e hā'awi kala no na po'e o ka hui ku 'oko'a mai ka pu'u kala no ke aupuni 'o Hawaii nei. A'ohe pono kēia hana. Aia i hea ka pu'u kala no 'Amelika. No lakou kēia kuleana. 'Oia ku'u mau mana'o. Mahalo ho'omalu 'ōlelo.

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise with strong reservations. This bill appropriates money to the Compact of Free Association from the State of Hawaii's General Funds. This is not right. Where is American federal monies? This is their responsibility. These are my thoughts. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Awana rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you. In support with reservations. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I'm rising with reservations, being that it was through no fault of the COFA migrants to have to come to Hawaii and to the mainland United States to go ahead and move, through no fault of their own, again. Perhaps serious consideration needs to be made by the Health Committee or even with our congressionals to consider using Tripler or federally funded clinics and hospitals to offset, instead of having our states have to provide the funding for our COFA migrants. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. For a historical footnote to be accurate, it's really the fed's problem, it's their fault. The Compact of Free Association was to where we were to be reimbursed for educational, social, health and other things. It's only that they've never given the money. It's been an unfunded mandate. We spent $100 to $150 million on the immigrants, but we get like $10 million back, Guam gets $10 million back, and California gets $10 million back. So $30 million, probably, and close to $500 million to $1 billion dollars is being spent.

"But, Mr. Speaker, let us rest on this other historical fact. It was not of their choosing that they became the place where the atomic bomb was tested. It was not of their choosing. The politics of the Pacific had them, as they are in the Department of the Interior, and now with the Compact of Free Association, that was not of their choosing.

"So, Mr. Speaker, I think we have to treat this with compassion, but with an international understanding bigger than just the dollar amount, that we're caught with the tab because the feds are passing the buck to us and we should be passing it up through the delegation to demand that we at least get reimbursed. Not with a profit or an administrative fee, but at least get reimbursed for what the State of Hawaii is doing for these fine people. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2855, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT MAKING AN EMERGENCY APPROPRIATION TO THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH FOR THE DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES DIVISION," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Belatti, Fale, Ing, Lee, Saiki and Takai being excused.

Representative McDermott rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"I stand in support, Mr. Speaker. This is not a perfect bill, but it is a good departure point for discussions to continue. I hate to say this, I sound like a politician, 'the discussion', so we can maybe fund some of these hot air schools. Obviously, the schools in the Ewa area are so hot, they actually have taken temperature in there over 100 degrees in the classrooms. After lunch in the afternoon, children just can't concentrate. It's tough enough with the hormones raging, and then you add 100 degree heat, they just fall asleep. So, to continue the discussion I support this. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2424, SD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO AIR CONDITIONING IN PUBLIC SCHOOL FACILITIES," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Takai and Tokioka being excused.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2423, SD 2 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McDermott rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'd like to cast a no vote on this and some brief comments. A wonderfully well intended bill, and we all want to support charities. In fact, Mr. Speaker, as an Executive Director of a 501(c)3, this is something I know a little bit about. And I want to say thank you to the Education Chair, because we just had a brief discussion on this. And as usual, we agree on nothing, as he'll be the first to say.

"But, Mr. Speaker, my concern is that charities, 501(c)3s, can have a political agenda, whether it be left or right. And something you might find pleasant, Mr. Speaker, I might find objectionable and vice versa. And so, although through the years they've been done for benign charities like American Heart Association, Jump Rope for Heart, and things of that nature, consensus charities, no one is going to complain about that.

"But there is the opportunity, because it's left up to the school and the teacher, and it might be a situation where there is an organization, like even the one I work for, that supports the military. Some parents may not like that. And then you go into, well this is giving a lot of power to the teacher or the principal to decide what charities to support. So who's to say the Heart Association is more important than the Leukemia Foundation or more important than American Diabetes Association, et cetera, et cetera. And so, that is problematic.

"Now this, if we leave it as is, it will still not stop the schools for fundraising for themselves. Where the kids come around and bring a little card and it's pay $10 and you get this gift card, and if you go to a certain restaurant on Tuesdays you get an extra sandwich. That would still be allowed. But what wouldn't be allowed is Jump Rope for Heart and things of that nature.

"So what you run into, Mr. Speaker, particularly in my neck of the woods, is that every time you turn around it seems that kids are coming home with a book-a-thon or some sort of fundraising opportunity. It teaches life skills, I understand that. It teaches us to give back, I understand that. But I would rather have that time spent on the basics and accomplishing the learning objectives.

"Again, as I said, I work for a nonprofit, so I'm kind of familiar with this sort of stuff. And we don't go into the schools, nor would we. We don't think it would be appropriate for us. So I would say, let's not move this forward. There's not a hue and cry from the community. And I'm going to vote no on this. Thank you, sir."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2423, SD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representative McDermott voting no, and with Representatives Takai and Tokioka being excused.

Representative Ward rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong opposition. Mr. Speaker, this bill threatens democracy, the democratic process. It says when there's a land exchange, instead of the existing statute that says it should be a two-thirds majority, it says, well let's ratchet it down to just a simple majority.

"Mr. Speaker, whenever you're dealing with land and power, as nations have transits, well just recently the Crimea, for example. Whenever land is involved, it's very, very volatile. Whenever power is involved, whether it's from apartheid to democracy, et cetera, things need to have a consensus.

"Mr. Speaker, our political culture in Hawaii is consensus. The model that we use in this Body is a consensus model. This flies in the face of our political culture. This flies in the face of land, that is the most sacred and the most limited thing that we've got in the State of Hawaii. And it says, 'Hey, all you got to do is flip it off with a simple majority.' I think that's damning with faint praise and disrupting what otherwise is what land use has been, is a very, very wade, and a very sophisticated nuance system which now we're making simple, and we're damning it with faint praise.

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, this is a bad bill. I would ask whoever is the origins, or the backers of this, explain why should we do this, why is this step backward, in my opinion, and I think in the opinion of others, something that we should be doing as the State of Hawaii. So why, Mr. Speaker? And that's why I have a no vote. Thank you."

Representative Evans rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in support. Thank you. I've been here at the Legislature for many years, and this discussion about should there be the current process, which is you have to get disapproval. What that means is that the exchange has already gone, possibly, in front of a board and gotten approvals, they're ready to proceed, they give a notice to the Legislature. I'm not sure any of us get that report, but someone does here. Someone, at that point, has to decide if maybe we should disapprove it, then there needs to be action taken by the Legislature to disapprove it.

"I think many times over the years, people are going, 'Why wouldn't we want to know what they're doing ahead of time and actually approve it?' That discussion has been going on for many, many years. I think it's time for this Body, this particular Legislature, to decide if they like the idea of disapproving someone's actions or would they rather know in advance and approve people's actions. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Ward be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Thielen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative McDermott rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, a no vote. I agree with the sentiments from the Representative of the Big Island. But modifying that, go from just a simple majority to a two-thirds vote. That would be more appropriate. Thank you, sir."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Matsumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Choy rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Kawakami rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Carroll rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative McKelvey rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With reservations and I'd like to incorporate the words of the good Representatives from Hawaii Kai and Ewa into the Journal as if they were my own, and just a small comment. Members, look at the committee report. It was a really, really tight vote. So I think then and there, it's a tell-tale sign. And hopefully, as we go ahead and move forward, I know it still has to go to Finance, perhaps some better changes can be made to the measure. Thank you."

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. We have an obligation, we should be transparent. When we talk about selling public lands, I think everybody should be in on that decision, and not say, 'we disapprove', after it's already been transacted. Mr. Speaker, I've been here, this is my fourth year, and I've seen many parcels leave our state ownership. The state is only holding these for the future nation, and we all must be cognizant of it. This is just another way of making more transparency when our state or officials are making decisions on selling public trust lands. And I hope people will understand that this is what this is talking about. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Thielen rose, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'd like to change my 'with reservations' to a 'no', please."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 3121, SD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PUBLIC LAND," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Carroll, Choy, Fale, Hanohano, Kawakami, McDermott, McKelvey, Oshiro, Thielen and Ward voting no, and with Representatives Takai and Tokioka being excused.

Representative Hanohano, for the Committee on Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1010-14), recommending that H.C.R. No. 65 be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.C.R. No. 65 be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Lowen rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you. In opposition and brief comments. I just have a concern that this would establish a group to advise DLNR on rulemaking about our ocean resources that will come from the top down and be political and Oahu-centric. A better approach might be to have groups at the community level, if we're looking at advisory groups. So, I think there's some concern about what this would mean for the West Hawaii Regional Fisheries Council that's been acting in that capacity in West Hawaii."

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.C.R. No. 65, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION REQUESTING THE DEPARTMENT OF LAND AND NATURAL RESOURCES TO ESTABLISH A TASK FORCE TO ASSIST WITH THE DEVELOPMENT OF RULES TO ENSURE GREATER PROTECTION OF THE STATE'S OCEAN RESOURCES," was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representative Lowen voting no, and with Representatives Takai and Tokioka being excused.

Representative McDermott rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, a no vote on this and just brief comments. This seems to go against the philosophy of this Body, trying to promote renewable energy, electric vehicles, get off fossil fuels. We're establishing a fee for electric vehicles, which already on average cost about $5,000 more. So to offset that we give tax breaks and fees. I understand they're heavier and they tear up the roads a little bit more, but it seems that the Body made that decision years ago when they provided these incentives. So for those reasons, I vote no. Thank you."

Representative Fukumoto rose in opposition to the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to Senate Bill 2324, SD 2, HD 1. This bill would impose a $100 annual user fee on all electric cars.

"While I understand this bill is to help compensate for loss of taxes on the purchase of gasoline, I feel it is premature. I do not think the current number of electric cars on the road is high enough to affect our road-repair-revenue. Furthermore, I don't believe this body should be increasing the costs of transportation in any form.

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, reservations and a brief comment. I think this tax is premature as the colleague from Ewa Beach noted. Let's see how many electric cars we can get on the road first. Right now we have a very small number, even though it's gaining momentum. If we start taxing them, it's going to be like the PV on our roof. If we take away the tax credits, people are going to stop putting PV on their roof. If we take away the incentive to get an electric car, we're not going to get the electric cars on the road. So I think this is premature. It's well taken. They use the roads, therefore they should help fix the potholes. But doing it now is not timely. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2324, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ELECTRIC VEHICLES," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Fukumoto and McDermott voting no, and with Representatives Takai and Thielen being excused.

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, strong support with a brief comment. Mr. Speaker, this bill would make an appropriation for the aeronautics, aerospace industry that we're creating in Hawaii. What's interesting about this is that it is for the establishment of a laser ground station, laser communication station, and that would be on the Big Island.

"Basically, it's a cost sharing with NASA, who wants to establish this, which would be the first in the nation of laser communication satellites. And laser now is the advanced way of what otherwise heretofore has been the internet through tubes, through cables, and then through the transmission into the satellites. So this is the advanced technology, and it says, 'Hawaii, you're the place that we want to do this.' And we're simply to put up half of what I think they're asking to start it out, which is a small amount of money, because they're going to invest in their pilot about $20 million. And then if that one works, they're going to go up to as much as $200 million.

"So this is a job creator. It's an economic stimulus. And Mr. Speaker, they believe so strongly, next week they're going to be in town, and they want to brief as many people who are either in the UAV caucus or just interested in this new technology for what they have as a long haul perspective on Hawaii. Hopefully our colleagues will have the same way. This will go through, it will get funded, and we'll have the first laser communication station in the United States. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, just in strong support, comments to the Journal. Go 'ulu. Thank you."

Representative McKelvey's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, Senate Bill 3023, SD2 is poised to elevate Hawaii to become a potential new agricultural hub in production, processing and exporting. The 'ulu or breadfruit was one of the first plants brought to Hawaii and is intimately entwined with Hawaiian culture. So much so that when quilting arrived in Hawaii along with the missionaries and western fabrics in the 1820s, the 'ulu quilt was traditionally the first quilt made to ensure plentiful food and prosperity to the maker.

"The 'ulu has the potential to be a value added product through processing to become a base ingredient for a variety of products. 'Ulu is a gluten-free food and by developing this industry Hawaii can gain market shares of the gluten-free food market. Hawaii could become a Pacific regional hub to utilize and export this resource worldwide. Finally, the development of the 'ulu industry will contribute to our state's ability to have a stable and sustainable food staple, and I support this measure to improve Hawaii's agricultural resiliency."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committees was adopted and S.B. Representative McDermott rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, support with reservations. Just some brief comments. I supported this bill earlier and as it goes to Judiciary I'd like to just see it cleaned up a little bit. The language is a little vague. The way I read the bill, it would be illegal for me to purchase the domain site 'adolfhitlersucks.com' because I'd be defaming a dead person. But I don't think anybody in here would object to that. But I wouldn't want a bureaucrat making that decision. And the other term is 'traffic in' domain name sites and things of that nature.

"So I'm sure that my good friend the Judiciary Chair will tighten up the language a little bit and then it'll be good to go. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2958, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ONLINE PROTECTION OF INDIVIDUAL RIGHTS," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Judiciary, with Representatives Lowen, Nakashima, Souki, Takai and Wooley being excused.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2343 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Say rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in strong support with written comments. Thank you."

Representative Say's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, in order for Hawaii's government to protect its people and land from invasive species, it must properly fund and support the resources that are in place to mitigate the effects of these foreign and destructive entities. The interagency Invasive Species Council (ISC) for each of Hawaii's islands has gone through great lengths to coordinate, mitigate and educate the public about plants and pests that can harm our islands.

"Senate Bill 2343 appropriates funds to the Hawaii Invasive Species Council for invasive species prevention, control, outreach, research and planning. It has been stated time and time again that invasive species, like the little fire ant, strawberry guava, coconut rhinoceros beetle, and the coqui frog are 'the single greatest threat to Hawaii's economy and natural environment and to the health and lifestyle of Hawaii's people.' Prevention and control of invasive species has cost Hawaii millions of dollars.

"Invasive species councils, each dedicated to their area of Hawaii's islands, are community-based and therefore pay special attention to the stewardship of their own backyards. After all, they are the first and most directly affected by an invasion, and often feel the greatest impact. As a Legislature, we must support our community-based and interagency organizations so that problems can be addressed in a more efficient and expeditious manner. We rely on our invasive species councils, we need to support them now with the funds they request.

"I for one do not want to be bitten by the little fire ant, and I am quite confident that my fellow legislators feel the same way. Therefore, let's nip this issue in the bud—before the little fire ants bite us in the behind!"

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2343, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT MAKING AN APPROPRIATION FOR INVASIVE SPECIES PREVENTION, CONTROL, OUTREACH, RESEARCH, AND PLANNING," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Lowen, Nakashima, Souki, Takai and Wooley being excused.

Representative Wooley, for the Committee on Agriculture, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1081-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2026, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Judiciary.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2026, SD 1, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Judiciary, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McDermott rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cachola rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"A no vote for me with comments to be placed in the Journal. Also, I'll be hopefully talking to the Judiciary Chair. It's way out of whack in terms of the provisions of this bill. Thank you."

Representative Cachola's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, Senate Bill 2026, SD1, HD1 is well intentioned in addressing an issue that is important to many. However, I believe that the bill, if enacted into law, could extend the definition of cruelty beyond the scope of what the word implies and could have other unanticipated consequences. Current animal cruelty law in the penal code restricts the scope of illegality to what is done to the animal while it is alive, for example torture, mutilation, overdriving, or depriving the animal of sustenance.

"SB 2026, SD1, HD1 would redefine the cruelty to include things intended to be done by the offender after the animal is dead, even if the animal was killed in a manner that was humane. This legally blurs cruel intentions with cruel actions. Current animal cruelty law adequately addresses criminal conduct for this subject.

"The criminal conduct mentioned in the intent section of SB 2026, SD1, HD1 argues that existing laws did not allow offenders to be charged with animal cruelty based on the fact that they intended to eat the dog that they stole and subsequently killed. However, existing law makes it a Class C Felony to kill a pet animal owned by another person. This bill would make a new offense that is a lesser crime, a misdemeanor.

"Furthermore, it would amend the legal definition of a pet animal in Section 711-1100 of the Hawaii Revised Statutes by creating a special category for dogs and cats, thereby elevating the status of those species above the other named species defined as pet animals such as rabbits, guinea pigs, domesticated pigs or caged birds. This could have unintended consequences that affect other cruelty to animal and animal related offenses within Chapter 711. Such possible consequences have not been fully vetted in how this change would affect the existing penal code and the definitions of criminal conduct.

"It is for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, that I will vote no on this matter."

Representative Cabanilla rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Please note my strong opposition, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Tsuji rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Tokioka rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2026, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ANIMAL CRUELTY," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Judiciary, with Representatives Cabanilla, Cachola and McDermott voting no, and with Representatives Lowen, Nakashima, Souki, Takai and Wooley being excused.

Representative Evans, for the Committee on Water & Land, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1082-14), recommending that H.R. No. 119 be referred to the Committee on Finance.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and H.R. No. 119, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION URGING MEMBERS OF HAWAII'S CONGRESSIONAL DELEGATION TO INTRODUCE FEDERAL LEGISLATION TO PROVIDE THE KAHOOLAWE ISLAND RESERVE COMMISSION WITH FUNDING FOR THE LONG-TERM RESTORATION OF KAHOOLAWE," was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Lowen, Souki, Takai and Wooley being excused.

Representative Evans, for the Committee on Water & Land, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1083-14), recommending that H.C.R. No. 158 be referred to the Committee on Finance.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and H.C.R. No. 158, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION URGING MEMBERS OF HAWAII'S CONGRESSIONAL DELEGATION TO INTRODUCE FEDERAL LEGISLATION TO PROVIDE THE KAHOOLAWE ISLAND RESERVE COMMISSION WITH FUNDING FOR THE LONG-TERM RESTORATION OF KAHOOLAWE," was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Lowen, Souki, Takai and Wooley being excused.

Representative Evans, for the Committee on Water & Land, presented two reports:

(Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1084-14), recommending that H.R. No. 62 be referred to the Committee on Finance; and Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her on both measures, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose to speak in support of both measures with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Regarding S.C.R. 1084 and 1085, I stand in strong reservations. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. If I just may add a few comments. As I'm looking at the Haiku Stairs, it dawned on me that part of it is owned by the Department of Transportation, the Board of Water Supply, and DHHL. Yet, in this resolution, it states that the Board of Land and Natural Resources is to convene and chair a working group to develop the means to allow public access to the stairs area.

"It just seems, although well intended by the good Representative from the Kahaluu area or Heeia area, although well intended, I think that other departments need to be included in on this measure. Also, testimony was not provided by any of those other departments, but only the Department of Land and Natural Resources, in which it appeared they supported the measure. For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I stand in strong reservations. Thank you."

Representative Ito rose in opposition to both measures and asked that the remarks of Representative Awana be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him on both measures, and the Chair "so ordered."

"Thank you, please note the same."

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in strong support. The reason why I am in strong support, to the Members of this Body, this is just another unit where it is part of an overall complex that is now being sold. There are a lot of other units within that complex that were previously sold, and the Hawaii Housing Finance and Development Corporation is trying to sell it off to those particular renters and lessees who are on these units, to give them the opportunity of owning their units in fee. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and H.C.R. No. 15, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION APPROVING THE SALE OF THE LEASED FEE INTEREST IN 41-669 INOAOLE STREET, WAIMANALO, HAWAII," was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Awana, Hanohano and Jordan voting no, and with Representatives Lowen, Souki, Takai and Wooley being excused.

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of both measures, stating:

"Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. On both resolutions, in support. I just want to flag for the Members that these are very important resolutions, along with the legislation that we are considering, because in talking with the nurses and others at the various hospitals, there are a lot of cost drivers going on, and I actually have been trying to introduce the hospital to companies that have successfully reduced electrical costs by over 60 percent. So I'm hoping that through these resolutions they will take these efforts seriously and address a lot of these cost drivers, which are causing these hospitals to run in the red. Thank you very much."

Representative Belatti rose to speak in support of both measures, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In strong support. I'd just like to thank and acknowledge the good Representative from the Kahala, Kaimuki area who's been really attentive to this issue, both on the Finance Committee and the Health Committee on which he sits. Thank you."

"Mr. Speaker, if I could request a ruling on a potential conflict. My family has an egg farm. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Fale rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, just a request for a ruling on a potential conflict. We don't do livestock now, but my farm is looking into it. Thank you, Mr. Speaker," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2293, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO AGRICULTURE," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representative Wooley, for the Committee on Agriculture, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1112-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2913, SD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred jointly to the Committee on Consumer Protection & Commerce and the Committee on Judiciary.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2913, SD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO AGRICULTURE," passed Second Reading and was referred jointly to the Committee on Consumer Protection & Commerce and the Committee on Judiciary, with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representative Wooley, for the Committee on Agriculture, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1113-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2347, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2347, SD 2, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations and a brief comment. Mr. Speaker, clearly we have been invaded by invasive species. Some things are out of control. Our economy is hurting. Agricultural nurseries and others are very concerned that right now we're getting very serious about it, but when we get serious about it, we have to be serious about how.

"Mr. Speaker, we have a clear and present danger of the invasive species in our state. Coqui frogs, red ants, anything. And we failed, actually, in our inspection, our quarantines.

"But now we are coming the exact opposite with a pendulum that's going to strike hard, and even though it's a blank, there's a $10,000 fee that is going to be a minimum, at which some of our small nursery holders are very concerned about. I was in touch with some of the Hawaii Kai nurseries this morning, and they're going to have a big meeting in Waimanalo next week. They want to make sure everything is even-handed, Mr. Speaker, and that's why I'm with reservations on this.

"We can't put it on those who don't have the control. What the nursery owner told me was that under this bill there's about 100 pests, 100 pests that they will be responsible for. Some of which they've never even heard of. So, Mr. Speaker, we need to nuance, measure, and be fair and balanced on this. It's very important. We can't succumb to the invasive species, the way we have in the past, but we must do it, and do it well. And I'm sure that's why we're deliberating this bill as we are now. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Onishi rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with strong reservations. I'd like to include the words of the Representative from Hawaii Kai as part of what I would like to say. This bill is well intentioned, but it doesn't provide for the department to first establish and work with the industry to come up with processes and procedures to address this issue. As the speaker from Hawaii Kai mentioned, it imposes penalties on the people that we want to encourage to continue agriculture and development of agriculture in the State of Hawaii. And with that, I stand with strong reservations."

Representative Wooley rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support, and if I could also insert written comments. Just a couple words. I want to first emphasize the importance of reading the bill. So, currently this bill has no penalty amount specified. Second, I just want to emphasize that the coqui frog and the little fire ant are good examples of one of the biggest problems we face in the state. And that is that there's really no incentive for businesses to take responsibility and prevent the spread of invasive species.

"At this moment, it's the state that's responsible. And as a result, we have had bad actors who have not taken responsibility, and they have been shipping the little fire ant and the coqui frog throughout the islands. That is why we have this bill. They need to take some responsibility, and they need to take actions that will prevent the spread of these devastating invasive species.

"This bill is taking a step in the right direction. It certainly still has some work to do. Adjusting the defective date would be a first, in my opinion. But we cannot have the state continue to make herculean efforts to address invasive species, if our businesses are unwilling to cooperate and implement. Under current law, even if they intentionally are spreading these species, there is no consequence for them financially. We need to change that. Thank you."

Representative Wooley's written remarks are as follows:

"This bill is critical in our fight against invasive species, and this discussion should have happened 30 years ago. If it had happened, the biological crisis we are facing would not exist today. This bill reflects a potential policy shift, beginning an invaluable policy discussion. The very nursery organizations in opposition are the ones that need this bill to stay in business. Simply said, if there is not enough incentive to prevent intrastate transportation, we will have more invasive species and their infestations will continue to get worse.

"You know, the DOA has had its own challenges doing what's right for the public interest and recognizing the critical need for this bill, but I appreciate that they finally came in with proposed changes they support and that will work for everyone. We adopted all of their recommendations and look forward to continuing to work with them and HISC to fight this problem.

"Although there may still be a few naysayers, I ask you, what is the alternative? Adequate funds for inspections and prevention will only work if businesses have the incentive not to continue to sell products infested with invasive species, like the coqui frog, little fire ant, or worse. From what we know now, there are enough businesses doing exactly that (because it's cheaper) and, as a result, the entire state is currently facing the most challenging biological crisis ever. We can and we must do better. This bill is the only vehicle addressing these critical issues.

"Colleagues, let me be clear in response to some of your comments: this bill changed significantly from its original version. It appears that many of the reservations or opposition expressed today are based on totally misinformed and incorrect information – wake up, because you people are looking at the wrong bill. Please read the bill and stop making totally false statements. The previous speakers, identifying a $10,000 penalty in the bill, are wrong and failed to do their homework. You can see they did not even read the bill. So let me go through some of the changes that make this bill so very different from the one that the Representative from Hawaii Kai talked about.

"The criminal violation section of the bill was completely removed. Requirements for nurseries to treat and to pay for extermination costs if the pest came from them was deleted. We also blanked out the amount of the civil penalty so we could continue to discuss what kind of hammer can be used to provide the right incentives for businesses and make sure they will do what's right for the public interest. We also completely removed the requirement that all nursery stock be treated prior to inter-island shipment. We also deleted the requirement that nurseries or landscapers who fail to treat before transporting plants infested with little fire ants or coqui frogs pay for extermination costs if those pests infest other properties.

"The Committee on Agriculture also deleted requirements that DOA designate quarantine areas and instead gave DOA the authority to designate a quarantine area if it has been determined to be infested with the designated pest. We also added language to authorize DOA to enter into compliance agreements with any entity to allow for commercial activities in quarantine area. Finally, we deleted the county authorization to adopt rules and have authority to impose penalties until DOA implements these provisions.

"One thing we added to this bill to improve it was to give the DOA the authority to inspect facilities, which currently they can only do with permission or a court order.

"Government cannot control this issue alone, private industry must be part of the solution. Nurseries' participation in this policy is critical as they are in the best position of being able to control the spread of these invasive species that threaten our economy, health, ability to grow food, environment and quality of life.

"Studies have shown that little fire ants, coqui frogs and many other invasive species were introduced and spread through nurseries. Invasive species have cost our state many millions of dollars and the cost of losing our agriculture, native species and forests cannot be quantified.

"I recognize this bill may not be perfect for everyone at this time, I get that. But there is no more important bill this session. To address any concerns, the bill can easily be amended by, for example, having a two year implementation period to allow for the kinks to be worked out.

"I ask you all not to turn your backs on the best policy option on the table this session – move this bill forward and let's pass some laws that serve the public interest. Let's not fail to do the right thing simply because a few bad actors don't want change. And let's please, please, stop listening to the uninformed that don't even spend the time to read the bills before opposing them."

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, rising with strong reservations. First, may I have the words adopted of the Representative from Hawaii Kai and the Representative of Hilo. Mr. Speaker, this bill is going to have a directly negative impact on an industry, the agriculture industry, that we're really trying to promote. This is going to act as a strong deterrent because it's hanging a sword over those who may engage in this activity, which potentially does carry the risk, whether intentional or not, of spreading, of introducing invasive species.

"But I think, Mr. Speaker, as we approach the issue, we have to make sure that we are not going to bring the hammer down on those who we're trying to promote to get into agriculture, and make sure that the penalties kind of outweigh the benefits of what we could see in the State of Hawaii, Mr. Speaker, as we struggle to really get the agriculture industry going. So, for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I have very strong reservations."

Representative Tsuji rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

Representative McDermott rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Thielen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'm going to up the ante. No vote on this and the following measure, and a brief comment please. Mr. Speaker, we know there is a famous saying about, if it moves, tax it, if it keeps moving, regulate it, if it stops moving, subsidize it. And here we are, something that is already, just what, six, eight months old, and it's already dead in its tracks. It's unsustainable.

"This is the connector that had $205 million, of which it spent half of it, $48 million dollars on a website that I understand doesn't hardly even work yet. It was supposed to get 50,000 people signed up, and it's got 5,000 people signed up. And what we're doing now is subsidizing it by saying you don't have to be a private or 501(c)3, we want to take you in and be a part of the government. And by the way we're going to assess everybody's policy 3 percent, so the price of all of our health premiums go up.

"Mr. Speaker, what are we doing here? How did we get here, and how do we get out of this? I don't think we get out of it by saying, yes, let's subsidize it and bring it in, and then make the health cost of our people go up even higher. Mr. Speaker, we've got to do a better way. This is something for those who don't have coverage to get coverage. HMSA and Kaiser did a great job of recruiting and saying when open regulations, and open sign-ups were there. They did a great job.

"The whole connector's purpose was to promote and educate about Obamacare. We've got good private sector people who did that. And instead of choosing to do a national effort, we chose our own website, and now we're stuck and we're in a hole. I know one of my friends, the good Senator from East Honolulu, is calling for an investigation of this process in the Hawaii State Senate. And if necessary, he's probably going to go to court over this.

"You shouldn't have $205 million thrown back on the State of Hawaii, when we can't even make whole the Hurricane Relief Fund, and we have the unfunded liabilities, et cetera, et cetera, et cetera, Mr. Speaker.

"For those reasons, we need to rethink this whole connector issue and the national healthcare program that we're entering into. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Belatti rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. Mr. Speaker, we know that this bill and the next bill related to the Hawaii Health Connector are works in progress. I think as we move closer and closer to conference, the picture is becoming clearer, the pathway is becoming clearer.

"We are learning on a day-by-day, week-by-week basis what monies we are going to be able to use and continue to draw down for the Hawaii Health Connector. And so, what we're looking at in this bill is coming to a point where we're going to know what kind of appropriation will be needed.

"I would remind all of us that the reason why the state chose, as a matter of policy, to go with a state-based exchange, is because we needed to ensure the compliance and the meshing of both the Affordable Care Act with the Prepaid Health Care Act.

"While some of the criticisms leveled at the Hawaii Health Connector are warranted, Mr. Speaker, I would say that your members on the Committee on Health and the Committee on Consumer Protection & Commerce have been doing their due diligence throughout this session, and we are continuing to do that.

"So, as this bill moves forward, we need to keep those options open, so that we can in fact design a process that at the end of the day does not undermine the Prepaid Health Care Act, which is the basis of healthcare for the majority of the citizens in this state. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with very strong reservations. Mr. Speaker, we were the first ones out of the shoot saying that we were going to move forward with this, with the website, we're going to do the Hawaii Health Connector. Our Governor was the first one to say, 'Okay, we're going to make this happen.' And I think, Mr. Speaker, that not only has it not delivered what it said it was going to deliver, and not only has it not lowered the cost it said it was going to lower. But, Mr. Speaker, $205 million later and there's issues with the way that money was spent, we still can't even do what we, and as the previous speaker said, 'day-by-day, week-by-week.'

"Mr. Speaker, we don't mess with the people of Hawaii that way. Mr. Speaker, if we promise we're going to deliver 50,000 people who were supposed to sign up, and we get 10 percent or less than what we intended, what we said we were going to do. Mr. Speaker, we need to go back and revisit the whole thing, and make sure that we're actually walking down the path that we should be walking down. Because, Mr. Speaker, as it looks right now, the trajectory we're on is not a good one, in regards to the trust and faith of the people of Hawaii, and us being able to deliver what we said we were going to deliver. For those reasons, I think we need to severely alter the course that we're on."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. First, I would like the words of the Chair of Health adopted as if they were my own. To make sure we're all on the same page, as obviously previous speakers seem to keep bringing up previous versions of the bill to which this does not reflect. Mr. Speaker, this does not put the connector in as a state agency. This does not mandate a universal 3percent fee, which suddenly has been ascertained to this bill.

"Mr. Speaker, what this bill is, is a work in progress. And actually, the speaker from Laie had a lot of good points. It's not to bless the acts of the past, Mr. Speaker, it's to rectify them. So that our citizens do, under a federal mandate, and I will repeat this many times, under a federal mandate, that those citizens who could take advantage of this, those with preexisting conditions and others, those who can get the tax credits, can do so without this turning into a huge largess creature with a market that will not sustain it, which is the subject for the next bill.

"Mr. Speaker, if you look at this bill, we continue to put more and more oversight and controls into the connector to do exactly what the speaker of Laie said. Mr. Speaker, we have an oversight committee. We put them under 42F, which has a whole stipulation of things that private nonprofit entities have to abide by to receive any kind of state funds.

"The speaker from Wahiawa, who on our committee had concerns with the fees, supported us on this iteration because, and I do not want to put any words, but because we're trying a more responsible mechanism, is through an appropriation.

"And Mr. Speaker, your committee noted that we still do not have a sustainability plan. In the committee report we note this, which is why we make an appropriation of $1, Mr. Speaker, $1. That is to say to the connector, if we don't have a sustainability plan now, if we don't have a fixed cost now, then the appropriation will be not one that will sustain the entity that has to act responsible.

"We know that the market may not support the connector, Mr. Speaker. We know that the private portals are in the best position, as the speaker from Hawaii Kai said. But under the federal mandate, the process to do that is the innovation waiver, which is in 2017.

"So, Mr. Speaker, we are trying to make sure that what was federally mandated upon us, what others have created, will be in the best interest of Hawaii. And again, as the speaker of Health pointed out, with which the Attorney General himself said, if we say pull the plug, let the feds come in, run their own exchange, we risk losing our prepaid and our ERISA exemption, Mr. Speaker.

"It's a work in progress and I appreciate the concerns and criticisms that have come forward, but I just hope, Mr. Speaker, we can focus on, this is not an up or down, it's not a vote on the connector. What it is, is a way to try to make it accountable, transparent, Mr. Speaker. And to evolve it into the area, which has already been discussed, where private issuers could have a lot of the shop and individual programs. And we can get our Medicaid population through the KOLEA program, Mr. Speaker. Thank you very much. Additional comments into the Journal."

Representative McKelvey's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, these advisory groups serve to provide input to the Connector board, all for the stakeholders involved and to further facilitate meaningful discussion. Moreover, this measure clarifies that the Hawaii Health Connector is the official state health care exchange of Hawaii. Most importantly, Mr. Speaker this measure requires the Health Connector to submit a sustainability plan to the Oversight Council to determine the amount of funding needed for the fiscal year.

"Mr. Speaker, I find it ironic that the minority would be decrying a bill that addresses the very grievances they have raised here today. In fact, this bills applies methodologies of fiscal review, namely zero-based budgeting, which both they and the national groups like ALEC have endorsed. This bill not only creates, to the best of the ability of the state, fiscal oversight for a federally recognized 501(c)(3) but also subjects any funding it receives to the strict process outlined in 42F which is a stringent set of rules that non-profits must adhere to in order to receive state funding. The measure also removes any fee or tax upon all health plans as was in previous versions of discussion. So all this talk of becoming a state agency or having a fee on all is continuing a discussion which has already stopped.

"Now, one would be more than happy to just chuck the whole thing and go on to other items before your committee but I cannot in good conscience do that and endanger our Pre-Paid Act and our ERISA exemption. How would that be, Mr. Speaker? Well, it is because if we chuck in the towel on the exchange and let it die federally it is still the law of the land and therefore the feds will come in and run their own exchange in Hawaii.

"There have been many pundits form the Mainland who have said that we could let the feds run the exchange and Hawaii would not lose Pre-Paid or our ERISA exemption, while scores of local attorneys and experts have argued otherwise. Even if it be stated without a doubt that if that happens we won't lose our ERISA exemption and Prepaid won't be sunsetted, it would still widen our uninsured gap by creating a pervasive culture of businesses jumping to the fed connector to buy plans that are not prepaid compliant. These plans then could be sold to businesses on the exchange, thereby increasing our effective under-insured gap by creating a mechanism for the valid sale of benefit poor rate rich plans that are not prepaid compliant.

"Furthermore, your committee has shown the most fiscal austerity by noting that since a sustainability plan outlined along the requirements have not been represented as of yet it's clearly unknown what funding if any is needed, which is why your committee gave the total of $1. We force the Connector before it evolves through the innovation waiver process to aggressively look elsewhere for additional revenue streams including the use of online ads on the Health Connector website.

"Finally, this bill creates the ultimate accountability insofar as it sunsets the whole kit and caboodle when the innovation waivers should hopefully be granted, unless we can somehow get our congressional delegation to help us implement the process now. To those who vote with reservations I say then offer me a better mousetrap to provide oversight over a federally mandated non-profit entity for the next two years. Because absent that, Mr. Speaker, I think this bill finally puts in place what should have been there from the very beginning, absent those very same waivers to begin with."

Representative Fukumoto rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With reservations and just a brief comment. I appreciate the attempts that have been made to improve this, and I understand that we have a problem that we need to fix, but I have very serious concerns about the direction that we're going. So, thank you."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Matsumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, second time. Still with strong reservations. The problem with this measure is that it establishes a new fee. So what we're saying is, is that whether it's the federal government, whether it was the state. The federal government gave us the money, whether the federal government mandates screwed it up, or whether we screwed it up with what we failed to deliver here in the State of Hawaii.

"What we're essentially saying with this new fee, is that, you have to pay for the mistakes that we made. And that's where I think it's severely problematic to say, we messed it up, now you pay for it. And so that new fee, Mr. Speaker, I think is something that is problematic and the message needs to be different."

Representative McKelvey rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, second time. I will take this offline, but I would love to have somebody point out where this new fee exists in this language, because we did create a revolving fund, but there is no fee. We removed it in the previous committees. Thank you very much."

Representative Ward rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, just a brief footnote, to clarify. The sword that is hanging over this that says we've got to do it, is because our ERISA exemption is in jeopardy. Mr. Speaker, I ask you and I ask this Body, how many times have we assured the people of Hawaii, Hawaii's Prepaid Health Care Act is going to pursue and continue on as it is? We will have this since the good Senator Inouye promised this to all of the State of Hawaii, and every member of the delegation has said this.

"So to say that if we don't do this, we're going to have our ERISA exemption pulled, I think this is a bit of a switch and bait, a bit of inside baseball that we've been playing with the people of Hawaii. If that is in fact true, if in effect we don't have an exemption of our Health Care Act, let's be straight up with the people of Hawaii. Let's not use that as another way to increase their fees and another way to excuse otherwise, building a bureaucracy based on a failed system that was supposed to be independent and a 501(c)3. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committees was adopted and S.B. No. 2470, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE HAWAII HEALTH CONNECTOR," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representative Takayama rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, please register a no vote for me. Mr. Speaker, this measure paves the way for construction of three residential high rises in our last remaining ocean side open space in Kakaako Makai. I believe there is still opportunity to explore alternatives that both support OHA and preserve our precious open space."

Representative McKelvey rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Takayama be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative McDermott rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Choy rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, potential conflict of interest. I'm a beneficiary of the current open access to the shoreline area. Thank you, Mr. Speaker," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Oshiro then asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Carroll rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Carroll's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, please note my reservations regarding SB 3122, allowing the Hawaii Community Development Authority (HCDA) to approve residential development on lands owned by the Office of Hawaiian Affairs (OHA), specifically the Kaka'ako Makai area. This has been opposed by a large portion of the community and residents in that area for some time, which is why a ban on residential development was enacted in 2006. Here we are in 2014 and the community is still just as opposed, for the same reasons as before. In fact, little has been done to ease the fears of the public regarding residential development in this area. We should address the public's concerns on this measure before we make any decision that would drastically affect those living in the Kaka'ako area.

"Furthermore, OHA is supposed to utilize ceded lands for the betterment of the native Hawaiian community. I also should add that, the ceded land controlled by OHA is being held in trust for the native Hawaiian people. For OHA to go against this dynamic would be contrary to its mission. My fear is that this measure will not only negatively impact the native Hawaiian community in the Kaka'ako area, but the entire native Hawaiian community as a whole, resulting in more financial losses for native Hawaiians due to further mismanagement of crown lands.

"There is a reason for the 2006 prohibition of residential development in Kaka'ako Makai. It is not just because of the intense community opposition, it also has a lot to do with the fact that it is one of the last open public spaces along the south shore. It is due to these reasons, Mr. Speaker, that I have reservations in regards to this measure.

"Mr. Speaker and distinguished Members of this Body, I urge everyone to please take careful consideration of this bill and to note my reservations on SB 3122. Thank you."

Representative Kobayashi rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Thielen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With some slight reservations and may I say a few words. My reservation is actually with Section 1. I do appreciate a pilot program in regards to Section 1, but my reservation is requiring every 7th grader to have a physical before being able to attend public school. So, I'm open to hearing some more dialogue before we get to the finish line on this measure, Mr. Speaker. Thank you."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Carroll rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2246, SD 2, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Rhoads rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I would request to be excused from voting on this measure. The Attorney General, one of the amendments that they suggested to the committee, well into the process of hearing the bill, one of the claimants is a friend of mine who appeared in one of my campaign ads, and I would like to be excused from this measure."

At 12:58 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 1:03 o'clock p.m.

Representative Rhoads continued, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I would like to be excused from this vote because of my direct personal interest in the outcome. Thank you very much."

The Chair then stated:

"Excuse granted."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2246, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT MAKING APPROPRIATIONS FOR CLAIMS AGAINST THE STATE, ITS OFFICERS, OR ITS EMPLOYEES," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Rhoads, Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1169-14) recommending that S.B. No. 225, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 225, SD 1, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Fale rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations regarding SB 225, SD 1, HD 1, a measure that relates to elections by adding a definition of 'residency' to rules for determining residency in the State of Hawaii.

"Mr. Speaker, this measure seeks to eliminate ambiguity regarding the question of residency for election purposes. My concern, Mr. Speaker, is that there may be unintended consequences of excluding certain classes of people from being counted as residents. Two examples come to mind. First, will the homeless living in our state be counted? Second, will military personnel stationed in our state be counted as residents?

"Mr. Speaker, these are important issues that remain unclear. Because the United States Constitution requires that a national census be conducted every 10 years for the purpose of sending representatives to the United States Congress, this is a serious matter.

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations regarding SB 225, SD 1, HD 1."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 225, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ELECTIONS," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1170-14) recommending that S.B. No. 632, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 632, SD 2, HD 1 be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McDermott rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Kawakami rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With reservations and just brief comments. I think it should be noted that the Judiciary as well as the Department of Land and Natural Resources made it clear that based on the number of cases in circuit court, this is an unwarranted and unnecessary measure.

"If we're talking about the number of cases in district court, now usually those are infractions and penalties. The Department of Land and Natural Resources noted that many of these infractions that end up being district court matters fall within their purview. Oftentimes they are issues dealing with some type of penalty in association with a hunting license, fishing license, or what not.

"So there were two resolutions that the Department of Land and Natural Resources was advocating for, saying that they felt that they would be able to take care of these matters internally, thereby reducing the backlog, in the docket, in the district court. So both the Department of Land and Natural Resources and the Judiciary felt this bill was unnecessary, and really there was a better way to go about it through the resolutions that would, in fact, reduce the number of cases in the district court rather than going in this direction. So for those reasons, with reservations. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, permission to have the words of the prior speaker entered into the Journal as my own. And also, for those very reasons, I'll be voting no on this measure, Mr. Speaker. Thank you," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Tokioka rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Very strong reservations, Mr. Speaker. May I ask that the words from the Representative from Kapolei be inserted into the Journal as if they were my own. Thank you," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Awana rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Har be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2266, SD 1, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, please note my reservations. My reservations around this revolves around the General Excise exemption for certain projects proposed in here. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2266, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HOUSING," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representative Wooley, for the Committee on Agriculture, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1173-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2296, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2296, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE DISPOSITION OF LANDS MANAGED BY THE STATE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representative Wooley, for the Committee on Agriculture, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1174-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2658, SD 3, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred jointly to the Committee on Energy & Environmental Protection and the Committee on Water & Land.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2658, SD 3, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred jointly to the Committee on Energy & Environmental Protection and the Committee on Water & Land, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Thielen rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you. Mr. Speaker, I am rising with serious reservations on Senate Bill 2658. Mr. Speaker, this bill will allow solar energy facilities to occupy more than 10 percent of a parcel or 20 acres of land within an agricultural land with soil classified with a rating of B or C. I support solar energy facilities, I support the continued use of solar to reduce our dependence on fossil fuel, and I also support class B lands and protecting them for agricultural use.

"The bill says that if a special use permit has been granted, and if that area on the class B land occupied by the solar facility is also made available for compatible agricultural activities, then it's okay. My concern is that under the law and under the bill, there's no follow-up if you are granted a special use permit, and the solar company puts it out for Ag use at a reduced cost, which is good. But then there's no follow-up to see is that actually going on that land, or does solar ultimately become the primary tenant of the land.

"When I take a look at the island of Oahu, there are 11 TMK parcels, Mr. Speaker, of at least 100 acres. I believe that those that are more familiar with agriculture than I am know that if you have 100 acres, you're going to have a more viable agricultural operation that will really help reduce our dependence on imported food. At least 80 percent of these are rated B in the agricultural district. They're not within an urban growth boundary and they're not federally owned.

"So we have 11 parcels. Some of those, the solar companies will be seeking to use for their facilities and then going ahead and making some of the class B land available for agricultural use. Fine, that's fine. But what if they don't, and what does the bill say? Does the bill say when a special use permit is issued, that the Land Use Commission has the authority or the responsibility to check to make sure that those conditions are being met? And the answer is 'no'.

"And that's a big flaw in the bill, Mr. Speaker. That's something that we have time to amend in subsequent committees. To put the teeth into it, so we achieve two objectives on class B land, Ag and renewable energy. And we have the teeth as a state to make sure that both of those are moving ahead as they should.

"So at this point, because of that omission in the bill, I'm standing with serious reservations, and asking Members if they would like to see a copy of this map, to come see me. But to look at them to say, we need to put teeth into the bill to make sure that conditions issued with that special use permit, the SUP, are abided by. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2658, SD 3, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO SOLAR ENERGY," passed Second Reading and was referred jointly to the Committee on Energy & Environmental Protection and the Committee on Water & Land, with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representatives Carroll and Hashem, for the Committee on Human Services and the Committee on Housing, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1175-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2540, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committees be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2540, SD 2, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Please note my reservations and may I say a few words? Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I note that the Department of Human Services, which this is going to be implemented through, has not submitted any testimony in any of these previous hearings. And I find that a little concerning, when that department may have to administer such a program as this.

"I think we should look at the programs that are already being provided in the outside realm before we move to create this program through a department at this point in time, Mr. Speaker. So that would be my reservations moving forward, and I look forward to hearing the discussion in the Finance Committee. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committees was adopted and S.B. No. 2540, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HOUSING," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

No. 2205, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TAXATION," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representative Carroll, for the Committee on Human Services, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1178-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2202, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2202, SD 1, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2202, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TAX CREDITS," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representative Lee, for the Committee on Energy & Environmental Protection, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1179-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2196, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2196, SD 2, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McDermott rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cullen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Kawakami rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Lee rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you. Very briefly, Mr. Speaker, in support. I'll just note that this bill is important for two big reasons. The first is that it encompasses the fund, which supports our environmental cleanup and response. So, when we had a molasses spill, the response from the state was funded by this particular fund in question, whose expiration we are extending here to ensure that we're going to be able to do that into the future.

"Right now, there's an ongoing investigation with the state and cleanup with the Red Hill fuel spill, which is leaking fuel oil into our water table, which the Board of Water Supply thinks could potentially be a problem, if it ends up being put forward into the uptake for the Board of Water Supply wells. It's critical that we have the ability to respond in kind, to do the proper investigation to ensure that we as a state can move forward in the appropriate way to respond in a timely manner to these cases.

"Secondly and the second point why this is so important, and I'd argue even more important, is because since 2009 the cost of fuel oil here in the state has risen 86 percent. And what that means for the average person is that the cost of electricity has in turn risen 81 percent. Now that's money that we don't control because we are still entirely dependent on the global oil world market, and that's not going to change anytime soon.

"But with our state standards, our renewable portfolio standards, taking this away from that model and toward a model of relying on locally produced renewable energy, we are cutting down our costs for our local residents. In fact, the PUC in its five year review, it's found that $66.8 million has been saved for ratepayers here in the state. That's $66.8 million saved because we've made these investments in renewable energy. We have a state lead energy agency, which is pushing this along, which is saving everybody money. Whether you're on solar, whether you're not. As long as you're a customer of a utility here in the state, that's money that's back in your pocket.

"We have a trajectory to continue forward until 2030. And that means infinitely more and more money that we're going to be saving year after year as the price of oil continues to climb. And as we continue our renewable energy goals, saving more for families each and every year.

"But that's only going to happen if we have the infrastructure and ability to do that, to lead the way as a state, and to make sure we follow through. And the funding for all of that, the funding to save our residents money, to save our families money in the long term and to get us off of our dependency on imported oil, is contained within this bill. For those reasons, in support."

Representative Thielen rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, if I may just cast a very strong 'yes' vote and ask that the remarks of the Chair of Energy & Environmental Protection be placed into the Journal as if they were my own," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Aquino rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Matsumoto rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, slight reservations please."

Representative Fale rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, still in opposition. Mr. Speaker, as we march forward with our renewable energy portfolio standards and all the renewable energy related efforts, Mr. Speaker, we have failed to give accountability for the impact that these renewable energy efforts are going to have on communities where these renewable efforts are going to go into.

"Mr. Speaker, when I asked the PUC and those who testified in regards to the renewable energy effort, whether any of the communities that are going to be directly impacted by the renewable energy sources, whether or not they have been consulted in this process, the answer was no, Mr. Speaker.

"Mr. Speaker, we have countries like the United Kingdom which have banned any further use of windmills within their communities. We have a number of communities, Mr. Speaker, here in the State of Hawaii, that are in opposition to any more of these windmills going in, when it is clearly a part of the renewable portfolio standards that more windmills will go into the State of Hawaii. We have the Governor who made an announcement for the purchase of 20,000 acres of land to put more windmills in Central and North Oahu, which is severely opposed by the communities out there, Mr. Speaker. And none of those communities have been requested to provide input as far as how those renewables are going to impact them directly.

"Also, Mr. Speaker, as a matter of transparency and accountability in regards to the use of those funds, I asked the departments related to this matter if they could give accountability, especially the Department of Agriculture, in regards to food security and how the money has been used and what strides have been made directly related to the expenditures from this fund, Mr. Speaker, and they could give zero accountability. Zero.

"And so, Mr. Speaker, as a matter of transparency, as a matter of accountability so that I can relay to my community how we're spending their funds, what measures of success we're seeing so that I can advocate for measures like this, Mr. Speaker. But because that is clearly not there at this point, it puts me in a position where I cannot support this bill, Mr. Speaker. And until those factors of accountability and transparency are given to the people in the State of Hawaii, Mr. Speaker, I must continue to be opposed to this measure."

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2196, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ENERGY," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Fale, Fukumoto, Hanohano and McDermott voting no, and with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representatives Lee and McKelvey, for the Committee on Energy & Environmental Protection and the Committee on Consumer Protection & Commerce, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1180-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2934, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committees be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2934, SD 2, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, reservations, brief comment. Mr. Speaker, this is a good bill with a good intention, but it's not a priority and it may take our eye off the game. This is talking about community-based renewable energy projects. Mr. Speaker, we can't even keep up with what out there is a demand to get solar on every roof, which is the mantra of my office.

"There are, as of last of week, a reported 1,000 rogue PV systems out there. Meaning that people have lost patience with their government, with their utility, and are just winging it and hooking themselves up.

"Mr. Speaker, this thing that makes the PUC and the electric companies that take their eye off the game, take their eye off the ball, I think, is premature. I think it's something that we have to consider in the long run, but it's a rather esoteric, rather more of a cerebral thing. If you don't live in a place that's got a roof, you can get it indirectly through another one or a field or another condo.

"I think it's great, but right now we can't even keep up with what we've got on our plate. So, Mr. Speaker, those are my reservations. And I hope the PUC and HECO doesn't get involved in stuff like this and forget those 1,000 rogue guys out there, who are creating generations and maybe blackouts in other places, of which right now, HECO said there's no penalties, there's no investigation going on. But it's getting momentum to where we need to focus on getting ourselves really into the PV and seriously for those 1,000 that are not hooked up. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Oshiro rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I need to disclose a potential conflict of interest. I own some stocks in Hawaiian Electric Company," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Oshiro then asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Just with reservations, Mr. Speaker. And they actually have to do with the language in the bill itself. I hope we can address them, because I believe it's very wide open ended at this point, and I have a lot of concerns. Thanks."

Representative Ito rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"I also have stocks in Hawaiian Electric," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Ito then asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose in opposition to the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise to speak against S.B. No. 2934, SD 2, HD 1.

"The proposed House Draft 1 (1) mandates the Commission to establish a community-based renewable energy 'TARIFF,' (2) allows anyone to propose a project, (3) allows an electric utility to propose a project and (4) standardizes the 'Tariff.'

"I am interested in exploring a community-based renewable energy program model that offers the potential for providing LOWER cost renewable energy and economic benefits to ALL customers (not just those investing in a community-based renewable energy project) that can be safely and reliably integrated in the grid.

"Like all legislation, the devil of course will be in the details in regards to the definition of 'anyone' of subsection (b) and the interpretation of subsection (d) in defining what community based renewable energy tariffs and related interconnection processes shall, to the extent possible be 'standardized,' by the PUC. Let us hope that there will not be unintended consequences.

"Finally, the committee should consider HCR No. 71 in analyzing and considering the appropriateness of amending the regulatory structure applicable to electric utilities in light of ongoing developments in the deployment of RENEWABLE energy.

"It is for these reasons above that I do not support HD 1. Thank you."

Representative Lee rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, thank you. I almost didn't get up. I was almost going to save it, but just very briefly, in support. I just want to note that this is a measure which is not new. It's a concept which is being implemented around the nation. The idea is that our current rates of solar adoption, which are extremely popular, our rates of alternative energy, in which people can save money themselves by putting panels on their own home or finding other means other than just relying on a utility, is obviously the most popular. Because it is the only way that residents can truly save money on their own bill and take control of their electric bill and put it in their own hands.

"Except that, if you don't have a roof over your head, if you live in a condo, if you live in a community where you don't have that option because you live in a homeowners association that to this point doesn't have the facilities capable of supporting that. If you're in a community that is maxed out, where there's enough solar on the grid that all of sudden you can't come on because the utility says, 'we are at our limit.' If you're the Department of Education, and you're trying to put solar, according to our statewide goals, on the roof of every school to save them money, to incorporate that into their curriculum, but you can't for those same reasons, this bill provides a measure of relief and a solution and a way to move forward.

"Because what it does is allows folks who don't have that opportunity to take advantage of it. To buy into a solar array or a renewable energy project elsewhere, somewhere else in the grid, perhaps in a different circuit in a different community where there is lots of space to connect renewable generation.

"And so it's a way to detach the physical sighting of your solar on your own roof, to buy in somewhere else. So for example, if a Costco down the way wants to put solar across their entire roof and make it available to all the condo owners in the area, those condo owners can buy into that project and get the same savings as anyone else. At the same time, Costco makes money too, leasing their space. It's a win-win for everybody.

"The language in this bill is tailored very specifically so that the Public Utilities Commission will come up with a plan and a framework, just as they do with every other tariff to set out the rules and the ways in which renewable projects will apply, in ways in which the utility will respond and be able to allow everyone to connect, and everybody at the end of the day to save money. Thank you very much."

Representative Tokioka rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With strong reservations. I wasn't going to get up too, but I have a question, Mr. Speaker. Are these Second Reading bills? No, all of these bills are Second Reading bills? Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The Chair then stated:

"They're all Second Reading bills. So we don't need too much discussion on this, that's what the Representative was trying to say."

Representative Say rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, since I'm the only one voting no, may I say a few words? The concern of this particular measure is very simple. We're mandating the PUC to create another tariff on the ratepayers and consumers. Yes, for those who have the community energy development area, may qualify. But what about those areas that don't? How are you going to subsidize those that don't have it? And this is the issue that we've been discussing on this Floor of the House in regards to photovoltaic cells on roofs.

"For those of you who have it, fantastic, your savings are great. But for those who don't have it, you're still paying the rates of what it is today, like myself. So at that hearing, I did state for the record, we all support solar, wind, alternative energy. But at the end of the day, have we done our homework in really evaluating what we are mandating the PUC to do?

"I wasn't going to say anything, Mr. Speaker, because right now in my written testimony to this House, I will be talking about a House Concurrent Resolution Number 71, which is requesting, Mr. Speaker and Members, urging the Public Utilities Commission to open a docket to consider the appropriateness of amending the regulatory structure applicable to electric utilities in light of ongoing developments and the deployment of renewable energy. Most Members don't know that we have a regulatory compact with the utility, and they had the monopoly.

"This particular resolution, which has not been heard at this point in time, will address the structural functions of this monopoly that we have today that was adopted many years ago. That's why I said to the Members of the House, Energy & Environmental Protection and the Consumer Protection Committee, I'm worried about the unintended consequences. That as those ratepayers who don't qualify for this particular program, those who don't qualify are the ones that are going to be paying for the present operations of the utilities that we have on Oahu.

"And it was for those reasons. Let's go back to the basics, which was the structural format of how the compact was created by the PUC and the Hawaiian Electric, or HEI, as you may call it, for the greater good. If the future holds that this structural idea regulatory format is not going to work in the next decade, let's look forward in changing it. But in the end, I don't know what's going to occur. But more importantly, for the record, this is a tariff that we're asking the PUC to consider. It is a tax increase to the consumer. Thank you."

Representative Lee rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you. In support and I'll be very brief. Just to make clear, there's nothing to do with increasing rates, fees, taxes. The tariff is the definition of the process creating the rules by which everyone will operate. I'll just end by noting that the whole point of the bill is to level the playing field, to make available the opportunity to save money to those who currently don't qualify. To make sure that it is not unfair for folks who can't adopt solar and have to be able to do that with everyone else subsidizing them. This is to level the playing field. Everyone will be able to then take advantage. That's the whole point. Thank you."

Representative Har rose, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Please change my reservations to a no vote, and may I please have the words of the Speaker Emeritus entered into the Journal as if they were my own. Thank you," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Fale rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Say be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Carroll rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committees was adopted and S.B. No. 2934, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO RENEWABLE ENERGY," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Har and Say voting no, and with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representatives Tsuji and Evans, for the Committee on Economic Development & Business and the Committee on Water & Land, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1181-14) recommending that S.B. No. 3066, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committees be adopted, and that S.B. No. 3066, SD 2, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ward rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, no vote, brief comment. Mr. Speaker, given the tenor and tone of the last three sessions, I am amazed that we have a bill here that says you can be exempt from the procurement code. Not that it's got the DNA of the PLDC, but it doesn't pass the smell test of the PLDC.

"This is not a necessary thing. Case in point, yesterday Hawaii Kai did a private-public partnership with five acres of lands. They didn't need the government to come in and get some kind of a blessing with a procurement exemption. It was simply the private sector cooperating with the public sector.

"Mr. Speaker, I'm not sure why this is coming forward, but I think we need to back off and let things cool down before we do this. And if it's not even with a pilot mentioned, it's something we can encourage offline rather than through a legislative process.

"So the point is, this is being done out there. Hawaii Kai did it yesterday. And it's something, I think, we shouldn't encourage to have in the state with procurement exemptions. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support, brief comment. Mr. Speaker, I think what this bill does is send up a flag, a message that I think we need to understand, Mr. Speaker, given the projections with the economy of going to zero percent growth. I think this is an indication that we have a private sector that is struggling and they're trying to send us a message that we need to improve the regulatory and tax environment under which they operate.

"Mr. Speaker, this is a symptom of trying to be able to allow some progress and some measure to move forward. Even though the previous speaker did identify that this has a potential to maneuver around some regulations, that's an indication that the private sector needs some help, and maybe this is a way that we can send a little help in their direction. For those reasons, I'm in support, Mr. Speaker."

Representative McKelvey rose in support of the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Fale be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Onishi rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Thielen rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cullen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Rhoads rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Lowen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Wooley rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committees was adopted and S.B. No. 3066, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE PUBLIC-PRIVATE FINANCE INITIATIVE," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representative Thielen voting no, and with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representative Nakashima, for the Committee on Labor & Public Employment, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1182-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2609, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2609, SD 1, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be referred to the Committee on Finance, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Tokioka rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Reservations. I do support a lot of the language in the bill, but especially the tip credit portion of the bill, I do not support. But I just want to make it clear that the portion of the minimum wage increases, I'm in strong support of that. But the rest of it, the tip credit, is strong reservations. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, the words, vote and sentiment of the gentleman from Kauai as my own, please," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative McDermott rose in opposition to the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative McDermott's written remarks are as follows:

"I respectfully oppose this bill, as it is counterproductive with regard to true economic prosperity. As the Hawaii Chamber of Commerce has noted:

> [T]he minimum wage is a floor wage. For many employees, it is their first job and generally, entry-level positions. Employers must invest time and money to train these individuals…While only a small percentage of workers make minimum wage, a large increase would greatly impact many businesses as they will be forced to raise the rates of many of their employees.

"The hourly amounts may 'seem' small, but as the Hawaii Food Industry Association has noted:

> The Prepaid Healthcare Act already makes Hawaii the most expensive state in the nation to do business. [The] Prepaid Healthcare Act already sets Hawaii's true current minimum wage at $10.87. The effect of this measure will be to raise that cost to $16.25 an hour by the end of the third year of increases for an employee that works 20 hours per week.

"I note that the problem with minimum wage increase bills is that they are all too often one-size-fits-all measures, often harmful to both businesses and to the employees the bills are intended to help. It is not easy being a small business owner, especially in this state. We should note the irony that there is no guarantee that the small business owner will receive a 'living wage' for his or her efforts, let alone make a profit. Yet we have no problem with trying to give entry-level workers a 'guaranteed' income, even though their bosses—often small business owners—endure regulations and costs that make the bosses' take-home pay subject to great uncertainty.

"I should also note that recently, over 500 economists sent a letter to President Obama and to Congress, opposing an increase in the minimum wage at the federal level.

"Some of the supporters of SB 2609 have said that not all minimum wage earners are young, entry-level employees, and that some such earners are older and have families. To that, I respond, that the bill is a Band-Aid to a deeper problem: Hawaii historically has had a horrible reputation for its education system. If today's older adults cannot compete with today's young teens, then I suggest that part of the problem is that those adults were robbed of a solid education as children. But that is the fault of the Department of Education—not the fault of employers. I strongly support, however, educational opportunities for adults. Let our community colleges help lower-skilled workers get the training they need, so that they can take their skills to the jobsite, and then earn higher wages.

"Ironically, today, I am fighting against the blatant political correctness that is taking over the DOE, in the form of Pono Choices and misleadingly labeled 'tolerance training'. I'm called a bigot because I would rather discard those distractions. I'd rather see students focus on reading, writing, arithmetic, science, and history. If the DOE follows my advice, and today's kids have a real education, then they will be the upwardly mobile, ready-to-work adults of tomorrow, and our minimum wage discussions will be moot."

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations and may I have the words of the Representative from Kauai adopted as my own. And just with a brief comment, Mr. Speaker. As in the measure prior to this one, where we're talking about the impact that it's going to have on the private sector. Mr. Speaker, we just got our growth numbers revised down to zero. We're looking at a health connector, a health care system that is severely going to impact the private sector. We have a whole host of regulations coming down the pipe, Mr. Speaker, that are really going to hurt the private sector and it's really injecting a lot of uncertainty, Mr. Speaker.

"If we don't pay attention to the signs that the private sector is trying to send us in regards to the growth vibrancy and vitality of that sector, Mr. Speaker, we need to make sure that we move forward with great measures of prudence in regards to the cost that we continue to pile up on these businesses, Mr. Speaker. And this is for the health and wellbeing of the entire State of Hawaii. So, with those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I'm still with reservations."

Representative Say rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, may I be consistent on this particular measure that I will be voting no, but I did share for the Members of this Body when the House bill went over, I did share with all of you that we already have a bill in conference and it limits us now to the wage increases and the tip credit. What it was, was the dollar amount of what the tip credit increase would have been.

"This particular measure on the tip credit side now has that threshold, which may make it very difficult for a lot of restaurants to determine how much tip credit the employees will get. So for those reasons, I'm not in opposition. Just that we do have a vehicle in conference that both sides had agreed last year that the wages were fine. It was just the tip credit, as far as the dollar amount and not the threshold. Thank you very much."

Representative Onishi rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Say be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Matsumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations as well, but for different reasons than the previous speakers, I believe. I don't see why the increases have to be so slow, and I have serious doubts about whether a tip credit is necessary at all. Maybe I'm eating at the wrong restaurants in Kalihi, but none of the wait staff that I deal with are getting rich at all. Thank you."

Representative Fukumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with reservations. May I please have the words of the Representative from Lihue entered into the Journal as if they were my own? And just one brief comment. Again, this version of the bill continues to ignore the fact that the poverty rate, that is the trigger in this bill, is not prorated to the number of hours worked. So the same poverty threshold is used for a 40 hour employee, as well as a 20 hour employee, making it quite plausible that none of our tipped employees will ever meet that poverty threshold. For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I am with strong reservations. Thank you."

Representative Ito rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representatives Tokioka and Har be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2609, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO MINIMUM WAGE," passed Second Reading and was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives McDermott and Say voting no, and with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

Representative McDermott rose in opposition to the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative McDermott's written remarks are as follows:

"I respectfully oppose this bill, as I believe that it is built on faulty assumptions, which make for bad public policy.

"The bill laments the thought that children might feel 'judged'. I make moral judgments regarding my children's behavior every day. If they do something right, then I praise them. If they do something wrong, I correct them. That is my right and duty as a parent.

"I note that during the March 20, 2014 Judiciary Committee hearing on this measure, I was floored by some of the statements from one of the bill's chief supporters. I am not going to state her name within these comments, as I have no desire to embarrass her. If anyone wishes to know the name of this testifier or her organization, however, please call or write to my office.

"During the hearing, she actually bemoaned the fact that minors can be arrested for running away from home, while adults aren't arrested from running away from home. The reality is that minors are not adults, and cannot be treated as such. The testifier also insisted that teens only run away from home if they are being abused. Either she is divorced from reality, or intellectually dishonest. I know of too many cases where the minor runs away from home because the parents disapprove of the minor's friends, or the minor doesn't like to follow rules. Yet the committee passed this bill, in part, due to the urging of this testifier.

"If children are truly being abused, we have a Child Welfare Services agency that can help them. Police officers can also be of service. If the state's current protective services program needs reform, then let's work on that. If the current system needs funds, then I'm willing to vote for additional funding—so long as that funding actually goes toward improving the process.

"This bill, however, is an insult to parental rights. We cannot have a system where the state is encouraging children to run away from home."

Representative Fale rose in opposition to the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to SB 2211, SD 2, HD 2, a measure that relates to the Office of Youth Services to coordinate a five-year safe places for youth pilot program to establish a network of safe places where youth can access safety and services.

"Mr. Speaker, although I understand the intent of this bill, I am voicing my concern about unintended consequences. Mr. Speaker, I am concerned about the unintended consequences of taking away parental rights, for parents with children under the age of 18. We know that it is possible for a youth to be raised in a stable home situation, but because of choosing to run with the wrong crowd of friends, a youth may become involved in drugs and ultimately become an addict. It is unclear, Mr. Speaker, if parents of a child who has become addicted to drugs will be able to maintain their parental rights, in light of this particular bill.

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to SB 2211, SD 2, HD 2."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2211, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO YOUTH," was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representatives Fale and McDermott voting no, and with Representatives Tokioka, Ward and Yamane being excused.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Representative Ward: "Mr. Speaker, for those interested in promoting high school football and having a good time with their kids, everyone is invited to the Hawaii Kai carnival this evening and this weekend. And Mr. Speaker, who knows if and when there will be another carnival on the Hawaii Kai great lawn. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro: "Mr. Speaker, at the appropriate time can we have a short moment of silence. Today, I attended the vigil for Senator Kenny Brown. It just ended about an hour ago, but I think it would be a well received expression of our aloha for a man who's done much for Hawaii and traces his genealogy to our last Ali'i. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

At this time, the Members of the House of Representatives stood for a moment of silence in honor of the late former Senator Kenneth Brown.

Representative McDermott rose to speak in opposition to both measures, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I stand in opposition to this, particularly page 2. The apparent renunciation of U.S. citizenship would put at risk the entire safety net of services and efforts we've made to try and correct the past injustices. Everything from diabetes reduction programs, social security, aid for dependent families, on and on. That is my concern, Mr. Speaker. Thank you."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of both measures with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with strong reservations. Mr. Speaker, we're all members of the great United States, and I think this resolution that says that some of us are not a member of this great nation, I think gets a bit over the line too quickly. Mr. Speaker, it says that seven or eight of these whereases are right spot on. Hawaiian history has been neglected. Hawaiian rights have been denied. But to say now that this is a quasi-declaration of independence, I think is going a bit too fast, too much, too quickly over the line, and I think we need to slow down a little bit and be a bit more contemplative of who we are and where we're going.

"I know the roll of the Hawaiian nationality is being taken now, and all the Hawaiians who are going to vote, is being regulated since 1978 when Governor Waihee put in the Office of Hawaiian Affairs. This has always been taking place. But to precipitously put this now to where Hawaiians are no longer American citizens, I think is to jump the gun a bit. I think it's precipitous and premature to, as the former speaker said, to basically say that they are disenfranchised with the safety nets that are there until there is a nation, until there is an economy, until there is a sovereign Hawaiian nation.

"So for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, strong reservations. I think we need to think this through a bit more thoroughly, rather than in a precipitous way declaring it as it is in this resolution. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of both measures, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, just in support with brief remarks. Mr. Speaker, as we know with the island of Kahoolawe, and the situation that we're looking at as far as the movement towards a self-governing entity for the people of Hawaiian ancestry, Mr. Speaker, I think at least this resolution will kind of move the dialogue along further, so that we can expedite the process in which we achieve those goals.

"So I think this resolution, though there are some concerns with it, Mr. Speaker, I think it furthers the dialogue in relation to moving that conversation forward to expedite the process and achieving those goals. So for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I support the measure."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the reports of the Committee were adopted and H.R. No. 178, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION INCLUDING HAWAIIAN NATIONALS AS A POPULATION RESIDING IN THE HAWAIIAN ISLANDS," was referred to the Committee on Finance, with Representative McDermott voting no, and with Representatives Har and Yamane being excused; and

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of both measures, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In strong support. Just a brief comment. It was my pleasure to be able to join them on one of their outfitting voyages, and I can't think of a more worthy endeavor, especially in this time in current geopolitical history. Additional comments into the Journal as well, Mr. Speaker. Thank you very much."

Representative McKelvey's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I believe that the mission of Hokule'a's Malama Honua Worldwide Voyage is a noble one. Their core message of caring for Island Earth our natural environment, children and all humankind is pono and should be spread around the world.

"I remember back in the day that many people thought that the crew members of the Hokule'a were pupule for planning the historic Hawaii-Tahiti voyage. However, the voyage was successful because it carried the fundamental values of Hawaii, such as love and caring for the land and each other and I believe this Worldwide Voyage will be successful for the same reasons.

"In addition, the voyage will be followed by numerous Hawaii schools who can integrate sailing with mathematics, science and culture. Mr. Speaker more than 100,000 students are expected to be connected online to the voyage that will offer students a look at basic life lessons, including perseverance.

"It is my hope that this worldwide voyage will serve as a catalyst for promoting education beyond the classroom and the Hawaiian holistic concept of 'Malama Honua' or 'taking care of island earth.' I believe Nainoa Thompson put it best when asked about the voyage by saying, 'The voyage of Hokule'a is about exploration, discovery… and coming together of the diverse many so we can learn together to work toward responsible living on this island earth and then teach it to our children for their future.'"

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of both measures, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, strong support. Mr. Speaker, I know we're going to honor the crew of the Hokulea on Friday when the floor presentation is here, but I wanted people to know that if you wanted to see a piece of the Hokulea rigging, and that which is part of the koa wood that it's made, and by its master craftsman, Wright Bowman, please come to my office. My display case is part of that Hokulea tradition. It is an heirloom of my family. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the reports of the Committee were adopted and H.R. No. 59, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION URGING THE STATE AND STATE ENTITIES TO SUPPORT THE HOKULE‘A AND HER CREW AS THEY JOURNEY AROUND THE WORLD," was referred to the Committee on Veterans, Military, & International Affairs, & Culture and the Arts, with Representatives Har and Yamane being excused; and

RECESS

At this time, the Chair stated:

"We will stand in recess for the purpose of convening a Joint Session in the House Chambers at 2 p.m. So we will stand in recess until 2 p.m., and we will continue on Thursday, March 27, at 12 noon. So the House will stand in recess and we will convene at 2 p.m."

At 12:30 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess and the House of Representatives stood in recess, subject to the call of the Chair, and in accordance with House Concurrent Resolution No. 29, met in Joint Session with the Senate, for the Hawaii Medal of Honor Ceremony.

JOINT SESSION

The Joint Session of the House of Representatives and the Senate of the Twenty-Seventh Legislature was called to order at 2:06 o'clock p.m., by the Honorable Joseph M. Souki, Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The Speaker addressed the Chamber, stating:

"The Joint Session called pursuant to a concurrent resolution adopted by the Members of the Senate and the Members of the House is called to order.

"On behalf of the Senate President and all the Members of the Hawaii State Legislature, we honor members of the armed forces of the United States with ties to Hawaii who fought and died bravely in a combat zone designated by Presidential Order."

At this time, the Members of the House of Representatives and the Senate, guests and audience rose for the Hawaiian Blessing which was delivered by Kahu Kordell C. L. Kekoa, followed by the presentation of our Nation's and our State's Colors by the Joint Service Color Guard and the Hawaii Air National Guard Royal Guard. The singing of the National Anthem and Hawaii Pono'i was then led by Mr. Richard Ah Lee Sam III.

Speaker Souki then addressed the Members, guests and audience as follows:

"Mahalo Joint Service Color Guard, Royal Guard and Mr. Ah Lee Sam. Your participation in today's ceremony is greatly appreciated.

"Good afternoon honored guests, ladies and gentleman. On behalf of the Members of the Hawaii State Senate and the House of Representatives, I extend to all a warm aloha, and a special aloha to the families of those servicemen we honor today. Some of you have traveled a long way to be here, and we are humbled and honored by your presence.

"For the last eight years, the Hawaii State Legislature has gathered in Joint Session to recognize the recipients of the Hawaii Medal of Honor. The Medal of Honor is Hawaii's expression of gratitude to those who gave their lives in the service of their nation. These citizens put themselves in harm's way, so that we could live our lives without the threat of harm. Under extraordinary circumstances, they display extraordinary courage. In the face of that kind of sacrifice, we are all humbled.

"Clearly, these four individuals and their families, whom we recognize today, honor us by their courage and commitment to freedom and their country. We honor them, not by just awarding them these medals, but by remembering why our way of life was so important to them. That we take part in the freedoms that cost them so much. And more importantly, that we take responsibility to ensure that freedom is passed on to future generations.

"At the end of the day, it is not how they died that is important to remember, but how they lived and what they valued most. To the families of our honorees, please accept this Medal of Honor ceremony as a small token of our appreciation and admiration and our gratitude. It seems like so little in the face of such great debt. But to all of you, from the bottom of our hearts, thank you."

At this time, the Speaker introduced the following state, congressional and military leaders seated on the Floor of the House:

The Honorable Neil Abercrombie, Governor of the State of Hawaii;

The Honorable Mark Recktenwald, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Hawaii;

The Honorable Shan Tsutsui, Lieutenant Governor of the State of Hawaii;

Representing the Honorable Brian Schatz, United States Senator: Ms. JoAnne Fittante;

Representing the Honorable Mazie Hirono, United States Senator: Mr. Alan Yamamoto;

Representing the Honorable Colleen Hanabusa, United States Congresswoman: Mr. Kamakana Kaimuloa;

Representing the Honorable Tulsi Gabbard, United States Congresswoman: Retired Colonel Walt Kaneakua;

Mr. Allen Hoe, Civilian Aide to the Secretary of the Army;

Major General Darryll D.M. Wong, the Adjutant General, Hawaii Department of Defense;

Representing the United States Pacific Air Forces and General Herbert Carlisle: Major General Kevin Pottinger;

Representing the United States Army Pacific and General Vincent Brooks: Major General Gary Hara;

Rear Admiral Cari Thomas, Commander, U.S. Coast Guard, Fourteenth District, and Mr. Gary Thomas;

Rear Admiral Richard Williams, Commander, Navy Region Hawaii, and Mrs. Suzy Williams;

Brigadier General Stanley Osserman, Commander, Hawaii Air National Guard;

Brigadier General Bruce Oliveira, Commander, Hawaii Army National Guard;

Brigadier General Dennis Doyle, Commanding General, Tripler Army Medical Center;

Representing United States Marine Forces Pacific and Lieutenant General Terry Robling: Colonel Darric Knight and Sergeant Major William Sweet;

Representing the 8th Theater Sustainment Command and Major General Stephen Lyons: Colonel Robert Knock;

Representing the 9th Mission Support Command and Brigadier General John Cardwell: Colonel John Ellis;

Command Chief Master Sergeant Robert Lee, Senior Enlisted Officer, Hawaii National Guard; and Command Sergeant Major Dana Wingad, Senior Enlisted Officer, Hawaii Army National Guard.

The Speaker also acknowledged and thanked Representative K. Mark Takai for proposing this ceremony many years ago as Hawaii's way, as a state, to say, 'Thank you.'

Speaker Souki then called upon the Honorable Neil Abercrombie to deliver his remarks as follows:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Aloha, everyone. Mr. Speaker, as you mentioned, we have had this ceremony for a little less than a decade now. Some Members, I believe, have been here virtually all of that time. Some may be new to this ceremony. I suppose it is of some interest in an academic sense that we are hoping that the numbers continue to diminish in terms of those who will be respected and recognized and honored today.

"It is, again, perhaps of academic interest that we hope that the ceremony may in fact not need to be held at some point in the near future. It is, of course, of deeply personal and emotional interest to all of us and to all the people of the state that the ceremony is held at all. Because it has taken place over the better part of a decade, I suspect that we may be able to categorize it at the level of a ritual that we gather together in every session, at some point during the session, to see to it that the recognition takes place.

"Human beings distinguish themselves by engaging in such ritual. We have as a result of our capacity to make judgments about ourselves and about our lives, and how we conduct ourselves, and what we value in terms of how we recognize one another, we understand that such rituals then are essential. They take place not simply because they are repetitive and familiar to us, but we engage in them because it gives us a visceral reminder of who we are, and why we do what we do. Particularly for those of us who are on the margins of what these families have experienced, and what the individuals honored today have sacrificed.

"By coincidence, just this past weekend there was the 71st anniversary observation of the sacrifices that were made voluntarily by those who were in World War II with the 442nd and the attendant battalions and outfits that were associated with World War II, with December 7th, 1941 and its aftermath. Again, it served as a reminder of what constitutes our fundamental values.

"So, for all of us here today, I want to take the opportunity to say to the families, that we are one with you in support. We are one with you in understanding that what you have given, and what your loved ones have given, brings honor to those best features of ourselves as human beings.

"In my years as a member of the Armed Services Committee, and in my present capacity as Commander in Chief of the National Guard, I've had occasion on more than one instance, such as this, to be caused to reflect on what it is that we truly value. And more than once in that time, my reference has gone to Shakespeare and his observations, particularly where the question of courage, where the question of honor, where the question of valor was at issue.

"I would like to extend on behalf of all here to the families, this quotation from The Tempest. 'I and my fellows are ministers of fate. The elements, of whom your swords are tempered, may as well wound the loud winds, or with bemocked-at stabs kill the still-closing waters, as diminish one feather that's in my plume. My fellow ministers are like invulnerable.'

"The temporal existence of those we honor today may have passed, but our memories, and our honor, and our respect, are like invulnerable."

Speaker Souki then called upon Major General Darryll Wong to deliver his remarks on behalf of the military as follows:

"Governor Abercrombie, Lieutenant Governor Tsutsui, Senate President Mercado Kim, Speaker Souki, Members of the State Legislature, fellow flag officers and members of the armed services here, family and friends of our honored heroes, good afternoon and aloha. We are here today for an important and a solemn ceremony. One that we can only hope, as the Governor said, will be held for the last time.

"Our nation has been engaged in continuous combat for the past 12 years. The Hawaii State Medal of Honor was conceived to honor those who gave their lives serving in Iraq, Afghanistan, and neighboring countries over these past 12.5 years. We still do not know how many American forces will remain in Afghanistan after December of this year. The only thing we know at this time for sure is that the number of US servicemen and women deploying to contingencies, after this year, will be significantly smaller than today.

"As one of the leaders in the Hawaii National Guard, and more important, as a resident and as a father, I look forward to the day when all of our Hawaii-based troops are safely home. We still have Hawaii National Guardsmen deployed flying CH-47 helicopter missions, as well as soldiers flying surveillance aircraft. And it was one of these missions in January that Hawaii Army National Guard solider, Sergeant Drew Scobie, paid the ultimate price. His widow McKenna and son Duke and many others of their family are here with us today. Visiting McKenna was the most difficult task I've ever had to perform in my four decades of service in uniform, and especially as the Adjutant General this year. Yet, that task pales in comparison to the burden of a family that has lost a loved one.

"The presentation of this Medal of Honor is but a small token that we, collectively as a state, can bestow to provide some closure to these families who are with us today. We resolve to ensure that these families shall always be part of our state family, and the sacrifice made by their loved ones will always be remembered.

"This ceremony is a culmination of efforts of many, and as a precursor to what I hope will be our last ceremony, I'd like to especially thank two gentlemen for their actions that made this ceremony possible. The first has already been recognized by our Governor, Representative Mark Takai, who's also a Lieutenant Colonel in the Hawaii Army National Guard. He was the Casualty Assistance Officer for the family of our first Hawaii National Guard casualty in Iraq. And shortly after that, he proposed the establishment of the State Medal of Honor. His office has been instrumental in the coordination of this, and of all previous ceremonies.

"The second is Specialist First Class retired Aaron Pollick, who retired from the Hawaii Army National Guard just a few months ago. Aaron was the principal designer of the State Medal of Honor. He drew upon his vast knowledge of the military and Hawaiian history to design a fitting tribute to Hawaii's heroes.

"The gold star in the Hawaii State Medal Coat of Arms represents the star of the 50th state on the American flag, but is also a reminder of the gold star displayed in the windows of American homes from past conflicts. The attachment device in the red and yellow ribbon is a rendering of the ancient puela, or flag that Hawaiians raised above the sails of their canoes. Anyone who saw the puela from afar knew that a person of the highest rank was coming. Today, the service ribbon and its puela reminds us that these families are of the highest rank and honor. The kalo or taro leaves in the medal symbolize the embrace of the people of Hawaii as one 'ohana.

"Today, when relatively few Americans have family members in uniform, when even fewer have lost a loved one, there may be times when you may feel all alone, that no one understands your pain, and that few appreciate the ultimate sacrifice that your husband, father, son, brother, daughter, has made on our behalf. Although none of us can truly feel the pain of your loss, the one thing you can be sure of is that you're not alone.

"It doesn't matter whether a sailor, soldier, airman, marine or coast guardsman grew up in Hawaii or called Hawaii home for a short period of time. They are a part of the fabric of this community. And it doesn't matter whether the families of our heroes were from Hawaii or from the mainland. Your loss is our loss.

"So it is with great humility that we present these Medals of Honor to these families who are, and always will be, a part of our 'ohana. Mahalo."

At this time, the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate presented the Hawaii Medal of Honor. The Clerk of the House announced the names of the Hawaii Medal of Honor recipients, which was followed by the ringing of the memorial bell.

United States Army Sergeant Tofiga J. Tautolo.

President Kim then gave her closing remarks as follows:

"Thank you, all of you, for being a part of this ceremony of our fallen heroes. The citizens we honor today answered the nation's call to duty. They volunteered to fight our battles, to put themselves in harm's way, to leave behind families, friends and the comforts of home, to serve our country. They made the greatest sacrifice any citizen could. So we mourn this loss. We join in expressing our gratitude to the families and loved ones they left behind.

"Hawaii is indebted to those of you here today for being a part of our island community, and for the many personal sacrifices you have made and continue to make. The medals we presented are symbols of our recognition of the gallantry and heroism of the individuals we honored this afternoon. They represent the spirit of aloha of the people of Hawaii. A spirit we hope you take with you wherever your future lies, and which we hope will endure in your hearts for years to come.

"They symbolize, above all, our deepest appreciation of our founding ideals and what it took to defend them. Mahalo nui loa, may your journeys be safe, secure, and filled with the blessings of aloha.

"And now, Members of the Senate and House, our special guests and audience, please rise as I turn your attention outside to the Capitol rotunda for the Three-Volley Salute and the playing of Taps, which will be followed by a moment of silence in honor of our fallen heroes. Members of the Hickam Base Honor Guard, please proceed."

At this time, Members of the Hickam Base Honor Guard proceeded with a Three-Volley Salute and the playing of Taps outside the House Chamber in the Capitol Rotunda, which was then followed by a moment of silence.

The President of the Senate then called on the Joint Service Color Guard and the Hawaii Air National Guard Royal Guard for the retiring of the Colors, and at 3:00 o'clock p.m., declared the Joint Session of the House of Representatives and the Senate adjourned.

ADJOURNMENT

SYMBOLISM OF THE HAWAII MEDAL OF HONOR

The Hawaii Medal of Honor was designed by Sergeant First Class Aaron Pollick from the Hawaii Army National Guard. This medal consists of the following six components, superimposed on each other:

Circle of Kalo Leaves: The kalo leaves represent the family or Ohana. The leaves are designed in an encircled fashion and represents the concept of Ohana, which we strive to embrace.

Coat of Arms: The Great Shield is the keystone of the design. The eight bars represent the eight major islands of the State of Hawaii. The kapu sticks, or Pulo'ulo'u, symbolize authority and protection. The star in the center of the medallion is the Star of Hawaii, the 50th star on the flag of the United States. This star also represents the honorees of this prestigious award.

Maltese Cross: The Maltese Cross represents the four directional axes of the globe, denoting Hawaii as the Crossroads of the Pacific.

Sun Rays: The irradiant sun is symbolic of the new era. Its position in the center of the Maltese Cross represents our sunny shores and warm hearts ever shining on all the corners of the world.

The Neck Drape: The neck drape is red and golden yellow in color. These colors symbolize the royal monarchy that once ruled these islands. The red represents courage and strength. The golden yellow depicts the honor that the recipients have brought to our islands.

Service Ribbon & Attachment: The service ribbon represents distinguished service. Its colors are identical to the colors of the neck drape. The attachment device at the middle of the ribbon is an ancient flag or puela of Hawaiian Chiefs. In olden times, the puela was raised above the sail of the ancient Hawaiians' canoes while at sea. Our puela signifies that the person receiving this medal is of high rank or honor.

Ms. Karinna Milans, Human Resources Manager, Home Depot Honolulu; and Sgt. Rene Rengel, Army veteran and V.E.T. House resident.

Representative Ward, as a veteran and Peace Corps volunteer, thanked and commended the honorees for the good work that they do.

Representative Creagan recognized the veterans that the V.E.T. House is serving, and acknowledged the many services that V.E.T. House offers to veterans.

Representative Hanohano then introduced guests seated in the gallery:

Mr. Robert Fitzwater, Co-Manager, V.E.T. House;
Mr. Keith Billingsley, Case Manager, V.E.T. House;
Mr. Aaron Lum, Communications, Institute for Human Services;
Mr. Chuck Miller, Development Manager, Institute for Human Services;
Ms. Melissa Bowen, Social Worker, VA Homeless Program; and Mr. Walter Kaneakua, State Director for Congresswoman Tulsi Gabbard.

Representative Cabanilla, as a retired army nurse, recognized the invisible wounds of veterans, and commended V.E.T. House on their important work.

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.R. No. 215 was adopted, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

The following resolution (H.R. No. 216) was announced by the Clerk and the following action taken:

H.R. No. 216, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION CONGRATULATING THE POLYNESIAN CULTURAL CENTER ON ITS GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY AND COMMENDING ITS FIFTY YEARS OF ENCHANTMENT, ENTERTAINMENT, AND EDUCATION," was offered by Representative Fale.

Representative Fale moved that H.R. No. 216 be adopted, seconded by Representative Brower.

Representative Brower acknowledged the contributions of the Polynesian Cultural Center to Hawaii's visitor industry and economy by providing culturally appropriate family-friendly education and entertainment, and wished them a happy anniversary.

Representative Fale recognized the challenges and achievements of the Polynesians, as carried on in the Polynesian Cultural Center through their preservation and portrayal of the culture, arts and crafts of Polynesia, and introduced honorees seated on the Floor of the House:

Mr. Alfred Grace, President and CEO;
Mr. Boyd Mossman, Vice President;
Mr. Tausilinu'u David Hannemann, former Vice President;
Mr. Cy Bridges, Director of Protocol;
Ms. Kalolaine Mataele Soukop, former Director; and
Ms. Fane Harris, original dancer.

Representative Ward commended the Polynesian Cultural Center for their entrepreneurship and dedication, sharing the culture of Polynesia with the world.

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.R. No. 216 was adopted, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

At this time, visitors from the Polynesian Cultural Center performed for the House of Representatives, guests and audience.

Representative Fale then introduced the performers:

Ayesha Matagimagalei;
Lasi Reed;
Sam Moe;
Mele Tilini;
Tuvili Tuisavura;
Alena Pule;
Maria Keawekuloa Nakila; and Titaina Pane'e.

At 12:53 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 1:18 o'clock p.m.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the rules were suspended to reconsider action previously taken on S.B. No. 2803, SD 1. (Representatives Carroll, Hashem and McKelvey were excused)

RECONSIDERATION OF ACTION TAKEN

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the House reconsidered its action previously taken pursuant to the recommendation contained in Standing Committee Report No. 1054-14, recommending referral to the Committee on Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs. (Representatives Carroll and Hashem were excused.)

SUSPENSION OF RULES

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the rules were suspended for the purpose of considering certain Senate Bills for Third Reading by consent calendar. (Representatives Carroll and Hashem were excused.)

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

S.B. No 2803, SD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that S.B. No. 2803, SD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McDermott rose, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, this all went very fast for me, the procedural motions and the re-referrals and things of that nature. Is it possible we could wait 24 hours on this, so I can take a closer look at it?"

The Chair addressed Representative McDermott, stating:

"It is proceeding, Representative McDermott. Thank you."

The motion was put to the vote by the Chair and carried, and S.B. No. 2803, SD 1, entitled: "RELATING TO THRILL CRAFT OPERATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

At 1:21 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bill passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 2803, SD 1

Representatives Tsuji and Brower, for the Committee on Economic Development & Business and the Committee on Tourism, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1345-14) recommending that H.C.R. No. 77, as amended in HD 1, be adopted.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committees was adopted and H.C.R. No. 77, HD 1, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION EXPRESSING LEGISLATIVE SUPPORT FOR THE HAWAII FOOD AND WINE FESTIVAL AND DECLARING THE FESTIVAL TO BE THE NEXT AGRICULTURAL AND CULINARY MOVEMENT IN THE STATE OF HAWAII," was adopted, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

Representative Tsuji, for the Committee on Economic Development & Business, presented two reports:

(Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1346-14) recommending that H.R. No. 97 be adopted; and

Representative Saiki moved that the reports of the Committee be adopted, and that H.R. No. 97; and H.C.R. No. 133 be adopted, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of both measures, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, strong support. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the reports of the Committee were adopted and H.R. No. 97, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION COMMENDING AND SUPPORTING THE PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL SPACE CENTER FOR EXPLORATION SYSTEMS' COLLABORATIVE WORK WITH THE NATIONAL AERONAUTICS AND SPACE ADMINISTRATION AND PRIVATE INDUSTRIES IN THE AREAS OF BASALTIC CONCRETE AND ADDITIVE MANUFACTURING AND REQUESTING COLLABORATION TO EXPLORE OPPORTUNITIES FOR APPLICATIONS OF BASALTIC CONCRETE AND ADDITIVE MANUFACTURING," was adopted, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused; and

H.C.R. No. 133, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION COMMENDING AND SUPPORTING THE PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL SPACE CENTER FOR EXPLORATION SYSTEMS' COLLABORATIVE WORK WITH THE NATIONAL AERONAUTICS AND SPACE ADMINISTRATION AND PRIVATE INDUSTRIES IN THE AREAS OF BASALTIC CONCRETE AND ADDITIVE MANUFACTURING AND REQUESTING COLLABORATION TO EXPLORE OPPORTUNITIES FOR APPLICATIONS OF BASALTIC CONCRETE AND ADDITIVE MANUFACTURING," was adopted, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

Representative Takai, for the Committee on Veterans, Military, & International Affairs, & Culture and the Arts, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1348-14) recommending that H.R. No. 12 be adopted.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and H.R. No. 12, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION HONORING KING KAMEHAMEHA THE GREAT AND HIS DESCENDANTS BY SHARING HIS STORY WITH A GLOBAL AUDIENCE, PROMOTING CEREMONIES AND ACTIVITIES THAT CELEBRATE HIS VISION AND HAWAII'S CULTURE AND HERITAGE, AND URGING ALL OF THE PEOPLE OF HAWAII TO DO THE SAME," was adopted, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

Representative Takai, for the Committee on Veterans, Military, & International Affairs, & Culture and the Arts, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1349-14) recommending that H.C.R. No. 30 be adopted.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and H.C.R. No. 30, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION HONORING KING KAMEHAMEHA THE GREAT AND HIS DESCENDANTS BY SHARING HIS STORY WITH A GLOBAL AUDIENCE, PROMOTING CEREMONIES AND ACTIVITIES THAT CELEBRATE HIS VISION AND HAWAII'S CULTURE AND HERITAGE, AND URGING ALL OF THE PEOPLE OF HAWAII TO DO THE SAME," was adopted, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

Representative Takai, for the Committee on Veterans, Military, & International Affairs, & Culture and the Arts, presented two reports:

(Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1350-14) recommending that H.R. No. 22 be adopted; and

Representative Saiki moved that the reports of the Committee be adopted, and that H.R. No. 22; and H.C.R. No. 41 be adopted, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Takai rose in support of both measures and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Takai's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of HR22/HCR41.

"The purpose of these measures is to honor those Filipino veterans who served the United States so courageously during World War II by urging the President of the United States and the United States Congress to grant veterans benefits to Filipino veterans who fought in World War II but were subsequently denied the promised benefits to which they were entitled.

"Filipinos volunteered their services after being promised full veterans benefits to volunteer to fight for the United States. Thousands of these Filipino men and women risked their lives against the invading Japanese forces and assisted our nation in its efforts to liberate the Philippines. By Congressional Act in 1946, Filipino veterans were denied eligibility for United States veteran's benefits, such as health care, disability pensions and burial expenses.

"It is a disgrace that we as a nation have failed to fulfill our duty to render benefits to the brave Filipino veterans that are due to them. The U.S. is a nation of honor and integrity and we have promised these individuals who were willing to sacrifice their life for their homeland and also for the United States. These veterans have earned these benefits and truthfully, they should have been granted to them a long time ago.

"Several people have testified in support of these measures and with powerful words that were spoken from their testimonies, it would be shameful to continuously deny Filipino veterans these benefits. I support the efforts to make reparations to our veterans of Filipino ancestry who valiantly fought for our nation's freedoms. Providing these benefits does not correct the injustice and discrimination done over 60 years ago, but is a small step in making reparations."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the reports of the Committee were adopted and H.R. No. 22, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION URGING THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS TO GRANT VETERANS BENEFITS TO FILIPINO VETERANS WHO FOUGHT IN WORLD WAR II BUT WERE SUBSEQUENTLY DENIED THE BENEFITS TO WHICH THEY WERE ENTITLED," was adopted, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused; and

H.C.R. No. 41, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION URGING THE PRESIDENT OF THE UNITED STATES AND THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS TO GRANT VETERANS BENEFITS TO FILIPINO VETERANS WHO FOUGHT IN WORLD WAR II BUT WERE SUBSEQUENTLY DENIED THE BENEFITS TO WHICH THEY WERE ENTITLED," was adopted, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

Representative Takai, for the Committee on Veterans, Military, & International Affairs, & Culture and the Arts, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1352-14) recommending that H.R. No. 23 be adopted.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and H.R. No. 23, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION URGING CONGRESS AND HAWAII'S CONGRESSIONAL DELEGATION TO SUPPORT THE VETERANS HEALTH AND BENEFITS IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 2013 AND SUPPORT THE RECOGNITION AS VETERANS OF THOSE WHO SERVE IN THE NATIONAL GUARD," was adopted, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

Representative Takai, for the Committee on Veterans, Military, & International Affairs, & Culture and the Arts, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1353-14) recommending that H.C.R. No. 42 be adopted.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and H.C.R. No. 42, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION URGING CONGRESS AND HAWAII'S CONGRESSIONAL DELEGATION TO SUPPORT THE VETERANS HEALTH AND BENEFITS IMPROVEMENT ACT OF 2013 AND SUPPORT THE RECOGNITION AS VETERANS OF THOSE WHO SERVE IN THE NATIONAL GUARD," was adopted, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented two reports:

(Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1354-14) recommending that H.R. No. 51 be adopted; and

Representative Saiki moved that the reports of the Committee be adopted, and that H.R. No. 51; and H.C.R. No. 74 be adopted, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of both measures with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'll be voting with reservations. The reservations I have is depending upon the final composition of the task force membership, the scope of its intention and purpose. Obviously, the outcome can be predetermined. I have concerns about the unfettered creation of a system of dispensaries of medical marijuana, along the lines of what we observed in California. With those concerns, I'll be voting with reservations.

"I do not object to the study itself, Mr. Speaker. I think a learned and fact-based, scientifically-based analysis of the propriety of a medical dispensary system for Hawaii's citizens may be the proper approach. But again, my reservations stand upon the composition of the members involved in this task force, this study group, the analysis and the recommendations thereof. Thank you."

Representative Ward rose in support of both measures with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Oshiro be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Belatti rose to speak in support of both measures, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. I just want to clarify that this resolution is actually calling for the auditor to do a sunrise review of the establishment of a system of registered dispensaries within the Department of Health to dispense medical marijuana. This measure is to comport with HRS Section 26H-6. What I hope that this study will accomplish pursuant to the law, is to give us sort of a neutral third-party review of what the options are before our State Legislature, as this matter continues to be talked about in future Legislatures. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Har rose to speak in opposition to both measures, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition, brief comments. While I appreciate the introducer of this measure, I want to be clear. I am supportive of medical marijuana, but I think what we have to do is really proceed carefully. While I appreciate the comments made by the Chair of the Health Committee, the fact here is, I'd like to read an editorial board from the Star Advertiser dated March 28th, 2014.

"The editorial board notes, 'For Hawaii lawmakers considering this issue from a public-policy perspective, it is important to find the sensible middle ground, one that considers myriad legal, social, economic, educational and public-health impacts as Americans shift from the "war on drugs" mindset and toward more common-sense regulations, especially regarding marijuana.'

"The editorial board goes on to say that, 'Although legalization advocates emphasize that use would be limited to adults — similar to cigarettes and alcohol — the impact on younger people must be taken into account. Habitual marijuana use poses grave risks, especially to developing brains. Some strains are far more potent than what was available a few decades ago. This is not your father's marijuana, as they say. Pot can't simply be equated to drinking alcohol, either. Getting high more aptly compares to getting drunk; neither are habits to promote, from a public-health standpoint.'

"Mr. Speaker, first of all I would request that I be allowed to enter into the Journal this editorial board dated March 28th from the Star Advertiser. And from my perspective, again, I do support medical marijuana use, but I think, again, understanding that there are several severe unintended consequences, I support what the editorial board is saying, that we must consider, as policy makers, the legal, social, economic, educational, and public-health impacts that this would bring.

"Considering the fact the state would then be moving into medical marijuana dispensaries under the Department of Health, unfortunately, this particular resolution does not address those myriad of concerns. And for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I'll be voting in opposition to these two resolutions. Thank you."

Representative Har submitted the following editorial from the Honolulu Star-Advertiser:

"Let's talk about marijuana issue

POSTED: 01:30 a.m. HST, Mar 28, 2014

Part of the reason that some states haven't made much progress reforming their marijuana laws is because the people most engaged in this issue tend to be extremely at odds.

On one end there are the advocates demanding that pot be legalized, right now, and on the other there are calls for tougher drug laws, even if that means putting more users behind bars.

For Hawaii lawmakers considering this issue from a public-policy perspective, however, it is important to find the sensible middle ground, one that considers myriad legal, social, economic, educational and public-health impacts as Americans shift from the "war on drugs" mindset and toward more common-sense regulations, especially regarding marijuana.

The issue is on a legislative back burner in this, an election year, which means we'll benefit from the experiences of states blazing the trail on outright legalization, such as Washington and Colorado.

There's also much to learn from California's back-door approach, where the proliferation of dispensaries supplying a disproportionate number of 20-somethings offers a cautionary tale about medical-marijuana oversight.

Hawaii's House Judiciary Committee is considering two resolutions that would create a task force to develop recommendations for establishing a regulated, statewide medical-marijuana dispensary system, a network that is sorely needed for residents cleared to use the drug under existing state law.

It would be even better if the task force's mission would broaden to address the implications of larger policy changes on this issue. Public input is essential on the topic of marijuana in Hawaii, and gathering that insight before next year's legislative session — when more action is expected — is vital.

On the medical front, reclassifying the drug at the federal level would spur much-needed scientific research into promising cannabis-based treatments, including for epilepsy and other diseases.

Proven treatments should have the same chance for approval under the U.S. Food and Drug Administration as prescription drugs.

In terms of recreational use, perhaps the worst outcome would be for marijuana to go the way of Big Tobacco, a deadly industry with a long, well-documented history of targeting young people as new customers and relying on addicts as loyal ones. Assessing how the market develops in Colorado will be instructive.

Fewer people are criminally prosecuted now simply for marijuana use, and that is how it should be. An arrest record can cause a lifelong stigma that impedes education, employment and future achievement, and a jail sentence even more so.

Crimes in which marijuana use is a factor — impaired driving, say — require their own policy considerations.

Although legalization advocates emphasize that use would be limited to adults — similar to cigarettes and alcohol — the impact on younger people must be taken into account.

Habitual marijuana use poses grave risks, especially to developing brains. Some strains are far more potent than what was available a few decades ago. This is not your father's marijuana, as they say.

Pot can't simply be equated to drinking alcohol, either. Getting high more aptly compares to getting drunk; neither are habits to promote, from a public-health standpoint.

It follows that if pot becomes legal, more people will smoke it. Lawmakers must anticipate the potential consequences of this predictable outcome, and address the questions coming from all sides.

» Would we need more community-based substance-abuse programs?

» What are the projected net economic effects, assuming the product is heavily taxed?

» Why even change the status quo?

These are all fair questions, and there are many more. Hawaii lawmakers should strive to deal with these policy questions in all their complexity. Now, while there's no polarizing legislation on the table, would be a good time to start a community conversation."

Representative Belatti rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, second time and I'll be very brief. In support, and I appreciate the inclusion of the editorial commentary from the Star-Advertiser. But what I would note is that that editorial is actually more responsive to HCR 48 and HR 29, which does call for the creation of a task force, and is looking at those myriad numbers of issues. And I believe that particular set of resolutions are going to be taken up by the Committee on Judiciary as we move forward in this session. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Har rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Brief rebuttal. Thank you to the Health Chair for that clarification. I don't disagree with her, but the fact is, is that we're still talking about these two particular resolutions that deal with the Department of Health setting up these medical marijuana dispensaries. Again, from a large social policy perspective, we have to take into consideration the legal, economic, social, educational and public-health impacts.

"So regardless of whether the editorial board is referring to the other resolutions, again, as policy makers it is incumbent upon us to look at all of those myriad of social impacts, regardless of whether it's just dealing with this particular resolution or the other resolutions that will be before the Judiciary Committee. So, my point is, is that, again, as responsible policy makers, we have to take the 3,000 foot approach to this issue, as opposed to just looking at it from one resolution at a time. For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I'm still in opposition. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the reports of the Committee were adopted and H.R. No. 51, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION REQUESTING A SUNRISE REVIEW OF THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A SYSTEM OF REGISTERED DISPENSARIES WITHIN THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH TO DISPENSE MEDICAL MARIJUANA," was adopted, with Representative Har voting no, and with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused; and

H.C.R. No. 74, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION REQUESTING A SUNRISE REVIEW OF THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A SYSTEM OF REGISTERED DISPENSARIES WITHIN THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH TO DISPENSE MEDICAL MARIJUANA," was adopted, with Representative Har voting no, and with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

Representative Wooley, for the Committee on Agriculture, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1356-14) recommending that H.C.R. No. 86, HD 1 be adopted.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and H.C.R. No. 86, HD 1, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION REQUESTING THE HAWAII INVASIVE SPECIES COUNCIL TO PROVIDE OPPORTUNITIES FOR VARIOUS STAKEHOLDERS TO PROVIDE INPUT REGARDING THE CONTROL OF INVASIVE ALBIZIA TREES," was adopted, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

Representatives Hashem and Carroll, for the Committee on Housing and the Committee on Human Services, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1357-14), recommending that S.C.R. No. 2, as amended in HD 1, be referred to the Committee on Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committees be adopted, and that S.C.R. No. 2, HD 1 be referred to the Committee on Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, strong reservations on this particular measure. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support with reservations. My reservations stem from the fact that we have experienced the executive authority's issuance under the emergency powers doctrine to call for emergency declaration, I think back in 2007 under the previous Governor Lingle. I think there were concerns that were raised by the Legislature after the fact on where the monies came from, how the monies were spent, and whether there was a proper accounting for the monies expended. Because of these concerns, Mr. Speaker, I have some reservations on this measure moving forward. Thank you."

Representative Har rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with reservations and brief comments. First of all, may I please have the comments of the speaker from Wahiawa entered into the Journal as if they were my own? And in addition, Mr. Speaker, under our previous governor, the controversy that came up when she used her executive powers, the executive orders to build, and actually she was able to build that transitional housing back in Kalaeloa, my former district.

"The issues that arose were the exemptions from the environmental regulations. Essentially, by using the powers of the executive office, the Governor was essentially allowed to circumvent all environmental review. For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I stand with reservations. Thank you."

Representative Jordan rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Well, sorry, Mr. Speaker, may I have a few comments? I really wasn't going to speak on this since it is going to another committee. But just to let the Members of the Body understand a little bit more on this.

"In 2003, the Governor at the time set an emergency proclamation for the homelessness on the Waianae coast. Under that emergency proclamation and the powers, the Legislature granted $20 million. Well, maybe under the Governor's power. $20 million to help give a boost to the homelessness at that point in time, and to help provide shelter.

"Under those, there was given blanketed exemptions for building, for acquiring property, for issuing contracts. That's where most of my concerns will stem from this. Because this isn't going to go just to address homelessness, this is going to go to a broader swath of housing. I think we should be very cautious moving forward if we're going to talk about providing exemptions on blanketed avenues.

"That's where my concern is with this, and I don't think this is the proper vehicle to be addressing in our housing situation, Mr. Speaker. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committees was adopted and S.C.R. No. 2, HD 1, entitled: "SENATE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION ENCOURAGING THE GOVERNOR TO ISSUE AN EMERGENCY PROCLAMATION DECLARING A STATEWIDE HOUSING CRISIS AND THE HAWAII PUBLIC HOUSING AUTHORITY, DEPARTMENT OF HAWAIIAN HOME LANDS, HAWAII HOUSING FINANCE AND DEVELOPMENT CORPORATION, AND HAWAII COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT AUTHORITY TO BUILD SUSTAINABLE, MULTI-GENERATIONAL, MIXED INCOME, AND MIXED USE HOUSING," was referred to the Committee on Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs, with Representatives Carroll and Hashem being excused.

Representative Takumi, for the Committee on Education, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1358-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2331, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Second Reading and be placed on the calendar for Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2331, SD 2, HD 1 pass Second Reading and be placed on the calendar for Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Thielen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Representative Aquino: "Mr. Speaker, I just want to take some time to thank several individuals who did a tremendous act of courage, service and aloha last week. There was a potentially tragic incident that was unfolding on the fourth floor, but these individuals were alert and responded rather quickly, and helped bring that ordeal to a safe end.

"Mr. Speaker, I would like to acknowledge these brave staff members of the House Sergeant-at-Arms Office. Notably, Bronson Low, Glenn Ganigan, and a member of the Executive Protection Detail, Guy Ching, and several others from various offices who performed an extraordinary act of compassion.

"Mr. Speaker, these folks made sure that the incident would not turn into something terrible and awful. So, Members, let's give a big hand of acknowledgement and appreciation for these individuals. Thank you."

Representative Fale: "Mr. Speaker, for anyone who's as hungry as I am right now, we are serving lunch in Room 423. I believe we're serving Sugoi chicken, which I'm really looking forward to. But Room 423, Mr. Speaker, for lunch."

Representative Belatti also honored the Kauai Sexual Assault Treatment Services and the US Coast Guard Sexual Harassment/Sexual Assault Response and Prevention Program, who were unable to be here.

Representative Belatti then recognized additional guests seated in the gallery who were here to support the Sex Assault Prevention and Response Programs.

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and H.R. No. 218 was adopted, with Representatives Har, Hashem and Wooley being excused.

At 12:44 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 1:11 o'clock p.m.

SUSPENSION OF RULES

At this time, the Chair stated:

"Members, please note that House Resolution No. 123, House Draft 1, and House Concurrent Resolution No. 163, House Draft 1, have been re-referred solely to the Committee on Health per Committee Referral Sheet No. 47. The Committee on Higher Education waived its referral to these measures, and therefore it is appropriate for the House to consider action for adoption.

"Members, we will be going through three motions. The first motion will be a motion to suspend the rules, the second motion will be to reconsider action taken, and the final motion will be a motion to adopt."

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the rules were suspended to reconsider action previously taken on H.R. No. 123, HD 1; and H.C.R. No. 163, HD 1. (Representatives Har, Hashem and Wooley were excused.)

RECONSIDERATION OF ACTION TAKEN

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the House reconsidered its action previously taken pursuant to the recommendation contained in Standing Committee Reports Nos. 1239-14 and 1240-14, recommending referral to the Committee on Higher Education. (Representative Har, Hashem and Wooley were excused.)

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, H.R. No. 123, HD 1, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION STRONGLY URGING THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND THE UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII WINDWARD COMMUNITY COLLEGE TO CONDUCT A COMMUNITY MEETING TO EXPLAIN THEIR CURRENT AND ONGOING PLANS FOR THE PARCELS OF LAND ALONG THE SOUTHERN BOUNDARY OF THE WINDWARD COMMUNITY COLLEGE CAMPUS," was adopted, with Representatives Har, Hashem and Wooley being excused.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, H.C.R. No. 163, HD 1, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION STRONGLY URGING THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH AND THE UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII WINDWARD COMMUNITY COLLEGE TO CONDUCT A COMMUNITY MEETING TO EXPLAIN THEIR CURRENT AND ONGOING PLANS FOR THE PARCELS OF LAND ALONG THE SOUTHERN BOUNDARY OF THE WINDWARD COMMUNITY COLLEGE CAMPUS," was adopted, with Representatives Har, Hashem and Wooley being excused.

S.B. No. 2330, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2822, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2882, SD 2, HD 2

REPORTS OF STANDING COMMITTEES

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented two reports:

(Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1381-14) recommending that H.R. No. 29, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, be adopted; and (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1382-14) recommending that H.C.R. No. 48, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, be adopted.

Representative Saiki moved that the reports of the Committee be adopted, and that H.R. No. 29, HD 2; and H.C.R. No. 48, HD 2 be adopted, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose to speak in support of both measures with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with reservations, brief comments. I want to thank the Chair of the Judiciary Committee for amending these two resolutions, 1381-14 and 1382-14, to include a member of law enforcement, the police chief or his designee, as well as the Coalition for a Drug Free Hawaii.

"My only concern and my reservations stem from, on page 3 of the measure, line 36, it says, 'A police chief chosen by the Law Enforcement Coalition, or the police chief's designee'. I'm just concerned that we're limiting the police chief, because we have police chiefs on every island, every county. And in particular, for example, the issues on Oahu are very different from the issues on, let's say, the Big Island.

"So, I think it would be incumbent and responsible for us to make sure that we are including more than one police chief, given the fact that we have differences from county to county regarding law enforcement on this issue. So, for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I stand with reservations. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose in support of both measures with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Har be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of both measures with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support with reservations. First of all, may I have the words of the Representative from Kapolei entered into the Journal as my own? Thank you, Mr. Speaker. My concern, in addition to those already articulated by the Representative, stems from, on page 3, where it states that, 'be it resolved by the House of Representatives of the 27th Legislature of the State of Hawaii Regular Session 2014, that the Public Policy Center in the College of Social Sciences at the University of Hawaii at Manoa (Public Policy Center) is requested to convene a task force to develop recommendations for the establishment of a regulated statewide dispensary system for medical marijuana to provide safe and legal access to medical marijuana for qualified patients.'

"And then it goes to, 'be it further resolved that the task force be assigned to the Public Policy Center for administrative purposes'. The task force itself is assigned to the Public Policy Center, which is at the University of Hawaii at Manoa, under the direction of the College of Social Sciences. And therein, 'requested to make recommendations and propose legislation on the design and structure of a regulated statewide dispensary system for medical marijuana,' Mr. Speaker.

"You know, I'm never afraid of any task force, Mr. Speaker. I've proposed task forces to look at socially responsible corporations. I looked at a task force to do a state bank proposal. I'm not afraid of task forces. What concerns me here in this particular resolution is that we would almost subjugate the legislative policy-making authority to a policy group at the University of Hawaii under the College of Social Sciences. That's the Public Policy Center. And I don't know what authority it would have or binding authority it would have upon us, but those are my concerns, Mr. Speaker. Other than that task force, no problem, but I think this particular directive in this measure here raises some concerns. Thank you."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of both measures with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, generic reservations. Thank you."

Representative Tokioka rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him on both measures, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Still in support with reservations. May I please have the words of the Representative from Wahiawa entered into the Journal as if they were my own? And secondly, Mr. Speaker, I did jump the gun a bit. There is another concern that I do have. It is on page 4 of the resolutions, line 21, regarding a representative from the ACLU, the American Civil Liberties Union of Hawaii. I'm not clear why it's necessary for a member of ACLU to stand on this medical marijuana task force. I'm not clear when the use of medical marijuana became a civil liberty, but in any event, for that reason, Mr. Speaker, I still remain with reservations. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the reports of the Committee were adopted and H.R. No. 29, HD 2, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION REQUESTING THE CONVENING OF A TASK FORCE TO DEVELOP RECOMMENDATIONS FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A REGULATED STATEWIDE DISPENSARY SYSTEM FOR MEDICAL MARIJUANA," was adopted, with Representatives Cachola, Hashem and Wooley being excused; and

H.C.R. No. 48, HD 2, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION REQUESTING THE CONVENING OF A TASK FORCE TO DEVELOP RECOMMENDATIONS FOR THE ESTABLISHMENT OF A REGULATED STATEWIDE DISPENSARY SYSTEM FOR MEDICAL MARIJUANA," was adopted, with Representatives Cachola, Hashem and Wooley being excused.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented two reports:

(Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1383-14) recommending that H.R. No. 7, as amended in HD 1, be adopted; and (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1384-14) recommending that H.C.R. No. 12, as amended in HD 1, be adopted.

Representative Saiki moved that the reports of the Committee be adopted, and that H.R. No. 7, HD 1; and H.C.R. No. 12, HD 1 be adopted, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Takai rose in support of both measures and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Takai's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of HR7/HCR12.

"Since the dawn of this nation and even before then, women have been discriminated against and it still continues today. It is important to recognize and not only be reactive toward the harsh elements that women encounter but we should be proactive as well. Approximately 37 percent of female rape victims were between the ages of 18 and 24. Approximately 19 percent of undergraduate women had the experience of attempted or completed sexual assault upon entering college. According to a report from the University of Hawaii at Manoa, there have been 11 forcible sex offenses on campus and 12 in previous years.

"It is the responsibility of the University of Hawaii to ensure a safe learning environment that is free of sexual harassment and violence. Therefore it would behoove the university to adopt the mandates of Title IX and the Violence Against Women Reauthorization Act of 2013 (VAWA). These laws are absolutely essential to provide safety for students, faculty and staff. The ramifications of sexual assault cut far deeper than the physical and emotional pain the victim, family or friends suffer as it impacts the health of the community.

"By adhering to Title IX and the VAWA, the University of Hawaii is better equipped to deal with sexual assault and violence, thus making a more rewarding, educational, friendly environment for all students, faculty and staff."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the reports of the Committee were adopted and H.R. No. 7, HD 1, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION REQUESTING THE UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII TO AFFIRM ITS COMMITMENT TO UPHOLDING THE TENETS OF TITLE IX AND THE VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN ACT 2013 AND THE UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII'S DEDICATION TO ENDING ALL FORMS OF SEXUAL VIOLENCE ON HAWAII CAMPUSES THROUGH A REPORT ON THE STATUS OF TITLE IX AND VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN ACT 2013 POLICIES, PROCEDURES, STAFFING, AND STATISTICS," was adopted, with Representatives Cachola, Hashem and Wooley being excused; and

H.C.R. No. 12, HD 1, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION REQUESTING THE UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII TO AFFIRM ITS COMMITMENT TO UPHOLDING THE TENETS OF TITLE IX AND THE VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN ACT 2013 AND THE UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII'S DEDICATION TO ENDING ALL FORMS OF SEXUAL VIOLENCE ON HAWAII CAMPUSES THROUGH A REPORT ON THE STATUS OF TITLE IX AND VIOLENCE AGAINST WOMEN ACT 2013 POLICIES, PROCEDURES, STAFFING, AND STATISTICS," was adopted, with Representatives Cachola, Hashem and Wooley being excused.

Representative Yamane, for the Committee on Transportation, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1385-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2138, SD 1 pass Second Reading and be placed on the calendar for Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2138, SD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ELECTRIC VEHICLES," passed Second Reading and was placed on the calendar for Third Reading, with Representatives Cachola, Hashem and Wooley being excused.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1386-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2874, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

By unanimous consent, consideration of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1386-14 on S.B. No. 2874, HD 1, was deferred and in accordance with Article III, Section 15 of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii, printed copies of S.B. No. 2874, HD 1, were made available to the Members of the House.

Representative McKelvey, for the Committee on Consumer Protection & Commerce, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1387-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2465, SD 2, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

By unanimous consent, consideration of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1387-14 on S.B. No. 2465, SD 2, HD 2, was deferred and in accordance with Article III, Section 15 of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii, printed copies of S.B. No. 2465, SD 2, HD 2, were made available to the Members of the House.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1388-14) recommending that S.B. No. 651, SD 2, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

By unanimous consent, consideration of Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1388-14 on S.B. No. 651, SD 2, HD 2, was deferred and in accordance with Article III, Section 15 of the Constitution of the State of Hawaii, printed copies of S.B. No. 651, SD 2, HD 2, were made available to the Members of the House.

THIRD READING

S.B. No. 2331, SD 2, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that S.B. No. 2331, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McDermott rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and S.B. No. 2331, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TEACHERS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes, with Representatives Cachola, Hashem and Wooley being excused.

S.B. No. 2801, HD 1:

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, S.B. No. 2801, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO CERTIFICATION OF GAS TANKLESS WATER HEATERS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes, with Representatives Cachola, Hashem and Wooley being excused.

S.B. No. 2591, SD 1, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that S.B. No. 2591, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McDermott rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose in opposition to the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to SB 2591, SD1, HD1. This bill requires additional detail and updates for annual reports to the Legislature of police misconduct; requires retention of disciplinary records for at least 18 months after reporting; and permits disclosure under the Uniform

Information Practices Act of misconduct by a police officer that results in a suspension of one year or more for one incident.

"After hearing testimony from the State of Hawaii Organization of Police Officers (SHOPO), it is clear that this measure is unnecessary. SB 2591, SD1, HD1 looks to further broaden the scope of the Legislature to require additional areas of oversight, where additional oversight is not warranted.

"Statistical data presented by SHOPO indicated that complaints of police misconduct are virtually nonexistent, when considering the abundant contact police have on a routine basis with the public. Annual reports presented by the Honolulu Police Department indicate that from 2010-2012, fewer than six cases on average, per 100,000 public contacts by law enforcement, for each one of these years resulted in public complaints. These findings are most commendable, given some of the dangerous environments our law enforcement officers regularly encounter.

"Circling back, the expansive language of SB 2591, SD1, HD1 looks to fix a wheel that is not broken. Sufficient misconduct reports are already provided by the Chiefs of Police annually. With such a low record of reported complaints, it is curious why this Body feels compelled to broaden an already properly functioning reporting process. Moreover, if county prosecutors determine there is legitimate evidence that a law enforcement officer engaged in criminal misconduct, they file disclosure documents, the contents of which are made available to the public.

"The absence of a significant number of misconduct cases shouldn't compel this Body to demand more information regarding police officers, it should remind us that law enforcement is already well-suited to handle these rarely occurring cases according to their established standard operating procedures and internal accountability, without having to face greater demands and redundancy from the Legislature.

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I stand in opposition to SB 2591, SD1, HD1. Thank you."

Representative Tokioka rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations. When I look at this bill, Mr. Speaker, my reservations come from the fact that it came over as a Senate Bill with a defective date, and the date now is upon approval. And I know there's still, in many people's minds, still some concerns with this bill. So, at this time, I'd like to go with reservations because this bill will not go to conference if it goes back to the Senate, it's clean and it will be passed. I'm sure the Senate will agree to the bill, and for those reasons, with reservations, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Yamane rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Standing up with reservations. Mr. Speaker, my reservation is, I understand that there is, in the bill written, two processes. One that if a suspension is continuing, if it's ongoing, or if the process has concluded. Mr. Speaker, my concern is that some of these investigations and ongoing personnel suspensions could be at no fault to the officer. It could be a departmental thing, it could be an ongoing issue, and a one-year time frame may or may not be a fair issue.

"So my concern was that if these things get published without a full completion, that this may unduly prejudice their process for fair investigation through the human resources process. So, that's my reservation. Thank you."

Representative Awana rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise with reservations. I'd like to include the comments from the Representatives from Kauai as well as Mililani into the Journal as if they were my own. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. My reservations on Senate Bill 2591, Senate Draft 1, House Draft 1, stems from the testimony provided by SHOPO, that I found quite compelling. And as stated in their testimony by President Tenari Maafala, he talks about how the system that now exists is not broken. Why do we need to fix it?

"Also, looking at the statistical information, they had 5.3 complaints per 1,000 public contacts. Part of my concern is that the 1,000 contacts may become tarnished in relationship to the number of complaints. Thirdly, as stated in their testimony, annual misconduct reports are provided to the Legislature. And fourthly, when county prosecutors believe there's sufficient evidence, there's already reports that can be obtained by the general public. For these points, Mr. Speaker, I stand in strong reservations."

Representative Kawakami rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Please note my strong reservations on this measure. May I please have the words from the good Representative from Kauai and the good Representative from Nanakuli entered into the Journal as if they were my own? Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.) [Note: Representative Jordan later changed her vote to a no vote.]

Representative Choy rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'll be voting no on this measure. I heard the remarks of the Representative from Mililani, and I need to maybe expand upon that. But this is a very important issue of accountability for our police officers, and it's only that because they are public employees. One of the concerns I have, first of all, looking at the document itself, is this never had the scrutiny imposed upon it that you would hope it would from the employer-employee perspective.

"I note that the Committee on Labor did not have the opportunity to review this particular measure, and that gives me a grave concern about whether or not we properly and adequately considered the interest of both the employer, as well as the employee.

"The very fact that one can bring an allegation against an officer for misconduct and then subsequently require a disclosure of that internal proceeding in subsequent reports on an annual basis until it's finally resolved, could tilt the perception of misconduct or error of law or judgment against the police officer, even though, Mr. Speaker, at the end of the day, at the end of the review process, no finding of any wrongdoing or bad acts by the officer. That's a concern that I have.

"I don't really know much about the current issue or what needs to be fixed in this current law, Mr. Speaker. It's not been brought to my attention by the county councils, the respective mayors, any of the other interested parties that seem to have testified on this measure. But I just have some grave concerns.

"I know that the Chair of the Judiciary Committee would hope that they would have further time to work on this bill. But again, this current draft before us is effective upon approval. And then, it basically allows the Judiciary Chair on the Senate side to decide whether or not this bill is approved and goes to the Governor's desk for approval or enactment through passage of time. And that's why at this at point in time, I will be voting no. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations, brief comment. Mr. Speaker, first responders being accountable, yes. But first responders being accountable to politicians, no. This is structured too much like the third world, and that's dangerous to mix the two together. For those reasons, strong reservations."

Representative Johanson rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Johanson's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations on SB 2591, SD1, HD1. While I am sensitive to the idea that instances of misconduct on the part of police officers ought to be handled with the highest level of concern, I believe that this bill may have the potential to cause undue harm to officers who may not be guilty of misconduct. I believe that we must balance the idea of accountability to the public with the necessity to protect the reputation of our law enforcement community."

Representative Evans rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, with reservations. They're slight, only in the sense that the other day we had a bill and we were talking about if we actually put this in law, would it deter people from reporting things? I just have concerns if we get too heavy-handed with someone maybe suspended for a year, would that maybe end up being where the suspension ends up being only six months or nine months, because they really don't want this to be published? So, I just don't want any unintended consequence. So, that's my slight reservation. Thank you."

Representative Fukumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Matsumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Morikawa rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ito rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I need a ruling on a conflict. My nephew is a lawman," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Ito then asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Tokioka rose, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, given the comments that we heard, I'd like to change my vote 'with reservations, strong reservations,' to a no vote, Mr. Speaker. And I'd like to ask that the words of the Representative from Wahiawa and the Representative from Kapolei be inserted into the Journal as if they were my own," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Kawakami rose, stating:

"Same request, reservations to opposition. Thank you."

Representative Aquino rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representatives Oshiro and Yamane be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

At 12:54 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 12:55 o'clock p.m.

Representative Thielen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Yamane rose, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I'll be changing my reservations to a no vote, Mr. Speaker. And can I just briefly explain why? Mr. Speaker, the current department, just in Honolulu alone, there are over 300 vacancies, as well as at least 200-plus officers eligible currently to retire. And so, with measures like this, Mr. Speaker, as expressed by the Honolulu Police Department Officers, that this may send the wrong message and directly impact recruiting, as well as the confidence that the officers and their families have in a system for their protection. So I would like to cast a no vote. Thank you."

Representative Cullen rose in opposition to the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cullen's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to SB 2591, SD1, HD1.

"I rise in opposition because foremost, I believe that it will impede on the recruitment of police officers throughout the State of Hawaii. Honolulu Police Department alone has a shortage of 300 officers. With over 200 other officers in consideration for retirement, the gap widens between how many bona fide officers are needed to sufficiently protect our communities and how many officers are still needed to be recruited. This gap thus poses a threat to the public safety of our citizens.

"Secondly, as written in the State of Hawaii Organization of Police Officers (SHOPO) testimony, the Chiefs of Police of each county police department already have internal policies to investigate police misconduct and to impose discipline as deemed fit. The Chiefs are accountable to their respective Police Commissions – comprised of citizens from the community – for handling police misconduct.

"Lastly, there are already current practices and standards that are in place and passing this measure will 'reinvent the wheel.' Whenever county prosecutors believe there is adequate evidence to proceed against a police officer for alleged criminal conduct, they file documents in court naming the officer that are then made available to the public. Annual misconduct reports are already submitted to the Legislature by the Chiefs of Police that provide additional information.

"It is for these reasons that I oppose SB 2591, SD1, HD1."

Representative Ward rose, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I too have been converted at the recess. Reservations to a no vote, please."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. Just to point out what the bill does and doesn't do. First, it asks for a little bit more information than we already require. The current statute does require some information, but it's very hard to follow the disciplinary actions from year-to-year. This does ask for a little bit more information. But the names of officers are not revealed under any circumstances until the entire internal appeals process has been completed. And even then, it's at least 30 days after that.

"So, I think there was some question about whether that's the case. But you can read it in the bill itself, it says no names are revealed until after the whole process is over, plus 30 days. Thank you."

Representative Awana rose, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I was so compelled by the previous speakers, as well as after reviewing my own testimony. I'm changing my 'with reservations' to a no vote. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and S.B. No. 2591, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO LAW ENFORCEMENT," passed Third Reading by a vote of 30 ayes to 18 noes, with Representatives Aquino, Awana, Carroll, Choy, Cullen, Fale, Hanohano, Har, Ito, Jordan, Kawakami, McDermott, Oshiro, Say, Tokioka, Tsuji, Ward and Yamane voting no, and with Representatives Cachola, Hashem and Wooley being excused.

S.B. No. 2633, SD 1, HD 1:

Representative Saiki moved that S.B. No. 2633, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Please note my reservations on this measure. I will look forward to what comes out of conference, and then I'll make my final decision after that. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Yamane rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cullen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Kawakami rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Tokioka rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Choy rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and S.B. No. 2633, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HISTORIC PROPERTY," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes, with Representatives Cachola, Hashem and Wooley being excused.

At 1:02 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 2331, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2801, HD 1
S.B. No. 2591, SD 1, HD 1

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Representative Takai: "Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With your permission I'd like to acknowledge some of the people that participated in and assisted with the Hawaii Medal of Honor Ceremony last Tuesday. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. You know, I want to make sure that we thank the people that made the event possible. And first, Mr. Speaker, I wanted to thank you for giving me the opportunity to once again coordinate this year's Hawaii Medal of Honor Ceremony, as well as the preparations prior. But it took many, many people and I would like to at this time acknowledge some of them.

"I'd like to first thank all of our staff here and in the Senate. House Chief Clerk Brian Takeshita, and his staff. Senate Chief Clerk Carol Taniguchi, and her staff. House Sergeant-at-Arms Kevin Kuroda, and his staff. Senate Sergeant-at-Arms Ben Villaflor, and his staff. And Joan Yamaguchi from the House Majority Staff Office, and her staff.

"We also got a lot of support and assistance from the military, and I would like to recognize Elisia Lukasik from the US Pacific Command, who helped us with coordinating the ceremony participants, Master Sergeant Darrell Bactad for coordinating the Hawaii Air National Guard Royal Guard, and Leighton Siu from the 8th Theater Sustainment Command, who helped us with protocol.

"Thank you also to Richard Ah Lee Sam from the House Clerk's Office for his beautiful rendition of our National Anthem and all three verses of our Hawai'i Pono'ī.

"I wanted to mention some individuals who helped us throughout the year in identifying the people that we recognized Tuesday. From the Army, we had Ernestine Pratt, Chief of the Hawaii Casualty Assistance Center at Schofield. From the Navy, we had Agnes Tauyan from Director of Public Affairs at Joint Base Hawaii Pearl Harbor Hickam. From the Air Force, we had Minnie Allen, Casualty Assistance Counselor for the Airman and Family Readiness Section. And from the Marines, we had Peter Swainson, Director of Manpower, Personnel and Administration.

"Mr. Speaker and colleagues, as all of you have noticed, the medal itself is a beautiful symbol of our love for these families. And I wanted to once again thank Sergeant First Class Retired Aaron Pollick, who came up with the initial design. But with that, a lot of other people participated, namely Troy Headley from Point Emblems for minting the medal. Kent Untermann and Suzette Torres from Pictures Plus who did the assembly and framing. Rose Lee who helped us sew the ribbons. And Ty and Cindy Tamanaha from Awardline who helped us with the plaques.

"In addition, I would like to acknowledge those who helped us enrich the experiences for the families who traveled, in some cases, many miles. We worked very closely with the Pearl Harbor Historic Sites, namely the Arizona, the Bowfin, the Missouri, and the Pacific Aviation Museum, who came through with support for the families. The Hale Koa Hotel and the Polynesian Cultural Center came through as well, and we worked specifically with the Hawaii Lodging and Tourism Association to provide discounted hotel rates at participating hotels for the families. All of these organizations and entities helped us, as we helped the families that made this special visit to Hawaii possible.

"We also had a beautiful reception following the ceremony. I wanted to especially thank Roxanne Kamalu from Representative Ito's office and Janis Higaki from the House Clerk's Office for coordinating this effort. A big mahalo goes to the office managers and staff from Representative Ito's office, Representative Brower's office, Representative Cachola's office, Representative McKelvey's office, Representative Ohno's office, Representative Choy's office, and Representative Onishi's office, for helping with the check-in table and reception.

"Also, thank you to Lila Frisbee and the Girl Scout Council of Hawaii for their generous gift of Girl Scout cookies distributed to each of the families being honored and all of our Hawaii Gold Star families that attended the ceremony.

"Many people, again, were asking about the 'Olelo Broadcast, and I wanted to make mention that we will, with the thank you to Capitol TV, we will be graciously providing a DVD to each family, both present and not present at Tuesday's ceremony.

"Mr. Speaker, we all know as Representatives that much of our success and the things that we do in this Chamber, as well as in our communities, are the direct results of our staff. And I wanted to at this time, acknowledge Denise Liu from your office, Terrence Aratani from Senate President Kim's office, and Marlene Uesugi from Senator Espero's office.

And from my staff in particular, I wanted to recognize and thank my office manager Lisa Vargas, Candace Kaawaloa, Klaire Marie Trajano and Michael Hall.

"For us here in Hawaii, this has become an ongoing project over the last 10 years, and it has been a privilege and honor to award our medal. From March 29, 2003 to January 20, 2014, the Legislature has awarded 331 service members and their families with the Hawaii Medal of Honor. And by doing so, Mr. Speaker, we have forever made them a part of our 'ohana.

"Mr. Speaker, I'd like to at this time ask my staff people that I recognized, if they can stand and if we could recognize them. So Lisa, Klaire, Candace and Michael, can we give them a hand? And, Mr. Speaker, all the people that I mentioned previously, if we could give them a round of applause. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Ward: "Mr. Speaker, there is one mahalo conspicuously absent in the former gentleman's speech. Could we give Representative Mark Takai a round of applause for all that he's done."

Representative Belatti: "Mr. Speaker, thank you. I'll be very brief. I just wanted to inform, for all of you who are going to be working late tonight. If you notice that the Capitol is lit up blue today, the Hawaii State Capitol is joining the global awareness initiative by Autism Speaks where buildings around the globe are being lit up blue to raise awareness. So we'll be joining the ranks of the Seattle Space Needle, the White House, the Empire State Building, and the Sydney Opera House, as many of those buildings are being lit up blue.

"We know from a CDC report that was recently released that 1 in 68 children are afflicted with autism. That this is an affliction for boys more acutely, where 1 in 42 boys are suffering with autism and 1 in 189 girls have and live with autism. So thank you, Mr. Speaker. And please join us in autism awareness. Thank you."

Representative Hanohano: "I just wanted to inform you, there's a card on your desk, and this is for the closing night film of the Hawaii International Film Festival. They'll be featuring Kumu Hina and The True Meaning of Aloha. It's going to be playing Thursday, April 10th at 7 p.m. at Hawaii Theatre Center. Thank you."

At this time, the Chair stated:

"We have the first crossover filing deadline for House Concurrent Resolutions tonight at 6 p.m. So make sure you get it all done, otherwise make. And item number two, non-finance single referral bills filing deadline is tonight at 9 p.m."

At 1:11 o'clock p.m., Representative Takai requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 1:11 o'clock p.m.

ADJOURNMENT

At 1:12 o'clock p.m., on motion by Representative Cabanilla, seconded by Representative Fukumoto and carried, the House of Representatives adjourned until 12:00 o'clock noon tomorrow, Thursday, April 3, 2014. (Representatives Cachola, Hashem, Tokioka and Wooley were excused.)

HOUSE COMMUNICATIONS

House Communication dated April 2, 2014, from Brian L. Takeshita, Chief Clerk of the House of Representatives, to the Honorable President and Members of the Senate, informing the Senate that the House has disagreed to the amendments made by the Senate to the following measure:

H.B. No. 1723, HD 2, (SD 1)
H.B. No. 2099, HD 1, (SD 1)
H.B. No. 2560, HD 2, (SD 2)

INTRODUCTIONS

The following introductions were made to the Members of the House:

Representative Belatti introduced former Representative and Senator Fred Rohlfing.

Representative Thielen introduced Reverend John Heidel (Ret.); Mrs. Marian Heidel; and their daughter and Representative's former Office Manager, Ms. Melody Heidel.

At 12:16 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 12:44 o'clock p.m.

ORDER OF THE DAY

At this time, the Chair stated:

"Members, please note that House Resolution No. 87, House Draft 1, and House Concurrent Resolution No. 122, House Draft 1, have been re-referred solely to the Committee on Health per Committee Referral Sheet No. 49. The Committees on Consumer Protection & Commerce and Finance waived their referral to these measures, and therefore it is appropriate for the House to consider action for adoption.

"We will be going over three motions. The motion to suspend, the motion to reconsider action taken, and the final motion will be the motion to adopt."

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the rules were suspended to reconsider action previously taken on H.R. No. 87, HD 1; and H.C.R. No. 122, HD 1. (Representatives Cachola, Carroll, Nishimoto, Oshiro, Say and Tsuji were excused.)

RECONSIDERATION OF ACTION TAKEN

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the House reconsidered its action previously taken pursuant to the recommendation contained in Standing Committee Report Nos. 1222-14 and 1223-14, recommending referral to the Committee on Consumer Protection & Commerce. (Representatives Cachola, Carroll, Oshiro, Say and Tsuji were excused.)

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, H.R. No. 87, HD 1, entitled: "HOUSE RESOLUTION URGING THE DIRECTOR OF HEALTH TO CONVENE A TASK FORCE TO ASSESS THE SCOPE AND FEASIBILITY OF ESTABLISHING AN EMERGENCY SERVICES PATIENT ADVOCATE PROGRAM," was adopted, with Representatives Cachola, Carroll, Oshiro and Say being excused.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, H.C.R. No. 122, HD 1, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION URGING THE DIRECTOR OF HEALTH TO CONVENE A TASK FORCE TO ASSESS THE SCOPE AND FEASIBILITY OF ESTABLISHING AN EMERGENCY SERVICES PATIENT ADVOCATE PROGRAM," was adopted, with Representatives Cachola, Carroll, Oshiro and Say being excused.

SUSPENSION OF RULES

On motion by Representative Cabanilla, seconded by Representative Fukumoto and carried, the rules were suspended for the purpose of considering certain Senate Bills for Third Reading by consent calendar. (Representatives Cachola, Carroll, Oshiro and Say were excused.)

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1378-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2452, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2452, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO JURY DUTY," passed Third Reading by a vote of 47 ayes, with Representatives Cachola, Carroll, Oshiro and Say being excused.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1379-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2875, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2875, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE ENDANGERED SPECIES RECOVERY COMMITTEE," passed Third Reading by a vote of 47 ayes, with Representatives Cachola, Carroll, Oshiro and Say being excused.

Representatives Rhoads and McKelvey, for the Committee on Judiciary and the Committee on Consumer Protection & Commerce, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1380-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2574, SD 1, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committees be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2574, SD 1, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with reservations. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I want to thank the Chairs of the Health Committee as well as the Judiciary and CPC Committees for what appears to be a compromise measure. I do continue to have concerns, though.

"This is a drastic change from the original House version, as well as the Senate version. We seem to be expanding the universe of doctors that would be allowed to prescribe a registration card. And while the bill itself does ostensibly seem to have a list of purported safeguards regarding bona fide treatment by a physician, I do believe that some of the requirements don't really rise to the level of creating that relationship that a patient would have with either their PCP or a specialist who is dealing with someone who is terminally ill.

"For those reasons, I do understand that the Department of Health may at some point be creating a board that will deal specifically, as the program transitions to the Department of Health, they will be creating a board that will deal specifically with this program. But until that time, and they can make recommendations for safeguards, I'm not clear why we are passing this and expanding the universe of doctors until we get those recommendations from the Department of Health.

"While I do understand that this current draft, the HD 2, was based on recommendations from the Department of Health, until they create those safeguards I think it's premature to move this measure as is. So for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I continue to support medical marijuana, but for those reasons I'm with reservations. Thank you."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Chair, with reservations, please. A brief comment. It's definitely better than what it was before. It'll likely stem those marijuana carpetbaggers who fly in, and in four days probably run 1,500 or so certificates. It's likely to do that. And I know, having spoken to the Chair of Health in the Senate, he wants to make it as stringent as possible. So whether this sails through conference is probably questionable. Otherwise, it's a better draft than before. Thank you."

Representative Tokioka rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Aquino rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cullen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Yamane rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of both measures, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. Just briefly. I consider myself a pretty hard worker, but I have to say that Dr. Fuddy was an amazingly hard worker. I would go to Kalihi-Palama Neighborhood Boards, and I'd usually go late, because I knew that my name wouldn't come up until the very end. Her name came up very near the end as well, but she'd be in there for the whole thing. She'd get there at seven, she'd stay for the whole thing.

"I just wanted to say how much we're all going to miss her. For someone who worked so hard and someone who's in that important of a position to actually stay for two, two-and-a-half hours at a neighborhood board meeting is pretty remarkable. We are going to miss a remarkable person. Mahalo."

Representative Belatti rose to speak in support of both measures, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in strong support. I just wanted to speak on the director's behalf. Serving as the Chair of the Health Committee, being able to serve with her that one year was a tremendous opportunity, and I feel very grateful for that opportunity, and that in this year much of her spirit and her legacy was helping to guide us as we moved forward with legislation. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of both measures, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, strong support. Mr. Speaker, this is a historic document. I put it in that same category the way it was historic that the Hokulea, its team, its crew, its voyage that's going to start in a matter of weeks that's going to visit 26 countries. I think it's such an important resolution that if I was on the CPC Committee, which I didn't have the chance to weigh in on, I would have said, 'Let's send it to every country that the Hokulea is going to visit.' And that's 26 countries that could get the benefit of this, to know that the Hokulea is coming. And I would ask the author from Kauai or others if they could send it even without having it in the resolution, they could send it to those 26 countries knowing that we are behind them fully, and that this Body speaks and wishes them the best. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of both measures, stating:

No. 245, entitled: "HOUSE CONCURRENT RESOLUTION DESIGNATING HAWAI‘I AS THE FIRST HUMAN RIGHTS STATE IN THE UNITED STATES AND RECOGNIZING MARCH AS HUMAN RIGHTS MONTH," was adopted, with Representatives Cachola, Carroll, Oshiro and Say being excused.

Representative Takai, for the Committee on Veterans, Military, & International Affairs, & Culture and the Arts, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1433-14) recommending that H.C.R. No. 61, as amended in HD 1, be adopted.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that H.C.R. No. 61, HD 1 be adopted, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with some reservations. This resolution is extraordinarily high technology. Because of that, I think it's subject to misinterpretation and probably abuse or misunderstanding. Number one, because these are self-autonomous robots like Terminator, it has nothing to do with drones, but I don't think the guy in the street or even anyone in this Body probably knew that until I asked the author and the CPC Chair.

"But if that is the case, Mr. Speaker, we are stepping over the line into national defense and military affairs, and I'm not sure that, as the speech made the other day about a Ukrainian resolution that never got heard, that we should be venturing into saying, 'US Military, don't go and defend the country by getting autonomous robots.'

"I don't even believe there's such a thing as self-autonomous robots. Even Terminator had some commands that you could override, and even with its master it was confused and fought and threw him over the tower, or out the tower window or something like that.

"My point is, Mr. Speaker, this is going to confuse people in terms of drones, in which we are a test site for the US. And secondly, this is stepping outside of our boundary into not only military affairs, but national security in terms of our weaponry. And we do happen to have PACOM down the street, and we should be very cognizant of that.

"Having said that, I would hope it would have been a bit more clear because it's esoteric in terms of this really high technology that I never knew existed until this resolution came out. Having said that, Mr. Speaker, those are reservations that I think are worth of note. Thank you."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in strong support. First of all, if that is the case, then I would expect that we would be voting with reservations on all of the resolutions expressing support or concern on things that impact the military, like a resolution we just passed the other day asking congress to recognize the benefits to our Filipino veterans.

"That being said, Mr. Speaker, the reality is, this is not drones. This is something that actually came to my attention at the end of last session, Mr. Speaker. And if you look on the internet, if you talk to the groups in Washington D.C., the fact is that lethal autonomous robots, a.k.a. Terminators, systems to which there are no human control during operations, exist. They're being tested and deployed. And so, what has happened is the United Nations along with other countries are proactively taking steps to adopt rules to prohibit the use of these devices because of the fact there is no human control, Mr. Speaker.

"Now, yes, is it a little forward out there? Yes, it is. But, Mr. Speaker, back in the turn of the century there was this other thing out there that was considered, called chemical weapons, Mr. Speaker, and biological weapons. The fact of the matter is that those two were tools of defense to which we all saw what happened. And what the UN and others are looking at is to add lethal autonomous robotics systems to the treaty, basically prohibiting them as weapons of mass destruction, weapons which, in war, could result in civilian casualties, Mr. Speaker.

"And what this tries to do is to say, look, the United States has already taken steps to do this. We support that, and we hope the United Nations and all countries will recognize that this is going in an area to which there could be untold ramifications.

"So, Mr. Speaker, I stand in strong support, but this is something that I hope all will read about and will look and educate themselves, because this is a discussion that should happen before these systems are upon us. A discussion that didn't happen long ago, back in the eve of World War I. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Ward rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, brief rebuttal. Mr. Speaker, generally speaking we have resolutions because we know something about something. We have 'the Legislature finds', and 'whereas', where we know what's going on.

"This is so esoteric, this is so closed, this is so much new, that to speak authoritatively as a Body I think is presumptuous, I think it's overzealous, and it's getting into a territory which, again, gets into national security.

And if it would please the good Representative from Maui, I will vote no on the bill, having what he just said. Thank you."

Representative McDermott rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with reservations and just brief comments. As I review this bill, it's clear that there's an argument that could be made that this is, indeed, special legislation, that the scope is too narrow. Secondly, my concern too is that the renewable energy that would be derived from the solar panels is not, in fact, connected to the agricultural project upon which the lands would be used. And so, I think that there is an opportunity for abuse with the current language of this bill. And for those reasons, I'm with reservations. Thank you."

Representative Thielen rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I also would like to cast a no vote. Mr. Speaker, it just sets a policy that I'm afraid could be expanded as things move forward, and I don't think that's the best way to protect our class A agricultural lands. Thank you."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Just reservations, Mr. Speaker, and I would like the concerns of the speaker from Kapolei entered into the record as if they were my own," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Representative Luke: "Thank you very much. Mr. Speaker, yesterday we were running up against a resolution deadline, and I think it was around 4:30-ish where we finally finished the bills. So I just want to thank the several staff members who had to rush the committee reports and get it in around the 6 p.m. deadline. We want to thank the drafting agencies for their quick work, and especially Kevan Wong, Chelsea Okamoto, Julie Yang, and Jennifer Byun for working on over 60 committee reports in probably just less than 30 minutes. Again, the good staff of both LRB and HMSO for making sure that the deadlines were met. Also Randy Yamamoto from Representative Nishimoto's office and Carol Kaapu from Representative Johanson's office in making sure that all the tally votes were done. I want to thank the two vice chairs, again, for making sure that the resolution hearings were done efficiently.

"With that, I want to say happy birthday to Representative Nishimoto, here. With that, onto new business, real business."

UNFINISHED BUSINESS

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1386-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2874, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2874, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE BOARD OF LAND AND NATURAL RESOURCES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes, with Representatives Cachola, Carroll and Woodson being excused.

Representative McKelvey, for the Committee on Consumer Protection & Commerce, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1387-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2465, SD 2, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2465, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO CONTINUING EDUCATION FOR PSYCHOLOGISTS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes, with Representatives Cachola, Carroll and Woodson being excused.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1388-14) recommending that S.B. No. 651, SD 2, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 651, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McDermott rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition. My previous comments on this regarding the not smoking in public housing, I think there's a myriad of problems here, and one of them is, if you go out late at night and you want to have a cigarette, you've got to go outside the building. We know that the crime in a lot of those areas is higher, and I wouldn't, even at my size, feel comfortable walking around at 11:30, 12 o'clock outside some of those buildings, number one.

"Number two, we heard mention about the complex ventilation systems. In most of these facilities it is a louver window. And so, there is no central air-conditioning or anything like that, whether it's KPT, Mayor Wright, Puuwai Momi, or all these other places. So for those reasons, I don't think it will be enforced, and I don't think it's practical. So, thank you."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations. Mr. Speaker, this is public housing. These are people who are having hard times, have been down and out or are in a transition. And, Mr. Speaker, this Body has settled many of the issues of homelessness, but I would hate to hear someone who when they were interviewed, saying, 'Why are you on the streets?' and they say, 'Well, I got caught smoking.' This bill is draconian enough to actually have these people thrown out based upon smoking in their unit.

"It's not condoning that smoking is there, but the fact that we're going to have possibly homeless people because of smoking, we've come a long way to really condemning people who maybe only have that as their only recreational effort that's left to them. So, Mr. Speaker, I think we should be circumspect about passing something this stringent. Thank you."

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Jordan rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, please note my opposition. Mr. Speaker, I think we should always allow the department to continue with their rulemaking process, and I don't think the Legislature should step in front of that process until it is exhausted. My understanding, the department has been working on their rules, they haven't completed them. We have to be cognizant of these individuals that live in our public housing.

"I understand people don't want to inhale smoke if they're non-smokers. I'm a child of a smoker, and I grew up around that. So I could be subject to secondhand smoke at any point in time through my life. So I understand individuals that live in our public housing, and their major concerns. And I have those concerns. But until such time we can honor their concerns, as well as individuals that may have an addiction to smoking and can't use any alternative devices, how do we still help them with public housing when there's no other alternative for them? I haven't heard that from my authorities.

"So this I think is going before we can address some of these issues. And we all know in this place that we have an issue with public housing. We don't have enough. We don't have enough private housing out there for low-income individuals. So until such time we get further information and answers on how we can address this more cohesively, I don't think we should be moving with a measure that is 'upon approval' at this point in time. Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Cabanilla rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In support, Mr. Speaker. I just would like to make the comment that as a former Chair for the Committee on Housing, we did pass a resolution asking the department, or the Housing Authority, to come up with this rulemaking, maybe five, six years ago. And up to this day, they have not come out with that rulemaking."

Representative Creagan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise with reservations. My problem is partly with the inclusion of electronic smoking devices. Recent studies have shown that devices that vaporize nicotine, without smoke, but just vaporize nicotine, which might be included under the definition of electronic smoking devices, actually help decrease the symptoms of Parkinsonism and might be a medical device that could be used to treat Parkinsonism. So therefore you're excluding people treating their Parkinsonism because you're excluding electronic smoking devices. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative McKelvey rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition. May I please have the words of the Representative from Waianae entered into the Journal as if they were my own? And very quickly, my issue with this bill really stems from the portion which authorizes termination of the lease, rental agreement, permit or license, and the eviction of a tenant for violation of the smoking prohibition.

"As noted by the Representative from Hawaii Kai, these are draconian measures. These are people who are in public housing. And so, yes, nobody is condoning smoking. We all know the secondhand effects, but the HD 1 had very different, there was at least a 'four strikes, you're out' provision. This is much more draconian. And for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, what are we going to do, we're just going to kick people in public housing out on the street and then increase homelessness?

"That is not what we should be doing in this Body. We should be looking out for these people. And we should be trying to look at a holistic, systemic approach to dealing with their smoking issues, as opposed to simply kicking them out on the street for violating the smoking prohibition. So for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, respectfully, I must vote in opposition. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Har be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. I would just point out a couple of things that have been raised and I believe are incorrect. First of all, the HPHA does not oppose this bill. They're willing to see it go forward, and they don't believe that it's in conflict with the rulemaking process that they're undergoing already.

"I think the other thing that would be very unfortunate is if someone who was particularly susceptible to secondhand smoke, other than the fact that it's a known class 1 carcinogen, but someone who, for example, was asthmatic. If they were forced onto the street because their next door neighbor smoked and they couldn't get away from the smoke and they had nowhere else to live because of their income level. So I think you have to look at it from both sides there.

"Finally, with regard to the e-cigarette part of it, the last version of the bill, I do not see any language that refers to e-smoking at all. It only refers to smoking. Thank you."

Representative Matsumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I'm glad that you're encouraging us to discuss this issue before us today. I'd like the words of the Representatives from Hawaii Kai, Waianae, and Kapolei entered into the Journal as if they were my very own. Thank you, Mr. Speaker.

"I also have an additional comment when I look at this measure. My understanding is that the Hawaii Public Housing Authority was already well underway to promulgate rules regarding smoking in public housing units and to also deal with those who might be addicted to nicotine. As we all know, nicotine is a bona fide addiction that needs to be treated for the addicted person to get relief. So I thought they were on their way to promulgate some rules. In fact, I think, according to the Hawaii Public Housing Authority's executive director, they were already going to public hearings to promulgate rules.

"So, this seems to be unnecessary at best and draconian at worst. Let me explain to you why I think this is horribly draconian. It states that effective July 1, 2014, the authority will be prohibited from entering into any lease, whether it's a rental agreement, permit, license, or even a month-to-month tenancy, Mr. Speaker.

"Here we are in April. That means in a matter of, May, June, July going forward, three months going forward, none of these tenants currently in our public housing system will be allowed to smoke within their residences. I don't know how many of them have bona fide tobacco additions, are addicted to cigarettes or nicotine, but I think it's going to really put a burden upon these individuals, as the law would then compel them to prohibit that within their units.

"I also have concerns about being held liable, Mr. Speaker. Almost in the strict liability sense of one's guest, and I understand that's the current rules right now, in application right now. But if a guest should innocently or inadvertently light up or use some kind of tobacco device unbeknownst to the tenant of the Hawaii Public Housing Authority, he or she might then be summarily evicted."

At 12:40 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 12:40 o'clock p.m.

Representative Oshiro continued, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I am against this bill. I am opposed to this bill. You might have assumed otherwise, but anyway let me just finish up. I think it's unnecessary at best. I think it's draconian. July 1 is right around the corner, Mr. Speaker. Can you imagine any month-to-month tenancy going forward? You can't have that. You can't allow that. That's prohibited going forward. I think that's a bit extreme, especially since they're trying to deal with it right now.

"For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I will be opposing this measure. Thank you very much."

Representative Tokioka rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With very strong reservations. Mr. Speaker, I think it's important for me to note that I was one of three council members 15 years ago that put together a ban and a bill that banned smoking in restaurants, along with the Maui County and Oahu County. So I do not support smoking, but I do know that people that smoke have very few options, and sometimes the places that they need to go to smoke are out in the rain.

"I do know that the Representative from North Kauai and I get texts and emails from a constituent of ours that lives in public housing now, and her neighbors are doing drugs. And they cannot even enforce that. How are they going to enforce this? So for all of those things, I'm with very strong reservations with this bill, Mr. Speaker. Can I ask that the words of the Representatives from Kapolei, Wahiawa, Waianae, and Kahala be inserted as if they were my own? Thank you, Mr. Speaker," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Thielen rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Mr. Speaker, I'm rising in support of the measure. Mr. Speaker, our communities have changed very much from the days when my oldest son was a youngster. When he was growing up, and some of you that are old enough in this Body will remember, smoking was everywhere, absolutely everywhere. Dave never smoked, but he developed secondhand smoke cancer, throat cancer, and almost died from it. So I am firmly in support of measures that will let people have clean air to breathe. Thank you."

Representative Ward rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, second time, but I'd like to rebut the Majority Floor Leader and some of her comments about the lack of rulemaking and that gives us the divine right to micromanage the situation.

"In Singapore, if you spit on the sidewalk, you're going to get a $50 fine. If you smoke in a taxi, $50 fine. If you don't flush a toilet, $50 fine. We are not Singapore, Mr. Speaker. We're a democracy, and contrary to what my friend from Kailua said, we're not talking about being against guarding the safety and the health of people. We're talking about the draconian measure that, if you smoke, you get thrown out on the street. Mr. Speaker, that is Singaporean, that is draconian.

"There's no excuse for us, when we plead and we cry about the homeless situation, and we don't give money, and we give our sympathy, and then we turn around and pass something like this for people who are already down and out. Mr. Speaker, where is the heart? Where is the aloha? Are we putting really our heart where these policies are sending?

"I just think it's hypocritical, and we should be circumspect, again, about passing something like this, that even though they agreed to it, it's something that we shouldn't be micromanaging at the level of their tenancies. We've got 12,000 homeless people, we're going to add more by doing this starting in July 1. Thank you."

Representative Kawakami rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representatives Har and Oshiro be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Awana rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representatives McDermott, Ward, Jordan, Har, Oshiro and Tokioka be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Tsuji rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Brower rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. Soon, you won't be able to smoke in parks anyway. So if you're homeless in a park, you won't be able to smoke there. A lot of us supported no smoking in parks and in beaches, and Members, where did you think this was going? This is the natural conclusion on where this bill is going. And I think it's picking up steam like a snowball rolling downhill. If we're not going to allow smoking in parks, why would we allow it in government funded housing? Thank you."

Representative Ing rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, standing in support. I just wanted to note that the Department of Health testified in support of the measure and they do want the provision in statute. I also wanted to make a point that this bill puts public housing with, it creates a parity with private buildings, businesses that serve a public purpose, which already you're not allowed to smoke in.

"Lastly, the enforcement issue, I don't think that most smokers are law breakers. Those people that are doing drugs are already criminals, and they might break the law. But I think most smokers are law abiding citizens and they'll follow the rules. And 92 percent of smokers want to quit, and if they don't have a lot of money to spend, this is a great habit to drop, and maybe this will give them some incentive to do so. Thank you."

Representative Saiki rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, just two brief comments in support of this measure. First, I just wanted to note that this legislation actually reflects the growing trend that you find in high-rise condominiums where associations are beginning to enact no smoking bans in high-rise buildings.

"The second point is that this legislation will not result in the summary eviction of residents who smoke in public housing, because this legislation actually gives the Housing Authority the flexibility to enforce such a provision. Also as we are aware, as we know, the Housing Authority is required to follow a very formal due process requirement when it comes to evicting or attempting to evict a resident. So that process would have to be exhausted before a decision is made whether or not to evict a resident for violating this statute. Thank you very much."

Representative Hashem rose in support of the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hashem's written remarks are as follows:

"I stand in strong support of SB 651 which will prohibit smoking in public housing units and set up nearby designated areas where smoking will be permitted. Public housing should provide healthy living conditions for all tenants. Those tenants in public housing who do not smoke prefer reasonable protections from those who do.

"I believe prohibiting smoking in units and alternatively providing nearby designated smoking areas offers the best way to bring effective compliance and enforcement. Smoking provisions also will be part of new rental agreements, and tenant failure to comply can result in termination of the rental agreement and eviction.

"Passage of this bill will make public housing a much healthier and more desirable place to live."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 651, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HEALTH," passed Third Reading by a vote of 42 ayes to 6 noes, with Representatives Fale, Hanohano, Har, Jordan, McDermott and Oshiro voting no, and with Representatives Cachola, Carroll and Woodson being excused.

At 12:50 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

27th LEGISLATURE
JOINT HOUSE-SENATE
2014 COMMITTEES ON CONFERENCE PROCEDURES

The Senate and the House have agreed to the following special procedures for all 2014 Regular Session Committees on Conference. These Conference procedures shall be effective from 8:00 a.m. on April 14, 2014 until 12:00 midnight on April 25, 2014.

1. Definitions

For purposes of these procedures:

"Chairs" refers to all of the designated chairs and co-chairs of a Conference Committee.

"Conference Committee" refers to the conference of the House Committee and the Senate Committee assigned by their respective chamber to resolve the differences between the House and the Senate over a particular measure.

"Lead chair" refers to the chair of the House Committee or the Senate Committee who is listed first on the Action Sheets, as provided by the respective chamber.

"Lead committee staff" refers to the staff of the lead Chair from the chamber from which the measure in conference originated.

"Managers" refers to all members of the House and Senate assigned to a Conference Committee.

2. Conference Committee Scope and Amendments

The authority of the Conference Committee shall be limited to resolving differences between the Senate and House drafts of a measure. Accordingly:

a. With the exception of the Executive Budget, the Judiciary Budget, and the Budget of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, a Conference Committee shall not amend a measure by inserting any unrelated or new subject matter.

b. To assure the integrity of individual measures, the merging of two or more distinct but related measures into one encompassing measure shall not be allowed.

3. Conference Committee Meeting Times and Places

Conference Committee deliberations shall take place only between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 12:00 midnight.

A Conference Committee shall meet in the conference room assigned or reserved, pursuant to the Room Scheduling Procedures and Guidelines and Room Assignment Schedule, as attached.

4. Initial Public-Meeting Notice

The signatures of all chairs shall be obtained before the notice of an initial meeting is posted or distributed. Prior to offering the initial meeting notice for signatures, the chairs shall consult with one another on the information to be included in the notice. Lead chairs from both houses are encouraged to sign meeting notices first, before distributing them to other chairs to sign.

Chairs shall provide at least 24 hours public notice of the first meeting of the Conference Committee and are strongly encouraged to provide more than 24 hours notice if at all possible. Written notices shall be submitted to the Senate Chief Clerk and the House Sergeant-at-Arms for official postings on the Legislature's website and Capitol bulletin boards. The lead committee staff shall post the notice adjacent to the door of the assigned conference room at the time of the meeting.

5. Notice of Subsequent Meetings

a. If agreement is not reached at a duly noticed meeting but the lead chairs of both chambers agree to meet again before midnight on the same day, the lead chairs of both chambers shall publicly announce at the meeting the time and place at which the Conference Committee will reconvene. Written notice of the reconvening of the Conference Committee on the same day is not required to be distributed. However, written notice containing information on the subsequent meeting shall be submitted to the Senate Chief Clerk and the House Sergeant-at-Arms for official posting as soon as possible. The lead committee staff shall post the notice adjacent to the door of the assigned conference room at the time of the meeting.

b. If agreement is not reached at a duly noticed meeting but the lead chairs of both chambers agree to meet on another day, the lead chairs of both chambers shall publicly announce at the meeting the date(s), time(s), and place of the subsequent meeting(s), and submit written notice to the Senate Chief Clerk and the House Sergeant-at-Arms for official posting. The lead committee staff shall post the notice adjacent to the door of the assigned conference room at the time of the meeting.

c. If agreement is not reached at a duly noticed meeting and the date(s), time(s), and place of future meetings are not publicly announced at that noticed meeting, chairs shall ensure that a written meeting notice, signed by the lead chairs of their respective chamber, is submitted to the Senate Chief Clerk and the House Sergeant-at-Arms for official posting at least 24 hours in advance of the next meeting of the Conference Committee.

6. Attendance at Meetings

a. To convene the initial conference committee meeting only the lead House and Senate chair must be present. All other conference committee managers, especially any co-chair, should attempt to be present.

b. Once a conference has been opened, reconvening of any subsequent meeting of a conference committee shall require the following:

For the Senate, the lead chair or co-chair must be present.

For the House, the lead chair must be present.

All other conference committee managers, especially any co-chair, should attempt to be present at the convening of and during each meeting.

c. For decision-making at a meeting, a quorum must be present. "A quorum shall be a majority of the House Committee managers and a majority of the Senate Committee managers, and shall include the lead House and Senate chair and majority of the chairs of the Conference Committee for their respective chamber." See Section 9.a of the "Procedures." The lead House and Senate chair of the conference committee must be part of this quorum.

d. For a measure with fiscal implications, approval must be given by the chair representing the House Finance Committee and Senate Ways and Means Committee during the decision-making on the measure.

7. Conference Discussion

Except as authorized by the respective chairs, only the respective chairs may speak during conference. All other managers or other authorized persons shall be recognized by their respective chairs before speaking on any issue.

8. Decorum in Conference Committee Meetings and Courtesy to the Public and to the Managers

a. Managers shall respect the differing views of other managers and conduct themselves in a courteous manner.

b. Chairs shall ensure that meetings convene and reconvene at scheduled times. If none of the chairs of one of the Committees are present within 15 minutes of the scheduled meeting time, the chairs of the other Committee shall have the names of the absent chairs paged through the State Capitol public address system.

c. If none of the absent chairs are present within 30 minutes of the scheduled meeting time, the chairs present shall inform the managers and members of public present that the Conference Committee cannot be convened or reconvened, and that, pursuant to 5c of these Committees on Conference Procedures, a 24-hour advance notice shall be provided for a subsequent meeting of the Conference Committee.

9. Decision-making Meeting

The decision-making meeting of a Conference Committee shall comply with the following open meeting provisions:

a. A quorum of the Conference Committee shall be present for the decision making meeting. A quorum shall be a majority of the House Committee managers and a majority of the Senate Committee managers, and shall include the lead House and Senate chair and majority of the chairs of the Conference Committee for their respective chamber.

b. To report a measure out of Conference Committee in amended form, Conference Draft (CD), a majority of the quorum of managers for each respective chamber shall vote in favor of the proposed amendments.

c. The lead chair (or the lead chair's designee) representing their respective chamber shall call the roll and be the recorder of the quorum and the votes on that measure for that chamber. (Sample attached).

d. If, after naming a Conference Committee on a measure, the Conference Committee managers representing the chamber from which a measure originated agree to the amendments made by the non-originating chamber, only a quorum of those representing the originating chamber shall vote on the agreement at a duly noticed meeting. For example, if after naming a Conference Committee on a House measure, the House managers of the Conference Committee decide to agree to the amendments in the Senate draft (SD) of the measure, then only the House managers of the Conference Committee shall vote on the measure, returning it to the House in its SD form. For such action, only a quorum of the Conference Committee managers representing the chamber from which the measure originated need to be present. The "Record of Votes of a Conference Committee" sheet detailing the votes of the managers of the originating chamber shall be filed with the appropriate chamber without a Conference Committee Report.

10. Conference Committee Reports

a. A majority of the House and Senate chairs, respectively, of a Conference Committee shall attest to the action of the Conference Committee by signing the Conference Committee Report on behalf of their respective managers; provided that no Conference Committee Report concerning a measure with fiscal implications shall be reported out of a Conference Committee without the signature of the chair (or the chair's designee) of each fiscal committee to which the measure is referred. The "Record of Votes of a Conference Committee" sheet detailing the votes of the managers of the Conference Committee shall be attached to the report as a part thereof.

b. All House measures reported out of Conference Committee shall be filed with the House Chief Clerk, and likewise all Senate measures shall be filed with the Senate Chief Clerk. A document filed in the originating chamber shall be deemed simultaneously filed in the other chamber. Only the original Conference Committee Report, with the attached Record of Votes, and the Conference Draft of the measure shall be required for filing.

c. If the Conference Committee votes to report the measure out, the Committee must file a Conference Committee Report and Conference Draft with the appropriate chamber's Chief Clerk.

11. Decision-making Deadlines

On the deadline nights for Final Decking of both non-fiscal and fiscal bills:

a. Conference Committees shall conclude their negotiations by 6:00 p.m. to allow adequate time for final preparation of the bills and Conference Committee Reports.

b. To provide all chairs with ample opportunity to review and sign the Conference Committee Reports before filing, all Conference Committee Reports shall be available for review and signature by 9:00 p.m.

c. All Conference Committee Reports and Conference Drafts of measures shall be filed with the respective Chief Clerk by 11:30 p.m.

12. Electronic Transfer

Should a Conference Committee for which the vehicle is a Senate bill decide to use a proposal drafted by the House, the House chair shall have the House proposal electronically transferred to the appropriate Senate office so that the Conference Draft can be prepared. The converse shall apply to House bills with proposals drafted by the Senate that the Conference Committee agrees to.

13. Exceptions to these Deadlines and Procedures

Exceptions to these deadlines and other procedures may be made only with the advance written approval of both the Senate President and the House Speaker.

2014 Legislative Session House-Senate
Conference Committee Room Scheduling
Procedures and Guidelines

Effective beginning at 8:00 a.m. on April 14, 2014 through 12:00 midnight on April 25, 2014, the following scheduling procedures and guidelines shall apply for all House and Senate conference rooms.

Priority for use of the conference rooms will be given in the following order:

1st Priority: Standing Committee Bill Hearings
2nd Priority: Conference Committee Meetings
3rd Priority: Committee Hearings for Resolution and Governor's Messages

Please note the following procedures and guidelines for the use of rooms for conference purposes:

1. If your committee is designated to use one of the House conference rooms (i.e., rooms 309, 312, 325, 329 or 423), please contact Rodney Haena of the House Sergeant-at-Arms office at 586-6104 to reserve the room.

2. If your committee is designated to use one of the Senate conference rooms (i.e., rooms 016, 224, 225 or 229), please contact Linda Kahana of the Senate Sergeant-at-Arms office at 586-6725.

3. Committees assigned to a specific conference room will be given first priority in using that particular room for conference committee meetings.

4. Committees shall not allocate the use of its assigned room to another committee. All room assignments must be coordinated through and made by either the House Sergeant-at-Arms or Senate Sergeant-at-Arms.

5. For those committees that must share assigned conference rooms, it is strongly recommended that you meet as soon as possible with other committee chairs who are also assigned to that room to formulate a basic timetable for sharing the room.

6. In consideration of the other committee chairs, do not reserve a block of specific times unless a timetable has been agreed to.

7. If you have reserved a particular time slot that subsequently you will not be using, please notify either the House Sergeant-at-Arms or Senate Sergeant-at-Arms as soon as possible so that those room times can be assigned to someone else if needed.

8. If your conference committee needs to meet, but your assigned room is reserved or in use by one of the other committees also assigned to that room, please contact either the House Sergeant-at-Arms or Senate Sergeant-at-Arms to locate a vacant conference room for your temporary use.

9. Conference committees are encouraged to give as much advanced notice of meetings as possible. However, since things do get very hectic during conference, please be aware that any lower priority room requests may be "bumped" or reassigned with only a short notice. Hopefully, these inconveniences will be kept to a minimum.

10. Exception to these House-Senate Conference Committee Room Scheduling Procedures and Guidelines may only be made with the joint approval of President Donna Mercado Kim and Speaker Joseph M. Souki.

FORTY-SEVENTH DAY

Tuesday, April 8, 2014

The House of Representatives of the Twenty-Seventh Legislature of the State of Hawaii, Regular Session of 2014, convened at 9:14 o'clock a.m., with Vice Speaker Mizuno presiding.

The invocation was delivered by Mr. Ryan Kalei Tsuji of O.C. Sports, after which the Roll was called showing all Members present with the exception of Representative Wooley, who was excused.

By unanimous consent, reading and approval of the Journal of the House of Representatives of the Forty-Sixth Day was deferred.

SENATE COMMUNICATIONS

The following communications from the Senate (Sen. Com. Nos. 492 through 496) were received and announced by the Clerk:

Sen. Com. No. 492, transmitting H.B. No. 1579, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO JUDGMENT LIENS," which passed Third Reading in the Senate on April 4, 2014.

Sen. Com. No. 493, transmitting H.B. No. 1846, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO DISTRICT COURT JURISDICTION," which passed Third Reading in the Senate on April 4, 2014.

Sen. Com. No. 494, transmitting H.B. No. 2262, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO REPORTING DEATHS TO STATE AGENCIES," which passed Third Reading in the Senate on April 4, 2014.

Sen. Com. No. 495, transmitting H.B. No. 2579, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO LABOR," which passed Third Reading in the Senate on April 4, 2014.

Sen. Com. No. 496, transmitting H.B. No. 2243, HD 1, SD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO CRIMINAL HISTORY RECORD CHECKS," which passed Third Reading in the Senate on April 4, 2014.

Representative Saiki moved to disagree to the amendments made by the Senate to the following House Bill, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried: (Representative Wooley was excused.)

H.B. No. 2243, HD 1, (SD 1)

INTRODUCTIONS

The following introductions were made to the Members of the House:

Representative Aquino introduced students, chaperones and teachers from Waipahu Elementary School; and James Suster, Shiloh Clark and Tiger Kahaunaele.

Representative Ward introduced former Representative Peter Apo, Trustee, Office of Hawaiian Affairs.

ORDER OF THE DAY

SUSPENSION OF RULES

On motion by Representative Cabanilla, seconded by Representative Fukumoto and carried, the rules were suspended for the purpose of considering certain Senate Bills for Third Reading by consent calendar. (Representative Wooley was excused.)

CONSENT CALENDAR

At this time, the Chair stated:

"Members, there will be no discussion, as these are items agreed to by this Body for placement on the Consent Calendar."

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1525-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2853, SD 2, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2853, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Carroll's written remarks in support of the measure are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I am in support of SB 2853. This bill permits exemptions from the two-resident limit for certified adult foster homes for adults with developmental or intellectual disabilities (I/DD) by waiver, if an adult resident is related to the caretaker, and for foster children who turn 18. It also permits dual certification as child and adult foster home to accommodate children who turn 18 or for specific children.

"This bill allows a definition of 'related' to include relationships by blood, by marriage, legal guardians, and trustees of the foster adult. Family structures and familial relationships are a lot less strict than they once were. What constitutes a family today and how we define membership into one is not a fixed idea. In other words, a family is about more than blood, and this bill reflects this more nuanced way we define our families today.

"Furthermore, SB 2853 will have a positive impact, because it allows for a foster boarding home for minors with I/DD to be dually certified. This bill will enable the individual with disabilities to age in place and remain in the home. This is extremely beneficial for both the family and the individual with I/DD's because they can remain in a comfortable, familiar environment without breaking up already established caregiver/patient relationships.

"Beyond that, Mr. Speaker, the measure also restricts the total number of foster children with I/DD and adults with I/DD in a dually certified home. This will ensure that there is not too many I/DD individuals for caregivers to adequately care for. The bill states that a dually certified home shall not have more than two individuals. However, with the Director of Health's approval, not more than three individuals would be permitted. This is in order to be flexible to larger families while still ensuring a quality of care for these children and adults.

"Mr. Speaker and distinguished Members of this Body, I urge everyone to please take careful consideration of this bill and to note my support on SB 2853. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2853, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES ADULT FOSTER HOMES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Wooley being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1529-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2345, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1541-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2981, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2981, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Thielen's written remarks in support of the measure are as follows:

"I rise in support of SB2981, SD2, HD1 which amends the state plan policies, objectives, and priority guidelines to promote and encourage innovative activity in the economy. This bill encourages the development and implementation of joint federal and state initiatives to attract federal programs and projects that will support Hawaii's social, economic, physical, and environmental objectives. The lack of affordable housing on Oahu greatly hurts the state's economy and environment, and this bill is the stepping stone we need to address the crisis.

"According to a recent 2014 Construction Preview, basic housing on Oahu has become an unaffordable luxury to many families. I must disclose that the following article was written by my son, Greg Thielen, who is also the former president of the Building Industry Association. The article states that we have internally created this crisis by stifling incentives for creative building and by shrouding the permitting process with red tape. Attached, is the article in full."

Representative Thielen also submitted the following article:

Addressing a Growing Housing Crisis on Oahu and Beyond

By Gregory Thielen, President
Building Industry Association of Hawaii (BIA-Hawaii)

Bill Clinton made the phrase "It's the economy, stupid," a cornerstone of his successful run for the U.S. presidency. It clearly made the point that the economy was in crisis and that this was the most important issue facing the country. Those people that didn't understand it were out of touch—or, more bluntly, stupid. Oahu is in a housing crisis that will be getting worse in the years ahead. This crisis is a self-inflicted wound brought about by good intentions gone wrong. Let's start by looking at some facts.

- In the 25 years from 1950 to 1975, we averaged approximately 7,000 to 8,000 new housing units authorized by building permit per year. In the last two decades we have averaged less than half that amount, despite the fact that our population has more than doubled during that time.
- The last time we exceeded 4,000 new housing units authorized by building permit in a single year was 20 years ago.
- The number of new housing units authorized by building permit in the last 4 years is the second-lowest amount since the great depression. The lowest was during World War II.
- We're facing near record-low inventories of homes for sale and appreciating prices—and these are, historically speaking, signs of a large run up in home prices. In my opinion, we'll see the median price for single-family homes reach $1 million by or before the end of this decade.

While the statistical data is clear, we all know the housing problems through firsthand experience. Multigenerational living and multifamily house sharing have become the norm. In October of this year, a single-family house burned in Kahuku and 18 people from three separate families were displaced from this one home. A neighboring house was also damaged and 10 people were displaced. Walk the streets in any working-class neighborhood, and this is easy to see by the quantity of cars.

We've created a situation where housing is an unattainable luxury for too many people—and we have done it by making it too hard to build. How did this happen?

> We've created a situation where housing is an unattainable luxury for too many people—and we have done it by making it too hard to build.

One only has to look at the cratering of housing production in the mid-1970s to trace the problem to reform in our environmental law and land-use process. Look no further than the recent experience of the Koa Ridge project. It took over a decade and three court challenges just to complete the state land use process before they could then start on the county level. The result of this process, coupled with government requirements for offsite improvements, is a per-housing unit cost in excess of $100,000 before the house is started.

> BIA Mission Statement
> BIA-Hawaii takes a leadership role in unifying and promoting the interest of the industry to enhance the quality of life for the people of Hawaii.

Whether or not you support this particular project, everyone has to acknowledge that this is a poor way to produce more housing, and no one can deny more housing is needed.

Another place to look for proof of the government's impact on housing is a recent analysis of market control in Builder magazine. In an analysis of all U.S. metropolitan statistical areas, it was found that 97 percent of all homes built in the City & County of Honolulu were built by the top 10 production builders. This is the second-highest concentration in the entire country, and well above the 70 percent national average. Why do big-production builders dominate our market so much? Because the process to build housing has become so difficult and takes so long, only large companies with deep pockets can afford to do it. This reduction in potential competitors in the marketplace can only hurt the consumer in the long run.

These problems are not isolated to Oahu. Due to its size and density, Oahu is in a further state of decay than the other counties, but their anemic housing production numbers are just as bad or worse than Oahu.

So how do we restore ourselves to a balanced housing production process that provides for growth in housing units to match our growth in population? End the self-destructive policies that make it take so much time and cost so much money to develop new housing units. This should include limiting the purview of the LUC and bringing land classifications automatically into compliance with county growth plans. Acknowledge that the affordable housing system as it exists now has backfired, and reduce or eliminate Inclusionary Zoning Policies. Expanding its reach will only do more damage. Give housing an equal footing with the environment and agriculture, rather than letting it be the "whipping boy" of these other causes.

Most importantly, we need our elected officials to embrace these ideals for the future of our state. After all, what's the problem with housing? It's the government, stupid.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2032, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I stand in support with reservations on SB 2032, SD2, HD2.

"This measure amends the offense of Assault in the Second Degree as it applies to medical professionals by expanding the types of medical services providers protected under this offense.

"There is a strong and cohesive consensus amongst the medical community regarding this bill. Testimony from The Queen's Health System, Hawaii Pacific Health, Hawaii State Center For Nursing, and Kaiser Permanente, to name a few, have come forward with the same observations and concerns. It has become apparent that health care workers have faced an increased risk of job related violence in recent years. Moreover, healthcare workers are four times more likely to be victims of workplace violence than other private sector jobs, and 60 percent of healthcare workers are victims of nonfatal workplace assaults. What we have been asked to do as lawmakers, is to expand Second Degree Assault charges to cover and protect a larger area of medical professionals. Right now, the Second Degree Assault application only covers emergency personnel.

"Details regarding a rise in workplace violence in the healthcare profession are discomforting. These professionals work tirelessly to ensure the welfare of Hawaii's people and there is no doubt that an increase in workplace related assaults needs to be addressed. However, if signed into law, SB 2032, SD2, HD2 would elevate these assaults from Assault in the Third Degree to Assault in the Second Degree. This means that current conduct punishable up to one year in prison would be punishable up to five years in prison, with a reclassification to a Second Degree Assault level. This may be viewed as draconian considering that some patients may be suffering from mental illnesses. Additionally, expanding the definition of Assault in the Second Degree to include 'medical services provider,' does not ensure that the occurrence or frequency of workplace assaults will be reduced or properly addressed. However, it does mean that patients who slap or punch a professional in charge of his or her care, for example, may now be subject to a five year prison sentence, even if serious injury hadn't occurred as a result of the violent act.

"The health care profession is filled with dedicated men and women who selflessly provide care for others. It is unfortunate that they have seen an increase in job related violent incidences. Action must be taken to help alleviate this growing trend. However, because of the aforementioned concerns, I stand in support with reservations on SB 2032, SD2, HD2. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2032, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO VIOLENCE AGAINST HEALTH CARE PERSONNEL," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

At 10:26 o'clock a.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 1236, SD 1, HD 2
S.B. No. 2682, SD 1, HD 2
S.B. No. 2869, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2901, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2726, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2032, SD 2, HD 2

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1527-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2175, SD 2, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2175, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Choy rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I stand in opposition to this bill. I realize industrial hemp and marijuana are two separate things, but on this particular issue I'm going to side with law enforcement. They have enough headaches as it is. I don't want to add to their burden. So for those reasons, I'll stand in opposition. Thank you."

Representative Tokioka rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition. This bill changed from the Ag Committee, Mr. Speaker, which I'm a member of, in the next committee after that, and for the changes that were made, I'm in opposition to this bill. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Har rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representatives Choy and Tokioka be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Tsuji rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Thielen rose in support of the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Thielen's written remarks are as follows:

"I rise in support of SB 2175, SD2, HD2 which authorizes the Dean of the College of Tropical Agriculture and Human Resources at the University of Hawaii at Manoa to establish a two-year industrial hemp remediation and biofuel research program, requires a final report to the Legislature prior to the convening of the Regular Session of 2016, and defines industrial hemp.

"This language of the House Draft 2 version of the bill was changed from the first House Draft in the House Judiciary Committee to reflect what is written in the Federal Agricultural Act of 2014. This Act exempts all industrial hemp research overseen by State Department of Agriculture or institutions of higher education from the Controlled Substances Act and any other Federal law. This Federal law is now reflected in SB 2175, SD2, HD2.

"To address the concerns of the few Members who voted against industrial hemp research, industrial hemp now can be legally grown in such projects in the United States under Federal law and no longer requires permits from the Drug Enforcement Administration.

"Furthermore, to address the reservations from the Member representing the Laie area, a Hemp Times article titled, "The Promised Land' by Pete Brady notes that the Mormon's path to the promised land in Salt Lake City, Utah was 'cultivated, in part, with the seeds of hemp.' The article expands on this point by describing the extremely harsh conditions Mormon settlers endured, and how Church elders including founder Brigham Young himself stated, 'Clothes or no clothes. We must make our own woolens, flax, hemp and cotton, or we must go naked.' Young also mandated all members to grow at least a quarter acre of hemp, and, when other crops failed in the unsuitable soils in the Salt Lake Valley, to repair the soil with a hemp crop which 'had a reputation for leaving soil in better condition, relative to nutrient content, than other crops.'

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with very strong reservations. May I have the words of the Representatives from Manoa and Lihue adopted as my own," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2175, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO INDUSTRIAL HEMP," passed Third Reading by a vote of 46 ayes to 5 noes, with Representatives Awana, Choy, Har, Oshiro and Tokioka voting no.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1528-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2687, SD 1, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2687, SD 1, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McDermott rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I have reservations on this measure. I will not talk about those, but I'd just like to acknowledge the good work of the Judiciary Chair who allowed the counties and the state to be sued. That's a very forehanded vision because of the potential with all the preschool activity we're going to be involved in the future. At least it looks that way. He has made the state accountable, and although I disagree with him a lot, I think he did a great job on that. So I thank him for that. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2687, SD 1, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO LIMITATION OF ACTIONS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1530-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2481, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2481, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. May I request a ruling on a potential conflict? At my law firm I represent timeshare interests. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2481, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TIME SHARES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1531-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2486, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2486, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2486, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PRIVATE GUARDS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes to 2 noes, with Representatives Fale and McDermott voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1532-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2581, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2581, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE STATE BUILDING CODE," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1533-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2758, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2758, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE HURRICANE RESERVE TRUST FUND," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

At 10:31 o'clock a.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 2175, SD 2, HD 2
S.B. No. 2687, SD 1, HD 2
S.B. No. 2481, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2486, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2581, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2758, SD 1, HD 1

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1534-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2809, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2809, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO UTILITIES REGULATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes to 2 noes, with Representatives Fale and McDermott voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1536-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2948, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2948, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1537-14) recommending that S.B. No. 718, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 718, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1538-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2399, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2399, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1539-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2079, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2079, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE MOTION PICTURES, DIGITAL MEDIA, AND FILM PRODUCTION INCOME TAX CREDIT," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

At 10:32 o'clock a.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 2809, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2948, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 718, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2399, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2079, SD 2, HD 1

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1540-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2583, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2583, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This bill appropriates funds for our international space center on the Big Island. Its purpose is to conduct an engineering study. It's for an engineering study for a proposed laser ground station. Now, no one has ever heard about one of those before, because there's never been one before. But they've chosen Hawaii, NASA has chosen Hawaii, to build a $20 million ground station, to basically do what the internet does with radio waves, which are very slow and are very conducive to interruption by clouds and other cosmic issues.

"The ground station will actually transmit up to 100 times faster and more data. Imagine that, Mr. Speaker. While you're watching YouTube you can have just everything, instead of buffering, it will be instant. Now that's for, not our purposes, but for NASA to track its satellites, and like the internet, if it works in that government sector, it will likely be passed off to the private sector. That means that this is going to create jobs. In fact, just to do this $20 million experiment that this bill calls for us to put our fair share in, which is just a few hundred thousand, then becomes a $200 million investment on the point of NASA.

"The bottom line, Mr. Speaker, is that this is going to create jobs. It's an investment bill. It's a job creation bill. And quite frankly, it's part of the diversification of our economy from living off of our good looks to using our brains. And, Mr. Speaker, this is a very inexpensive investment that NASA is going to pick up and run with as long as we pass this. And I make notice that the bill is to go into effect in 2050. By 2050, there will be many, many nations ahead of us. So I think this is imperative for our economy and for the future of communications that we pass this post haste. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2583, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE PACIFIC INTERNATIONAL SPACE CENTER FOR EXPLORATION SYSTEMS AND NATIONAL AERONAUTICS AND SPACE ADMINISTRATION LASER COMMUNICATIONS GROUND STATION INITIATIVE," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Cachola being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1542-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2134, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2134, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO EDUCATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Cachola being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1543-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2516, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2516, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2516, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO FACILITIES FUNDING FOR CHARTER SCHOOLS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Cachola being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1544-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2517, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2517, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2517, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO CHARTER SCHOOLS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Cachola being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1545-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2768, SD 2, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2768, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Fukumoto rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto's written remarks are as follows:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. With reservations. I'm completely in support of mandatory kindergarten, but I do have concerns with Part II of this bill, which is an assessment and an aggregation of all the assessments into a state pool. I think it's disconcerting. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Thielen rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support, Mr. Speaker, and remarks to the Journal. In support of Part I, still with concerns on the other part. Thank you."

Representative Thielen's written remarks are as follows:

"I rise in support of Part 1 of SB 2768, SD2, HD2 which establishes mandatory Kindergarten for students turning five on or before July 31 of the school year. This language was adopted from HB 14, which I introduced in 2013 and was passed in the House in 2014.

"Early learning is vital for a student's future academic success, and most school districts across the nation require mandatory kindergarten. Since most brain development occurs in a child's first five years, it is crucial that our youngest students benefit from a jump start on their education.

"It has been said that the single largest impact on the success of our K-12 system is access to early childhood education. This is especially important to low- income families. We must provide an equitable learning system to all our children in order to give upcoming generations every opportunity for college and career success.

"In Part 2, SB 2768 also establishes a new individual student assessment system which replaces Hawaii's state school readiness assessment. While educators report that this is an invaluable tool which will significantly help teachers and families better address each student's individual needs, I am concerned about students being 'branded' by testing results. There is an 'opt out' clause for parents not wishing to take part in the proposed assessment system, however those remaining would be required to participate fully."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2768, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO KINDERGARTEN," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Cachola being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1546-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2288, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2288, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

At this time, Representative McDermott offered Floor Amendment No. 5, amending S.B. No. 2288, SD 2, HD 1, as follows:

"SECTION 1. Senate Bill No. 2288 S.D. 2 H.D. 1, is amended by placing Sections 1 through 20 under the header "PART I".

SECTION 2. Section 1 of Senate Bill No. 2288 S.D. 2 H.D. 1, is amended by amending page 1, line 7 (which was line 6, before the aforementioned header was added) to read as follows:

The purpose of this part is to continue to amend or repeal

SECTION 3. Sections 21 through 22 of Senate Bill No. 2288 S.D. 2 H.D. 1, are amended by placing them under the header "PART II", and replacing their contents to read as follows:

PART II

SECTION 21. The legislature finds that the department of education is utilizing "Pono Choices", a medically questionable and age-inappropriate curriculum for children aged eleven to thirteen years old. The materials contradict definitions found in medical dictionaries, the statistics from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, and a clear warning from the Food and Drug Administration. The materials also encourage sexual behavior among children who are too young to legally consent to sexual intercourse. Ironically, while the curriculum introduces children to risky sexual behavior, it fails to fully inform those same children of those risks.

The legislature finds that the questionable program:

(1) Includes the anus among the body parts defined as "genitals", in spite of a lack of support from medical dictionaries;

(2) Describes penile-to-vaginal sexual intercourse with a condom as a "low risk" activity, in spite of gynecologist and physician warnings that condoms fail to protect against human papillomavirus and herpes;

(3) Describes anal sex with a condom as a "low risk" activity, in spite of the fact that the Food and Drug Administration's website warns that anal sex, even with a condom, is "too dangerous to practice";

(4) Informs eleven-to-thirteen year-old children that it is "their choice" to engage in sexual activity, in spite of sexual assault law, which criminalizes the penetration of a child under the age of fourteen, regardless of consent; and

(5) Fails to teach about human reproduction, in spite of the fact that the perpetuation of the human race is the most important reason for sexual intercourse.

The legislature further finds that despite the cries of protest from parents and numerous members of the public, the department of education has failed to remedy this problem.

The purpose of this part is to improve sexuality health education in the State of Hawaii by:

(1) Stating specific circumstances under which sexuality health education programs funded by the State may not be deemed "medically accurate" or "age appropriate"; and

(2) Affirming the importance of teaching students about human reproduction.

SECTION 22. Section 321-11.1, Hawaii Revised Statutes, is amended to read as follows:

"[{]§321-11.1[}] Medically accurate sexuality health education. (a) Sexuality health education programs funded by the State shall provide medically accurate and factual information that is age appropriate and includes education on abstinence, contraception, human reproduction, and methods of disease prevention to prevent unintended pregnancy and sexually transmitted disease, including human immunodeficiency virus.

(b) For the purposes of this section:

"Age appropriate" means suitable to a particular age or age group based on developing cognitive, emotional, and behavioral capacity typical for that age or age group[.], and does not include any statement or implication that it is acceptable to engage in sexual penetration before the age of consent established in section 707-730.

"Factual information" means medical, psychiatric, psychological, empirical, or statistical information that is verified or supported by research conducted by recognized medical, psychiatric, psychological, and public health professionals or organizations.

"Medically accurate" means verified or supported by research conducted in compliance with accepted scientific methods and recognized as accurate and objective by professional organizations and agencies with expertise in the relevant field, such as the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the American Public Health Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics, and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists[.], and therefore does not include:

(1) The term "anus", "anal opening", or similar term within any definition of the term "genitals", "genitalia", "sexual organ", or similar term;

(2) Any statement or implication that penile-to-vaginal intercourse with a condom is a "low risk" activity; or

(3) Any statement or implication that anal intercourse, even with a condom, is a "low risk" activity.

"Sexuality health education" means education in any medium regarding human development and sexuality, including education on pregnancy, family planning, and sexually transmitted diseases."

SECTION 4. Senate Bill No. 2288 S.D. 2 H.D. 1, is amended by inserting new Sections 23 through 25, under the header "Part III", to read as follows:

SECTION 23. If any provision of this Act, or the application thereof to any person or circumstance, is held invalid, the invalidity does not affect other provisions or applications of the Act that can be given effect without the invalid provision or application, and to this end the provisions of this Act are severable.

SECTION 24. Statutory material to be repealed is bracketed and stricken. New statutory material is underscored.

SECTION 25. This Act shall take effect on July 1, 2050; provided that the amendments made to section 36-27(a), Hawaii Revised Statutes, by section 2 of this Act shall not be repealed when section 36-27, Hawaii Revised Statutes, is reenacted pursuant to section 34 of Act 79, Session Laws of Hawaii 2009."

Representative McDermott moved that Floor Amendment No. 5 be adopted, seconded by Representative Fale.

Representative McDermott rose to speak in support of the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. This is the Pono Choices amendment, Mr. Speaker, because we seek to amplify this Body's previous statements through statute that sex education information presented in the classroom must be medically accurate. And what's going on right now with the department is they are ignoring our previous statements through statute that sex education must be medically accurate. So the purpose of this is to reinforce what we previously stated, and to amplify this Body's feelings.

"If you go to page 19 of the bill, you'll see that currently they teach that the anus is part of genitalia. It is not. Now I'm not a doctor, but we do have one in this Body who can confirm that if he chooses to do so. All medical literature says that genitalia are sexual reproductive organs. The anus is not. Why are we teaching 11-year-old children about that? Mr. Speaker, why are we teaching 11-year-old children factually inaccurate information? I brought it to their attention, but it seems this Body must need to act.

"Mr. Speaker, they also are providing inaccurate information. Again, this amendment goes to the point to amplify what this Body has previously stated, that the information provided to students must be medically accurate. On page 20 of the bill, which the amendment, it says, 'Pono Choices describes anal sex with a condom as low-risk.' Well, this amendment will fix that because the FDA says it should never be practiced, period. Condoms weren't invented for that. So here's an opportunity for the Body to tell the Department of Education to provide medically accurate information.

"The program also fails to teach about human reproduction. This amendment will fix that. This amendment will say when you talk about sex education, you need to talk about the miracle of life, that nine months, what takes place. This amendment will tell the department that when you talk about sex education, you must involve the critical biological functions that take place and how the child is developed.

"As I said, we have a statute that says medically accurate and age appropriate. This will affirm our belief that the anus is not a genitalia, number one. The amendment makes that change. It will say the information must be medically accurate, which it's not. Mr. Speaker, by the way, just a side bar, I'd like to insert comments into the Journal.

"It must teach human reproduction, and this amendment will add language that, when you talk to 11-year-old children, you do not make any statement or implication that it is permissible to engage in sexual activity before the age of 14. You see, we reaffirm that in this amendment, Mr. Speaker, because that's the current law. In fact, what the department is telling the students is that it's their decision, at 11 years old. And this amendment will tell them that it's not their decision. In fact, with all this talk about anal sex, and sex before 13 and 14, there's no predatory admonitions, and this amendment will fix that as well.

"Mr. Speaker, I could go on for days but it's early and we have a lot of work ahead of us. I thank you for your indulgence in letting me drift a little bit. I appreciate that. At the appropriate time I would like to ask for a roll call on this Pono Choices amendment. Thank you."

Representative McDermott's written remarks are as follows:

"I wish to note that I have heard the concerns of many parents in the community. The Hawaii Department of Education has chosen to address the issue through a Pono Choices working group. The group has met three times, but in secret. I have also been informed that working group members were asked to sign non-disclosure agreements.

"Parents want an open process, with full discussion in the light of day.

"I am concerned about the makeup of the working group, to the extent that it is chaired by the Deputy Superintendent, and includes a participant in one of the Pono Choices videos. There is a conflict of interest there. There are also some outspoken, politically active individuals, both left and right-leaning, in the group. The left-leaning folks outnumber the right-leaning ones. Am I saying that I want more right-leaning folks on the panel? No, I don't think that actually advances productivity. I actually believe that the administration should scrap the panel, and start over by installing a new working group with four doctors—one gynecologist, one pediatrician, one epidemiologist, and one proctologist—and nine parents. None of the participants should have any known overt political activities or views.

"The DOE seems to forget that it works for parents. I have received correspondence from the Superintendent, indicating the DOE's reluctance to do anything. She passed any responsibility for revision of the curriculum to the University of Hawaii, since the University owns the curriculum through copyright. So even if the current working group were to recommend changes, it appears that the DOE is willing to use a faulty program. It forgets that the University of Hawaii is owned by the taxpayers, and that the taxpayers really own the copyright.

"We want our kids to be safe. That includes being safe from risky or dangerous behavior. Among the information omitted from this program the real danger of HIV transmission via anal sex. Statistics from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention show that male-to-male anal sex accounts for well over 50 percent of all new HIV cases in the United States, even though homosexuals comprise no more than 3 percent to 4 percent of the United States population. This grossly disproportionate risk is not even mentioned in Pono Choices, which is a program that implies that anal sex is an appropriate sexual practice.

"There is no excuse for telling children about risky behavior, yet also failing to disclose the risks of that same risky behavior. There is no justification for the curriculum in its current form.

"To further preserve this discussion, I am enclosing a copy of my 'McDermott Report', which I released earlier this year."

Representative McDermott also submitted the following:

As a father of eight, I have reviewed this material–every page. If parents knew what was in it, and how it was presented, they would not walk away—they would run away. This material should be pulled from the schools now. Continued use of this curriculum could put the school system in legal peril, as students may detrimentally rely on the information contained therein.

Therefore, I have prepared the attached report. Extensive footnotes are included, and they confirm that my objections to the curriculum are based on the facts and the law.

Sincerely,

Bob McDermott
State Representative

1.0 - Executive Summary

Pono Choices is a sexual education curriculum currently taught in at least twelve Hawaii public schools,[1] and is designed for youth aged 11 to 13.[2] A review and analysis reveals that Pono Choices:

- Is a top-down, federally-dictated program and not an organic, community-developed curriculum—in spite of the name "Pono Choices".
- Is medically inaccurate regarding basic human anatomy.
- Normalizes anal sex, while failing to warn students of the extreme dangers of anal sex, even when condoms are used.
- References multiple sex partners, while failing to inform students about the health benefits of monogamy.
- Fails to warn students about the relative ineffectiveness of condoms against HPV and herpes.
- Fails to educate students on the stages of human reproduction.
- Fails to fully inform parents about the controversial aspects of the curriculum.
- Is contrary to state law and policies regarding abstinence-based sexual education.
- Is not age-appropriate for its intended students.
- Treats sexual activity before the age of fourteen as a viable "choice", in spite of state sexual assault law.
- The failures of the program stem largely from an ideological bias that naturally results from the involvement of the sources responsible for developing the program.

Given the various problems with the curriculum, Governor Neil Abercrombie, the state Board of Education (BOE), and the state Department of Education (DOE) should take steps to discontinue or reform Pono Choices. Regardless of how governmental bodies respond, however, parents should continue to take initiative regarding their children's educational and emotional needs, and have direct, one-on-one conversations regarding sexual information.

1.1- Rep. McDermott's Summation

Pono Choices, intended for young impressionable children, is clearly not age appropriate; it is inconsistent with state statues and policies. Any talk of anal sex—which the curriculum does frequently—is instinctively repulsive for pre-pubescent children. Additionally, calling the anus a genital—as Pono Choices does—is just plain medically wrong. Redefining the term to suit the authors' preferences is inappropriate. The curriculum's definition of oral sex is also not consistent with the definition commonly found in medical literature. Further, the data on condom use and effectiveness is inaccurate with regard to HPV, herpes, and HIV; the curriculum also utterly ignores the Federal Drug Administration's warning regarding the astonishing risks of condom use when engaging in anal sex.

This curriculum is presented to the students under the guise of STD prevention. Yet Pono Choices—whether by negligence or willful omission—fails to inform children of the exponentially increased risks of male on male anal sex. Such omission renders the entire document questionable at best and agenda-driven social engineering at worst.

The lessons depart from community norms by equating various sex acts. Under Pono Choices, oral, vaginal, and anal sex all have the same value and import—no meaningful distinction is made, contrary to reality. This is compounded by the wanton, disproportionately high number of fictional scenarios featuring homosexual characters—in spite of the fact that homosexuals are a strikingly small part of the population. "Gender ambiguous" fictional scenarios only aggravate this problem.

The term "abstinence based" is a misnomer for this program. While abstinence is covered, it is not the central message of the curriculum—which gives a mixed message on what is "Pono". The parental op-out forms are woefully inadequate; they lack clarity and transparency by concealing some controversial aspects of the material.

2.0 - Relevant Hawaii Policies and Law

We made our analysis of the Pono Choices curriculum in light of policies, a regulation, and statutory laws, which we quote below. Further, on May 7, 2012, Superintendent of Education Kathryn S. Matayoshi issued a memorandum to DOE superintendents and teachers, reminding them of their need to follow BOE Policy 2110 and HRS §321-11.1, which address sex education. We are also including that letter as an attachment to this report.

2.1 - Board of Education Policies

BOE Policy No. 2110, "ABSTINENCE-BASED EDUCATION POLICY", in place since September 1995, states in full:

> In order to help students make decisions that promote healthy behaviors, the Department of Education shall instruct students that abstention from sexual intercourse is the surest and most responsible way to prevent unintended pregnancies, sexually transmitted diseases such as HIV/AIDS, and consequent emotional distress. The abstinence-based education program shall:
> a. support abstention from sexual intercourse and provide skill development to continue abstention;
> b. help youth who have had sexual intercourse to abstain from further sexual intercourse until an appropriate time; and
> c. provide youth with information on and skill development in the use of protective devices and methods for the purpose of preventing sexually transmitted diseases and pregnancy.[3]

BOE Policy No. 2245, "PROPHYLACTICS IN THE PUBLIC SCHOOLS POLICY", in place since November 1994, states in full:

> The Board of Education is committed to the health education of our students which may include, within its study of human reproduction, a discussion of birth control devices but the distribution of condoms and other prophylactic devices to students shall be prohibited in the classroom, on the school campus or at any school-related activities.[4]

2.2 - Department of Education Regulation

DOE Regulation No. 2210.1 does not address sex education, but it does discuss controversial issues. It states in full:

> DOE Regulation #2210.1 requires instructional staff or administration to notify parents or legal guardians of controversial issues that will be discussed in the classroom or through other school activities. This notification may be done through a general letter about the lesson or activity. Parents or legal guardians may also, on their own volition, write a letter to the school administrators or a teacher to have their child excluded from a specific lesson or activity. If such a letter is received, the student must be provided with an alternative learning activity. The parents or legal guardians have an obligation to notify the school administrator or teacher prior to the lesson or activity.
> If parents and legal guardians receive notification from instructional staff or administration of controversial issues to be discussed in the classroom or through other school activities, that notification will include an area for the parent/legal guardian to sign in order to exclude their child from the event, instruction or activity. This signed opt-out must be sent even if the parent/legal guardian had previously written a letter to exclude the student from a specific lesson or activity.[5]

2.3 - Hawaii Revised Statutes on Sex Education

Since 2009, Section 321-11.1 of the Hawaii Revised Statutes (HRS) has stated in full:

> Medically accurate sexuality health education. (a) Sexuality health education programs funded by the State shall provide medically accurate and factual information that is age appropriate and includes education on abstinence, contraception, and methods of disease prevention to prevent unintended pregnancy and sexually transmitted disease, including human immunodeficiency virus.
> (b) For the purposes of this section:

"Age appropriate" means suitable to a particular age or age group based on developing cognitive, emotional, and behavioral capacity typical for that age or age group.

"Factual information" means medical, psychiatric, psychological, empirical, or statistical information that is verified or supported by research conducted by recognized medical, psychiatric, psychological, and public health professionals or organizations.

"Medically accurate" means verified or supported by research conducted in compliance with accepted scientific methods and recognized as accurate and objective by professional organizations and agencies with expertise in the relevant field, such as the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the American Public Health Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics, and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

"Sexuality health education" means education in any medium regarding human development and sexuality, including education on pregnancy, family planning, and sexually transmitted diseases.[6]

2.4 - Hawaii Revised Statutes on Sexual Assault

In light of the above requirement that sexuality health education be "age appropriate", we find it also relevant to cite sexual assault law. HRS Section 707-730 states in full:

Sexual assault in the first degree

(1) A person commits the offense of sexual assault in the first degree if:
- (a) The person knowingly subjects another person to an act of sexual penetration by strong compulsion;
- (b) The person knowingly engages in sexual penetration with another person who is less than fourteen year old;
- (c) The person knowingly engages in sexual penetration with a person who is at least fourteen years old but less than sixteen years old; provided that:
  - (i) The person is not less than five years older than the minor; and
  - (ii) The person is not legally married to the minor;
- (d) The person knowingly subjects to sexual penetration another person who is mentally defective; or
- (e) The person knowingly subjects to sexual penetration another person who is mentally incapacitated or physically helpless as a result of the influence of a substance that the actor knowingly caused to be administered to the other person without the other person's consent.

Paragraphs (b) and (c) shall not be construed to prohibit practitioners licensed under chapter 453 or 455 from performing any act within their respective practices.

(2) Sexual assault in the first degree is a class A felony.[7]

2.5 - Why Policies and Laws Matter

Laws and policies set standards regarding how and what their children will learn in school. Parents have every right to rely on the DOE to follow these standards. When DOE curriculum fails to do so, the State violates the faith and trust of Hawaii's parents.

As we will show, Pono Choices violates BOE policies, as it can hardly be described as abstinence-based. The curriculum also speaks of condom use outside of (not within) a true study of human reproduction. Pono Choices violates the sexuality education law, as an honest review of the curriculum will show that it is not medically accurate, and is it not age appropriate for its target audience. Perhaps most strikingly, the authors of Pono Choices wrote the curriculum in a moral and legal vacuum with respect to sexual assault law: It improperly leaves it "up to the children" on the propriety of making sexual decisions. Worse, the letters of notice to parents regarding Pono Choices are vague regarding some controversial issues within the curriculum.

3.0 - Medically Inaccurate

3.1 - Mischaracterization of the Human Anus

The Pono Choices program defines the word "genitals" to include the anus,[8] and the term "oral sex" to include "mouth on genitalia", with the anus included among "genitalia".[9]

The anus, however, is not a genital. The anus has no role in human reproduction. A simple search on WebMD.com reveals an article that plainly states that the anus was designed for feces, and that it lacks the natural lubrication for intercourse.[10] Further, physician John R. Diggs, Jr. has noted the following about anal intercourse:

> [H]uman physiology makes it clear that the body was not designed to accommodate this activity. The rectum is significantly different from the vagina with regard to suitability for penetration by a penis. The vagina has natural lubricants and is supported by a network of muscles. It is composed of a mucus membrane with a multi-layer stratified squamous epithelium that allows it to endure friction without damage and to resist the immunological actions caused by semen and sperm. In comparison, the anus is a delicate mechanism of small muscles that comprise an "exit-only" passage. With repeated trauma, friction and stretching, the sphincter loses its tone and its ability to maintain a tight seal. Consequently, anal intercourse leads to leakage of fecal material that can easily become chronic.[11]

3.2 - Overemphasis on Alternative Lifestyles and Sexual Behaviors

At various parts of the Pono Choices curriculum, students are instructed to consider and evaluate various ethical scenarios between different individuals.

In the module on "The Role of Communication in Healthy Relationships", four ethical scenarios are presented—three couples are heterosexual, while one couple is homosexual. The first two heterosexual scenarios end with a negative outcome. The homosexual scenario, however, is described in the following positive manner, and is described as a "healthy relationship":

> Bill and James are just starting a relationship. On Thursday night at Bill's house, they kiss for the first time. The next day, they go to a party together. About an hour after they get there, Bill goes to kiss James. James moves away a bit. Their first kiss was in private, and James isn't sure he wants to "go public" with their relationship yet. Bill asks James if he still feels uncomfortable and James says, "yes." Bill asks James if he wants to leave the party, and James suggests they stay but maybe just have fun with their friends. Together, they go and join a group playing pool in the family room.[12]

Within the same section, the third heterosexual scenario results in a positive outcome, but that scenario is an exact clone of the above homosexual scenario.[13]

In the module on "Maintaining respect in relationships", four written ethical scenarios in this section do not present character names or genders, while two do. One scenario presents a heterosexual couple, Ty and Kiara, in a healthy relationship. Another scenario, however, is the following, where "Person A" is speaking:

> Person A: KC and Jo, Ryan and Kalei, and Jordan and Sam, have all had sex. How bout us? Are you ready to do it? I know I am.[14]

The genders of several of the above names are ambiguous. It is impossible to determine whether any of the three couples are heterosexual or homosexual.

In the module on "Negotiation skills and Role Play", students are instructed to "role play" eight scenarios. Two of the scenarios are pre-scripted. Both of those scenarios are heterosexual, and presented in a negative light. For the remaining six scenarios, students are instructed to write their own scripts, based on information provided. One of these six scenarios describes the following:

> Carla and her partner Sara have been secretly dating for 7 months because they don't want people at school to bully them for being lesbians. Carla doesn't want to have sex because she is very focused on her goal of getting a full-scholarship for soccer. Sara has been telling Carla that they don't have to worry about anything if they have sex, because they can't get pregnant. Carla and Sara are eating lunch outside together.[15]

According to a 2011 report from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC), however, the percentage of individuals reporting their sexual identity as homosexual ranged from 1.5% to 4.2% for males, and 0.9% to 1.8% for females. The percentage reporting their sexual identity as bisexual ranged between 0.7% and 2.6% for males, and 1.5% to 4.9% for females.[16] These figures show that same-sex relationships are an anomaly among the general population.

Given the frequency, however, of romantic interactions in Pono Choice between same-sex couples, and between individuals of ambiguous gender, one might be under the impression that homosexuality and lesbianism are quite common.

3.3 - Equivalence of Different Types of Intercourse

The concept that male/female copulation is a remarkably different form of behavior from same-sex behavior appears nowhere. Penile-to-vaginal intercourse is consistently equated with anal sex and oral sex, at least fifteen times throughout the entire curriculum. For example, instructors are informed to state the following to students:

> When we talk about STI transmission it's important for everyone to remember our definition of sex, which is:
> - Vaginal Sex is when the penis enters the vagina.
> - Anal Sex is when the penis enters the anus.
> - Oral Sex is when the mouth is on the genitals.[17]

In the module on "Preventing Sexually Transmitted Infections", students are instructed to estimate the relative risk of HIV transmission for numerous varied activities, from hugging to anal sex. Both vaginal sex with a condom and anal sex with a condom are rated as low risk activities.[18] Unprotected vaginal sex is rated as high risk activity.[19] The risk level of anal sex without a condom, however, is not addressed.

Yet the risk of HIV transmission through unprotected anal sex is astronomically high. In 2010, a study of HIV statistics in the International Journal of Epidemiology (IME) found the respective risks of HIV transmission through different types of sexual activity.[20] That same year, London's National AIDS Manual Publications—which "exists to support the fight AIDS with independent, accurate, accessible and comprehensive information"[21]—highlighted the most glaring aspect of the IME study: That the risk of HIV transmission from receptive anal sex may be eighteen times greater than during vaginal intercourse.[22]

But even the IME numbers may underestimate the risk of HIV transmission through anal intercourse. In 2010, the New York City warned that the transmission risk for AIDS was thirty times greater than during vaginal intercourse.[23]

Sadly, this risk has greatly affected the health of the male homosexual population, who have a proclivity to engage in anal sex, far greater than the heterosexual population.[24] Further, according to the CDC:

> Gay, bisexual, and other men who have sex with men (MSM) represent approximately 2% of the United States population, yet are the population most severely affected by HIV. In 2010, young MSM (aged 13-24 years) accounted for 72% of new HIV infections among all persons aged 13 to 24, and 30% of new infections among all MSM. At the end of 2010, an estimated 489,121 (56%) persons living with an HIV diagnosis in the United States were MSM or MSM-IDU [MSM-injection drug use].[25]

If we turn our focus to diagnoses of HIV infections among males aged 13 to 24, we find that, according to 2011 CDC statistics, male-to-male sexual contact (without any injection drug use) accounted for 90.8% of all HIV diagnoses for males aged 20-24, and 92.8% of all HIV diagnoses for males aged 13-19.[26]

Homosexual men have had to sacrifice much just to stay alive. A 1997 study estimated the life expectancy of gay men in Vancouver, Canada. The authors of the study found that men in general could expect to live, on average, up to 74.3 years. Gay men, on the other hand, could expect to live, on average, only up to 54 to 66.3 years.[27]

More recently, a 2013 study reported that among all carriers of HIV, the average life expectancy was 62.7 years. Further, gay men who are HIV positive can live an average of up to 77.3 years—about the same as the general male population.[28] However, even this news must be placed in context.

First, this increased longevity comes at a high price, as HIV treatments have alarming annual costs. Costs of HIV treatment (in 2010 dollars) average $23,000 a year, and about $379,668 over a person's lifetime.[29] Second, not everyone who has HIV receives treatment in time. The CDC reports that 1 out of every 4 people who contract HIV are diagnosed late—meaning that they are diagnosed stage-3 HIV infection—AIDS—within 3 months after HIV diagnosis.[30] Once a patient progresses from HIV to AIDS, that person's days are numbered. Late diagnosis can decrease life expectancy by 10 to 30 years.[31] The fact remains: When you play with HIV, you are playing Russian roulette.

Pono Choices also fails to discuss anal cancer. Based on a 2004 study, 88% of all anal cancer was directly tied to human papillomavirus, a sexually transmitted disease.[32] That same study also reported:

> [M]en who were not exclusively heterosexual were at increased risk of anal cancer. In this study, nearly half of the men with anal cancer (47.1%) were not exclusively heterosexual, compared with 6.0% of male controls.[33]

According to the National Cancer Institute, only 65.6% of people diagnosed with anal cancer live 5 five years or more after a diagnosis of the cancer.[34]

Pono Choices also fails to warn about the dangers of oral-to-anal sex. As Dr. Diggs notes, however:

> "Rimming" is the street name given to oral-anal contact. It is because of this practice that intestinal parasites ordinarily found in the tropics are encountered in the bodies of American gay men. Combined with anal intercourse and other homosexual practices, "rimming" provides a rich opportunity for a variety of infections.[35]

One of these parasites may very well be Entamoeba histolytica, which causes Amebiasis.[36] As another source warns:

> Amebiasis is transmitted primarily by the fecal-oral route, most commonly from contaminated drinking water or by unsanitary food handling. E. histolytica is often found in the stool of homosexual men and is the most common intestinal parasite seen in gay communities throughout the world. Sexual behavior such as analingus or fellatio after anal-genital intercourse can lead to infection.[37]

If the authors of Pono Choices wanted to make a medically accurate representation of sexual behaviors, they would have chronicled the increased dangers of anal sex. By withholding information on such a risk—while simultaneously normalizing anal sex and homosexual behavior—the curriculum fails the very students it is intended to help. This is either the result of gross negligence or agenda-driven, willful omission. We have every reason to believe that it is the latter: Given the sheer plethora of medical information available from reliable sources, the designers of the curriculum should have known better than to shortchange Hawaii students.

3.4 - Condom Ineffectiveness against HPV and HSV not Addressed

Pono Choices cautions students about the existence of human papillomavirus and herpes, which cannot be cured.[38] The curriculum, however, fails to mention that condoms are not effective against those sexually transmitted diseases. As Dr. Ricki Pollycove, an obstetrician and gynecologist, reported in January of last year:

> Unfortunately, condoms do not do an adequate job of protecting against human papilloma or herpes simplex virus infections. Women diagnosed with HPV are often mystified and frustrated, having been "super careful," or picky, in choosing intimate partners and faithfully using condoms for all intercourse.
> But UCSF researchers have shown these viruses to be present on genital skin with no symptoms that might prompt diagnosis and treatment. That means HPV and HSV can be deposited on the condom's outer surface from viral particles living on the scrotum, penile shaft not covered by the condom or vaginal/vulvar tissues.[39]

Further, as noted above, Pono Choices describes anal sex with a condom as a "low risk" activity. As it stands, however, the Federal Drug Administration's current policy on the infection risk of anal sex with a condom is as follows, as stated on the FDA website:

> Are condoms strong enough for anal intercourse? The Surgeon General (C. Everett Koop, Surgeon General 1982-1989) has said, "Condoms provide some protection, but anal intercourse is simply too dangerous to practice". Condoms may be more likely to break during anal intercourse than during other types of sex because of the greater amount of friction and other stresses involved. Even if the condom doesn't break, anal intercourse is very risky because it can cause tissue in the rectum to tear and bleed. These tears allow disease germs to pass more easily from one partner to the other.[40]

If the FDA still deems anal intercourse "simply too dangerous to practice", even with condoms, how can Pono Choices teach differently?

3.5 - Monogamy

While students are informed that "limiting the number of sexual partners a person has can greatly reduce their risk of getting an STI [sexually transmitted infection]", the concept of monogamy is not discussed.[41] Yet the health benefits of monogamy are noted on the CDC website, which states:

> Mutual monogamy means that you agree to be sexually active with only one person, who has agreed to be sexually active only with you. Being in a long-term mutually monogamous relationship with an uninfected partner is one of the most reliable ways to avoid STDs. But you must both be certain you are not infected with STDs. It is important to have an open and honest conversation with your partner.[42]

Further, as psychiatrist Miriam Grossman has noted:

> The ideal is for two people to delay sexual behavior and then remain in a monogamous union. Students must understand that the closer they can get to that ideal, the lower their risk of any STDs.[43]

How long should they delay sexual behavior? Dr. Grossman asserts:

> We must make teens understand that sex is a very serious matter and that a single encounter can change their lives forever. Our message must be consistent and firm: the only responsible choice is to delay sexual behavior until adulthood. We must provide students with an ideal to strive for, one that offers them the healthiest option physically and emotionally. The healthiest ideal is to postpone sexual activity until adulthood, and, ideally, until marriage. Of course, students must be told, it's not easily achieved. You, or some of your peers, might make mistakes. But just as in other areas of education, where the ideal is presented as the point of excellence towards which we encourage young people to strive, the same holds true with our sexual activity and choices. Keeping the ideal in front of young people and supporting them in achieving this should be the first priority of sexual education programs.[44]

3.6 - The Stages of Reproduction – Markedly Absent

Perhaps most notably, this sexual education curriculum places little emphasis on human reproduction. Students do receive information about sperm, the human egg, fertilization, and pregnancy. Other terms regarding reproduction, however, are noticeably absent. A student relying on this curriculum would be able to understand anal and oral sex, but would not be able to identify the length of the standard human gestation period, nor be able to define what a gestation period is. After reading the Pono Choices curriculum packet that we received from the University of Hawaii, we scanned the entire packet into a computer, and created a searchable PDF file. We created the list below, to identify the frequency of terms used (and not used) throughout the curriculum:

Occurrences of Terms in Pono Choices
Pregnancy or Pregnant	275
Vagina or Vaginal	90
Sperm or Spermicide	59
Penis or Penile	49
Egg	44
Anal or Anus	37
Breast or Breastfeeding	17
Fallopian	5
Cervix	3
Zygote	0
Blastocyst	0
Embryo	0
Fetus	0
Umbilical	0

4.0 - Not Age Appropriate

The term "age appropriate", under its definition in the current statute, should have been a signal to the Pono Choices authors to proceed with extreme caution when writing for middle school students. The curriculum, however, never makes any attempt to explain or justify why children as young as the age of eleven need to openly discuss homosexual relationships, or why they need to learn about anal sex, which are, at best, extraordinarily uncommon behaviors among young children. The authors of the curriculum apparently believe that sexual activity among these young children is frequent.

4.1 - Sexually Active 11 Year-Olds?

According to 2011 DHHS statistics, only 6% of American children engaged in sex before age 13.[45] Further, the same statistics show that only 5% of Hawaii children had sex before age 13.[46] We can conclude that sexual behavior among 11 year-olds, especially in Hawaii, is an anomaly. According to a 2011 CDC report, only 7.0% of 15 year-old girls and only 2.8% of 15 year-old boys have engaged in opposite-sex anal sex. (The same report did not categorize the different sexual activities between same-sex couples.)[47] Based on these numbers, we can also say that anal sex among 11 to 13 year-olds (outside of sexual abuse) is infinitesimally small. As we noted previously, "age appropriate" sex education curriculum, by law, must be "suitable to a particular age or age group based on developing cognitive, emotional, and behavioral capacity typical for that age or age group" (emphasis added).[48] Treating all Hawaii 11 year-olds as if they are part of that small 5% runs contrary to this standard.

4.2 - Legal Ramifications For Children Are Ignored

In Pono Choices, the decision to have sex is ultimately left up to the student, as if in a moral vacuum. For example, instructors are informed to tell the students:

> Make Pono Choices! You can use many of these [STI] prevention methods, whether you choose abstinence, or choose to have sex. Take responsibility for your sexual health.[49]

Such instructions are nonsense. As we have seen, under HRS Section 707-730(b), a person commits the offense of sexual assault in the first degree if "the person knowingly engages in sexual penetration with another person who is less than fourteen years old".[50] The consent of the minor is not a defense. The language of the statute makes it plain that the legislature has already made a policy determination that children under the age of fourteen lack the legal ability to make a "choice" regarding whether or not to engage in sexual activity.

Yet, Pono Choices fails to warn students that underage sexual intercourse is contrary to law. Worse, in the ethical scenarios presented throughout the curriculum, the ages of the characters are unknown. Overt, adult sexual predators of children exist in the world, yet children are not warned about them, in spite of the need to fight against such predators, as expressed in sexual assault law.

Further, based on the advice in the curriculum, children could easily conclude that it is "pono" for an 11 year-old girl to receive sexual intercourse from a 13 year-old boy, so long as they both freely "choose" to have sex and use a condom. We personally know, however, more than a few parents who would not hesitate to press charges against any such boy.

Yet, while endangering the physical or mental welfare of a child is a criminal act under HRS Section 709-904 (2), conviction of a Pono Choices teacher would be difficult, since a defendant must "knowingly" endanger the child's welfare.[51] A teacher would argue that he or she has a defense, claiming that he or she reasonably relied upon administrators and professors to follow the law in designing the curriculum. And even if one could argue that the teacher's instruction somehow made the State vicariously liable for sexual assault, the State could argue it has immunity under HRS Section 662-15(4).[52] The State and its teachers, therefore, might rest easy regarding legal consequences. Lucky them? Perhaps not. As we are not legal counsel for the State or its teachers, we cannot and should not guarantee that the State or its employees would be free of legal peril. Therefore, state employees may wish to consult with their own attorneys regarding legal liability.

4.3 - Girls are not Physically Ready for Sexual Activity

Pono Choices also fails to warn young girls that they are not physically ready for sex. As Dr. Grossman has noted:

> Overlooked is the fact that girls have unique biological sensitivities that increase their vulnerability to the negative consequences of sexual activity. For example, the adolescent cervix is a way biology tells girls to wait to become sexually active. It's immature and vulnerable to infection due to a delicate area called the transformation zone. The T-zone is covered by only one layer of cells, so bacteria and viruses, especially HPV, can take up residence with ease. With time, the T-zone is replaced by many layers of cells that are more difficult to penetrate, making infection less likely.[53]

4.4 - Parents Kept Out of the Conversation

As noted above, one of the role-playing scenarios in Pono Choices involves two lesbians who are afraid of bullying. While no student should suffer bullying under any circumstance, implicit endorsement of homosexuality could swing the pendulum too far the other way. As columnist—and psychologist—Charles Krauthammer has commented:

> You are liberal. You strongly favor gay rights. You also have young children. Are you indifferent to their ultimate sexual orientation, or do you wish them to grow up to be heterosexual? … It is one thing to teach children that homosexuals must be treated with respect. It is quite another to teach that there is no difference between homosexual and heterosexual life.[54]

The Pono Choices program includes a "Parent Night". This, among other matters, does disclose to parents that demonstration of condom use is involved in Pono Choices.[55] However, the materials on homosexual relations are notably absent. Parents have the right to make moral decisions regarding the raising of their children, and they cannot make an informed choice on Pono Choices without full and accurate disclosure.

4.5 - "Age Appropriate" Pono Choices Does Not Treat Children As Individuals

So what is the "right age" for kids to learn about sex education? The simplest answer may be the best, as noted on the American Academy of Child Adolescent Psychiatry website:

> Talking about sex may be uncomfortable for both parents and children. Parents should respond to the needs and curiosity level of their individual child, offering no more or less information than their child is asking for and is able to understand. Children have different levels of curiosity and understanding depending upon their age and level of maturity…As children grow older, they will often ask for more details about sex.[56]

In other words, the best sex education should best address the unique needs of each individual child, with constant parental involvement. (And if parents cannot be involved, we encourage aunties, uncles, clergy, physicians or trained school nurses to be involved.) Instead, Pono Choices fails: It treats kids with a broad brush, and assumes they are all ready to learn about advanced concepts of sexuality…without full disclosure of the negative consequences.

5.0 - The Root of the Problem

5.1 - Input Bias

The University of Hawaii designed Pono Choices, and claims its copyright.[57] Planned Parenthood is a Pono Choices "project partner", which means that its staff "is heavily involved with the creation of medically accurate reproductive and sexual health lessons, training of teachers and providing technical assistance on the curriculum."[58] On the Pono Choices website, Advocates for Youth is officially listed as a "resource".[59]

We note that in response to the 2013 Special Legislative Session, supporters for same-sex marriage included both the University of Hawaii Professional Assembly[60] and Planned Parenthood.[61] Advocates for Youth has also expressed support for same-sex marriage.[62] On the other hand, no opponent organizations of same-sex marriage are listed as authors, partners, or resources for the curriculum.

Planned Parenthood has actively played a part in condom distribution at American schools,[63] and has opposed parental notification laws regarding abortion.[64] Surprisingly, Dr. Monica Cullins, a Vice President for Medical Affairs, Planned Parenthood Federation of America, announced this falsity via an official video: "Expect to get HPV once you become sexually intimate. All of us get it."[65] Not surprisingly, the organization's now-defunct Teenwire.com website also misleadingly deemed "anal intercourse with a latex or female condom" as a "low risk" activity.[66] On the other hand, no organizations with a socially conservative perspective on these issues were participants in creating the curriculum.

5.2 - Federal Funding

The State receives $969,936 in funding from the United States Department of Health and Human Services (DHHS) for the program.[67] Hawaii—like all states—is concerned about budgetary matters. If the state were to employ an outright abstinence-only program, the State would need to fund 43% of the costs (and the federal government would provide 57%).[68] On the other hand, the State faces the temptation of added federal funding for "comprehensive sexual education"—which does not require any emphasis on abstinence.[69] Thus, the State faces the conundrum between of complying with state BOE bylaws, state statutes, and federal funding requirements. The result is the mixed-message "Pono Choices".

While all state agencies should be concerned about fiscal responsibility, however, the State cannot automatically approve "rubber stamp" a one-size fits all model into Hawaii schools.

6.0 - Conclusion: Addressing the Problem

As we have seen, Pono Choices is factually misleading, medically inaccurate, and inappropriate for young children. It presents homosexual behavior as the equivalent of male-to-female relationships, while failing to mention the increased health risks of male-to-male homosexual behavior, and the ineffectiveness of condoms against HPV and herpes. While positive portions of "Pono Choices" make informative references to natural changes during puberty and teach respect for others, an ideological bias nonetheless taints and pollutes the remainder of the program. Most ironically, this sexual education curriculum fails to inform students about the stages of human reproduction.

The material in the program treats all sexual behavior as the same. The State of Hawaii does a disservice to students by equating various sexual behaviors as equal when–medically speaking–they are not. It is outrageous that anal intercourse is presented as a normal and wholesome activity on par with standard vaginal intercourse. The medical evidence unambiguously identifies this as an unhealthy behavior at best and lethal at worst. Worst of all, the curriculum fails to meet the standards established by sex education policy and law, and is written in reckless disregard of sexual assault law.

6.1 - How the State Can Address the Problem

Rep. McDermott spent forty-five days attempting to acquire a complete copy of Pono Choices—which is a public document, funded by taxpayer funds. We finally obtained a complete copy on January 3, 2014 from the University of Hawaii. We submit that the DOE's refusal to release the document resulted from that department's belief that the curriculum could not withstand the "smell test" of public scrutiny.

The Abercrombie administration should immediately pull the curriculum, since the offending material detracts from an otherwise helpful document. If it is not significantly revised, it should not return to public schools. We suggest that:

- First and foremost, parental input should be key. All public servants should remember whom they serve. Given the sensitive nature of sexual education, schools should reach out to parents and fully disclose all aspects of the curriculum, and make thorough parental notification letters that allow parents to "opt in" to Pono Choices, rather than "opt out". Most importantly, however, the state should actively seek input from everyday parents regarding the creation and development of the curriculum.
- The State stop pretending that sexual intercourse is a valid activity for children under 14. It would be ludicrous to tell underage children that they have a "choice" regarding alcohol or tobacco use. In light of sexual assault law, children should be warned that sexual activity before 14 is legally off-limits.
- Children need to be warned about sexual predators. The ethical scenarios presented in the curriculum are unclear regarding characters' ages. The curriculum should make it clear to the 11 to 13 year-old students that it is legally and morally wrong for an adult to try to have sex with them, and that such adults are criminals and predators.
- The curriculum should focus more on reproduction and the miracle of life. Sex is a positive thing, in the right context. We all exist as the result of heterosexual intercourse. Sex is enjoyable because humans need the incentive to engage in it, so that we may survive as a species. Yet Pono Choices emphasizes lifestyle choices over the most basic reason for sex.
- References to alternative forms of sex be eliminated, except to defend against sexual predators. With a newfound emphasis on reproduction, there would remain little reason to discuss anal and oral sex, which do not share the same functional purpose as vaginal intercourse.
- Risks should be disclosed. Students should be informed that condoms are not effective against HPV and HSV. Further, as we have seen, unprotected anal sex is incredibly hazardous, and the FDA even advises that anal sex with a condom should not be practiced. If anal sex is ever mentioned in the curriculum, its true risks regarding infection and disease should be exposed.
- Discussion of homosexual relationships be left to parents. In a letter dated November 2013, Rep. Karl Rhoads and Rep. Takumi announced: "Let us be very clear on this: The legislation we passed on marriage equality does not amend, address, mention or discuss the curriculum in public schools or any other schools."[70] Their letter did not tell the whole story, however: That Pono Choices was already taking a step normalizing homosexuality among children as young as age 11. In an ideologically diverse state like Hawaii, opinions will vary regarding how and when children should be taught about the subject of homosexuality. Parents—whether conservative or liberal—should be presumed to have their own child's best interests in mind on this sensitive topic, and should be the sole determinants of when school employees should inform their children about it. Schools should only depart from this general principle in cases where parents are actually proven to be abusive or negligent toward their children.
- Abstinence and monogamy be encouraged. The curriculum rightfully teaches that it is wrong to manipulate another person into having sex. The dangers of sexual intercourse remain even in consensual sexual encounters, however, and this needs more emphasis.
- Flexibility in sex education may be necessary. Given the varied needs of Hawaii's children, lawmakers should consider changing the law to clearly allow "abstinence only" curriculum as an alternative for at least some students. One such curriculum is "Heritage Keepers", which qualifies for federal funding.[71]
- The State review the title "Pono Choices". The State should consult with a broad range of opinions among Hawaiian laypeople regarding the propriety of the use of the word "pono", which can mean "[g]oodness, uprightness, morality, moral".[72] Given the controversial aspects of the program, the State should consider the possibility that a sizeable number of Hawaiians may disagree with the use of the term.

6.2 - How Parents Can Address the Problem

We encourage parents to consider exercising their rights under BOE Policy No. 2210, which states in relevant part:

> Parents or legal guardians may…on their own volition, write a letter to the school administrators or a teacher to have their child excluded from a specific lesson or activity. If such a letter is received, the student must be provided with an alternative learning activity.[73]

Most importantly, however, Rep. McDermott encourages all parents to do what many parents are already doing. They are actions that no governor, no BOE board member, no teacher, and no legislator can do: Talk to, love, embrace, and "be there" for your kids. As famed psychologist and Harvard Medical School instructor John Chirban has noted:

> [S]tudies confirm that the quality and importance of our communications at home strongly influences our children's life and often has far-greater impact than sex ed programs. Parents who discuss sex in a loving and honest way actually decrease the likelihood that their child will engage in sexual activity.[74]

STATE OF HAWAI'I
DEPARTMENT OF EDUCATION
P.O. BOX 2360
HONOLULU, HAWAI'I 96804

OFFICE OF THE SUPERINTENDENT

May 7, 2012

TO: Complex Area Superintendents and Principals

FROM: Kathryn S. Matayoshi, Superintendent

SUBJECT: Medically Accurate "Abstinence-Based" Sexuality Health Education

This memo serves as a reminder to all schools that the Department of Education has followed Board of Education (BOE) Policy 2110, an abstinence-based policy for HIV Prevention Education and Reproductive Health since 1995, and the Hawaii Revised Statute [§321-11.1] regarding medically accurate sexuality health education.

BOE Policy 2110 - Abstinence-Based Education (Approved: 9/95) states:

In order to help students make decisions that promote healthy behaviors, the Department of Education shall instruct students that abstention from sexual intercourse is the surest and most responsible way to prevent unintended pregnancies, sexually transmitted diseases such as HIV/AIDS, and consequent emotional distress. The abstinence-based education program shall:

a. support abstention from sexual intercourse and provide skill development to continue abstention;

b. help youth who have had sexual intercourse to abstain from further sexual intercourse until an appropriate time; and

c. provide youth with information on and skill development in the use of protective devices and methods for the purpose of preventing sexually transmitted diseases and pregnancy.

Hawaii Revised Statute [§321-11.1] Medically Accurate Sexuality Health Education states:

a. Sexuality health education programs funded by the State shall provide medically accurate and factual information that is age-appropriate and includes education on abstinence, contraception, and methods of disease prevention to prevent unintended pregnancy and sexually transmitted disease, including human immunodeficiency virus.

b. For the purposes of this section:

"Age-appropriate" means suitable to a particular age or age group based on developing cognitive, emotional, and behavioral capacity typical for that age or age group.

"Factual information" means medical, psychiatric, psychological, empirical, or statistical information that is verified or supported by research conducted by recognized medical, psychiatric, psychological, and public health professionals or organizations.

"Medically accurate" means verified or supported by research conducted in compliance with accepted scientific methods and recognized as accurate and objective by professional organizations and agencies with expertise in the relevant field, such as the federal Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the American Public Health Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics, and the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists.

"Sexuality health education" means education in any medium regarding human development and sexuality, including education on pregnancy, family planning, and sexually transmitted diseases.

The following abstinence-based curricula have been reviewed and evaluated as appropriate resources by the Department of Education:

- Draw the Line, Respect the Line, Grades 6th- 8th, ETR Associates, University of California, San Francisco Center for AIDS Prevention Studies, 2003.
- Family Life and Sexual Health (F.L.A.S.H.), Grades 5th- 12th, Seattle & King County, Family Planning Program, Author: Elizabeth Reis, MS, 2005.
- Healthteacher.com, Grades K - 12th, Development Team: Kathleen Middleton, MS, CHES, Project Director/Instructional Designer; Anita Davis, BSN, MEd; Netha Thacker, Project Editor; Sarah Brown, MEd; Michael Cleary, PhD, CHES; Iris Dorfman; Betty M. Hubbard, EdD, CHES; Cheryl Miller, 1999-2003.
- Making a Difference (MAD), Grades 5th- 8th, Select Media, Authors: Loretta Jemmott, PH.D, R.N. F.A.A.N.; John Jemmott III, PH.D.; Konstance McCaffree, Ph.D, C.S.E.
- Positive Prevention, American Red Cross, Primary Authors: Kim Robert Clark, Dr., CHES; Christine Janet Ridley, RN, MS; Department of Health, Science and Human Ecology, California State University, San Bernardino, California, 2004.
  Level A, Grades 6th- 8th
  Level B, Grades 9th- 12th
  Special Populations, grades 7th- 12th, Revised 2011
- Reducing the Risk, Grades 9th- 12th, ETR Associates, Author: Richard P. Barth, MSW, PhD, 4th Edition 2004.

Complex Area Superintendents and Principals

The following curricula do not meet the Board of Education's policy for Abstinence-Based Education:

- Making Proud Choices, Grades 5th- 8th (provides youth with information and skill development in the use of protective devices and methods for the purpose of preventing sexually transmitted diseases and pregnancy, but provides youth with little emphasis on abstinence), Select Media, Authors: Loretta Sweet Jemmott, Ph.D., R.N., F.A.A.N.; John Jemmott III, Ph.D; Konstance McCaffree, Ph.D.
- Try Wait, Catholic Charities (abstinence-only), New Life Styles, Inc., 2008-2009.

Teachers shall comply with BOE Policy 2110 by using abstinence-based curricula in their classroom. If a teacher elects to invite an outside agency into his/her classroom to present an abstinence-only curriculum, he or she must present an abstinence-based curriculum in order to reflect all points of view. These actions will ensure that the teacher is in compliance.

BOE Policy 2210 - Controversial Issues states:

Student discussion of issues which generate opposing points of view shall be considered a normal part of the learning process in every area of the school program. The depth of the discussion shall be determined by the maturity of the students.

Teachers shall refer students to resources reflecting all points of view. Discussions, including contributions made by the teacher or resource person, shall be maintained on an objective, factual basis. Stress shall be placed on learning how to make judgments based on facts.

Former Code No. 6126
Former Policy Approved: 1947
Amended: 7/60, 10/70, 3/88 (renumbered)

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support of the amendment. Mr. Speaker, the reason why I'm supporting the amendment is that this is a reflection of the voices of tens of thousands of parents across the state who want medically accurate information taught to their children, Mr. Speaker. And they don't want anything going into the minds or into the hearts of 11-year-olds across the state, Mr. Speaker, that not only is inappropriate but also inaccurate and untrue.

"Mr. Speaker, the very fact that this information is part of our education system completely baffles me, and that I think it would be extremely appropriate for this Body to take measures to support our parents throughout the state, the thousands who have made their voices and concerns heard in regards to this measure, Mr. Speaker. And that we make sure that the Department of Education is executing the laws that we have passed for them to follow.

"When this Body says, Mr. Speaker, that we expect medically accurate information to be in taught in our schools, it's pretty simple to me, but I think that expectation is very reasonable. And it's very unfortunate that we have to go through a process to underscore, I believe, what they should already know. And this is something that's important for our children, Mr. Speaker, and for the parents across the State of Hawaii who find it very disturbing, the things that are currently being taught in our schools, Mr. Speaker.

"I hope that with the passage of this amendment, that this Body will support and reinforce what our parents, who carry the primary responsibility for the care of the children, who are the future of Hawaii, Mr. Speaker. And this is one way that we can express our support to those parents. For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I support the amendment."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of the amendment. Mr. Speaker, this amendment can serve reconciliation and peacekeeping purposes. Reconciliation for the fact that what we've said and we've codified in law, I think this amendment will do that.

"Secondly, I think it will draw a ceasefire to what otherwise the mama bears are out there very upset with the school system, and there's going to be a constant agitation until we codify that some of these things are not going to be taught. And for those reasons, I think it's going to be better for all students that that be a ceasefire. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative McDermott rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I think I made a mistake earlier. I said the age of consent was 14, I think it's 16. However, the state statute says, another statute says, that penetration with anyone under 14 is illegal regardless of their consent because we don't allow, this Body has determined previously, we don't allow 12 and 13 and 11-year-olds to make that decision on their own, because they're not psychologically ready for that. So, it is a distinction with a difference. I just want to clarify that. Thank you."

Representative Evans rose to a point of order, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Point of order. I have a question if this floor amendment is a substantial change and it didn't have three hearings in the House, three hearings in the Senate, and if it is actually not following the House rules that you have to have that, and that you're introducing something that's a substantial change? I'd like to have a ruling on that."

At 10:47 o'clock a.m., Representative Saiki requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 10:48 o'clock a.m.

Representative Evans rose, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I withdraw my question. Thank you."

Representative Takumi rose to speak in opposition to the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. In opposition. Yes, it is true that we have codified in statute, because we have dealt with this issue a number of times over the years, as to what should be the content of sex education in our schools. And the statute reads, it's pretty obvious, anybody can read it, that it has to be medically accurate and age appropriate. The department also believes it should be abstinence based, Mr. Speaker. Not just abstinence only, but abstinence based.

"And why do we need this type of education in our schools, Mr. Speaker? Because we do know, according to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 1,700 girls just gave birth last week. Every week in this country, girls 15 through 17 years old give birth. Why? Ignorance. They're not talking to their parents. They're not being properly educated about birth control, and when they do try to use it, they use the least effective methods, such as condoms alone.

"Let me get to the points that are being raised in this floor amendment. First point about the age of consent. According to the Hawaii School Health Survey, the last one done in 2011, they do it every other year, we don't have 2013 numbers, 37 percent of students in high school have had sex, 13 percent have had or engaged in anal sex. When it comes to middle school students, Mr. Speaker, 12 and 13-year-old children, 10 percent have engaged in sex. And I suppose we could codify that into law and say to these children, 'What you're doing is breaking the law. Stop.'

"But you know, Mr. Speaker, it would be very similar to saying to anyone under the age of 21, 'Do not drink. Stop. Just say no.' Well, I have a feeling, Mr. Speaker, that many, many people, maybe some of us sitting on this Floor, imbibed in alcohol prior to the legal drinking age. And that's why it's all the more important not to encourage it, but to merely point out what drinking does. Particularly if you are underage, and drive or do things that are inappropriate and risky. I think it's critical that we engage in that kind of education.

"Second point I want to point out, Mr. Speaker, is the department's opt-out policy. Regulation 2210.1, you can just look it up on the Board of Education website. That policy clearly states that on any controversial topic that a school engages in, and this is one, that parents have the right to opt out.

"And by the way, Mr. Speaker, you don't even have to wait until you get notified from the school. As I mentioned earlier several times on the Floor, that if a parent, if a family believes that they do not want their child to be taught whatever it may be that parent or family deems controversial, that's their choice. That's their decision. That's their value system. All they have to do is notify the school, that if and when this topic that they deem controversial comes up in the curriculum, they want their child out of that classroom. And the department is obligated to provide alternatives to that curriculum. So it's not just simply about sex education or a part of that sex education, but any part of the department's curriculum.

"Last point I'll make, Mr. Speaker, because I don't want to belabor the point, but this floor amendment is premature. The department, as a result of some of the concerns expressed, and by the way let me mention this, in the six schools that currently offer Pono Choices, of the six available approved curriculums for sexuality study, the vast majority of parents who come and watch the presentation of what their children will be exposed to, the vast majority decide they want their child to be educated through Pono Choices. Some parents have opted out, and once again, Mr. Speaker, that's their right.

"But let me just make one last point. The department has convened a working group. They met in February, they are continuing to meet, and they will come up with a public report and recommendations regarding this particular program in the department. That working group is made up of members of the community, parents, health educators, members of the clergy, and members including the Department of Health people.

"I believe, Mr. Speaker, we should allow them to convene, to meet, and to come up with what recommendations they would like to. I do believe if we go down the path of legislatively determining what is medically accurate, what is age appropriate, not just on this particular topic but on anything that is taught in our schools, it's a slippery slope. Thank you."

Representative Wooley rose, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Point of personal privilege. I made an informal request to the Representative from Hawaii Kai previously. I'd like to make a formal request that he not put himself out as speaking for the 'mother bears' in this room. Thank you."

At 10:54 o'clock a.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 10:56 o'clock a.m.

Representative Fale rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in brief rebuttal. Mr. Speaker, I believe what's medically accurate is pretty clear as when it comes to the definitions that have been laid out by the medical community, Mr. Speaker. And it's very clear that the content of part of the education program that we're putting out is not medically accurate, Mr. Speaker. I would be hard pressed to believe that anybody in this room would believe that the anus, Mr. Speaker, is a sex organ. That's pretty unbelievable. It's pretty amazing. That is amazing, Mr. Speaker, that anybody would believe that that were the case.

"Also, Mr. Speaker, it was stated that parents have the opportunity to opt out. And one of the very interesting things, Mr. Speaker, and that the parent night orientation guide that is given to parents, and that's what's discussed, does not include any of the controversial components of the program that's currently being used. None of it, Mr. Speaker. I find that severely problematic. So when parents look at it, they're like, okay, I'm okay with that. And then they find out that there's actually something else being taught other than what was actually shared with the parents.

"Mr. Speaker, I would like to submit into the Journal a copy of parent night orientation guide which is currently being shared with parents and being told to parents which is not, just like the definition of the anus, Mr. Speaker, as a sex organ. So it is very clear that it's missing from the parent night orientation guide, that the controversial components are also very misleading, and also absent of the controversial parts that are actually being taught to 11-year-olds in our school, Mr. Speaker.

"So with those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I support the amendment and I think that we shouldn't just arbitrarily allow certain individuals to define what is medically accurate, and what is not medically accurate, Mr. Speaker. I think those lines are very clear, and we should stick with those. So for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I still support the amendment."

Representative Fale submitted the following:

Representative McDermott rose, stating:

"I'd like to call for the vote. And remember, I asked for a roll call vote."

At this time, Representative McDermott called for the previous question.

Representative Belatti rose to speak in opposition to the proposed floor amendment, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition to the floor amendment. Mr. Speaker, I welcome the proponent of this floor amendment saying that he'd like to see medically accurate and factual information. This was a statute that was hard fought for by the Women's Legislative Caucus. And we're in agreement, we want medically accurate, factual information. But I think what the proponents of this measure leave out is that we're talking about sexuality health education.

"As the statute currently is, sexuality health education is more than just the specific sex acts that are mentioned in this floor amendment. In fact, sexuality health education is much broader. It focuses on human development and sexuality. It includes education on pregnancy, family planning and STDs. It is a broader approach to sex education than just the simple discussion of sex acts.

"I think the level of specificity in this amendment that seems to focus perversely on these very specific sex acts misses the point. In all of the curriculum that this Department of Education is looking at."

Representative McDermott rose, stating:

"Point of personal privilege, Mr. Speaker. My amendment, which is a reflection of me, is being called perverse. I'm not perverse. Pono Choices is perverse. That's what this is all about. I take that as an insult, and I'd ask the lady to withdraw it."

At 11:00 o'clock a.m., Representative Saiki requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 11:02 o'clock a.m.

Representative Belatti continued, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I withdraw the term 'perversely.' So the level of specificity in this amendment focus specifically on specific sex acts that I think misses the point of the statute, which talks about broadly educating about medically accurate factual information about sexuality health education.

"As a 'mama tiger' of two young girls, one 8 years old and one 3 years old, who I know are exposed to issues of sex, even in their young lives, I think that it's important that the programs that we are looking at, whether they are Pono Choices or the five other curriculum that the DOE currently has, is that this is a curriculum that broadly looks at human sexuality, that teaches our daughters to have self confidence in themselves and teaches them what are the proper kinds of relationships they should have with their peers, whether they are boys or girls. And that we have confidence instilled in our children to deal with these very real issues that we know, based on the youth based risk surveys, that 37 percent of our children under the age of 18 are having sex. That by the time 5.2 percent of them are 13 years old, they will have engaged in some kind of sexual intercourse.

"We need to protect our children, and I look forward to the conversations of what is medically accurate, what is factual information, when the DOE finishes with their working group report. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

At this time, Representative Saiki called for the previous question.

The request of roll call was put to vote by the Chair and upon a show of hands, the request was denied.

The motion that Floor Amendment No. 5, amending S.B. No. 2288, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO EDUCATION," be adopted, was put to vote by the Chair and upon a voice vote, failed to carry, with Representatives Belatti and Takumi voting no, and with Representative Cachola being excused.

(Main Motion)

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2288, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO EDUCATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Cachola being excused.

At 11:05 o'clock a.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 2583, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2134, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2516, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2517, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2768, SD 2, HD 2
S.B. No. 2288, SD 2, HD 1

Representative Carroll rose in support of the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Carroll's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I am in support of SB 2009. The intent of this bill is to provide more funding to our community health centers so they can continue to provide all the necessary services and work they do for our state's population.

"Mr. Speaker, these community health centers are nonprofit, community-based organizations whose purpose and expertise lie in providing quality person-centered health care to underserved populations and regions. They also operate in medically-underserved areas where people have limited access to other health care providers because of geographic and socio-economic barriers. These health centers contribute greatly to the economies and livability of the communities they serve and exist as cost-effective quality health care providers whose care results in healthier patients and decreased use of emergency, specialty and inpatient services.

"The Legislature further finds that community health centers save the health care system $1,263 per patient per year due to timely, effective care and care management that reduces unnecessary emergency room, inpatient and specialty utilization. This measure does not just benefit the underserved, underinsured, and those completely uninsured. It also benefits everyone in the state, by lifting some of the stress imposed on our health care system caused by unnecessary utilization of medical services.

"Mr. Speaker and distinguished Members of this Body, I urge everyone to please take careful consideration of this bill and to vote in support of SB 2009. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2009, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HEALTH," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Cachola being excused.

Representative Awana rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2249, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PUBLIC AGENCY MEETINGS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes to 1 no, with Representative Carroll voting no, and with Representative Cachola being excused.

At 11:08 o'clock a.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 2057, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 702, SD 2, HD 2
S.B. No. 2009, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 1249, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2120
S.B. No. 2118, HD 1
S.B. No. 2249, SD 1, HD 1

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1554-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2629, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2629, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Rhoads rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I request a ruling on a potential conflict. My wife is a lobbyist. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Takayama rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, same request. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2629, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO LOBBYISTS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1555-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2246, SD 2, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2246, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Rhoads rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I ask to be recused from this vote because one of the claimants that would be compensated under this bill is a personal friend of mine, and at Second Reading I asked for a recusal, and was granted it. Thank you."

The Chair addressed Representative Rhoads, stating:

"You are recused."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2246, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT MAKING APPROPRIATIONS FOR CLAIMS AGAINST THE STATE, ITS OFFICERS, OR ITS EMPLOYEES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Rhoads being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1556-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2634, SD 1, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2634, SD 1, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Rhoads rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I just need a ruling on a potential conflict. My wife is a lobbyist. Thank you, sir," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Takayama rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, same request. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Awana rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise with reservations. Let me state and share with the Members why. If you look at the definition of lobbying materials, it states as follows, 'items used for the purpose of lobbying, including letters, reports, posters, pamphlets, brochures, bumper stickers, postcards, videotapes, and audiotapes; provided that this shall exclude written testimony and exhibits for a hearing before a legislative or administrative agency.'

"So obviously, the idea was to carve out an exemption from those previously described items in the legislative process or the administrative hearing. That makes sense, because you want to encourage and not chill anyone's right to petition their government for redress at a public hearing, for them to participate at the legislative hearing process. But the concern I have is that as currently drafted it may have chilled some of our constituents communicating with us, by the definition or inclusion of having letters included in this definition of lobbying material. I don't know if that would mean strictly hard copy letters or would also mean email communications or telephonic communications.

"But it just gives me some concern that it might be so broad and expansive as an interpretation or application by the Ethics Commission, that it would chill the participation of our constituents. So that's my basis of reservations.

"I understand that the Ethics Commission, in speaking to the executive director, is seeking further guidance as they interpret the current law and the current rules in place. But again, I think this might need a little bit more work as it goes through the process. Thank you."

Representative Har rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Oshiro be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Tokioka rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Same request, Mr. Speaker. As the Representative from Wahiawa was speaking, the thing I could think about is all of the people that came to this Capitol this session with red shirts. Now is that part of the $750? Is the airfare from the neighbor islands part of that $750? So those things haven't been clarified, in my opinion, in that bill yet. So for those reasons, I'm with strong reservations, Mr. Speaker. Thank you."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Kawakami rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Carroll rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Saiki rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this measure. What we need to do is to look at what the legal definition of a lobbyist is, and that is made clear in materials provided by the State Ethics Commission. I will just read it for the edification of Members. 'Who must register as a lobbyist? An individual must register as a lobbyist if the individual is paid or otherwise receives consideration or compensation for his or her lobbying services, whether by fee, retainer, or salary (or portion thereof), and also meets either of the following two criteria: (1) Spends more than $750 in any reporting period lobbying, or (2) Spends more than 5 hours in any month of any reporting period lobbying.'

"The memo also makes clear that, 'If an individual lobbies but receives no compensation for the lobbying services rendered, the individual is not required to register as a lobbyist.' This legal definition would preclude members of our respective communities who volunteer to monitor the Legislature from any reporting requirements. Thank you very much."

Representative Ito rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, ruling on a conflict. I think my daughter is a lobbyist. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Oshiro rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Still in reservations. Just for further edification and clarification. I agree with the Majority Leader's recitation of the current law, but what concerns me is based upon a recent telephone conservation I had with the Ethics Commission's Director, Mr. Kondo. According to his interpretation of the current law and rules in place, one need not be compensated to be deemed, quote, unquote, 'a lobbyist', nor spend five hours or more during the applicable time period. Merely spending $750 in a six-month period involved in the lobbying process would force someone, or compel someone, or require someone, to go and file a disclosure of expenditures and contributions for that endeavor with the Ethics Commission.

"That person may or may not be deemed a lobbyist, but I think the fact that that person would have to submit these documents and provide both expenditures and contributions involved in that activity certainly strikes me as being very close to being a lobbyist or falling under the laws and rules in place. Mr. Kondo and I had a lengthy discussion on the telephone regarding this, because it seems to be a new area where the Ethics Commission is attempting to address right now. Especially when you have more activity coming from unassociated, unaffiliated community groups getting involved.

"It even went to the point, Mr. Speaker, just so everyone understands the extent of the reach of our current law and rules. It even goes to the extent of communicating with one another in the community. Not necessarily with a legislative member or in a public hearing or in an administrative agency, but merely speaking about, at let's say the community meeting on a topic, is enough to trigger the requirement. And that's the concern that I have.

"This bill has an effective date of July 1, 2030, so there's still a chance for us to further refine the law, but as it reads today, I have concerns about how it may chill one's First Amendment right to petition their government for redress. Thank you."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. I would just note that the bill before us does not change the definition of lobbyist at all. This is just about what lobbyists have to report. So if there are questions or concerns about what lobbying is or a belief that we need to change the definition of lobbyist, that really wasn't the intent of this bill and it is not addressed here. We're keeping the definition of lobbyist exactly as it was before. Thank you."

Representative Awana rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Oshiro be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2634, SD 1, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO LOBBYISTS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1557-14) recommending that S.B. No. 1038, SD 2, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 1038, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE EMPLOYEES' RETIREMENT SYSTEM," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1558-14) recommending that S.B. No. 1065, SD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 1065, SD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Matsumoto rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I'd like to request a ruling on a potential conflict. My husband is a firefighter. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 1065, SD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT MAKING EMERGENCY APPROPRIATIONS FOR COLLECTIVE BARGAINING COST ITEMS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1562-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2365, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2365, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO INSURANCE CLAIMS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes to 1 no, with Representative Tokioka voting no.

At 11:17 o'clock a.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 2629, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2246, SD 2, HD 2
S.B. No. 2634, SD 1, HD 2

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1563-14) recommending that S.B. No. 3039, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 3039, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PUBLIC WORKS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes to 2 noes, with Representatives Fale and McDermott voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1564-14) recommending that S.B. No. 3099, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 3099, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 3099, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PUBLIC EMPLOYMENT," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1565-14) recommending that S.B. No. 1179, SD 1, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 1179, SD 1, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO COURT ORDERS TO PROVIDE MEDICAL TREATMENT FOR INMATES AND DETAINEES IN CORRECTIONAL FACILITIES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1567-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2308, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2308, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO CHILDREN," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1569-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2884, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2884, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PAROLE," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1570-14) recommending that S.B. No. 3024, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 3024, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE TRANSIENT ACCOMMODATIONS TAX," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

At 11:19 o'clock a.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 11:19 o'clock a.m.

At 11:20 o'clock a.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 3039, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 3099, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 1179, SD 1, HD 2
S.B. No. 2308, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2884, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 3024, SD 2, HD 1

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1572-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2431, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2431, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE HAWAII TOURISM AUTHORITY," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Belatti being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1573-14) recommending that S.B. No. 3053, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 3053, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, strong support. This is a bill that's about unmanned aerial systems. It's basically advanced technology, that which is technology without a driver or a pilot. Whether it's under the water, above the sea, in the air, on the ground, et cetera.

"Mr. Speaker, Hawaii's been honored to be chosen as one of the six test sites in the nation. Basically, as a nation we've decided that we want to integrate UAV's or UAS's into our national air space. That means we're going to have pilots and pilotless airplanes taking off and landing, as an inevitable development of technology. Mr. Speaker, I see this as an inevitable development from the Industrial Revolution to now, where men and machines and machines started making everything, now machines are making machines, and now machines still with man directly, though remotely behind, are now with these transportation mechanisms.

"Mr. Speaker, as we speak, an unmanned submarine is now searching for the Malaysia Flight 370 in the Indian Ocean. Can you imagine people being able to do that, and the expense? These are cost savings and investments that Hawaii, as a test site, are going to make.

"Inevitably, the UPS planes are going to be flying here, probably not too far in the future. FedEx also with pilotless crews. And, Mr. Speaker, some of you have been seeing the Spitting Caves incident where a young man jumped in at China Walls, Spitting Caves. And quite frankly, a UAV could get to that site to sight where he is faster than we can drive one of our rescue fire trucks.

"So, search and rescue, first responders, they're going to be using this a lot. Later on we have a bill regarding red fire ants, finding out where they are, detecting them. There's multiple uses that we are going to be using at this test site. But this bill essentially puts a small appropriation out, so it creates a chief operating officer for this test site, and it has a test site advisory board that's going to watch over this test site, so what they do is closely monitored.

"Mr. Speaker, the bottom line is, this is a billion dollar investment that our nation is going towards. We are one of the first pioneers to do that. And I think for the small amount of money that this bill puts into it, it's a great investment and a great bang for our buck. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Fukumoto rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise today with reservations to SB 3053, SD2, HD1. This bill would create approximately 103,776 new jobs by 2025 and will consequently greatly impact the growth of Hawaii's economy. In addition, this bill will support state initiatives such as emergency search and rescue operations, wildfire detection, and hazardous spills monitoring. There are very evident benefits to this bill that will significantly help Hawaii.

"However, I have reservations about potential safety issues. There have been a few reported unmanned aerial systems accidents. For example, on April 25, 2006 an unmanned aircraft crashed in Arizona, because a ground operator accidentally shut off the aircraft's engine. The bill should ensure the safety of the people working with the unmanned aerial systems and around the test site. For these reasons, I support this bill with reservations for SB 3053, SD2, HD1. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative McKelvey rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Thielen rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you. Mr. Speaker, I have serious reservations about this. The federal government has established an unmanned surveillance system. We're now going down the same path. I think there should be better protections in it for the privacy of people in our state. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Thielen be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Evans rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Thielen be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Ward rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, not so much a retort or a defense, but just for an explanation. These are not drones, and I know the popular media and what's going on in Afghanistan has unmanned aerial, weaponized planes going here, there and everywhere. Mr. Speaker, that is not what this is about. Right now it is illegal to have any unmanned aerial vehicle other than a model airplane in the State of Hawaii. The federal laws in Congress now are being made as we speak.

"This is something where I feel like I'm talking about the horseless carriage, when the steam engine was going to take everybody's pony and saddle away. And this is like, scary. Admittedly, there are things that are going on that are scary in technological, particularly privacy issues. But, Mr. Speaker, this is the future, it's going to happen, it's inevitable, and we are using it now.

"Another case in point is the train that's going to go to Kapolei and back does not have a driver, Mr. Speaker. That is an unmanned train. It's technology. Google has a driverless car that's gone over 400,000 miles in California and Nevada. They're safer, they're cheaper. In the future, mass transit is going to be based upon that. So, Mr. Speaker, lest the drone stereotype preoccupy people so their eyes are clouded by this, this is the future, this is technology. It's no different than when the Industrial Revolution started out with all of its machinery and scared people, and there became, what did they call the guys who would throw wrenches into the machine? The Luddites.

"Well, Mr. Speaker, the present day Luddites need to open their eyes and look back historically and project into the future, which now is an inevitable thing. Hawaii has the opportunity to be a pioneer, to be one of the first pioneers, one of the first advocates, one of the first progenitors, if you will, of this new technology. And, Mr. Speaker, that's going to attract new businesses, new air and other sea related investments. And it's going to, again, as I said earlier, keep us from this lack of diversification, where we just live on our good looks and we stop using our brains. It's time to use our brains, it's time to get behind these kinds of innovative areas. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Souki rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I speak in favor. Since my good looks have passed, I wish to incorporate the speech from my friend from Hawaii Kai, I'm very impressed with the zeal that he has for the future, and I urge the Members to support this measure. Thank you," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Thielen rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. The Hawaii Kai Representative mentioned Google. That doesn't particularly make me feel comfortable. If it hadn't been for our Representative from Waimanalo, Kailua still would've been confused with the Big Island, Kailua-Kona. And thanks to our Waimanalo Representative's resolution, Google corrected it.

"This is a surveillance system, and I think we should be very aware of that. And when you have a surveillance system, unmanned or manned, you have to look out for the privacy of the residents. So I still stand with reservations, I think this needs to be more defined as to what can and cannot occur with these surveillance systems. And unfortunately, this measure doesn't do that. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 3053, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO UNMANNED AERIAL SYSTEMS TEST SITES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Belatti being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1574-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2902, SD 1, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2902, SD 1, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Morikawa rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with comments. This bill will allow the Department of Transportation to adjust fees through rules, which will definitely make it easier and quicker to implement. These fees, however, have been escalating to keep up with the cost to computerize the process and allow some compensation to station operators.

"It was recently brought to my attention when we first started the new computerized system last November that some long-time station operators would not or could not participate, because of the lack of computer infrastructure, lack of computer literacy, cost of monthly subscription to broadband access, longer inspection time needed, and confrontations with customers.

"When you think about how many vehicles are out there, less access to stations will begin to cause backlogs and people's inability to obtain safety inspections on time. If you get cited for not having a current inspection, you get a hefty citation to pay in court. Is that fair, especially since your vehicle is not in an unsafe condition? How expensive will safety inspections become? Are they truly accomplishing the intent they were created for? The department will need to address these questions.

"Actually, I hope that the fees may decrease with less stringent criteria. Cars are made so much safer now, so review of the checklist is appropriate. Furthermore, electric cars and other newly developed vehicles may need different checking standards. Therefore, the department's authority through this bill should give them the opportunity to reevaluate the efficiency of the program. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Fukumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2902, SD 1, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO MOTOR VEHICLE INSPECTIONS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes to 1 no, with Representative Ohno voting no, and with Representative Belatti being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1575-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2731, SD 2, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2731, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO A CAR-SHARING VEHICLE SURCHARGE TAX," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes to 2 noes, with Representatives Fale and McDermott voting no, and with Representative Belatti being excused.

Representatives Lee and Evans, for the Committee on Energy & Environmental Protection and the Committee on Water & Land, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1578-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2658, SD 3, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committees be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2658, SD 3, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Thielen rose in opposition to the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Thielen's written remarks are as follows:

"I rise in opposition to SB2658, SD3, HD2 which allows solar farms to be built on productive agricultural land (rated B or C) if the landowner also allows commercial farming and obtains a special use permit.

"I could strongly support this legislation if an amendment was made saying that the Land Use Commission may vacate, void, modify or amend any special permit if it reasonably finds that there has been a 'failure to substantially conform to the conditions or requirements of the order granting the special permit'. Although I am a strong supporter of alternative energy, I also believe that as an island state we cannot arbitrarily change our well-considered land use laws without careful deliberation and oversight.

"According to the State Department of Agriculture, 75 percent of Hawaii's 1.9 million acre Agricultural District has 'D' or 'E' ratings. Current state law does not impose limits on the acreage of 'D' and 'E' rated lands to be used for solar farms. The Department of Agriculture believes that these lands should be used first for siting solar energy facilities. I strongly agree.

"Also, according to the Department of Agriculture, 'B' and 'C' rated agricultural lands make up 21 percent of Hawaii's Ag lands and are more likely to be considered and designated as important agricultural lands. We need to preserve these more productive resources for farming and crop production. I believe that if allowed, landowners could choose to lease out their land for the highest profit, rather than the best use. This could mean that farmers would no longer be able to afford to lease those lands they have worked on for generations."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committees was adopted and S.B. No. 2658, SD 3, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO SOLAR ENERGY," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes to 1 no, with Representative Thielen voting no, and with Representative Belatti being excused.

Representative Rhoads, for the Committee on Judiciary, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1579-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2223, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2223, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Fukumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Matsumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Tokioka rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you. With reservations, Mr. Speaker. If I may just add on a few comments. My purpose for standing with reservations is it may become an issue when your name change is a genealogy issue. For some, it'll increase the difficulties in obtaining paperwork for benefits which may be necessary for one's survival. In addition, Mr. Speaker, in the committee report it states that, 'The purpose of this measure is to allow the family court to change a minor child's name in a divorce proceeding if the court determines that either parent has sexually abused the child and the change of name is in the best interest of the child.'

"However, in paragraph three it says, 'Your Committee has amended this measure by removing the sexual abuse requirement, but still allowing the family court to change a minor child's name in a divorce proceeding if at least one party to the divorce is the parent of that child and such a change is in the best interest of the child.'

"And then I went on to read the testimony that was provided by Dyan Medeiros, and she had made some good comments including that this particular measure is only in a divorce case. Also, 'the intent behind the bill is unclear. It appears to create a special status for parents in divorce cases of children who have been sexually abused,' which has been taken out. But, 'why should only parents of victims of sexual abuse be allowed to have their child's name changed? Why not a parent of a child who has suffered physical abuse? Or mental abuse? Or emotional abuse? Why should only parents in divorce cases be allowed to have their child's name changed?'

"Also, she went on to state that deleting the sexual abuse component of this bill doesn't solve the problem either, and goes on to say additional comments. 'I am also troubled by the fact that the bill does not require a conviction in a criminal court,' which that part is taken out.

"More importantly, Mr. Speaker, the family court already has the authority to change a child's name if it determines that doing so is in the best interest of the child. And whether the court chooses to do so or not is obviously up to the court. And if the court chooses not to do so, however, a child's name can be changed once he or she reaches 18 years of age. So, Mr. Speaker, I'd just like to add her testimony into the Journal, and for these reasons I rise in strong reservations. Thank you."

RE: Testimony in Opposition to SB2223, HD1

Good afternoon Representative Rhoads, Representative Har, and members of the Committee. My name is Dyan Medeiros. I am a partner at Kleintop, Luria & Medeiros, LLP and have concentrated my practice in Family Law for fifteen (15) years. I am also a past Chair of the Family Law Section of the Hawaii State Bar Association. I am submitting this testimony in opposition to SB2223, HD1.

This bill adds a subsection allowing a Family Court in a divorce case only the authority to change the name of a minor child if "the court determines that either parent has sexually abused the child and the change of name is in the child's best interest". While I recognize that this bill is well-intentioned, it is ill-advised and unnecessary.

The intent behind this bill is unclear. It appears to create a special status for parents in divorce cases of children who have been sexually abused. Why should only parents of victims of sexual abuse be allowed to have their child's name changed? Why not a parent of a child who suffered physical abuse? Or mental abuse? Or emotional abuse? Why should only parents in divorce cases be allowed to have their child's name changed? What paternity cases?

This bill seems intended to simply give "special treatment" to parents in a divorce case. My question is why? I believe this "special treatment" will only increase litigation in divorce cases by encouraging false allegations of sexual abuse. False allegations of abuse (all types of abuse) are already a problem in divorce cases because of the presumption created by HRS 571-46 that a parent who has committed family violence should not have custody (sole or joint). Some parents make false allegations of abuse in order to obtain leverage in custody and visitation disputes. This bill will encourage this behavior even more by creating another "reward" – removing the other parent's name from the child's name, presumably in the hope of removing the parent from the child's life as well.

Please note deleting "sexual abuse" as a component of this bill doesn't resolve the problem, either. There is still special treatment being given to parents in divorce cases to try and change the name of their children. While it is true that children's names are changed in adoption proceedings and paternity proceedings, that name change is done once and is done for obvious reasons. In an adoption proceeding, a child is being adopted by at least one and sometimes two (2) new parents. The child's last name should be changed to match his or her parent's last name(s). In a paternity proceeding, a child's paternity (i.e. relationship with his or her father) is being established. As with adoption proceedings, it makes sense that the child's last name reflect his or her father's last name, sometime hyphenated with his or her mother's last name.

SB2223, HD1 seeks to give the Court the authority to remove a parent's last name in a divorce proceedings, not termination of parental rights proceedings or adoption proceedings. It simply makes no logical sense to me. Parents in divorce proceedings are divorcing each other. They aren't divorcing their children. Children feel enough loss as a result of divorce proceedings, they shouldn't face the prospect of losing their last name too.

Assuming for the sake of argument that a child has been abused (sexually or otherwise) by a parent, that is tragic. That fact, however, doesn't necessarily mean that a child's last name should be changed. I understand that a child who has been traumatized by abuse will have many challenges to overcome. I have no idea whether one of those challenges is their last name. I would assume that varies from child to child. This bill, however, gives a parent, not a child the right to ask for a name change. Moreover, as a matter of public policy, our laws call for reunification of children with parents even after abuse and/or neglect. This bill seems to undermine that public policy and in fact encourage a different policy.

I am also troubled by the fact that the bill does not require a conviction in a criminal court of sexual abuse a minor. It simply requires that the Family Court "determine" that a parent has sexually abused a child. The burden of proof required is unclear. Whether a parent will be afforded appropriate due process rights is unclear.

Importantly, the Family Court already has the authority to change a child's name if it determines that doing so is in the child's best interest. Whether the Court chooses to do so or not is obviously up to the Court. If the Court chooses not to do so, however, a child's name can be changed once he or she reaches 18 years of age. There is simply no reason to allow such changes to be forced during a child's minority and only in the context of a divorce case.

For all of these reasons, I object to SB2223, HD1.

Thank you for the opportunity to submit this testimony in opposition to SB2223, HD1.

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, please note my reservations. Mr. Speaker, I don't understand the way this measure is drafted at this point in time, why it would be needed. Because as the previous Representative has just spoken, the court already has this ability at their discretion. I think the original intent of this measure was children of sexual abuse in a divorce proceeding. But now that that has been removed, this bill is really not warranted in the current form it's written in. So with that, I will have my reservations going forward, and I'll see what comes out of conference at the other end. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. The reason for taking out the references to sexual abuse was that the testimony we received in Judiciary was that, yes, if you went in for a separate proceeding you can get your child's name changed, but the family court judges were indicating in divorce proceedings that they did not have the authority in the divorce proceeding to change the name.

"The reason that sexual abuse was taken out was because we were concerned that people would be making allegations about sexual abuse just so that they could get the name change done, and we didn't feel like that was a desirable situation. So, the best interest of the child standard is one that's commonly used in family court and it can factor in many of the issues that have been raised here in the Floor debate. For example, being able to trace the genealogy, that the judge would have to determine that any problems that changing the name might create in that regard would be offset or overwhelmed by other considerations that would make a name change necessary. Mahalo."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2223, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO CHANGE OF NAME," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes, with Representative Belatti being excused.

At 11:36 o'clock a.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 2431, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 3053, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2902, SD 1, HD 2
S.B. No. 2731, SD 2, HD 2
S.B. No. 2658, SD 3, HD 2
S.B. No. 2223, HD 2

Representative McKelvey, for the Committee on Consumer Protection & Commerce, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1581-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2078, SD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2078, SD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, may I get a ruling on a potential conflict please. At my law firm I represent AOAOs, as well as condominium owners, as well as developers of condominiums. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2078, SD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO CONDOMINIUMS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes, with Representatives Belatti, Kobayashi and Nishimoto being excused.

Representative McKelvey, for the Committee on Consumer Protection & Commerce, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1585-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2233 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2233, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO BUREAU OF CONVEYANCES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 47 ayes to 1 no, with Representative Hanohano voting no, and with Representatives Belatti, Kobayashi and Nishimoto being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1586-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2110, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2110, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE REGULATION OF PESTICIDES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes, with Representatives Belatti, Kobayashi and Nishimoto being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1588-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2975, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2975, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto: rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise today with reservations to SB 2975, SD1, HD1. Although it is important for every child—no matter their parents finances—to be able to receive an early education, this bill does not clearly define 'family-child interaction learning programs'. It is possible that the child might receive teachings that aren't in par with the public school system and would consequently make it difficult for them to keep up with their classmates. Unless the definition of 'family-child interaction learning program' is elucidated, we will not be able to ensure services provided through these programs are in the best interest of the child's foundational and future education.

"The HSTA has voiced their concern about this bill, as well. They believe private and subcontracted programs have the potential to reduce resources that could go to help public schools maintain a quality system of education. Appropriating funds to programs that may not properly educate children could potentially be very detrimental. For these reasons, I support this bill with reservations for SB 2975, SD1, HD1. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2975, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO EARLY LEARNING," passed Third Reading by a vote of 47 ayes to 1 no, with Representative Hanohano voting no, and with Representatives Belatti, Kobayashi and Nishimoto being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1589-14) recommending that S.B. No. 3008, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 3008, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In strong support. Permission to enter written comments into the Journal."

Representative McKelvey's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, this measure directly addresses the landfill waste issue on Maui in an environmentally sustainable way. I believe that a zero organic waste future for Hawaii is possible and that this measure brings us one step closer toward attaining this noble goal.

"Anaergia is a worldwide expert in resource recovery, with a 20 year track record and proven technology most notably in the field of anaerobic digestion. Anaergia will design, build, own, operate and privately finance a renewable fuel facility that converts Maui's waste streams including municipal solid waste, food waste, sewage sludge, oils, and grease into renewable liquefied natural gas and refuse derived fuel. Mr. Speaker, these two renewable fuels can be used for energy generation locally in Hawaii as a replacement to imported fossil fuels. In addition to generating cost effective renewable fuel from local waste streams without the combustion of solid wastes, Anaergia's solution will divert roughly 85 percent of Maui's waste from landfill, reduce over 100,000 tons of greenhouse gases each year and create local permanent jobs.

"In striving to improve the quality of life for the people of Hawaii, I whole-heartedly embrace synergistic relationships with companies working toward solutions that increase renewable energy and reduces/recycles waste. Due to the fact that landfill space is limited in our island communities, I feel that projects such as Anaergia's proposed material recovery facility should be encouraged to reduce the need for future landfill space on Maui.

"Anaergia's second project is called the Maui Energy Park (MEP). This project is located in West Maui, where the plan is to grow an energy crop and process it into renewable natural biogas through anaerobic digestion. This project will revitalize almost 2,000 acres of high quality agricultural lands left fallow after the demise of sugar cane and pineapple in West Maui. MEP will use recycled water for the majority of its irrigation needs, allowing the nutrients in this water to be returned to the soil. The renewable natural biogas can be used for power generation, household and commercial, and transportation. Mr. Speaker, Anaergia is also in discussions with MECO to take a portion of this gas and generate electrical power onsite. This has the potential to increase grid stability and reliability in West Maui.

"Both projects provide a number of environmental and socio-economic benefits to the state, county and residents of the State of Hawaii. These include reduced materials going in the landfill, putting fallow Ag lands back into production, and creating competitive renewable fuels which will provide energy cost stability and security for the state. These projects will create hundreds of short-term construction and long-term farming and operational jobs, thereby keeping millions of dollars a year in the economy here in Hawaii. I support this measure for it represents a bold investment by the state to reduce our carbon footprint, conserve energy and reduce our dependence on imported foreign oil."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 3008, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE ISSUANCE OF SPECIAL PURPOSE REVENUE BONDS TO ASSIST ANAERGIA INC.," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes, with Representatives Belatti, Kobayashi and Nishimoto being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1590-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2905, SD 1, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2905, SD 1, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I stand in support with reservations on SB 2905, SD1, HD2.

"The purpose of this bill is to remove program execution exception provisions that are specific to the University of Hawaii. In addition, this bill prohibits the sale or gift of land currently being used for the permanent campus of the UH-West Oahu without the prior consent of the Legislature. Part III of this bill appropriates moneys to fund positions in SEED, provides direct services relating to student affairs and higher education, and finally, Part IV repeals the authority of UH to issue revenue bonds.

"Let me begin by commending this bill's intent in Part III in recognizing the need to research and address Asian American and Pacific Islander underrepresentation in higher education. Part III of SB 2905, SD1, HD2 looks to appropriate moneys to fund five graduate assistant and student employee positions in the office of Student Equity, Excellence, and Diversity at the University of Hawaii Manoa for the purposes of conducting research and supporting students with a curiosity in Asian American and Pacific Islander educational issues. These demographics are particularly underrepresented in institutions of higher education. Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders are the two fastest growing racial groups in the United States. The highest proportion of these populations are right here in Hawaii, and represent the greatest majority in the state and the University of Hawaii.

"My concern with this measure stems from Part II that would prohibit the sale or gift of land at West Oahu's campus without prior consent of the Legislature. It is important to understand that the land upon which the UHWO sits was land gifted by what was formerly known as Campbell Estate. Campbell Estate conveyed the land for the express purpose of having a four-year campus built by the state. Accordingly, any land that UHWO deems necessary to be sold for revenue generating purposes, belongs to UHWO, not the University system, nor the state. Moreover, as these lands were once Ali'i lands under Campbell Estate, by definition, they cannot be and are not ceded lands. As such, allowing UHWO to sell their own lands is not a matter of statewide concern, which is purported by this bill. These lands were given to the state for one purpose and one purpose only – for the benefit of a UHWO campus. Therefore, these lands belong to UHWO and we must give UHWO the flexibility it needs to do what they need for their campus – even if it means selling parcels for revenue.

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I stand in support with reservations."

Representative Fukumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2905, SD 1, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes, with Representatives Belatti, Kobayashi and Nishimoto being excused.

At 11:38 o'clock a.m., Representative Rhoads requested a recess and the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 11:42 o'clock a.m.

At 11:43 o'clock a.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 2078, SD 1
S.B. No. 2233
S.B. No. 2110, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2975, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 3008, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2905, SD 1, HD 2

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 3121, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in opposition. Mr. Speaker, this bill essentially requires legislative approval of any exchange of public land for private land by a majority vote of both houses of the Legislature. This represents a major shift in policy. As we know, the current statute requires disapproval by the Legislature by two-thirds of either the House or the Senate. And instead, what we're doing now is we're requiring an approval by just a majority vote. Again, this represents a major shift.

"For me personally, Mr. Speaker, my concerns stem from the fact that this could get very political. We all know in this Body that sometimes some people don't agree with the Representative from that district or what not and it could end up being political. And that's the thing we want to avoid. By having it as a disapproval mechanism it allows the Legislature and the Bodies in the Legislature to have further discussion regarding whether we need to disapprove the transaction. Now it requires a two-thirds, which is a higher standard on the disapproval side.

"But, here now what we're doing is we're actually shifting policy in a major way, and my concern really stems from the fact it could become highly politicized, it could become very petty. For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I'll be voting no on this measure. One of the things in the bill I think that maybe alleviates some people's concerns on this major policy shift is the effective date of July 1, 2050. So it has a ways to go. But my concern right now is that it could come back with a clean effective date, and that without much notice you would move to agree to this particular draft. And as the Representative of Kapolei expressed, this is a major policy shift. It is a front-end legislative approval of a land exchange or transfer of state public lands.

"This is a big shift from the current policy that has been in place all these years, where we have to come in, review the executive branch's work, their due diligence and their final decision on a land transfer. And then, and then, Mr. Speaker, only after going through the lengthy legislative process, we can disapprove that particular land transfer.

"This puts us at the front-end of it, and I don't know if that's the proper place for the Legislative Body, these kinds of land activities. So I'd like to adopt the words of the Representative from Kapolei as my very own. Thank you," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Evans rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in support. Thank you. I've been here for a while and I've always wondered why we go through disapproval. We don't see them very often. They only come once in a while. But when you come before the Legislature under a concurrent resolution in the House and the Senate where you have to get two-thirds vote, that's a lot of votes. And also it's at the end of the process.

"When you come to the Legislature with a disapproval, you've already gone to the board, you've probably already done your appraisals, you've really invested a lot of staff time and a lot of efforts into the process. In this Body, we can always say that everything and anything is political. There's always going to be people be for it or against it.

"But I think that what the bill is saying is if you take state land and you're negotiating with a private party and you want to do an exchange, it'd probably be really great for the community that's involved and for the Legislative Body and probably the Representative or the Senator from the district to understand what significant changes may be being put forth.

"I want to point out to my colleagues that it says in here that, 'The state department or agency shall submit for introduction to the legislature a resolution for review of action on any exchange to be consummated by the board wherein exchange deeds will be executed by the parties together with the following information.' And that's the important piece, the location and size, the value of the lands to be conveyed, the name or names of the appraiser or appraisers, the date of the evaluation, the purpose for which the lands are being exchanged, a detailed summary of any development plans for the land to be exchanged, and a statement of whether the land is or is not land that was leased, classed as government or crown lands previous to August 15th, 1895, or was acquired by the state in exchange for such lands, and a detailed explanation of how the state department or agency made this determination.

"If you do it by disapproval, that's the information you get after all that's done and after the agency has already gone to the path. And they've actually done it, and then we come back and ask for disapproval. I've always thought that's the wrong way, and I really think this is the right way to do it. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Ward rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition. Mr. Speaker, land and power and anything that touches it should be done very circumspect, gently, thoroughly, positively, and with a consensus. Some of you will remember Gavan Daws who wrote 'Land and Power in Hawaii'. He basically said how you want to understand Hawaiian politics, look at the land, look at the ownership, look at the transfers, look at everything.

"This bill, Mr. Speaker, turns Gavan Daws on his head. This says we can loosey-goosey, just loosen the governance of our land and just let things go as they may. And one speaker previously said, 'well this rarely happens.' Mr. Speaker, there are 1.8 million acres that are being contested by the Office of Hawaiian Affairs. That's going to be a public transfer from the State of Hawaii corpus of land to the Office of Hawaiian Affairs. So to say we're not going to be transferring public lands, what's that 1.8 million acres all about?

"So, Mr. Speaker, loosening this at this time is not only bad policy, it forebodes not good future State of Hawaii land holding and responsible legislation by everybody in this Chamber. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Lee rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In support. Thank you. I agree with everything the previous speaker said, except for the fact that this is not a bill that loosens our control over public lands, it is a bill that tightens it and raises the threshold, so that we meet our obligation to hold public lands and public trust per our oaths we took to uphold this constitution.

"When we look at our ability to approve or disapprove a land sale, a disapproval process is very scary and very sketchy because it places the entire ability, the sole discretion, at the hands of one person, one particular committee chair. Because we have to take an affirmative action to pass something, to disapprove of that process, it means that one person can stop that from happening and allow a sale to go forward.

"By turning this into an approval process, it means that you have to have the affirmative action of a majority of both houses in order to prevent something bad from happening. And what this is going to do is make sure that there is far more discussion, that all of our votes collectively determine whether or not public land will be sold, as opposed to the votes of perhaps even just one person. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Har be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Ward rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, point of clarification. What I meant by saying that this is really loosening the flood gates is, the approval process, big deal, that's what people are speaking about, oh well this goes from disapproval to approval. The point is, it's a simple majority that it's going to go to. It should be a super majority. Anything and anytime you transfer land, there should be a consensus among everybody here.

"The fact that you can do approval, but you only need to get a simple majority, does not rise to the occasion of the severity and the seriousness of the commodity that's being exchanged. That's the whole point, not whether it's approval or disapproval. It's taking away the super majority that was in the old method of disapproval, to now where it's now a simple majority. That's really the issue that I'm very concerned about. Thank you."

Representative Say rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in opposition. I wasn't going to say anything this morning, but I would like to share with the Members of this Body why at this point I am in opposition, listening to the debate. The petitioner for any land exchange will be who? Probably it's going to be the state government petitioning the land board to see if we can do some land exchange with the private sector.

"Secondly, you have seen on this Floor of this House, legislation in regards to land exchange. And what the proponents are saying that, yes, let's do it at the front-end approving it. Who's going to be doing the appraisal? Who's going to do the investigation in regards to the TMK? Who is going to be doing all of the requirements that are needed when we do this particular land exchange?

"The process that we have in place today, of the two-thirds and disapproval at the end, is because the Department of Land and Natural Resources is doing their due diligence in representing the people of the State of Hawaii, if we should go through with this land exchange or not. It is the petitioner who is petitioning that, can we do a land exchange? Okay, yes. But sometime it may be a private land owner who may need state lands for a particular purpose. It may be diversifying their agricultural crops. But more importantly, I see this as really stopping any future land exchanges of the state's corpus with the private sector.

"The private sector will not get involved in saying, 'I've got to go before the Legislature to get approval? All 76 members of the House and Senate?' Because the demands of each and every one of us will be so great insofar as saying this is what I want, this is what she wants, et cetera. Having the administration do it is a proper channel to take. They have the staffing, we here don't have any staffing.

"Finally, are we forgetting the organizational structure of the Department of Land and Natural Resources, the Division of Land Management, who's in charge of all state lands? The process that we have in place I truly believe is very proper for all of us at this point, because, are we going to be hiring those private consultants to do all of this that they're doing?

"And if we, as far as this Body, wants more, does not have the faith and trust and confidence in the land board members, I would disagree. I've said to a lot of our colleagues, privately, all we have here is our trust in working with the administration. From the Land Use Commission to the Public Utilities Commission to the Hawaii Community Development Authority. And my gripe has always been this. This Chamber does not have the opportunity of the advise and consent, the confirmation, where these individuals would come before the subject committees to plead their case for why I should be considered a nominee. These individuals who had put their names up as nominees are well respected in the community.

"And that's why I am very much concerned about how you're going to do it at the front-end, where you want all 76 of us to get involved, and I said, it's not going to work. It's not going to work. And also, we have to realize this, which I think someday will have a constitutional amendment, Mr. Speaker, for a full-time Legislative Body, rather than a part-time Legislative Body. Thank you."

Representative Saiki rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of this measure. I'd just like to make two brief comments. First, it is not accurate to state that this bill will require a front-end approval from the Legislature. If we take a look at this legislation, it makes clear that legislative approval will kick in after the Board of Land and Natural Resources has approved in principle of the exchange. The communication that will be made to the Legislature by the BLNR is also addressed by this legislation. It will require seven criteria to be provided to the Legislature so that we can consider approving or disapproving this transaction.

"The second point that I wanted to make was that the current version of this law, actually, was enacted in 2003, and this was done as a result of the former Representative from Lihue, Representative Kanoho. In 2003, Representative Kanoho actually sought to enact a statute that would require legislative approval for these kinds of transactions. He was not successful, and the compromise is the legislation that is currently in law, which requires legislative disapproval by a two-thirds vote.

"So, this issue has come full circle in about 10 years, and it's time for us to take a hard look at whether or not the Legislature will provide a check and balance over these kinds of transactions, because it is our responsibility to ensure that public land is preserved for future generations. Thank you very much."

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. Mr. Speaker, this is for legislative approval. I believe this is making it more difficult to have lands transferred, and we should put this in place. I've been here for four years. I'm still waiting to see our list of ceded and public trust lands. It hasn't been completed. We don't even know where the lands are currently. And I know of other legislators that have been asking for it for 10 years.

"Now I know they've been waiting for the system to get set up, and electronically, and somebody even put the data. I've seen that report for the last three years. And I'm still waiting for the list. In my short four years that I've been here, I've stood on this Floor and I've said 'no' to every sale and every transfer of public trust lands. And I may get funny looks on the Floor, but I believe we should not be transferring or selling any of the public lands. These are queen's lands and trust lands. We are obligated to hold these until such time there is another nation or an institution that will take on ownership and take care of them.

"For instance, last year this Body supported an exchange for four acres in Honolulu for one acre in Waipahu. And that one acre in Waipahu was commercial, industrial, within a flood zone. The Honolulu four acres was nice prime acreage next to a private school for their expansion. Was that right? Oh, must have been, because we supported it. I didn't.

"I distinctly remember hearing when I was on the neighborhood board, years gone by, in my neighboring district Nanakuli. Department of Hawaiian Home Lands got some land to build a place called Princess Kahanu. That was a land exchange for prime land in Maui. You know that land in Nanakuli is flood land. Today there's homes, my brother and my sister-in-law live there. Is that correct?

"So I think we should be looking at approval. And I think everybody that sits in this Body and our neighboring Body in the Senate should be more educated on these transfers, but I haven't seen that in the last four years. But I'm standing here supporting this measure, and I hope it does pass. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Carroll rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In opposition. I agree with the previous speaker on all of her comments in regards to transparency, and that we should be updated on all of the public lands and ceded lands that are in our inventory. However, like the sale policy of any public or ceded lands that we created a couple years ago, I support a majority two-thirds on the approval. And that is why I am not in support of the simple majority of approval of this bill. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 3121, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PUBLIC LAND," passed Third Reading by a vote of 40 ayes to 10 noes, with Representatives Carroll, Choy, Fale, Hanohano, Har, Ito, Oshiro, Say, Tokioka and Ward voting no, and with Representative Belatti being excused.

At 12:06 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 2391, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2876, SD 2, HD 2
S.B. No. 2877, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2082, SD 1, HD 2
S.B. No. 2953, SD 1, HD 3
S.B. No. 3121, SD 1, HD 1

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1603-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2742, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2742, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ESTABLISHMENT OF THE PACIFIC-ASIA INSTITUTE FOR RESILIENCE AND SUSTAINABILITY," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes, with Representatives Belatti and Oshiro being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1604-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2920, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2920, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in strong support. Mr. Speaker, this is all about the little red fire ant and getting some money to get it out. Mr. Speaker, I want to first commend the Chair of Agriculture for her persistence, her commitment, and insisting that we do something and we do it now. And yes, Mr. Speaker, I forgive her for her previous attack that was as hot as a fire ant. I just wanted you to know I forgive her for that.

"Having said that, Mr. Speaker, the fire ant and the damage that it can do is actually, if we don't mitigate it, is going to be worse than the coqui frog, and we lost the coqui frog battle, Mr. Speaker. These ants can cause a sting that not only creates welts on humans, but it also can make pets and livestock blind. Mr. Speaker, it can also distill, if not just kill, all nesting birds on the ground. It threatens agriculture production, et cetera. The bottom line is, this is a clear and present danger that we have to act and we've got to act now.

"The other thing I wanted to commend the Ag Chair for was using the innovative creation of a dog detection force. Mr. Speaker, these little ants are all over our flowers, our plants, even in the air. The chair brought a sample of what these little things, they're really small, what these little things look like. They're very small.

"The fact that Australia uses dogs to detect at a 100 percent detection rate, I wanted to commend her for the innovativeness of putting that in the bill. At the same time noting that the training of any dog, in other words, a farmer's dog can be trained to do this. Mr. Speaker, how many farmers have dogs? Probably maybe 120 percent of them. Meaning that this is something that we can use, it's something that's practical, and the amount of the investment that this bill calls for is small compared to the hundreds of thousands of dollars that we lose every year in our agriculture production.

"For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, this is the third bill that I've spoken positively on. I have not spoken against any bill yet, except for the last one. Having said that, Mr. Speaker, I hope everyone will, in the Finance Committee and in the negotiations that are starting shortly, to be sure to make sure that this is not a coqui frog oversight the way we did in the past. And we were inundated by, because we were caught off guard and our timing was not right by putting the funding in. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Evans rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in support. I'm really hoping that the report that we're asking for that will come back to the Legislature will really look at how you do major response when you identify a problem. We've known about these fire ants for a while now. We've had money for the ant lab to try to look at how to combat them. But to actually put together a rapid response team and really get a handle across agencies, across departments, it's so critical, and I see this as the real example of how we can tackle a problem that's identified.

"The big issue is that when people finally call the state to say there's an infestation, normally it's a big infestation by the time they call. So a big part of this may be how do we really educate people on intervention at an early stage? Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2920, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO INVASIVE SPECIES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes, with Representatives Belatti and Oshiro being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1605-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2294, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2424, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McDermott rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I stand in strong support of this. I wish it was not just kind of a study type methodology. Let's move forward, there is a problem. But let's kind of figure it out and then we'll move forward. I think we know how to do it. I think the facilities director at the department has the grasp and the capabilities to execute already. And so with regard to the air conditioning, I think he can do it, we just need to give him the ample funding. In fact, they do have a prioritized list already. And, of course, Campbell High School in our district is one of them. I believe in the top three. So, I support this. I just wish we would have done a little bit more. Thank you."

Representative Cullen rose in support of the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cullen's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support of Senate Bill 2424, SD2, HD1.

"Mr. Speaker, this measure is the right and responsible direction that we should take as a Legislative Body on addressing the air conditioning needs we have in our public schools based on the discussions Members have had with all of the respective parties and their concerns over the $200 million backlog on repairing our educational facilities. Because overcrowding is a serious issue in our schools, the cost appropriated for the installation of the air conditioning would allow for the prioritization of related projects, thus expressing to the Department of Education and all respective parties that infrastructure upgrades and roofing are all equally important. This measure gives us the ability to look at all of the needs that are being considered and provide to the Legislature with a report on how we can assist in fulfilling these needs.

"Mr. Speaker, I stand in support because this bill will create a plan that will support the investment in our communities through our support for our students and the future of our state."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2424, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO AIR CONDITIONING IN PUBLIC SCHOOL FACILITIES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes, with Representatives Belatti and Oshiro being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1608-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2397, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2397, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Ing rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2397, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ECONOMIC DEVELOPMENT," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes, with Representatives Belatti and Oshiro being excused.

S.B. No. 2250, SD 2, HD 1

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1631-14) recommending that S.B. No. 3094, SD 2, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 3094, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 3094, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO COUNTIES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes to 1 no, with Representative Awana voting no, and with Representatives Belatti and Oshiro being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1632-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2832, SD 2, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2832, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HIGH TECHNOLOGY," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes, with Representatives Belatti and Oshiro being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1633-14) recommending that S.B. No. 3066, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 3066, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Onishi rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cullen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Morikawa rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 3066, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE PUBLIC-PRIVATE FINANCE INITIATIVE," passed Third Reading by a vote of 45 ayes to 4 noes, with Representatives Ing, Lowen, McDermott and Thielen voting no, and with Representatives Belatti and Oshiro being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1634-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2858, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2858, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Please note my strong reservations on this."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose and asked that the Clerk record a no vote for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose in opposition to the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to SB 2858, SD 1, HD 1. This measure establishes an Office of Environmental Information Management within the Department of Health.

"Mr. Speaker, this measure seems duplicative of what other departments within the State of Hawaii and the Department of Health are currently doing. In addition, there is a lack of clarity regarding the specifics of this new position.

"Testimony on the bill indicates that the Department of Health (DOH) is requesting the creation of a Senior Information Technology Specialist. The bill as written seems to address a much broader scope of work than what would be required by a Senior Information Technology Specialist.

"For these reasons, Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to SB 2858, SD 1, HD 1."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2858, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE ESTABLISHMENT OF AN ENVIRONMENTAL INFORMATION MANAGEMENT OFFICE," passed Third Reading by a vote of 43 ayes to 6 noes, with Representatives Awana, Fale, Hanohano, Har, McDermott and Tokioka voting no, and with Representatives Belatti and Oshiro being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1635-14) recommending that S.B. No. 3093, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 3093, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE UNIVERSITY OF HAWAII AT HILO," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes, with Representatives Belatti and Oshiro being excused.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1637-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2054, SD 3, HD 2, as amended in HD 3, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2054, SD 3, HD 3 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative McDermott rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, thank you so very much. I'd like to acknowledge the hard work of the Health Chair on this measure. She has been a champion in this regard. A leader everywhere, raising public awareness for autism. It affects many members of our community and although it may be a tiny, tiny increase in the cost, for these families it will have an exponentially greater impact for their coverage because it's a medical issue and they're not able to get the medical treatment. So I want to salute her for hard work on this issue. Thank you very much."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support. And to shock the world, let me adopt the words of the previous speaker as if they were my own. Thank you very much," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2054, SD 3, HD 3, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HEALTH," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes, with Representatives Belatti and Oshiro being excused.

At 12:29 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 3094, SD 2, HD 2
S.B. No. 2832, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 3066, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2858, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 3093, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2054, SD 3, HD 3

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1638-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2346, SD 1, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2346, SD 1, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Awana rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Strong support."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2346, SD 1, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO AGING," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1639-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2866, SD 1, as amended in HD 1, pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2866, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT MAKING AN EMERGENCY APPROPRIATION TO THE HAWAII HEALTH SYSTEMS CORPORATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1640-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2436, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2436, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Lowen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Thielen rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I am rising to speak against Stand Com. 1640. Thank you. Senate Bill 2436 relates to transit-oriented development, and what this does is it creates a Transit-Oriented Development Advisory Committee. This section is placed into the section of the law that is governed by the HCDA. It also, I think, has a great deal to do with the PLDC that we repealed last year.

"If you take a look at the law, it says consideration of the land use and zoning requirements, to see whether they are consistent with the county's transit-oriented development program. In other words, the transit-oriented development will trump county zoning and land use.

"I think it's a dangerous way to move ahead, because by placing it in HCDA, which we know has kind of run rampant recently, by placing it in HCDA we're going to create this Transit-Oriented Development Advisory Committee that's just going to go ahead, work with HCDA, and ignore the land use rules and regulations that we have worked so hard to put into place on the Island of Oahu.

"I think it's uncomfortably like the Public Land Development Corporation, and introduced by the same introducer on the Senate side of PLDC. But in this case it's a creating a TOD committee that can move ahead. And I don't like it.

"I'm very concerned about it. I'm voting no because of that. I think we should not go down that path again, that we'll later regret and need to pull back. Thank you."

Representative Evans rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in support. The thing about this bill that I like is its advisory committee. And I know that having looked at all the state lands that go down the transit corridor, there is just so much acreage that goes down that transit corridor.

"And I believe that we need to build some expertise and capacity, and this is really nice to see it in an advisory form, where they can actually look at how any decisions that are being made impacts the greater community. And I see we have the Kakaako people up in the audience, and they're a reflection of people that really care that these decisions do take into consideration what the real impacts are on the community.

"Because if you look at the purpose of the advisory committee, they're to create vibrant communities through public and private partnerships, investments and incentives for development projects located near transit, provide support for alternative forms of transportation such as walking, biking. Also, they shall assist and advise to make sure that a transit stop is at the center of a neighborhood, creates an activity center, reflects the character of the surrounding community, includes engaging public spaces, promotes pedestrian connections, facilitates a round-the-clock activity.

"Consideration of economic industry, commercial and retail components, consideration of economic analysis for the project, consideration of land use and zoning requirements as they relate to infrastructure and capacity. Identification of similar development plans such as the City and County of Honolulu, social and economic effects of the project including expected population growth, available jobs, potential industries, potential compatibility.

"Transit analysis that considers proximity of transit to the project, quality of the pedestrian connectivity, whether the planned densities are sufficient to support transit. Preservation and expansion of workforce housing around the transit to accommodate housing for individuals, single families, senior citizens and persons who are aging in place. Identification and application of partnerships the public sector may provide.

"And it goes on and on. I mean, this is really good planning. It's good. This is where this advisory committee can really build capacity, which is what we really need if we're going to build a transit project that clearly is smart growth in our community. With that, Mr. Speaker, I strongly support it. Thank you."

Representative Thielen rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. That just sounds so much like HCDA, and it sounds so much like PLDC. This area that's going to be covered is a one-mile circumference. That's a huge distance in our communities, and I think that we've got to be very cautious about this. People on this island, on the Island of Oahu, have worked very hard for a very sound land use scheme that protects our areas. And this could ride roughshod over it, carving out a PLDC-like operation to go in and take over land one-mile circumference around TODs. I think it's a bad step, and I do not support it."

Representative Lowen rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you. Still with reservations, and maybe I can just clarify a couple things. I think transit-oriented development is great, and I agree with all the things that the Representative from Kohala just read that I'm guessing were in the preamble of the bill. But I have some concerns with the bill in that, according to the AG's testimony, it may actually put everything within one mile of a transit stop under the jurisdiction of Hawaii Community Development Authority.

"The testimony from Hawaii Community Development Authority testified that this advisory committee would be redundant. They already have developed transit-oriented development overlay, which is posted online and extensive work has gone into it.

"So my reservations, I think, are just that it seems that there's been some issues with HCDA, and the county has done a really good job of looking at transit-oriented development, and it seems to me like the intention of the bill is to go in and take this out of the county jurisdiction. Thanks."

Representative Har rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In strong support. May I please have the words of the Chair of Water & Land entered into Journal as if they were my own. Thank you," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I stand in strong support. First, may the words of the Chair of the Water & Land Committee be entered into the Journal as my very own? I think people need to understand that if there's any redundancy, it's a redundancy for more participation by our constituents, by the citizens of this county. So I think that's what it achieves here. If it's redundant, I think it will achieve its goal of including people, especially those who are attentive to this matter today. So I support it very strongly. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose in support of the measure and asked that the remarks of Representatives Evans and Oshiro be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2436, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO COMMUNITY PLANNING," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes to 1 no, with Representative Thielen voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1643-14) recommending that S.B. No. 632, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 632, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in opposition. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. What this bill attempts to do is to create an Environmental Court with separate rules in Circuit Court. I think it's important to note the testimony of the Judiciary Branch of government, which made it clear that while 'other jurisdictions have established environmental courts after increases in environmental violations, housing/safety code violations, and/or an increase of abandoned residences or littered properties. We do not believe the same issues are present in Hawaii. However, if the legislature identifies particular areas of concern, it would be beneficial if the bill could be narrowed to focus on those areas as a pilot program. We further suggest that an environmental calendar be considered in place of an environmental court. Considering this alternative takes into account the present workload of our sitting judges and the reality that the addition of a separate environmental court may require expenditures for additional court staff, including another judge, a judicial assistant, a court clerk and a law clerk for the environmental court, as well as possible training costs. Having an environmental calendar, rather than an environmental court, would allow a judge assigned to the calendar to hear other types of cases during those periods when there are no environmental cases.'

"Moreover, Mr. Speaker, I think this is extremely important to note. In a year-and-a-half period from July 1st, 2011, to December 31st, 2013, there were only 69 violations that rose to the level of being in Circuit Court. The majority of the violations actually were Administrative Rules under Title 12 violations. Those 1,697 cases of administrative violations, Title 12 cases, are petty misdemeanors, and so they're handled by the District Court, not the Circuit Court.

"So if anything, we would want to create an Environmental Court in the District Court level, not in the Circuit Court level. Again, you had only 69 cases in Circuit Court. So creating a whole other level of bureaucracy, a whole other layer of an environmental court specifically for environmental cases just simply isn't warranted. So for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition. Thank you."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. I would just say that we made an attempt to address the concerns raised by the Judiciary in the Judiciary Committee by specifying that if there's an inadequate number of environmental cases to keep an Environmental Court busy, that the judge from that court would be specifically allowed to work on other cases as well.

"So I think there are a number of advantages to having a court specific to environmental concerns, but if there are not enough cases to keep that judge busy then so be it, they can work on other things as well. The case load, of course, will remain exactly the same as it is now. The creation of a court itself does not affect the number of cases brought. It wouldn't be expected to, in any case. So I think the concerns raised have been addressed. Thank you."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support with reservations. My reservations are similarly along the lines of the Representative from Kapolei, the Vice Chair of the Judiciary Committee, as far as the need to create a specialized court like this.

"I would prefer that additional monies to the Judiciary would go to the Drug Court, or the Girls Court, or the Veterans Court. I think those newer courts that we have set up ourselves should first receive some money. I think the number of cases under the purview of this Environmental Court is too small.

"The second point, Mr. Speaker, in reviewing the testimony, I think it is a better approach, a more effective approach, to try and develop a cadre of judges with expertise in land use or environmental laws. To have the Judiciary start right now with designating a docket or a calendar of these types of cases, in the respective circuits and district courts, I think that might be more effective in trying to address what this measure seems to do.

"I've seen these types of cases in the District Court out in the Wahiawa-Waialua District Court, Mr. Speaker. And for the most part they're more administrative than anything else. So I think if you're trying to do this to address the types of cases coming up in the Judiciary and to develop the cadre of judges with the expertise in these areas, which is a good intention. I think they can do it right now, and we should encourage them to do so, but without establishing a standalone court in and of itself.

"Again, any additional monies can probably go to the Family Court, or the Veterans Court, or the Girls Court, or the Drug Court, even the Mental Health Court that we've been looking at over all these years. Thank you."

Representative Tokioka rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representatives Har and Oshiro be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Lee rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In support. I'd just like to very briefly note that the Department of Land and Natural Resources did support this measure for the express purpose that this would allow the consolidation of cases, which would, in that sense, provide a more timely, fair and equitable disposition of such cases. Because it's important that the judges trying these cases and reviewing them possess adequate experience and expertise in environmental and natural resource laws, which putting these in one place would help facilitate. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representatives Har and Oshiro be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 632, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE ENVIRONMENTAL COURTS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 47 ayes to 4 noes, with Representatives Fale, Hanohano, Har and McDermott voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1644-14) recommending that S.B. No. 1043, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 1043, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Oshiro rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I need to disclose a potential conflict of interest. I am a shareholder of Hawaiian Electric stock. Thank you," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative McKelvey rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I too have a potential conflict I'd like to disclose. I'm a ratepayer of Maui Electric," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative McKelvey continued to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In support then, Mr. Speaker. Thank you very much."

Representative Thielen rose in support of the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Thielen's written remarks are as follows:

"I rise in support of SB 1043, SD1, HD1 which establishes the Legislative Utility Review Task Force to review franchises held by investor-owned electric utilities. This bill acknowledges that Hawaii ratepayers currently pay the highest rate for electricity in the nation and asserts that the utilities continued dependence on oil-based fuels is the reason for the discrepancy in rates. Hawaii's green energy goals are meant to free the state of its dependence on oil-based fuel and lower the cost to ratepayers. The language of this bill creates a task force to ensure utilities are acting to best service customers and to ensure that utilities work to meet Hawaii's green energy goals.

"Currently, the utilities prevent PV connection to the grid under the assumption that influx of solar power may result in damaged lines, circuits and substations. However, in a recent Forbes Magazine article, former Energy Secretary Steven Chu asserts that HECO has an outdated business model and will do anything to slow down solar power. Instead of preventing PV connections, Chu insists that utilities should adopt a better business model where they buy rooftop panels and batteries and work with PV contractors to lease solar products to consumers.

"This bill will prevent utilities from ignoring ratepayers, and instead force them to adapt the rapidly emerging green technology."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 1043, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ELECTRICITY PRODUCERS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1645-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2196, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2196, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Johanson rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support with reservations. Thank you. I'll make it brief because it echoes some of the comments I've made on similar bills at the last crossover. I think all of us fundamentally support the uses that are explicated in this bill of the monies. What my primary concerns rest on is the extension for 15 years of the Barrel Tax. I have several reasons that those are of significant concern to me, and I think to our constituents.

"One, that at some level it does, while maybe not continuing to actually perpetuate dependence on fossil fuels, in order for these worthy objectives to be achieved it is somewhat dependent on fossil fuels. And I think at some level, if we're going to make this transition, we have to actually transition to monies that are more stable and not the actual problem that we're trying to remedy.

"Furthermore, and I think also significantly given the incredibly high cost of living that most of our constituents bear, this is an opportunity, by letting this sunset, this is an opportunity for us to be able to decrease their cost of living. So extending it for another 15 years keeps, at some level, the cost of living high. I wish it was a shorter time frame. I do understand the uses, and I think they are worthy uses, but for those reasons I do have concerns with this measure. Thank you."

Representative Fale rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Johanson be entered into the Journal as his own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations. The previous remarks by the Minority Leader are very accurate. Mr. Speaker, one other issue that I'm very concerned about, this was slated as a temporary tax. It was slated as something that would go away, and it was going to go away. I think this is one more issue that the public, when they say that we've got a temporary tax, they're never going to believe us again, because every time we put it in place we never let it sunset.

"Regardless of the great causes, if we're serious about it, we should say this is a tax and it stays permanent, not that it's going to sunset. It's like a sucker-punch. So, Mr. Speaker, this, with its passage, is just simply going to convince the people that when we say it's a temporary tax, they're never going to believe us. Because the memories about this cost of living that were so high, increasing already, is not just going to go away. For those reasons, Mr. Speaker, strong reservations."

Representative Lee rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, in support. I just want to note, I'll try and keep it brief since we had discussion on this in a prior reading. For 100 years, we've had the same energy model here in the state. For 100 years, we have bought imported energy, burned it, and consumed it. That's an incredibly expensive endeavor, and it subjects our prices that we pay and our cost of living to events that happen far around the globe that we have absolutely no control over.

"The only progress we've made in the last few decades has come because of decisive state leadership, because of the Legislature, because of the Executive, moving forward and setting goals that take us off of our dependence on imported fuels. The funding that this bill extends has funded many of the efforts to allow solar photovoltaic, to allow renewable portfolio standards that have achieved incredible levels of clean energy here in the state, that have to date saved consumers already, through last year, over $60 million. Looking at individual ratepaying households, that's hundreds of dollars per household saved. And that trajectory is only accelerating.

"If we want to continue this progression, if we want to continue to save money, if we want to continue to transition off of the fuels that cost us most. Saving a few cents today may be great, but we want to save dollars, tens of dollars, hundreds of dollars for our families down the road. And the only way that we're going to do that is by funding these programs, funding our energy office, funding the end of our dependence on imported fuels, and ultimately moving ahead.

"I also note that this bill does more than just fund these programs, but it also brings in federal match through the reestablishment of a special fund here in this bill, which will allow more money to come in to reach these goals. So just noting those reasons, I stand in strong support."

Representative Matsumoto rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Johanson be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Fale rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, still in opposition. First, may I have the words of the Representative from Hawaii Kai adopted as my own? And I just want to kind of underscore what he said, Mr. Speaker, is that we told the people of Hawaii this would go away. You know, it's wonderful. We'll get off fossil fuels, we'll do all this stuff.

"But first and foremost, let's just do what our parents have always told us to do, is be honest. If it's not going to go away, let's say it is not going to go away. It bothers me when the credibility of this Body is put out there where you say, this is only temporary, this is only temporary, this is only temporary. When inside, there is no intention for it to be temporary, and there's no intention to stop taking the money that we have started taking in the first place.

"It simply comes down to a matter of integrity, Mr. Speaker, and a matter of honesty with the people of Hawaii. People come in and sit in the gallery everyday expecting us to be honest and forthright with what we do. If we tell them it's going to go away, Mr. Speaker, let's just keep our word and let it go away. And if it needs to come back, let's re-approach the people of Hawaii and make that same request. But let's not string them along and let's not do anything that would further undermine any credibility that we have, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"In support, just brief comments. My recollection, during the recession we passed a number of temporary taxes to try to minimize the cuts that were going into effect. Furlough Fridays, for those of you who remember those, cuts to the Department of Health, and there's a whole number of things that we tried to minimize those cuts by raising taxes. And I believe that almost all of them, I believe all of those tax increases have sunsetted out or are about to. And one of them was even sunsetted out early, which was the one on charitable giving.

"But I think there's also a fundamental misunderstanding on what it means to raise taxes temporarily. That means that that Legislature chose to put a tax on the table for however long length of time. But it's not their decision. The next Legislature or the new Members, since I've been a Member here, eight years, approximately half the Body is new. We, back then in 2006 when I was first elected, '07 was my first session, we can't bind what this new Body does.

"So you have to keep the word to yourself if you've promised your constituents you're not going to raise taxes, then you shouldn't vote to raise taxes. But other than that, saying somehow that the Legislature of 2006 is speaking for the Legislature of 2014, from a legislative point of view is just nonsense. Mahalo."

Representative Yamane rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in opposition. Brief comments. My concern and problem with this measure is the fact that we're asking for this funding source to continue for another 15 years, for a good purpose. Don't get me wrong, Mr. Speaker, supporting these valuable measures looking forward to save energy is a valid and honorable thing. However, Mr. Speaker, the process should be, is that just like other valuable programs, that they go through the legislative process and ask for the funding that other programs and competing issues deal with.

"Mr. Speaker, when this measure did pass, I was here at the Legislature, and we were informed at that time that this measure was temporary to deal with the current state fiscal situation. Extending it for another 15 years is going back on what we were told. So, I'm still in opposition."

Representative Ward rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I would request that the Chair of the EEP Committee submit to a question to explain how the $60 million dollars that he claims that we have saved actually has appeared on our constituents' electrical bills that they arrive at, and that they have every month received.

"Just let me make the point. If we have saved $60 million, where's the proof of that? My constituents tell me about the electrical bill. The more that we talk on this Floor about renewable energy, the higher their bills go. So they want to see what the effect of this is, and the gentleman said that we have saved $60 million for our constituents.

"I want to go back to my constituents and say, 'hey, we saved you $60 million.' Before they throw tomatoes at me, I'd better have some sufficient evidence that this is true. So that's why I ask for the gentleman to respond with what the truth is."

Representative Cullen rose in opposition to the measure and asked that his written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cullen's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to Senate Bill 2196, SD2, HD1.

"Mr. Speaker, it is well known that residents from the west side of Oahu pay the most on fuel, electricity, and transportation because many work in town. I completely understand the possible positive results for food and energy security that this tax may bring. However, I also understand that this tax and allocation have not been shown to reduce the cost of living to residents. Because of it, we are paying higher prices for fuel, energy, and food. By extending the sunset date, we essentially create a new tax; thus adding to the fuel and electricity costs to our constituents. The extension produces a negative impact rather than a positive impact.

"Mr. Speaker, this measure will hurt our residents and that is why I am in opposition."

Representative Lee rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you. I just ask to insert into the Journal a report noting our savings based on our renewable portfolio standards. Thank you."

Representative Lee submitted the following:

PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION
STATE OF HAWAII

REPORT TO THE 2014 LEGISLATURE ON THE
PUBLIC UTILITIES COMMISSION REVIEW OF HAWAII'S RENEWABLE PORTFOLIO STANDARDS

ISSUED PURSUANT TO SECTION 269-95(5), HAWAII REVISED STATUTES

December 2013

Public Utilities Commission Report Pursuant to HRS § 269-95(5)
State of Hawaii Page 17

Table 1. Estimted Annual Cost Savings From Renewable Energy Purchases

Estimated Annual Cost Savings From Purchases of Renewable Energy From Independent Power Producers (IPP) Hawaii Public Electric Utility Companies Calendar Year 2012
Utility	Average IPP Renewable Generation Energy Price	Average Utility Fossil Fueled Generation Energy Cost	Renewable IPP Generation Energy Cost Margin	Renewable IPP Energy Generation	Renewable IPP Generation Savings	Renewable IPP Generation Savings	Renewable IPP Generation Energy
	Cents/kWh	Cents/kWh	Cents/kWh	GWh	$ Millions	Percentage of Total System Energy Cost	Percentage of Total System Generation

The favorable economics of renewable generation are not without exception or limit, however, regarding the ultimate extent to which renewable generation can be feasibly and economically implemented on Hawaii's utility systems. A large fraction of the renewable generation resources used and planned for implementation in Hawaii are variable or intermittent[17] and require support from "dispatchable" resources to assure grid stability and suitable power quality. Dispatchable resource support can be provided by fossil-fueled generation or some types of renewable generation resources, such as geothermal, waste-to-energy, biomass or biofueled generation resources, as well as by energy storage technologies or demand response resources. As substantially higher percentages of intermittent renewable generation are implemented, there are expected to be increased costs for the measures necessary to maintain system reliability.

For the purposes of this Report, the implementation of renewable resources is presumed to promote Hawaii's energy policies to the extent that the RPS requirements promote cost-effective renewable energy generation. The effectiveness of the RPS is evaluated as to the extent to which the RPS is an effective driver of the implementation of renewable increased energy costs by $14.1 million above fossil fuel energy costs, more than offsetting the savings from utilization of purchased renewable energy.

[17]Variable or intermittent resources, such as wind and solar generation are available only when the source of energy (e.g., wind or sun) is available and may vary in output during the course of each day.

Representative Awana rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representatives Ward, Fale and Johanson be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered." [Note: Representative Har later changed her vote to a no vote.]

Representative Fukumoto rose in opposition to the measure and asked that her written remarks be inserted in the Journal, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fukumoto's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in opposition to Senate Bill 2196, SD2, HD1. This bill would re-establish the energy systems development special fund, under UH System, by extending Hawaii's current Barrel Tax.

"First, while this tax extension has good intensions for positive future outcomes, it is an extension of law we originally told the people would be temporary. When the Barrel Tax was introduced and passed into law, the people were informed the tax had an end date, and I believe we, as the trusted governing body of Hawaii, should keep our word.

"Secondly, there are accountability issues with no updated data on progress with previous funds, direct plans for increasing security, and where we are at with food security. For these reasons, I stand in opposition to SB 2196, SD2, HD1. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I stand in support. First, may I have the words of the Chair of the Energy & Environmental Protection Committee be entered into the Journal as my very own. I was there back I think in 2009 when we increased the Barrel Tax from $.05 to $1.05. There were a couple of reasons for that.

"Number one, and my friend from Kailua always reminded me of that. Part of the reason why was that we were going to embark upon some bold mission. And the bold mission was to do two things. One was to develop a program of energy security, and also food security. I think the Chair at that time was the current PUC Chairwoman from Kauai, Representative Morita. The Chair of the Agriculture Committee at that time was the current EDB Chair. And I think those two dual purposes was one of the reasons why we did raise the Barrel Tax from $.05 to $1.05. I was the Chair of the Finance Committee at that time.

"And to the chagrin of several other people who supported the measure, we had to take about 60 percent of that money just to balance the budget. Just to avoid the layoffs, the furloughs, the cuts, the decimation of important critical programs for our constituents. That's where most of the money went, 60 percent of it went to the General Fund, just to pay for these important essential programs and services.

"Since that time, my good friend from Kailua reminded me every year after that, when are we going to go back to the original intent of the measure, to fund food security programs, to incentivize the development of food security on all our islands? When are we going to use the money to develop alternative non-fossil fuel resources, like photovoltaic, solar, energy conversion, geothermal, et cetera? So we did it for six years, to 2015, to coincide with the financial plan, for us to review.

"But I never, Mr. Speaker, made any promise to my constituents that it was temporary. I told them what we were doing, and why we were doing it, and why we're using so much of the money to go into the General Fund to cover the expenses of critical essential programs for our citizens.

"Well, here we are. This is the time when we need to evaluate the program's effectiveness. And I think that's what we are debating today and discussing today. But let me be clear, Mr. Speaker, I never made any promise to any of my constituents that this is a temporary increase. I think, for the record, Mr. Speaker, for the record, I believe that every single Member who supported that back in 2009 won the approval of their constituents and came back in 2010. Thank you."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. In support, and I would like the very powerful and poignant words of previous speaker entered into the Journal as if they were my own, except for the Finance Chair part," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2196, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ENERGY," passed Third Reading by a vote of 39 ayes to 12 noes, with Representatives Aquino, Awana, Cabanilla, Carroll, Cullen, Fale, Fukumoto, Hanohano, Har, McDermott, Tokioka and Yamane voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1646-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2934, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2934, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I need to disclose a potential conflict of interest. I own shares of stock in Hawaiian Electric Company," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Oshiro then asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Onishi rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, same request," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Onishi then asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Say rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, this is one of my measures that I will be voting no. My reason is very simple. It's another tariff upon our ratepayers at this point in time mandating the PUC. Thank you."

Representative Har rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Say be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Awana rose in opposition to the measure and asked that the remarks of Representative Say be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2934, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO RENEWABLE ENERGY," passed Third Reading by a vote of 44 ayes to 7 noes, with Representatives Awana, Fale, Fukumoto, Hanohano, Har, McDermott and Say voting no.

At 1:05 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 2346, SD 1, HD 2
S.B. No. 2866, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2436, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 632, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 1043, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2196, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2934, SD 2, HD 1

At this time, the Chair stated:

"Members, we are going to take a 30 minute lunch break."

At 1:05 o'clock p.m., the Chair declared a recess subject to the call of the Chair.

The House of Representatives reconvened at 2:00 p.m., with Speaker Souki presiding.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1647-14) recommending that S.B. No. 1233, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 1233, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO LEAVES OF ABSENCE," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1648-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2470, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2470, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Awana rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise with reservations. Because of the defective date, currently I'll be voting with reservations and it's my hope that the necessary enhancements will be made when this bill is in its final version. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Jordan rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Awana be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Johanson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ward rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, may I have a no vote and a few comments, please. This is about the Hawaii Health Connector, but I think it's more about a bailout or a cover-up of the embarrassment that the Health Connector has created. Mr. Speaker, how much does it cost to enroll 8,000 people? Well, that's what they've enrolled, in fact less than 8,000 people, and it's cost them $57 million. That's $7,000 a pop.

"Mr. Speaker, we have probably been suckered by the feds to take the $205 million, but I'd say the $205 million was really a temptation we didn't avoid. And Mr. Speaker, I put that parenthetically in the fact that the budget that we're going to be passing on this House Floor is almost 30-some, almost 40 percent federal money. The feds seemed to suck us in. We had quick and easy money, but I see that as even quoting the executive director, this is not a sustainable health connector. The executive director said that we cannot afford to do $15 million a year, which it's going to take to operate this.

"So, Mr. Speaker, I think it's a safety net that this bill is going to create, and basically it's going to cover the embarrassment that we've caused through our state doing this. But we're kind of trapped into it. We're trapped in the sense that, some of us have said that, well, if we don't do this, we're going to be not given our exemption.

"Mr. Speaker, how many times have we been promised in the State of Hawaii, because we have the prepaid health care, that don't worry about it, Hawaii. And we're still leading on the people of Hawaii that there's not an exemption. Therefore we've got to go through this process, probably make a surcharge or an assessment, which is going to make already skyrocketing health plans' premiums even more expensive.

"So Mr. Speaker, we should watch what we say, watch what we do with this bill, and this is a dangerous step that we're going to take, because if we institutionalized this, this is not going to go away. Just like those taxes that we talked about earlier. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Matsumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Cullen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. Just briefly. There's obviously been a lot of problems with the rollout of this as there was with the national system. It's unfortunate, but I think it's important to keep our eyes on the prize, and the prize in this case is that Hawaii can, with the extension of Medicaid and the exchange, when the exchange works fully, like it will eventually. We could get very, very close to universal health care coverage in Hawaii, and that is a prize that is worth going through a lot of hassle for, fighting for, because it's within our grasp. Mahalo."

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, right now with reservations. Something to read real quick here. Mr. Speaker, for those who don't have insurance, but with the $200 million that we threw at this and nothing's come of it, Mr. Speaker, except a whole bunch of headaches. We could've bought insurance for everybody in the State of Hawaii that didn't have insurance. And just in the paper today, Mr. Speaker, it says, 'HMSA pursues 12.8% rate hike for small businesses.' The Affordable Care Act is responsible for most of the increase that small businesses will face. That's all I have to say Mr. Speaker." [Note: Representative Fale later changes his vote to a no vote.]

Representative Rhoads rose to respond, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support still. I think what the previous speaker described is what liberals call a single-payer system. Thank you."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2470, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO THE HAWAII HEALTH CONNECTOR," passed Third Reading by a vote of 45 ayes to 6 noes, with Representatives Fale, Fukumoto, McDermott, Thielen, Tokioka and Ward voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1649-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2820, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2820, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in support. I think people need to understand that the effective date on this draft is July 1, 2112. So there's a ways off before it becomes effective. I think more importantly, Mr. Speaker, is tomorrow, I believe the Committees on Health and Consumer Protection & Commerce will be having an informational briefing, I think at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. I think everyone should attend that briefing. As this bill moves forward, this is probably going to be one of the more important decisions that we make this session. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2820, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO INSURANCE," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes to 1 no, with Representative McDermott voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1650-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2348, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2348, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HEALTH," passed Third Reading by a vote of 51 ayes.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1651-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2495, SD 3, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2495, SD 3, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Har rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2495, SD 3, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO ELECTRONIC SMOKING DEVICES," passed Third Reading by a vote of 48 ayes to 3 noes, with Representatives Fale, McDermott and Wooley voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1652-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2496, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 2496, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Rhoads rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations, because the dollar amounts or the percentage amounts are blank. If it turns out that we're raising taxes on tobacco products, I'll be in support. If it turns out we're lowering taxes on tobacco products, I will be in opposition. Thank you."

Representative Tsuji rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Tokioka rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Thielen rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Rhoads be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Takayama rose to disclose a potential conflict of interest, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, may I have a ruling on a possible conflict? My wife is helping represent the UH Cancer Center," and the Chair ruled, "no conflict."

Representative Jordan rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"With reservations, Mr. Speaker. Thank you. True that this might be an increase on tobacco. I don't personally smoke, never took it up as a child. My father is a smoker. But at what point in time do we continue to increase a sin tax on one segment of the populace? And this measure, Mr. Speaker, will be putting those dollars into a tobacco trust fund for a program in the University of Hawaii. So, at what point in time do we start taxing a populace to support a great program at the University? But we should all be cognizant as we develop these beautiful projects at the University of Hawaii, if they're sustainable or not, Mr. Speaker. Thank you."

Representative Evans rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Jordan be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I rise in support with reservations. I'd like the words of the Chair of Judiciary to be entered into the Journal as my own. I also need to remind Members that we collect about $330 million a year in tobacco taxes, and we spend about $30 million, I believe, in prevention or cessation programs. Thank you."

Representative Awana rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Jordan be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

Representative Matsumoto rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Hanohano rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Fale rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, in opposition. Kind of on the opposite end of what the Judiciary Chair said, if this decreases taxes, Mr. Speaker, I'm for it, if it increases taxes, Mr. Speaker, then I'm against it. And the main reason is that this measure has the potential of putting taxes on loose and roll-your-own tobacco products, Mr. Speaker, and this is something that we covered last year. As I've seen those who roll your own cigarettes, and they are the poorest in our community, Mr. Speaker. To squeeze more money out of their pockets, the most vulnerable and least fortunate financially in our community, I can't support taking any more money from them. For those reasons, I'm opposed."

Representative McKelvey rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Thank you very much, Mr. Speaker. In support with some slight reservations. More for the record and as I sit back and listen to the comments of the bill, what gets me is the funding mechanism seems to be creating almost a vicious cycle. To wit, you have a tax on tobacco products, which funds the cancer school, but then the tax is supposed to make the product more expensive, so people don't smoke or use tobacco products, which then reduces the funding to the cancer school. And around and around and around we go. Where we stop, nobody knows, Mr. Speaker.

"I think if the cancer school is a compelling state interest, and I do believe it is, then we need to General Fund the cancer school, Mr. Speaker, so that we don't see, and the spreadsheet clearly shows that the declining revenue of this tax will have issues with their debt service as well as with the cancer center itself in the future. Thanks."

Representative Har rose in support of the measure with reservations and asked that the remarks of Representative Rhoads be entered into the Journal as her own, and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2496, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO TOBACCO PRODUCTS," passed Third Reading by a vote of 49 ayes to 2 noes, with Representatives Fale and McDermott voting no.

At 2:14 o'clock p.m., the Chair noted that the following bills passed Third Reading:

S.B. No. 1233, HD 1
S.B. No. 2470, SD 1, HD 1
S.B. No. 2820, SD 2, HD 2
S.B. No. 2348, SD 2, HD 1
S.B. No. 2495, SD 3, HD 1
S.B. No. 2496, SD 2, HD 1

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1653-14) recommending that S.B. No. 2855, SD 1, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

On motion by Representative Saiki, seconded by Representative Cabanilla and carried, the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 2855, SD 1, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT MAKING AN EMERGENCY APPROPRIATION TO THE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH FOR THE DEVELOPMENTAL DISABILITIES DIVISION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 50 ayes to 1 no, with Representative Hanohano voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1654-14) recommending that S.B. No. 3064, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 3064, SD 2, HD 1 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Jordan rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Woodson rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Lowen rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ichiyama rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for her, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Ing rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Onishi rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, I'd like to register a no vote. Mr. Speaker, in regards to this bill, when I asked in our hearing, the last hearing that we had, to Hawaii Health Systems in regards to the need for this bill or the ability to go into an agreement and private-public partnership, they said that they didn't have any restriction in terms of doing this already. I really don't see the purpose of this, or even them moving into authorization to create another bargaining unit without discussions fully with the union. So, I'm opposed to this bill. Thank you."

Representative Tsuji rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Takumi rose and asked that the Clerk record an aye vote with reservations for him, and the Chair "so ordered."

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 3064, SD 2, HD 1, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO HAWAII HEALTH SYSTEMS CORPORATION," passed Third Reading by a vote of 36 ayes to 15 noes, with Representatives Aquino, Awana, Choy, Cullen, Fale, Fukumoto, Hanohano, Johanson, Matsumoto, Morikawa, Ohno, Onishi, Oshiro, Takai and Yamane voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1655-14) recommending that S.B. No. 1007, SD 2, HD 1, as amended in HD 2, pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 1007, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Har rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. I rise in opposition. Mr. Speaker, I think it's important to note on the committee report it says, 'The purpose of this measure is to increase liability protections for the state and counties by extending the conclusive presumption for legally adequate warning to include dangerous non-natural conditions on unimproved lands.'

"Also important to note is that all of the testimony, including testimony from the Hawaii Paragliding Association, Hawaii Trail and Mountain Club, Hawaii Bicycling League, Mountain Bike Hawaii LLC, Hawaii Trail and Mountain Club, Oahu Mountain Bike Ohana, 808 Caveman, Access Fund, Climb Aloha, Soultrex, Inc., Oahu Weekend Hikers, and numerous individuals testified in support of this measure. The Department of Land and Natural Resources and the Department of the Attorney General provided comments. There was no testimony in opposition.

"Mr. Speaker, may I request permission to enter into the Journal an email that we received from a Ms. Kendall Raina Whiting? And I believe she did come and testify before the House Judiciary Committee.

"My opposition stems from the fact that the HD 2, the version that came out of House Finance, is drastically different from the HD 1. And I'm going to read a portion of the email that was sent to all of the Members in this Body.

"It says, 'Dear Representatives, The previous draft of this bill, the HD 1, was the culmination of the concerted efforts of Hawaii's rock climbers, hikers, mountain bikers, and paragliders in conjunction with the House Judiciary Committee and the Senate Judiciary and Labor Committees over the past year and a half to resolve issues surrounding landowner liability in Hawaii.' The Finance committee inexplicably deleted the germane portions of the bill that would protect the state from liability, despite all the testimony being in support and no testimony in opposition, and essentially undid all the hard work put in by the aforementioned groups.

"SB 1007, HD 1, revises the original Act 82, which a portion of this bill intends to remove the sunset date, and it included the following language, 'A duty to warn of non-natural hazards in the case of unimproved land when the state has knowledge of said hazard. The duty follows the same procedure as that for natural hazards on improved public land.'

"The amendments were important to Act 82, because first and foremost the Chair of Judiciary was instrumental in constructing this language. This is a bill that came out of committee last year, Mr. Speaker. What had happened was we were at an impasse, and the House Judiciary Committee, along with all of the stakeholders, worked on this compromised language and quite frankly much of this stems from the closure of Mokuleia. As many of you know, Mokuleia was closed off because of the dangerous conditions of the rock falls.

"So what happened was the rock climbers essentially said, 'state, we don't want you to be liable. We understand that what we do is inherently dangerous as rock climbers and therefore we don't want there to be liability for the state.' And that's why they requested the amendments. And so with the hard work of the Judiciary Committee, he put that language in there and the Department of Land and Natural Resources and the Department of the Attorney General approved of that language.

"So I think what's more important here is, there are lawsuits that have been filed against the state without the Act 82 language in the bill. And so what we're talking about is protecting taxpayers from lawsuits. Any time the state is liable, who's paying those judgments? It's our taxpayers. And for example, Mr. Speaker, back in 2006 there were two individuals who were hikers. They did lose their lives on Kauai, and as a result the state ended up paying $15.4 million on this settlement, which is why the Department of the Attorney General wanted this additional language if we were to reopen Mokuleia and protect, not only the state, but give access to the public.

"So really, with the amendments in this bill, it's a bit confusing. These are real substantive changes, and really the HD 1 represented a balance. It protected the state from additional liability while providing access to those outdoor enthusiasts who want to have every right to utilize our state parks and trails. So for those reasons, Mr. Speaker, I stand in opposition, and it's my sincere hope this bill will go to the original HD 1 based on much of the work that was put in from our House Judiciary Chair. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Dear Representatives,

As one of your constituents, I'm reaching out to seek your support today during the third reading of SB 1007 HD2. The previous draft of this bill (HD1) was the culmination of the concerted efforts of Hawaii's rock climbers, hikers, mountain bikers, and paragliders in conjunction with the House Judiciary committee and the Senate Judiciary and Labor committee over the past year and a half to resolve issues surrounding landowner liability in Hawaii.

The Finance committee inexplicably gutted the bill and undid all the hard work put in by the aforementioned groups. But, as I'm sure you know, according to House Rule 36.2, the bill can still be amended at the third reading.

A bill on its third or final reading may be read by its title only and the Speaker shall then ask the House, "Shall this bill pass its third reading?" or "Shall this bill pass its final reading?" as the case may be. Such bill may be amended on its third reading. For the final passage of any bill, the Ayes and Noes shall be called or a vote shall be taken pursuant to Rule 51.3 and such passage shall require the affirmative vote of a majority of all members to which the House is entitled. The vote upon third reading shall be upon a motion that the bill pass third reading, rather than upon adoption of a committee report, so that amendments to the bill may be offered at third reading and voted upon.

We urge you to propose that the bill be passed out as SB 1007 HD1 (rather than HD2) for the following reasons.

SB 1007 HD 1 revises the original Act 82 language to include the following:

1. A duty to warn of non-natural hazards in the case of unimproved land when the State has knowledge of said hazard.
2. This duty follows the same procedure as that for natural hazards on improved public land.

These amendments to the original Act 82 are important because:

1. The House Judiciary Committee, with the help of Chair Rhoads, was instrumental in constructing the language of the amendments and the House Judiciary Committee passed the bill out unanimously.
2. The House Judiciary Committee attached a memo to the Finance Committee describing the intent of the amendments and the strong public and agency support for the amendments urging them to pass the bill as amended.
3. The user communities (including over 2,000 individuals both from Hawaii and potential visitors to islands) support the measure because it assures access to unimproved lands for recreational use.
4. These amendments better reflect the recreational use of Hawaii's public lands where individuals and groups hike, bike, paraglide, climb, and hunt on unimproved lands.
5. In each of these cases, user groups may have created or inserted ropes, bolts, mountain bike jumps, or launch ramps which can be construed as "non-natural" hazards. Thus, the State's signage system needs to accommodate these usages.
6. The bill as amended does not decrease the State's duty but rather helps clarify and balance the State's duty to warn with the individual's responsibility of risk assumption.

Sadly, for reasons that were not explained or justified in the committee report, the Finance committee chose to report out a different version (HD2) of the bill that made substantive changes that appear to be unrelated to financial considerations.

As representatives of many of the recreational groups that access the mountains, we respectfully request that SB 1007 HD 1 be the version passed at the third reading today; this version was carefully vetted by the Attorney General's office and provides a better protective balance for all involved.

Sincerely,
Kendall Raina Whiting

Honolulu, Hawaii"

Representative Ward rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with reservations. I thank the good Representative from Kapolei for bringing that to our attention, and that it be underscored, highlighted and otherwise brought to the conference committee meeting, because that's a very serious issue. Nobody wants to have a loophole or a slippage of what otherwise has been, a veil that has been pierced many times by the state, and the cost of that is tremendous. If we've just opened up another niche in our armor and another possible suit, I think we better fix it before the end of this session. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Luke rose to speak in support of the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, thank you very much. In support. I do agree with a lot of the parts that the Vice Chair of Judiciary, the Representative from Kapolei has stated. The concern that I have is since Act 82 was passed, the state continued to be sued by various members. And it is with misrepresentation that to add non-natural, man-made condition to Act 82 is going to somehow prevent lawsuit, so with discussion with both the DLNR and Attorney General's Office, what we are trying to do is provide complete immunity to the state by doing a permit system and a waiver. So any user of state land, if they're going to do any hazardous activity on state land, they need to provide and they need to waive any liability.

"So whether it's at Sacred Falls or Mokuleia, if you're going to use any state lands, you need to provide full liability, full immunity to the state by waiving your rights, and at the same time, if you are going to sue or if somebody you bring on to the land is going to sue the state, that you will defend the state and indemnify the state. Thank you very much."

Representative Har rose to respond, stating:

"Thank you, Mr. Speaker. Second time. I want to thank the Finance Chair for that explanation. And I don't disagree with her, but I think to request a waiver, to request that tourists and residents alike fill out a waiver form, essentially stating if they were to be injured, they would indemnify the state from liability, I think is somewhat impractical.

"But I do appreciate her comments, and unfortunately the comments she made were not put in the committee report. Had they been put in the committee report, I think that would have helped the matter along. But I still remain in opposition, but I know this is still a work in progress and I look forward to the bill going back to the original HD 1. Thank you, Mr. Speaker."

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, thank you very much. I'll be voting in opposition. I think the current draft that the bill is, is not the one I would've supported. I think the previous draft by the Judiciary Committee was the more appropriate vehicle to address what's going on right now. I live in Wahiawa, I frequent the North Shore area. And the Mokuleia rock crag is a very, very active, there's a lot of activity going on out there, especially over the last several years.

"To access the site where people are doing these rock climbing, sometimes free-style climbing, one has to access the Na Ala Hele trails and some of the trail systems. I don't know if this current draft will create problems for people getting onto the trail, which are properly noted and signage is properly placed for warning of any kind of dangers. Once they go to that place, at the end of the trail, when you get to the Mokuleia crag, where you start the rock climbing activities, whether or not that is going to open the state up for further liability because the state has enabled visitors and hikers to access that particular area.

"The second issue I think the speaker, Minority Leader Emeritus, should understand is that this current draft of the bill may not go to conference. The effective date on this is, this actually will take effect on June 29, 2014. So I think it's a clean effective date. Thank you, Mr. Speaker. "

Representative Fale rose to speak in support of the measure with reservations, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, with very strong reservations and may I have the words of the Representative from Kapolei, from the original portion adopted as my own, as well as the words of the Representative from Wahiawa," and the Chair "so ordered." (By reference only.)

The motion was put to vote by the Chair and carried, and the report of the Committee was adopted and S.B. No. 1007, SD 2, HD 2, entitled: "A BILL FOR AN ACT RELATING TO PUBLIC LAND LIABILITY," passed Third Reading by a vote of 46 ayes to 5 noes, with Representatives Hanohano, Har, Ito, Oshiro and Tsuji voting no.

Representative Luke, for the Committee on Finance, presented a report (Stand. Com. Rep. No. 1656-14) recommending that S.B. No. 3122, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading.

Representative Saiki moved that the report of the Committee be adopted, and that S.B. No. 3122, SD 2, HD 2 pass Third Reading, seconded by Representative Cabanilla.

Representative Oshiro rose to speak in opposition to the measure, stating:

"Mr. Speaker, Standing Committee Report 1656, Senate Bill 3122, Senate Draft 2, House Draft 2. This is Relating to Hawaii Community Development Authority. Mr. Speaker, I'm standing in opposition to this measure. Let me explain to you why. I think the previous opportunity to debate and discuss this important issue in the House draft, I voted with reservations. And it was brought upon me, essentially because of the eloquent remarks of the Chair of the Ocean, Marine Resources, & Hawaiian Affairs Committee.

"But now that we are past the midway point of the session, going into the last quarter, or leaving the third quarter of the session, this is a Senate bill going back to the originating Body. And I think I've been privileged to have the opportunity to speak to various parties on both sides of this contentious and somewhat divisive and emotionally charged bill before us. But I think at this point in time, I'll be voting no, and let me explain to you why.

"See back in 2006, Mr. Speaker, along with you and 14 others of our colleagues, there were 16 of us, back in 2006. We made a policy decision back then to override the Hawaii Community Development Authority and its process of awarding a parcel of land to be used by Alexander & Baldwin, an old kama'aina company, to develop residential towers in Kakaako Makai.

"It wasn't a very pleasant experience, because at that time, like this time, the current Governor was somewhat ambivalent of the whole discussion. In fact, I remember the Governor back then, Governor Lingle, was neither committed to one way or the other of the discussion, but basically said she would remain non-committal and stay on the sidelines and not weigh in on this decision. Although, the HCDA, under her directorship had issued the RFP and had selected Alexander & Baldwin.

"So back then we made a decision Mr. Speaker. I think the policy call was that going forward in the area of Kakaako, we would draw the line on Ala Moana Boulevard that those lands makai or ocean side of Ala Moana forever in perpetuity would be developed without any residential units. And the idea there, and the fear that we had there, was once you allowed a single parcel to be developed for residential use, untold numbers of other residential developments would come into play. We're not only dealing with private landowners, but also the State of Hawaii, through HCDA, they had landholdings there.

"So we made that choice and we overturned the decision of the HCDA to select Alexander & Baldwin. In 2012, many of us were here. We entered into a historic settlement, long time in coming, well deserved. Something we should've done years ago, to settle the outstanding claims of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs going back to 1978, Mr. Speaker. 1978. Over various administrations, I think four or five administrations, various bills for consideration, various boards of trustees of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, various iterations of land and/or money, money and/or land. We finally settled it, in simple terms for $200 million in land, no cash. Going forward they would receive $15.1 million for the proceeds and incomes of those city lands."

Representative Say rose to yield his time, and the Chair "so ordered."

Representative Oshiro continued, stating:

"In 2012 the discussion came up, came before my committee, as Chair of Finance. Whether that time concurrent with the discussion to remove the restrictions upon the lands makai of Ala Moana to allow for residential, whether or not that should be brought to bear upon our decision to settle, for once and for all, the outstanding claims to the Office of Hawaiian Affairs.

"I remember, Mr. Speaker, sitting down with various agents of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, and asking them repeatedly, honestly, sincerely, whether they were really to accept the settlement, terms and conditions set forth in the bill before us, to settle, here and now, those outstanding claims. And the reason I did that, Mr. Speaker, is because after waiting over 30 years, three decades, I wanted to make sure that we all understood what we are buying.

"At that point in time, Mr. Speaker, I remember being told several times that, 'No, Representative Oshiro, we appreciate your concern very much, but we prefer that we move forward with this bill. With the current terms and conditions of the bill, we acknowledge the restrictions on the lands makai of Ala Moana Boulevard, we understand that. But please, please, move the bill along, have it pass from the House with an effective date upon approval, so that we can avoid conference.'

"And that's what I did, Mr. Speaker. So today when we're facing this issue to go back in time two years, to review again what was transferred and what was settled, I'm a little concerned on whether or not I did not do my due diligence. If I didn't maintain my fiduciary responsibility to the people of Hawaii, that maybe I should've changed the effective date, so we would have more time to discuss it or maybe put it aside.

"See, Mr. Speaker, two years is not a very long time, against 30 years of waiting for a settlement. And I'm wondering right now whether or not by moving this bill forward we would actually do justice to both proponents and opponents.

"For the proponents of this bill, Mr. Speaker, there is no guarantee that making this change will achieve the objectives of allowing them to derive the income that they so seek to serve the beneficiaries. For those in opposition, for those in opposition, the numbers are overwhelming at this point in time to have this bill pass this Chamber.

"Before I sit down, I think there's two items that we should consider, all of us. One is the Kakaako Makai Conceptual Master Plan, Final Report, April 2011. I would encourage every single Member of the Legislature to review this document. It's at the HCDA website. This might be a good starting point, Mr. Speaker, for compromise.

"Another document, go to the proponent's website, the Office of Hawaiian Affairs, and look at this report that's filed, Report on Public Land Trust Income and Proceeds Due OHA. By reading these documents, by studying these publications, one will appreciate the issues at stake, the passions at stake, and how we might find another way to resolve this important issue. I ask for permission, Mr. Speaker, to submit further written comments. Thank you very much."

Representative Oshiro's written remarks are as follows:

"Mr. Speaker, I respectfully rise in opposition to Senate Bill No. 3122, House Draft 2. But, in doing so, let it be perfectly clear and understood, that my vote on this bill is not a reflection of my deep personal and professional regard and affection for the Chairperson of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs. She is a woman of great integrity, conviction, and wisdom. The same regard is also true for other Trustees of whom I have the same respect and admiration. Especially, the Past Chairperson, who I consider a dear personal friend and part of my extended family. The Chairperson and Trustees are merely doing what duty calls them to do and that is to pursue and advance the interest of their beneficiaries. In this regard, we find no disagreement.

"Furthermore, my previous and current support for the mission and purpose of the Office of Hawaiian Affairs is self-evident and without question. In 2012, I was a key member of the Hawaii State Legislature that endorsed and approved the three decades long dispute and $200 million settlement that conveyed certain parcels of Kakaako Makai lands to the Office of Hawaiian Affairs. In lay terms, 'I was at the table' to discuss the bill and recommend approval of the same with no objections or limitations.

"As such, the following remarks are solely limited to and pertains to only the debate and discussion of the policy choices found within Senate Bill No. 3122, Senate Draft 2, House Draft 2. It is here, that I regretfully part company with dear friends. For the aforementioned reasons, I respectfully although regretfully will be casting a vote in opposition of Senate Bill No. 3122, Senate Draft 2, House Draft 2, HSCR No. 1656-14.

"As I stated previously in opposition to Senate Bill No. 3122, House Draft 2, there can be another avenue for us and OHA to consider. It is found in the Kakaako Makai Conceptual Master Plan Final Report.

"If you haven't already, I urge every Member of this Body to go to HCDA's website and download the Kakaako Makai Conceptual Master Plan Final Report, dated April 2011. It represents the culmination of four years of direct public input through project team meetings, workshops, open houses, and focused discussions to depict a general framework of access and circulation, land uses with respective intensities, open space networks, and areas designed for future improvements. This plan represents the desires and recommendations of all of the interested stakeholders of Kakaako, including Kamehameha Schools and the Office of Hawaiian Affairs.

"The conceptual plan essentially contains three major approaches to developing Kakaako Makai and focuses on the HCDA controlled lands:

(1) Designating land uses on currently unimproved state lands;
(2) Proposing re-development of selected existing state lands with new land uses; and
(3) Identifying and recommending improvements to existing park and public facilities in need of enhancement or expansion.

"There is a passage in the introduction that I would like to read, Mr. Speaker. I think it represents what we all want done for the area:

> "As the conceptual master plan estimates public facility development costs at approximately $50 million, the current economic downturn, prohibition on residential activities in the area and a resistance to for-profit land uses, create a serious challenge to financing public facility improvements in the Makai Area. Accordingly, we must work to identify and secure funding for the proposed public facilities and improvements whether through grants, bond measures, private benefactors or through public/private development efforts. Despite the limitations for financing these public improvements, it is important that the Legislature, the HCDA, stakeholders, and the community at large continue to make the realization of this conceptual master plan a priority and not another plan that languishes on book shelves and coffee tables. As such, while construction of public facility improvements identified in the conceptual master plan for the Makai Area may occur in phases and appear protracted, the vision and objectives remain sound and must not be abandoned."

"Mr. Speaker, the passage of this bill does much to undermine the larger vision for Kakaako's future. It undermines all the work done by HCDA – at our direction and at great cost – to collaborate with all of the stakeholders and find ways of advancing the policies established by this Body. That policy – that Kakaako Makai be an inviting place for Hawaii residents, comfortable and engaging, and a people-oriented place – reaffirms our commitment to ensuring that public lands be used for public purposes. I adopt the HCDA Staff Report dated May 18, 2011, as described below:

Shall the Authority Adopt the Kakaako Makai Conceptual Master Plan Final Report as the Guiding Document for Reviewing and Approving any Future Projects in State-Owned Lands in Kakaako Makai?

Staff Report
May 18, 2011

Background: In November of 2006, pursuant to House Concurrent Resolution No. 30, the Hawaii Community Development Authority ("HCDA") embarked on a community planning process for Kakaako Makai with the goal of engaging the public in a process that analyzed various development alternatives and identified a blueprint for development of the Kakaako Waterfront that enjoyed widespread community support and benefitted not only Kakaako stakeholders, but all the people of Hawaii.

Since then, the HCDA has developed a broad constituency and audience. The planning process has lasted more than four years and involved:

- 50+ one-on-one interviews and small group meetings in 2006 and 2007 involving 100+ individuals for the formation of the Kakaako Makai Community Planning Advisory Council ("CPAC");
- 50+ CPAC meetings over a 3-year period attended by over 300 people;
- 50+ one-on-one interviews and small group meetings between 2009 and 2010 with 100+ stakeholders;
- A 3-day Community Workshop in January/February 2010 which was attended by 70 people/day;
- Eleven (11) "Focused Group" meetings with distinct stakeholder groups attended by 103 individuals;
- A 2nd Community Workshop convened in June 2010 and attended by 150+ people;
- A Community Open House from September 27 to October 2, 2010 attended by 90+ people;
- 10 + project team meetings attended by CPAC, other stakeholders, the HCDA and the HCDA consultants;
- A 3rd Community Workshop convened in October 2010 and attended by 90+ people; and
- The HCDA public participation web portal set up specifically to gather public input on the planning process (accessed on average of 156 times a month starting in March 2010).

After a result of this comprehensive public planning process, a conceptual master plan for Kakaako Makai that reflects land uses and activities supported by a broad spectrum of the community was prepared and presented.

Discussion: The conceptual master plan for Kakaako Makai is the product of a long and involved community participatory process. The nine components of the conceptual master plan are rooted in the vision and guiding principles developed by the CPAC and statutory requirements for development in Kakaako Makai and developed through stakeholder focused group meetings, project team meetings including the CPAC, and public comments from several community meetings. These nine components are:

- Park Expansion/Enhancement;
- Waterfront Access including Parking and Circulation;
- Kewalo Basin Harbor and Support facilities;
- Cultural Public Market Place;
- Arts and Cultural programming;
- Marine Science and Education;
- Life Science and Education;
- Civic Use; and
- Historic Preservation.

Each of these components has been presented, discussed, and vetted at stakeholder meetings, project team meetings, and community workshops. The conceptual master plan represents these nine components in a park like setting with expanded green space and public promenade along the shoreline from Kewalo Basin Park to Ewa boundary of Kakaako Waterfront Park and continuing Mauka to Ala Moana Boulevard along Keawe Street. The conceptual master plan also represents the density, height and approximate locations of these components without locking in the exact footprint of each component. The conceptual master plan is meant to remain flexible in locating and determining the exact footprint of each component as detailed plans are developed for each individual project. The conceptual master plan also provides an order of magnitude cost estimates for each component.

The conceptual master plan includes expanded park, shoreline promenade, museums, performing venues, community center, farmer's market, community garden, and limited commercial use. It is expected that most of the public facilities will have to be developed through legislative funding or private donations. A section in the conceptual master plan report discusses various funding options that may be available. Some elements in the conceptual master plan such as the Museum of Hawaiian Music and Dance already have strong legislative and community support and could attract funding more readily for development. The HCDA may also decide to seek legislative funding for public facility projects such as the shoreline promenade and park expansion. The CPAC in particular is exploring formation of a private non-profit conservancy that can raise funds for development, operation, and maintenance of public facility projects in Kakaako Makai.

The conceptual master plan report also includes a discussion on a potential location for a presidential library in Kakaako Makai. The possibility of a presidential library in the area was raised during the community workshop held in January/February 2010. Towards the end of the planning process, the HCDA received a request from the University of Hawaii at Manoa to consider inclusion of a presidential library in the conceptual master plan. Comments supporting a presidential library in the area have also been received from several individuals, organizations, and elected officials. The CPAC has expressed strong opposition to a presidential library in the area.

The conceptual master plan will become the guiding document for any future development in State-owned lands in Kakaako Makai. Privately owned lands in Kakaako Makai are excluded from the conceptual master plan.

Recommendation: Staff recommends that the Authority adopt the Kakaako Makai Conceptual Master Plan Report as the guiding document for reviewing and approving any future projects in State-owned lands in Kakaako Makai.

"For these reasons, I regretfully must oppose this bill. For the record, I would also like included with my remarks a piece that I submitted to the Honolulu Star-Advertiser on this measure:

OHA understood restrictions on development in Kakaako Makai

By Marcus Oshiro

POSTED: 01:30 a.m. HST, Apr 20, 2014

The Hatfields and the McCoys. Mention either of these families and thoughts of unpardonable sins, generational grievances, and collateral damage come to mind. But despite all that had happened between these two families, at some point, peace was finally restored.

Kakaako Makai was intended to manifest the peace between the state of Hawaii and Native Hawaiians. The state and the Office of Hawaiian Affairs (OHA) agreed to settle their differences over millions of dollars in ceded land revenues without an admission of fault so that both could focus on good relations going forward. As settlement in 2012, the state agreed to convey, in lieu of cash, lands in Kakaako Makai to OHA that were worth approximately $200 million. At the time, there was already a restriction in place dating back to 2006 prohibiting residential development there.

When OHA agreed to the settlement, it understood that commercial use would be the extent of any future development of the Kakaako Makai lands. It wholeheartedly accepted those lands with that understanding, and everyone was happy because peace was restored.

Yet in just two years, OHA changed its mind and now wants to build residential units in Kakaako Makai. It says the only way these lands will generate sufficient revenue to fulfill OHA's fiduciary duty to its beneficiaries will be if they are allowed the "highest and best" use. But if that is the case now, wasn't that the case two years ago? If that was so, why did OHA agree to the settlement?

When OHA officials accepted those lands, they knew that the law prohibited residential development makai of Ala Moana Boulevard.

They knew that Alexander & Baldwin had proposed build residential condominiums on those same parcels in 2006 but were stopped by the Legislature to protect public access to the ocean and preserve recreational uses of the area.
