DOUG CHIN, LIEUTENANT GOVERNOR,
TO THE
HOUSE COMMITTEE ON CONSUMER PROTECTION AND COMMERCE

SENATE BILL NO. SB 270, S.D. 1
Relating to the Minors

Aloha Chair Takumi and Vice Chair Ichiyama,

I strongly support Senate Bill 270, Senate Draft 1. Hawaiʻi can join a growing coalition of states and municipalities – including California, Nevada, Oregon, New Mexico, Rhode Island, and Vermont – and ban licensed mental health professionals from subjecting individuals to "conversion therapy" with this bill's passage.

Hawaiʻi is a thriving melting pot built on a foundation of inclusiveness and respect. Every person is valuable and special. Our strength comes from our diverse citizens coming together as one. Your Committee has the opportunity to continue the Legislature's work to break down barriers to equal rights for the LGBTQ community. Protecting our LGBTQ youth from damaging and discredited efforts to change their sexual orientation or gender identity is a critical next step. A vote for this measure is a vote for a future where every person is empowered to live and love as they wish. No one in Hawaiʻi should be made to feel there is something "wrong" with them based on who they love or how they identify.

I note the Washington State Legislature recently passed Senate Bill 5722 on March 3, 2018, a bill that will also ban licensed therapists from practicing conversion therapy on minors. I would encourage the committee to review the Washington legislation and consider following its approach and use the term "conversion therapy" in lieu of the term "sexual orientation change efforts" so that the law properly encompasses gender identity and gender expression in addition to sexual orientation. Therapy seeking to change sexual orientation is not inclusive of an effort to change gender identity or expression in medical or psychological circles. The Washington legislation recognized this. We should do the same.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony in support of Senate Bill 270, S.D. 1. I ask the Committee to favorably consider this measure to protect our keiki.

TWENTY-NINTH LEGISLATURE
Regular Session of 2018

TESTIMONY ON SENATE BILL NO. 270, S.D. 1, RELATING TO MINORS.

TO THE HONORABLE ROY M. TAKUMI, CHAIR, AND MEMBERS OF THE COMMITTEE:

My name is May Ferrer, and I am the Executive Officer of the Board of Psychology ("Board"). Thank you for the opportunity to testify S.B. 270, S.D. 1, Relating to Minors.

This measure prohibits persons licensed to provide professional counseling from engaging in, attempting to engage in, or advertising sexual orientation change efforts on persons under 18 years of age.

While the Board has not had an opportunity to discuss S.B. 270, S.D. 1, the Board expressed its support of S.B. 270 and other similar measures at its meeting on February 17, 2017, and made clear its commitment to the American Psychological Association ("APA") Ethical Principles of Psychologists and Code of Conduct ("Ethics Code").

A general principle in the Ethics Code states that, "Psychologists respect the dignity and worth of all people, and the rights of individuals to privacy, confidentiality, and self-determination. Psychologists are aware that special safeguards may be necessary to protect the rights and welfare of persons or communities whose vulnerabilities impair autonomous decision making. Psychologists are aware of and respect cultural, individual, and role differences, including those based on age, gender, gender identity, race, ethnicity, culture, national origin, religion, sexual orientation, disability, language, and socioeconomic status, and consider these factors when working with members of such groups. Psychologists try to eliminate the effect on their work of biases based on those factors, and they do not knowingly participate in or condone activities of others based upon such prejudices."

The Board will discuss this bill at its next meeting on Friday, March 23, 2018.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide comments on S.B. 270, S.D. 1.

Testimony in SUPPORT of SB270 SD1
RELATING TO MINORS

REPRESENTATIVE ROY M. TAKUMI, CHAIR
HOUSE COMMITTEE ON CONSUMER PROTECTION & COMMERCE

Hearing Date: Wednesday, March 14, 2018 Room Number: 329

Fiscal Implications: None

Department Testimony: The Department of Health, Child and Adolescent Mental Health Division (CAMHD) supports SB270 SD1 to protect the physical and psychological well-being of minors against exposure to harm caused by "Conversion Therapy," including efforts to change an individuals' sexual orientation or gender identity. According to the American Psychological Association (APA), there is insufficient research evidence to demonstrate the efficacy of these change efforts. There is also no evidence that providing these interventions to children or adolescents has an impact on adult sexual orientation or adult gender identity.

A systematic review by the APA found that these Conversion therapies tend to do harm to the participants. Not only do children and adolescents get misinformation, they also are at risk of increased self-stigma and psychological distress. Children and adolescents who participate in these types of therapies are given inaccurate scientific information regarding sexual orientation and gender identity. These types of therapies also often use fear based techniques and have the potential to increase stigma. Participants also often report an increase in distress and depression especially when such "therapies" do not work. As such, these types of coercive therapies are contrary to current clinical and professional standards. These types of therapies violate current clinical practice by not protecting the client's autonomy and by ignoring scientific information on sexual orientation and gender identity.

In addition, the CAMHD supports the recommendation that this bill should define "conversion therapy" as including "sexual orientation change efforts" and "gender identity change efforts." This would make it clear that these are two distinct kinds of conversion efforts that are prohibited by this bill. The CAMHD supports the idea that this bill needs to present gender identity change efforts correctly to equally highlight the importance of protecting youth from undue adult pressure related to their gender identity as well as to their sexual orientations.

Although some opponents of this bill have tried to suggest that there is disagreement among researchers about the evidence in this area, they have referenced publications by anti-gay organizations only. All the major organizations of professionals involved in treating children have issued statements opposing Sexual Orientation Change Efforts (SOCE), including the American Psychological Association, the American Medical Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American Psychiatric Association, and the National Association of Social Workers.

The bill does not hinder mental health providers, clergy or parents from counseling youth or offering a range of other, more standard clinical psychological services to lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) children and adolescents. The bill regulates the services being provided to LGBT children and adolescents to provide them protections against being exposed to harm through SOCE that might be chosen for them by adults. The bill is in line with APA practice standards and the Department of Health standard of providing evidence based services.

Offered Amendments: We recommend the following changes in language. This bill should define "conversion therapy" as including "sexual orientation change efforts" and "gender identity change efforts."

Thank you for the opportunity to testify.

TESTIMONY OF
THE DEPARTMENT OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL
TWENTY-NINTH LEGISLATURE, 2018

ON THE FOLLOWING MEASURE:
S.B. NO. 270, S.D. 1, RELATING TO MINORS.

BEFORE THE:
HOUSE COMMITTEE ON CONSUMER PROTECTION AND COMMERCE

DATE: Wednesday, March 14, 2018 TIME: 2:00 p.m.

LOCATION: State Capitol, Room 329

TESTIFIER(S): Russell A. Suzuki, Acting Attorney General, or Deirdre Marie-Iha, Deputy Attorney General

Chair Takumi and Members of the Committee:

The Department of the Attorney General offers comments on this bill. This bill would ban "sexual orientation change efforts" by counselors for patients under the age of eighteen. "Sexual orientation change efforts" is defined to include the practice of attempting to change a person's sexual orientation or gender identity or gender expression and is sometimes known as "conversion therapy." The bill applies only to licensed professionals, like psychiatrists, social workers, and marriage and family therapists. The bill was amended in the Senate and, in our opinion, the S.D. 1 is strongly positioned in the event of a constitutional challenge should this measure become law. The Department suggests several changes to correct some potential inconsistencies with existing Hawaii statutes and further strengthen the bill in the event of a constitutional challenge.

The Department suggests two minor drafting changes. First, the bill apparently intends to permit counseling for persons looking to transition from one gender to another. S.D. 1, page 4, lines 9-11. To fully reflect this apparent intent, we suggest the word "for" be replaced with the word "supporting" on page 4, line 10. Without this amendment, the exception might be read to permit counseling aimed at discouraging a person from transitioning from one gender to another. The change suggested here would clarify the measure to avoid this possible interpretation.

Second, to avoid potential inconsistency with existing Hawaii statutes, the phrase "or gender identity or gender expression" should be added at the end of the phrase "[d]oes not seek to change sexual orientation" at the end of paragraph (2) on page 4, line 18. This is advisable because existing Hawaii statutes distinguish between sexual orientation and gender identity and expression. These two concepts are not interchangeable. For example, our public accommodations code describes these two concepts differently and independently bans discrimination on the basis of either. See Sections 489-2 and 489-3, Hawaii Revised Statutes (definitions of gender identity or expression and sexual orientation and banning discrimination on the basis of either, as well as based on race, sex, nationality, and religion, among others). This addition would minimize the confusion that might otherwise be caused given that the present definition of "sexual orientation change efforts" as a term of art (page 4, lines 3-8) includes both sexual orientation and gender identity and expression.

The Department also advises this Committee that similar laws have attracted constitutional challenges in other states. Thus far those challenges have been unsuccessful, including in decisions regarding California's law. See Welch v. Brown, 834 F.3d 1041 (9th Cir. 2016), cert. denied, 137 S. Ct. 2093 (2017); Pickup v. Brown, 740 F.3d 1208 (9th Cir. 2014), cert. denied, 134 S. Ct. 2871 (2014). Importantly, however, California's law did not have a ban on advertising, as is included in this bill. Page 3, lines 7-8. In upholding the California law in Pickup, the Ninth Circuit relied in substantial part on the fact that counselors who were banned from providing sexual orientation change efforts therapeutically could still discuss it with their minor patients and their patients' parents. We note that states may constitutionally ban commercial speech concerning unlawful activities and for that reason there is a strong argument the advertising provision is constitutional as written. See, e.g., Pittsburgh Press Co. v. Pittsburgh Comm'n on Human Relations, 413 U.S. 376, 388 (1973). However, First Amendment law is constantly changing and the Pickup decision is controlling precedent in our circuit. For that reason, in our view it would further strengthen the bill in the event of a constitutional challenge to either (1) omit the advertising ban or (2) further define the word "advertise" (page 3, line 7) to make it clearer that the speech activities contemplated in Pickup are still permitted and that the advertisement provision bans only commercial speech promoting the activity made unlawful by this bill (i.e., the offering of sexual orientation change efforts to minors, within the scope of a professional relationship, and by one of the designated licensed professionals). If the Committee opts to retain an advertising ban in any form, we also suggest that an express severability provision be added into the bill. We are available to assist with potential amendments along these lines if desired.

Finally, the Department alerts the Committee that a case currently pending at the United States Supreme Court, National Institute of Family and Life Advocates v. Becerra, No. 16-1140 (NIFLA), may have important implications for this measure. NIFLA raises a question regarding the extent to which the government may constitutionally regulate professional speech, that is, speech that takes place in the context of a professional relationship and where the professional is subject to state regulation. NIFLA concerns compelled speech, which is not at issue here, and this difference may prove consequential. Regardless, since the bill applies only to certain licensed professionals, page 3, line 15 to page 4, line 2, it is very likely that the NIFLA ruling will inform any future discussion of the regulation of professional speech. Until that decision is issued, we will be unable to determine the true extent to which it will impact our analysis of this bill. NIFLA is scheduled to be argued on March 20, 2018, and a decision is expected by late June.

Thank you for the opportunity to testify on this measure.

Comments:

The Honolulu County Republican Party affirms that parents have the fundamental right and primary responsibility to direct the upbringing of their children and to provide nurturing, discipline, healthcare, and training in moral values.

The Supreme Court has declared, "This primary role of parents in the upbringing of their children is now established beyond debate as an enduring American tradition." Wisconsin v. Yoder, 406 U.S. 205 (1972) at 232.

SB-270 is more than a slippery slope, it is a blatant attack on parental rights.

ACPeds, AAPS, CMDA and CMA Support Minors' Right to Therapy

Legislators must NOT ban therapy for minors with unwanted same-sex attractions and/or gender dysphoria. The State must not violate minors' right to seek psychotherapy they believe may aid them, and must not restrict the right of licensed professional counselors to provide this ethical care.

So-called "conversion therapy bans" bar ethical talk therapy. Specifically, when minors present with unwanted same-sex attractions and/or gender dysphoria, therapists are blocked from exploring potential factors underlying the attractions or beliefs, including but not limited to, sexual abuse, family and peer dynamics, social media use and social contagion. Instead, therapists are required to engage solely in speech that affirms the child as lesbian, gay, bisexual or transgender. Therapists are barred from providing heterosexual-affirming psychotherapy even when the minor him or herself asks for help to identify as heterosexual. As a result, a number of youth will be legislated into a false sexual identity, and many others will unnecessarily begin the high-risk sex change process prior to puberty that renders them permanently sterile. This fact alone makes it highly unethical, if not criminal, for the law to require therapists to affirm every child with gender dysphoria as transgender.

Proposed bans not rooted in science

Therapy bans are rooted in four myths: First, that sexual orientation and gender dysphoria are fixed, inborn traits like race. Secondly, that homosexual attractions and gender dysphoria experienced by minors are enduring. Thirdly, that LGBQT behaviors carry no increased health risks as compared to heterosexual behavior, and finally, that scientific research proves that psychotherapy to explore sexual attractions and gender identity (pejoratively dubbed 'conversion' therapy) is universally harmful.

Homosexuality is not like race

Identical twins share exactly the same genetic makeup and are exposed to the same pre-natal hormones. If homosexuality were genetic like race, or determined by pre-natal hormones alone, then identical twins would have the same sexual orientation 100% of the time. Instead, at most, identical twins are both homosexual only 20% of the time. Dr. Francis Collins, former director of the Human Genome Project, summed it up best when he wrote sexual orientation "is not hardwired by DNA, and whatever genes are involved represent predispositions, not predetermination."[1] This means that at least 80% of what causes homosexuality in one identical twin is postnatal and rooted in non-shared experiences.

The Association of Gay and Lesbian Psychiatrists acknowledges that "[s]ome people believe that sexual orientation is innate and fixed; however, sexual orientation develops across a person's lifetime."[2] The psychodynamic and social learning theories of homosexuality have never been disproven. There is good evidence that parental and social influences, including childhood trauma, can contribute to same sex attractions for some. These adolescents have the right to therapy for their trauma; they do not deserve the added trauma of being legislated into a false sexual identity.

Homosexual attractions in minors are more fluid than fixed

The American Psychological Association Handbook acknowledges that adolescence is well recognized for its sexual fluidity and instability of homosexual attractions.[3] In 2007, Savin-Williams and Ream examined data from the large longitudinal AdHealth study and documented changes in attraction so great between the ages of 16 and 17 that they questioned whether the concept of sexual orientation had any meaning for adolescents with homosexual attractions. Seventy-five percent of adolescents who had some initial homosexual attraction between the ages of 17-21 changed to experience heterosexual attraction only. This is in stark contrast to the stability they found among adolescents experiencing heterosexual attractions. Among these adolescents, fully 98% retained their heterosexual-only attractions into adulthood.[4] Another study demonstrating significant change away from homosexual attractions in adolescence involved 13,840 youth. Of those initially "unsure" of their sexual orientation, 66% became exclusively heterosexual.[5] It follows logically that if such high rates of change in homosexual attraction occur adventitiously among youth, then many adolescents who desire and receive therapeutic assistance should succeed.

Gender Dysphoria is not like race.

As with homosexual attraction, twin studies of transsexual adults prove definitively that prenatal genetic and hormonal influence is minimal. The largest twin study of transsexual adults found that only 20% of identical twins were both transgender-identified.[6] Since identical twins contain 100% of the same DNA from conception, and are exposed to the same prenatal hormones, if genes and/or prenatal hormones contributed to a significant degree to transgenderism, the concordance rates would be close to 100%. Instead, 80% of identical twin pairs were discordant. As with homosexual attractions, this means that at least 80% of what contributes to transgenderism as an adult in one co-twin consists of one or more non-shared post-natal experiences. This is consistent with the dramatic rates of resolution of gender dysphoria documented among children when they are not counseled to impersonate the opposite sex.

Gender Identity is FLUID: 80-95% of "trans-children" outgrow it with watchful waiting or therapy

Experts agree that when not affirmed, 80-95% of pre-pubertal youth with gender dysphoria will come to accept their biological sex by late adolescence.[7] One increasingly hears the fanciful claim that a child with gender dysphoria is born with a brain that is of the opposite sex of his body. This is biologically impossible. Every cell of the human body contains identical copies of a person's sex chromosomes and the brains of biologically normal infants are imprinted prenatally by their own endogenous sex hormones at 8 weeks' gestation.[8] Every infant boy is born with a brain imprinted by his own testosterone; every infant girl is born with a brain imprinted by endogenous estrogen. Brain studies of transgender adults that purport to show differences in brain microstructures are of notoriously poor quality and more than likely reflect the fact that long-term transgender behavior alters brain microstructures.[9] This latter phenomenon of behavior altering the chemical and physical structure of the brain is known as neuroplasticity, and is well established.[10]

Non-heterosexual & Transgender Behavior Carries Grave Health Risks

There are many reasons for an adolescent, especially males, who are distressed by unwanted homosexual attractions to seek therapy. According to the CDC, from 2006-2009, young men who have sex with men aged 13-24 years had the greatest percentage increase in diagnosed HIV infections of all age groups. Among all adolescent males aged 13-24 years, approximately 91% of all diagnosed HIV infections were from male-to-male sexual contact.[11] This is because receptive anal intercourse is 20 times riskier than receptive vaginal intercourse.[12]

Moreover, compared with heterosexual youth, non-heterosexual youth are at increased risk (by a median of 76% if bisexual; 63.8% if homosexual) for contracting other sexually transmitted infections, using tobacco, alcohol and other drugs, and engaging in behaviors that contribute to violence, depression and suicide.[13]

Is therapy that affirms heterosexual potential harmful:

Studies do not demonstrate harm to minors who want to diminish same-sex attractions in psychotherapy because no studies on youth have ever been published. However, there is significant documentation of successful outcomes among some adults who sought to increase their heterosexual potential in psychotherapy.[14,15,16,17] More importantly, no studies exist to demonstrate that the LGBQT-affirming therapy mandated by these bills is universally helpful and without significant risk.

Bans condemn minors to a false sexual identity and/or toxic hormones and irreversible surgery

Therapy bans are crafted such that youth troubled by their sexual attractions and all youth with gender dysphoria will receive only one choice: in the first case, to be affirmed into a false sexual identity, and in the second case, to pursue a so-called sex change. In other words, therapists will be criminalized if they provide heterosexual affirming therapy, and help boys feel more like boys, or help girls feel more like girls, but not if they help children to feel, dress and act more like the opposite sex, and encourage them to use toxic cross-sex hormones followed by sex reassignment surgery to mutilate healthy body parts. The state should not violate minors' right to choose therapy that they believe will aid them in aligning their sexual identity and/or gender identity with biological reality.

WHAT HAPPENS WHEN THERAPY IS BANNED?

25 states[i] have rejected therapy bans because they cause these harms and injustices:

Effects of childhood sexual abuse can be treated if they are heterosexual, but not if they are homosexual.

The American Psychological Association says in its APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology which it has declared "authoritative" [1a] that sexual and gender variations are not simply biologically determined. There are psychological causes [1b] such as childhood sexual abuse [1c,2]. One effect of childhood sexual abuse may be that the victim begins to experience same-sex attractions or behaviors. Is it more compassionate to help relieve these feelings or behaviors or to tell victims they have to live with them? A therapy ban requires the therapist to deny treatment to relieve the victim's unwanted attractions and behaviors or the therapist will be criminalized.

A variety of recognized psychological disorders can be treated only if they are heterosexual.

More sexual attractions, romantic fantasies, or behaviors caused by sexual abuse include:

- unwanted emotional and sexual ties to the abuser, desire to have sex with minors
- desire to exhibit genitals, desire to rub genitals against non-consenting individuals
- compulsive sexual thoughts, pornography addiction, sexual addictions

A therapist could not help a victim change these attractions or behaviors if they are homosexual. NOTE: An exception clause might allow a therapist to address unlawful same-sex behaviors but not treat desires to engage in them if the individual claims they have not and will not act on them. There is no way to assure the claims. An exception can still lead to sexual abuse and likely will [3].

Gender dysphoric children and adolescents are legislated onto a path of:

experimental puberty blockers, toxic hormones that often sterilize them for life, [4] having their breasts surgically removed, potential castration, a lifetime of being a medical patient, and a nearly 20 times higher rate of completed suicides even if they live in a liberal and affirming community, [5] all with the assumption minors are competent to choose these treatments, and all before they are old enough to drive—but forbids them talk therapy to help them embrace their body.

The short and long-term risks of transitioning are sobering; hardly a cure for suicide.

- Lack of proven safety or long term benefit for minors. It's not pro-science—it's no science.
- After short term satisfaction, regret and de-transitioning are not rare, but what's gone is gone.
- Underlying issues need talk therapy; foster children are more likely to have them. [5a]
- Parents can't choose talk therapy for disturbed teens self-diagnosing from the internet. [5b]

Bans hide that same-sex attraction and gender variant feelings, unlike skin color, are not simply biologically determined and carry a high probability to decrease or change if allowed to.

As many as 98% of boys and 88% of girls [6] and no less than 75% of boys and girls will come to embrace their body if getting therapy for individual problems and not living as the opposite sex [1d] .

- American Psychiatric Association, Diagnostic and Statistical Manual, Fifth Edition [6]
- American Psychological Association, APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology [1d]

Same-sex attractions, behaviors, orientation identities, and questioning often change, mostly to or toward exclusive heterosexuality, for both men and women, adolescents and adults.

- American Psychological Association, APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology [1e]
- Many Studies That Meet Rigorous Scientific Standards [7]

Bans misrepresent therapy, depriving individuals of the life they choose.

The ill-defined term, "conversion therapy," runs together unlicensed with licensed individuals. Still, the Southern Poverty Law Center affirms "conversion therapy" uses non-aversive methods. Stories of "aversion therapy" by licensed professionals are documented to be fraudulent in a report to the Federal Trade Commission [8]. Therapists in the national professional organization, Alliance for Therapeutic Choice and Scientific Integrity, follow a code of ethics and use mainstream therapy methods. [9]. Surveys of those who identify as LGBTQ (1) automatically exclude individuals who have safely and successfully changed and (2) often do not differentiate nonprofessional from professional services. The American Psychological Association concluded there is no proof of harm from sexual orientation change efforts and has not declared them unethical [10]. American Psychological Association presidents have provided successful sexual orientation change efforts and said bans are wrong [13]. Consensus among professional organizations is not scientific evidence; it is opinion based on political activism within these guilds.

Bans forbid therapy that, when done right, is safe and effective and decreases shame.

Over a hundred years of research, including studies published in the American Psychological Association's peer-reviewed journals by APA members, found that when the therapy is done right, it is effective. [11] A new five-year study of ReparativeTherapy™ for adult male clients who seek help for unwanted same-sex attraction is currently underway and meets American Psychological Association standards. Results in the first year found distress including shame decreased, sense of wellbeing increased, heterosexual thoughts and feelings increased, and homosexual thoughts and feelings decreased [12]. Participants were not only supported, they were helped to change sexual attractions. Research suggests sexuality is at least as fluid or changeable in women and adolescents as in men [1e,7]. Our clients do not believe they were born gay. They feel life-changing events led to their variation. When we treat those life-changing events with the same evidence-based therapy methods used in clinics around the world, their variations change as a by-product.

Government takes away freedoms and rights.

Our clients have the same freedom and the right as everyone else to resolve unwanted feelings, love who they want, and choose their gender identity. No one should take that away from them. Some want to live and love according to their religious faith. No one should deny them that right. Several professional organizations support a client's right to therapy for unwanted sexual and gender variations that is in accord with their religious faith.[ii]

Many individuals targeted by therapy bans will no longer get professional therapy at all.

In states that have therapy bans, many therapists are afraid, because of the law and legal counsel, to see sexual and gender variant individuals whose goal is change, so many now get no professional mental health services. Like other individuals who have sexual or gender variations, some are sexual abuse victims and are suicidal. Bans are harmful and unjust.

An easy fix is to outlaw aversive methods—for which licensing boards report no evidence—but not outlaw therapy goals or effective professional therapy. Support for individuals who experience sexual or gender variations is not banning therapy for some but fostering the universal value of kindness for all.

Respectfully, National Task Force for Therapy Equality (TherapyEquality.org)

[i] States that have rejected therapy bans: Arizona, Colorado, Delaware, Florida, Georgia, Hawaii, Idaho, Iowa, Kansas, Kentucky, Massachusetts, Maine, Maryland, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, Washington, West Virginia, Wisconsin.

[ii] The following organizations support the right of clients to therapy that aligns with their religious values and beliefs: American Association of Physicians and Surgeons, American College of Pediatricians, American Association of Christian Counselors, Christian Medical and Dental Association, Catholic Medical Association, International Network of Orthodox (Jewish) Mental Health Professionals, and Alliance for Therapeutic Choice and Scientific Integrity. Collectively, these organizations comprise about 80,000 licensed mental and medical health practitioners who value the right of self-determination for clients and their families.

Dear Legislator,

Our organization of mental health professionals urges you to oppose any legislation that would ban so-called "conversion therapy" for minors. Many states have rejected these bans.

- Everyone has the freedom and the right to resolve unwanted feelings, love who they want, and embrace their body sex.

- Sexual orientation and gender identity are not biologically determined like skin color,[1] and psychological and family factors are causes.[2] Transgender identity may be pathological.[3]
    - American Psychological Association, APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology[4] which the APA has approved (given its "imprimatur") and declared "authoritative."[5]

- This bill legislates gender dysphoric children onto a path of experimental puberty blockers and toxic sex-change hormones, that often sterilize them for life, having their breasts chopped off, and potentially castration, all before they are old enough to drive, yet forbids them talk therapy to help them embrace their body.

- As many as 98% of boys and 88% of girls[6] and no less than 75% of boys and girls[7] come to identify with their innate body sex if supported through natural puberty and not socially transitioned.[8]
    - American Psychiatric Association, Diagnostic and Statistical Manual, Fifth Edition
    - American Psychological Association, APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology

- A rigorous study of 16-year-old boys who identified as exclusively same-sex attracted found that one year later, only 11% still did.[9] 90% of the exclusively and strongly same-sex attracted boys experienced father absence or loss.[10] Absence of a parent, especially the parent of the same sex as the child, can lead to same-sex attraction, behavior, and orientation identity.
    - Several Studies That Meet Rigorous Scientific Standards[11]

- Childhood sexual abuse may potentially lead to having a same-sex partner for some.
    - American Psychological Association, APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology.[12]

- The full acceptance of transgender identity approach "runs the risk of neglecting individual problems the child might be experiencing…."[13]
    - American Psychological Association, APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology

Talk therapy treats individual problems that may be causing gender distress or same-sex attraction for some. A therapy ban takes away a child's right to that talk therapy.

- Even the Southern Poverty Law Center affirms "conversion therapy" uses only non aversive methods.[14] Stories of "therapy torture" and "aversion therapy" have been documented to be fraudulent in a report sent to the Federal Trade Commission.[15]

- More than 100 years of research have found the therapy is safe and effective.[16] A new five-year study of adult male clients who have unwanted same-sex attraction feelings is currently underway and meets APA standards. Results in the first year found distress decreased, sense of wellbeing increased, heterosexual thoughts and feelings increased, and homosexual thoughts and feelings decreased.[17]

- Leading suicide researchers found that, world-wide, 90% of people who commit suicide had mental disorders. The researchers' number one prevention recommendation is to let them have psychotherapy.[18]

- The following organizations support therapy that helps minors who have unwanted sexual attraction or gender identity feelings to go on their journey and become able to love who they want and love their body: Association of American Physicians and Surgeons, American College of Pediatricians, American Association of Christian Counselors, Christian Medical and Dental Association, Catholic Medical Association, and Alliance for Therapeutic Choice and Scientific Integrity. Collectively, these organizations comprise over 100,000 licensed mental and medical health practitioners who value the right of self-determination for clients and their families.

The Lies and Dangers of Efforts to Change Sexual Orientation or Gender Identity

Filed under: Health & Aging

Share this

So-called "conversion therapy," sometimes known as "reparative therapy," is a range of dangerous and discredited practices that falsely claim to change a person's sexual orientation or gender identity or expression. Such practices have been rejected by every mainstream medical and mental health organization for decades, but due to continuing discrimination and societal bias against LGBTQ people, some practitioners continue to conduct conversion therapy. Minors are especially vulnerable, and conversion therapy can lead to depression, anxiety, drug use, homelessness, and suicide.

Executive Summary

In February 2016, the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC), Human Rights Campaign (HRC), and National Center for Lesbian Rights (NCLR) filed a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) against People Can Change (now called Brothers Road), accusing the Virginia-based non-profit organization of committing consumer fraud, namely, by offering, marketing, selling, and performing services that purport to change a person's sexual orientation or gender identity, commonly referred to as "conversion therapy." This complaint was a part of the Respondents' ongoing effort to curtail the therapy rights of individuals, and their families, who experience sexual and gender identity conflicts by enacting legislation to ban licensed psychotherapy on the state and federal level.

This complaint prompted the National Task Force for Therapy Equality, a coalition of psychotherapists, psychiatrists, physicians, public policy organizations, and clients who experience unwanted same-sex attractions and gender identity conflicts, to launch a comprehensive investigation titled:

In Their Own Words — Lies, Deception, and Fraud: The Southern Poverty Law Center, Human Rights Campaign, and National Center for Lesbian Rights' Hate Campaign to Ban Psychotherapy for Individuals with Sexual and Gender Identity Conflicts

As this report will detail, the three Respondents have been actively working together for at least five years in a deceptive and fraudulent hate campaign with the goal of deceiving law makers on the state, federal, and international level to enact legislation to ban licensed psychotherapy for clients (minors) that experience unwanted same-sex attractions and gender identity conflicts. To date, six states and several cities and jurisdictions have passed such legislation into law, prompting several lawsuits across the country.

As this report will detail, the three Respondents have been actively working together for at least five years in a deceptive and fraudulent hate campaign with the goal of deceiving law makers on the state, federal, and international level to enact legislation to ban licensed psychotherapy for clients (minors) that experience unwanted same-sex attractions and gender identity conflicts.

This report will demonstrate the following:

- The three Respondents have actively and knowingly engaged in deceptive and fraudulent marketing practices of the kind the FTC considers malicious, which are particularly deceptive and misleading to consumers and the general public. This complaint is pursuant to the FTC's definition of unfair practices, defined as those that "cause or are likely to cause substantial injury to consumers which is not reasonably avoidable by consumers themselves and not outweighed by countervailing benefits to consumers or to competition" (15 U.S.C. Sec. 45(n)).
- The three Respondents have supported witnesses on the state, federal, and international level that have delivered unverifiable and fraudulent testimony in front of law-making bodies in the effort to persuade legislative action to ban psychotherapy. Through multiple examples, it has now been proven these witnesses have lied and engaged in a variety of deceptive practices on behalf of the Respondents' hate campaigns to ban psychotherapy.
- The three Respondents, through their marketing campaigns, are actively raising large sums of money in the effort to ban psychotherapy by using deceptive and fraudulent practices. These practices are misleading to the general public, and, as this report documents, it is highly unlikely that the three Respondents are unaware of the false and misleading nature of how their statements distort the facts and research around psychotherapy to help clients with sexual and gender identity conflicts. As such, they are knowingly misleading consumers in their efforts to profit from such activities.
- The three Respondents, through their marketing campaigns, have actively and knowingly distorted the research to promote efforts to ban psychotherapy for clients with sexual and gender identity conflicts, including misleading statements regarding the 2009 American Psychological Association Task Force Report on Appropriate Therapeutic Responses to Sexual Orientation, as well as other research (e.g., Ryan et al., 2009). The three Respondents use these misleading statements to make false and misleading claims that psychotherapy is harmful and ineffective for minors who experience sexual and gender identity conflicts.
- The three Respondents, through their marketing campaigns, have actively distorted the scientific research in promoting the "Born Gay" hoax, a notion that has been disproved and refuted by organizations such as the American Psychological Association through their 2008 Position Statement and 2014 APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology. The Respondents have perpetrated this lie to further their respective political agendas, and in so doing, have raised untold sums of money from unsuspecting consumers and the general public.

- The three Respondents have also engaged in smear and defamatory attacks on licensed psychotherapists and faith-based ministries providing help and assistance to those who experience sexual and gender identity conflicts. Until recently, one of the Respondents (SPLC) included an interactive "Hate Map" that identified nearly 100 therapists and ministries on their website. The Respondent recently removed this map in the aftermath of the crime of Floyd Corkins, a gunman who was inspired by the SPLC's "Hate Map" to enter the Family Research Council in 2013 and attempt to murder conservatives.
- One of the Respondents (SPLC) was also reported to the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) in 2017 by the Federation for American Immigration Reform (FAIR) for engaging in practices of using "opinion-based smears and innuendos" as though they were educational while violating governmental regulations and using tactics that it claims shields it from liability lawsuits. The Respondent's blatant engagement in political activity is a clear violation of their 501(c) (3) status with the IRS, says the complaint.

By engaging in these deceptive and fraudulent practices, the National Task Force for Therapy Equality accuses the Respondents of perpetrating undue harm on millions of consumers and the general public, hundreds of licensed mental health providers, and thousands of clients and potential clients that experience sexual and gender identity conflicts. Because their hate campaigns have already resulted in therapy bans enacted in at least six states and several other cities and jurisdictions, this report respectfully requests the FTC to review these fraudulent and deceptive practices and to promptly order the Respondents to cease their activities in the effort to protect therapists, clients, consumers, and the general public from further harm. In addition, we respectfully request the FTC to order the three Respondents to issue press releases, correct inaccurate statements on their websites, and actively work with legislators across the United States to reverse legislation that has been passed into law so that further harm can be avoided.

The National Task Force for Therapy Equality (NTFTE) respectfully requests that the Federal Trade Commission ("FTC") investigate and stop the libelous, slanderous, deceptive, and misleading actions of the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC), Human Rights Campaign (HRC), and National Center for Lesbian Rights (NCLR), which have made broad-sweeping claims of fraud and harm towards professional sexual orientation change therapies, and their clients.

I. INTRODUCTION

A. Formal Purpose of this Complaint

The National Task Force for Therapy Equality (NTFTE), the following licensed therapists, and the following therapy clients respectfully request that the Federal Trade Commission ("FTC") investigate and stop the libelous, slanderous, deceptive, and misleading actions of the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC), Human Rights Campaign (HRC), and National Center for Lesbian Rights (NCLR), which have made broad-sweeping claims of fraud and harm towards professional sexual orientation change therapies, and their clients.

In accordance with the substantial scientific and anecdotal evidence that demonstrates sexual orientation change is possible for some individuals, and the lack of accurate research to support the assertion that Sexual Orientation Change Effort (SOCE) therapy is fraudulent and/or harmful, the NTFTE, licensed therapists, and therapy clients who report successful change in sexuality support the complaint herein.

The actions of the SPLC, HRC, and NCLR seek to invalidate and end the practice of professional sexual orientation change therapies and will result in a denial of free speech of therapists and therapy clients, restraint of trade, loss of religious rights, and in some cases, may pose harm to the mental and emotional health of clients, who could experience depression, anxiety and/or suicide ideation due to a lack of available therapists who share their values and goals.

As such, we define the efforts of the SPLC, HRC, and NCLR as malice, and are particularly deceptive and misleading to consumers and the general public. This complaint is pursuant to the FTC's definition of unfair practices, defined as those that "cause or are likely to cause substantial injury to consumers which is not reasonably avoidable by consumers themselves and not outweighed by countervailing benefits to consumers or to competition" (15 U.S.C. Sec. 45(n)).

We respectfully request that the FTC take enforcement action to end the actions of the SPLC, HRC, and NCLR, which seek to defame change therapies, change therapists, and their clients, or to render a judgment against the three organizations for their actions, which are deceptive and misleading to consumers and the general public. We also ask that the FTC require these organizations to cease publishing slanderous remarks about change therapies, change therapists, and their clients, and require them to cease and desist publishing all deceptive statements including those within their public speeches, social media, online videos, and on their websites.

B. Overview of the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC), Human Rights Campaign (HRC), and National Center for Lesbian Rights (NCLR)

Southern Poverty Law Center – Respondent

Respondent Southern Poverty Law Center ("SPLC"), located in Montgomery, Alabama (www.splcenter.org) is a multi-million dollar law firm, organized as a non-profit, committed to targeting and prosecuting SPLC identified "Hate" groups. Until recently, the SPLC included an interactive "Hate Map" that identified nearly 100 therapists and ministries that help individuals with sexual and gender identity conflicts. The Respondent recently removed this map in the aftermath of Floyd Corkins, a gunman that was inspired by the SPLC's "Hate Map" to enter the Family Research Council in 2013 and attempt to murder conservatives.[1] The SPLC LGBT Human Rights Project is dedicated to the fraudulent pseudoscience of proving genetic homosexuality and to profiting from alleged harm of falsely named "conversion therapy." The SPLC initiated the lawsuit of Ferguson v. JONAH, exploited recruited plaintiffs, biased court proceedings, and manipulated overly broad consumer fraud laws in a New Jersey State Court to target and persecute this organization.[2] In 2014, the Federal Bureau of Investigation removed the SPLC from the "Resources" page of its Civil Rights Division. An internal FBI e-mail seems to suggest that the decision to remove the SPLC from this list was prompted by a meeting with Congressional staffers, who expressed the concerns of the head of the Family

Research Council (FRC), whose presence on the SPLC's "hate watch" list inspired Floyd Corkins the gunman that targeted the FRC in 2012 in order to "kill as many employees as possible."[3]

Human Rights Campaign – Respondent

According to their website (www.HRC.org) the Human Rights Campaign is located in Washington, D.C. and is "America's largest civil rights organization working to achieve LGBTQ equality. By inspiring and engaging individuals and communities, HRC strives to end discrimination against LGBTQ people and realize a world that achieves fundamental fairness and equality for all. The Human Rights Campaign envisions a world where lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender and queer people are ensured equality and embraced as full members of society at home, at work and in every community." While HRC works to defend the rights of the LGBTQ community, they have actively worked to marginalize, defame, and discriminate against individuals that experience unwanted same-sex attractions and gender identity confusion. Until recently, they have distanced themselves from formal efforts to end what they label "conversion therapy" for minors. "However, in a February 14, 2017 press release on pending legislation in New Mexico to ban "conversion therapy," they stated: "NCLR and HRC have partnered with state equality groups across the nation to pass state legislation to end conversion therapy."[4]

National Center for Lesbian Rights – Respondent

Located in San Francisco, CA, the National Center for Lesbian Rights (NCLR) launched the #BornPerfect Campaign in June 2014 to end "conversion therapy in five years by passing laws across the country to protect LGBT kids from these dangerous practices, fighting in courtrooms to ensure their safety, and raising awareness." According to their website (www.nclrights.org), the NCLR "focuses on employment, immigration, youth, elder law, transgender law, sports, marriage, relationship protections, reproductive rights, and family law to create safer homes, safer jobs, and a more just world. Each year, NCLR shapes the legal landscape for all LGBT people and families across the nation through its precedent-setting litigation, legislation, policy, and public education. For more than three decades, NCLR has led historic cases, and it is still blazing trails in pursuit of justice, fairness, and legal protections for all LGBT people."

Petitioner therapy clients include over 1,000 individuals and families who seek help from licensed professional therapists to heal trauma from sexual abuse, to resolve unwanted same sex attractions and/or gender identity conflicts, and to heal from the consequences of homosexual activity, including depression, anger, addiction, disease, and suicide.

II. THE PARTIES

A. Licensed Psychotherapists

Over 20,000 licensed petitioner therapists, psychiatrists, and physicians represented by the National Task Force for Therapy Equality.

B. Therapy Clients/Patients

Petitioner therapy clients include over 1,000 individuals and families who seek help from licensed professional therapists to heal trauma from sexual abuse, to resolve unwanted same sex attractions and/or gender identity conflicts, and to heal from the consequences of homosexual activity, including depression, anger, addiction, disease, and suicide.

III. WRITTEN AND VERBAL STATEMENTS FROM THE SPLC, HRC, AND NCLR

A. Applicable Law

Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act ("FTC Act") prohibits unfair and deceptive acts and practices, including statements. The FTC considers whether there has been a representation, omission, or practice that is likely to mislead the consumer. The FTC also asks whether the representation, omission, or practice is a "material" one. Neither an intent to deceive nor actual consumer harm is required to find an act deceptive under the FTC Act. The analysis focuses on the risk of consumer harm. Both express misrepresentations and implied misrepresentations are violations of the FTC Act. If a claim is likely to be misleading without qualifying information, the qualifying information must be disclosed in a clear and conspicuous manner. Clear and conspicuous disclosure is required. A disclosure can qualify or limit a claim to avoid a misleading impression; it cannot, however, cure a false claim.

SPLC, HRC, and NCLR's false and misleading spoken and written practices concerning professional psychotherapy for unwanted same-sex attractions/gender identity confusion is deceptive, contains material omissions, and does not objectively consider all the research that has been completed to date. Publishing false and misleading information will result in harm to consumers by infringing upon their right to accurate information. The Respondent's researched evidence shows no proven conclusions by any psychological association in the United States, and its citations of the American Psychological Association (APA) are misleading.

1. Assumption 1: Everyone who experiences same-sex attraction is born gay.

On the American Psychological Association's (APA) own website (www.apa.org) under sections dealing with causation of homosexuality, it clearly indicates there is no "gay gene" and that other biological studies are inconclusive. It states that causes for homosexuality are most likely a combination of genetic and environmental influences. In other words, no one can be certain of causation in terms of proof at this point in time. The APA's Position Statement in 2008 reads:

> There is no consensus among scientists about the exact reasons that an individual develops a heterosexual, bisexual, gay or lesbian orientation. Although much research has examined the possible genetic, hormonal, developmental, social and cultural influences on sexual orientation, no findings have emerged that permit scientists to conclude that sexual orientation is determined by any particular factor or factors. Many think that nature and nurture both play complex roles; most people experience little or no sense of choice about their sexual orientation.[5]

2. Assumption 2: Sexual orientation and gender identity (SOGI) therapies are harmful and ineffective for minors who experience sexual and gender identity conflicts.

As a basis for many of their statements, the three Respondents make references to the American Psychological Association, specifically a report that was produced in 2009. On pages 83-85 of the APA Task Force on Appropriate Therapeutic Responses to Sexual Orientation,[6] the APA concludes there is no proof of harm done to anyone undergoing sexual or gender identity (SOGI) therapies:

> There are no scientifically rigorous studies of recent SOCE that would enable us to make a definitive statement about whether recent SOCE is safe or harmful and for whom.[7]

When it comes to the effectiveness of SOCE for children and adolescents, the APA Task Force said the following:

> There is no research demonstrating that providing SOCE to children or adolescents has an impact on adult sexual orientation. The few studies of children with gender identity disorder found no evidence that psychotherapy provided to those children had an impact on adult sexual orientation.[8]

Therefore, there is no evidence to conclude SOGI therapies are harmful or ineffective. The SPLC, HRC, and NCLR are distorting the research by publishing false and misleading information to the general public to achieve their respective political agendas. As will be demonstrated later in this report, the Respondents distort the research often, and in a variety of ways.

As stated above, there is not one single outcome-based study in the scientific literature of minors undergoing SOCE therapy to back up these claims. Thus, to cite these potential health risks of SOCE therapy for minors is false and misleading. All three of the organizations in this complaint have cited similar claims on their websites and published materials, and are therefore guilty of misleading consumers and the general public.

B. SPLC, HRC, and NCLR's false and misleading spoken and written practices concerning professional psychotherapy are deceptive and contain material omissions, which result in harm to the consumers by infringing on their right to accurate information.

1. Origins of false and misleading statements in California State legislation

In 2012, gay activist organizations, including but not limited to, SPLC, HRC, and NCLR began working with politicians in the state of California to pass legislation to prohibit licensed mental health practitioners from helping minors who experience unwanted same-sex attractions or wish to change their sexual orientation.

On September 30, 2012, Governor Jerry Brown signed into law Senate Bill 1172, essentially outlawing the practice of sexual orientation change effort (SOCE) therapy for clients under the age of 18. In a press release from the Governor's office, Brown said the following of SOCE therapy: "These practices have no basis in science or medicine, and they will now be relegated to the dustbin of quackery." As justification for the law, SB 1172 said the following in Section B:

> Sexual orientation change efforts pose critical health risks to lesbian, gay, and bisexual people, including confusion, depression, guilt, helplessness, hopelessness, shame, social withdrawal, suicidality, substance abuse, stress, disappointment, self-blame, decreased self-esteem and authenticity to others, increased self-hatred, hostility and blame toward parents, feelings of anger and betrayal, loss of friends and potential romantic partners, problems in sexual and emotional intimacy, sexual dysfunction, high-risk sexual behaviors, a feeling of being dehumanized and untrue to self, a loss of faith, and a sense of having wasted time and resources. This is documented by the American Psychological Association Task Force on Appropriate Therapeutic Responses to Sexual Orientation in its 2009 Report of the Task Force on Appropriate Therapeutic Responses to Sexual Orientation.[9]

Despite the claims of harm cited in SB 1172, the American Psychological Association Task Force did not actually provide scientific evidence to back up the 28 health risks listed above. In fact, none of these health risks have been documented in the scientific peer-reviewed literature outside of a few published and unpublished anecdotal reports from adults, none of which have studied SOCE therapy outcomes for minors.[10]

As stated above, there is not one single outcome-based study in the scientific literature of minors undergoing SOCE therapy to back up these claims. Thus, to cite these potential health risks of SOCE therapy for minors is false and misleading. All three of the organizations in this complaint have cited similar claims on their websites and published materials, and are therefore guilty of misleading consumers and the general public.

As this report will show, most individuals who experience same-sex attractions also experience change in sexual attraction, behavior, and identity toward or exclusively toward heterosexuality. Anecdotal claims of harm ignore the majority of individuals who can and do change, with or without the help of therapy.

2. Misleading Statements and False Claims of Harm and Therapy Torture

In May 2016, the Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC) published a paper that was posted on their website and said the "National Gay and Lesbian Task Force reacted with alarm," and "warned that the ex-gay industry was under-mining the battle for LGBT rights by suggesting that homosexuality is a choice, not an unchangeable condition like skin color." Such a statement is meant to convey to the reader that sexual orientation is unchangeable, like skin color.[11] Over the years, the SPLC has said a number of deceptive and misleading statements about therapy to help individuals with unwanted same-sex attractions and gender identity confusion:

> Not only does it (SOCE therapy) not work, it's harmful to LGBT people and their families. People who have undergone conversion therapy have reported increased anxiety, depression, and in some cases, suicidal ideation. It can also strain family relationships, because practitioners frequently blame a parent for their child's sexual orientation.[12]

We will discuss more examples of misleading statements in the SPLC's paper later in this document.

The National Center for Lesbian Rights (NCLR) has said similar outrageous and inaccurate statements:

> In the past, some mental health professionals resorted to extreme measures such as institutionalization, castration, and electroconvulsive shock therapy to try to stop people from being lesbian, gay, bisexual, or transgender (LGBT). Today, while some counselors still use physical treatments like aversive conditioning, the techniques most commonly used include a variety of behavioral, cognitive, psychoanalytic, and other practices that try to change or reduce same-sex attraction or alter a person's gender identity.
> Conversion therapy can be extremely dangerous and, in some cases, fatal. In 2009, the APA issued a report concluding that the reported risks of the practices include: depression . . . and a sense of having wasted time and resources.
> The risks are even greater for youth. Minors who experience family rejection based on their sexual orientation or gender identity face especially serious health risks. Research shows that lesbian, gay, and bisexual young adults who reported higher levels of family rejection during adolescence were more than eight times more likely to report having attempted suicide, more than five times more likely to report high levels of depression, more than three times more likely to use illegal drugs, and more than three times more likely to report having engaged in unprotected sexual intercourse compared with peers from families that reported no or low levels of family rejection. [13]

As evidence to implicate SOCE therapy for minors, the NCLR refers to a study by Ryan et al. (2009), which equates poor health outcomes for LGBT youth as synonymous with therapy outcomes. This statement is a common misuse of research by the NCLR and other gay activists. They cite a study that attributes high levels of family rejection to increased health risks for sexual minority youth and report that these outcomes are attributed to or somehow associated with youth undergoing SOCE therapy. In fact, none of the outcomes in this study were attributed to youth undergoing SOCE therapy, nor did the study even discuss therapy.[14]

The Human Rights Campaign (HRC) has also made similar outrageous and unfounded claims:

> So-called "conversion therapy," sometimes known as "reparative therapy," is a range of dangerous and discredited practices that falsely claim to change a person's sexual orientation or gender identity or expression . . . Minors are especially vulnerable, and conversion therapy can lead to depression, anxiety, drug use, homelessness, and suicide.
> In February 2016, the Human Rights Campaign, National Center for Lesbian Rights, and Southern Poverty Law Center filed a consumer fraud complaint with the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) against People Can Change, a major provider of conversion therapy. The complaint alleges that People Can Change's advertisements and business practices which claim they can change a person's sexual orientation or gender identity constitute deceptive, false, and misleading practices and can cause serious harm to consumers, all in direct violation of Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act.[15, 16]

Not only do these misleading statements attribute SOCE therapy as causing depression, anxiety, drug use, homelessness, and suicide for youth, they falsely accuse People Can Change (now called Brothers Road) of being a "conversion therapy provider" when in actuality, Brothers Road is a peer-lead, non-therapeutic experiential weekend for adult men who experience unwanted same-sex attractions. They do not provide any form of psychotherapy to adults, and they do not work with minors.

3. "Conversion Therapy Torture Camps" in New Jersey

In March 2013, the New Jersey Senate Health, Human Services, and Senior Citizens Committee held a three-hour hearing on a bill that would take away the rights of minors who experience unwanted same-sex attraction (SSA) to receive therapy from licensed mental health professionals. Representatives from gay rights organizations, including the Human Rights Campaign, Garden State Equality, and the Trevor Project, as well as several mental health associations, testified at length about the so-called dangers of "conversion therapy." While all of these organizations used misleading statistics and false statements to condemn SOCE, one testimony in particular stood out that was particularly fraudulent.

Brielle Goldani, a transgendered woman from Toms River, New Jersey, stated she was tortured at an Ohio-based "conversion therapy camp" in 1997. "Twice a week I was hooked up to electrodes on my hands," she said. "I, a child, was shocked repeatedly by people who had my parent's permission to torture me." Goldani claimed that the torture occurred at a "conversion camp" called "True Directions." "This is nothing more than legalized child abuse," claimed Goldani at the hearing.

According to the office of the Ohio Secretary of State and Attorney General, no such camp called "True Directions" has ever existed. In fact, the only trace of this camp is from a 1999 movie titled "But I'm a Cheerleader," starring drag queen RuPaul. In the film, the main character is suspected of being a lesbian by her family members, who then proceed to send her to a fictitious "conversion therapy" camp called "True Directions." Throughout the course of the film, two disgruntled gay men encourage the campers to rebel against the program and discover their true identities as gays and lesbians. The final scene of the film shows the main character's parents attending a Parents and Friends of Lesbians and Gays (PFLAG) meeting to accept their daughter's homosexuality.[17]

Later that spring, on May 6, 2013, representatives from Garden State Equality, New Jersey's largest gay rights organization, made further false and misleading statements at a press conference at the State Assembly House in Trenton, New Jersey.[18] At the press conference, representatives of Garden State Equality claimed that six other "conversion therapy torture camps" existed in Ohio (and other states) with similar names as "True Directions." Garden State Equality Executive Director, Troy Stevenson, was asked at the press conference where the alleged camps were located and their names, and promised to provide all members of the press corps the names of these camps right after the press conference. However, Stevenson failed to provide any of these details, even after multiple phone calls were made to his office.

It is important to note that state policy organizations such as Garden State Equality have worked very closely with the HRC, SPLC, and NCLR in their campaigns to make SOCE therapy illegal. They act as local liaisons, recruiting, prepping, and providing talking points to witnesses at committee hearings. In the experience of the NTFTE, the vast majority of witnesses recruited and ultimately those who testify in front of state legislatures have never undergone professional psychotherapy to resolve same-sex attractions or gender identity conflicts with a licensed mental health practitioner. They are typically gay-identified advocates of local and state gay activist organizations or work on behalf of medical and mental health associations within (and outside) the state that oppose SOCE therapy.

Not only do these misleading statements attribute SOCE therapy as causing depression, anxiety, drug use, homelessness, and suicide for youth, they falsely accuse People Can Change (now called Brother's Road) of being a "conversion therapy provider" when in actuality, Brother's Road is a peer-lead, non-therapeutic experiential weekend for adult men who experience unwanted same-sex attractions. They do not provide any form of psychotherapy to adults, and they do not work with minors.

In some cases, these witnesses are receiving compensation to attend and testify at hearings to promote therapy bans.[19] One prominent gay activist that has made a career from opposing SOCE therapy is Wayne Besen, Founder and Executive Director of Truth Wins Out. Besen has testified at state hearings to ban SOCE therapy, espousing the so-called horrors of "conversion therapy."[20] However, like many of his colleagues, Besen never received "gay to straight" therapy as he calls it, yet makes a living from his tabloid-style website that spins half-truths and lies about mental and medical health practitioners that work with clients who experience unwanted same-sex attractions and gender identity confusion.

Besen was one of nearly twenty witnesses that testified against SOCE therapy in the New Jersey General Assembly in the spring of 2013. Like Garden State Equality, Besen is not employed by the three organizations this report is filing a complaint against; however, the SPLC has acknowledged Besen for playing a major part in their efforts to end SOCE therapy. After this bill passed both houses in the New Jersey Legislature, Governor Chris Christie signed the bill into law on August 19, 2013.

4. Ice Baths in the State of Washington

In 2014, gay activists working with Democrat lawmakers in the state of Washington introduced HB 2451. The bill contained similar language to other legislation in California and New Jersey, and the tactics used by gay activists were very similar to that seen in New Jersey. Joseph Backholm of the Family Policy Council of Washington documented the almost unbelievable testimony of one witness:

> Proponents of the bill told stories about children being subjected to shock therapy and ice baths against their will. While that kind of aversive therapy is broadly condemned, there is little to no evidence that such therapy is done commonly if at all. The Washington State Department of Health said they have received no complaints about therapists performing coercive sexual orientation change therapy of any kind–much less ice baths and shock therapy–against the will of a client.[21]

The Senate ultimately killed this bill in 2014. However, in 2015, the same bill was introduced and passed by the House, only to be amended in the Senate to ban all therapy (not only therapy intended to reduce or eliminate homosexual feelings) that used methods such as electroshock or electroconvulsive therapy. This bill would keep "talk therapy" of any kind legal. But when that bill was sent back to the House for consideration, something remarkable happened. According to Joseph Backholm of the Family Policy Institute of Washington:

> The same people who spent the last year talking about the need to protect children from ice baths and shock therapy suddenly and strongly opposed a bill specifically designed for that purpose. What was the problem? The bill didn't go far enough. "It must restrict talk therapy", they said. Last year, not a word was uttered about the need to ban talk therapy because everyone was so horrified by the stories of involuntary shock therapy. All they talked about was the need to protect kids from child abuse. But now that they have been given the chance to stop involuntary shock therapy without the ability to regulate conversations... suddenly shock therapy wasn't such a big deal. There are two things we can learn from this recent development. First, the advocates of this bill have always been mostly interested in prohibiting conversations they dislike, not stopping physical forms of child abuse everyone opposes. The attempt to focus on stories of abuse was just part of the bait and switch. People suspected as much before, but now they have admitted it. Second, and maybe more importantly, the fact that they are willing to oppose a bill to stop child abuse in the hopes that they can pass a bill to ban conversations illustrates the depth of their conviction about this issue. From their perspective, telling kids same-sex attraction is not necessarily permanent is child abuse. The harm of involuntary shock therapy and the "harm" of a child being told change is possible are the same. If this tactic is successful now, it won't just be the therapists who are affected. If it were "child abuse"

Besen never received "gay to straight" therapy as he calls it, yet makes a living from his tabloid-style website that spins half-truths and lies about mental and medical health practitioners that work with clients who experience unwanted same-sex attractions and gender identity confusion.

19 For example, Sam Wolfe of the SPLC and Alison Gill of the HRC testified in Washington, D.C. on June 27, 2014 in a hearing to ban "conversion therapy" for minors. See: http://lims.dccouncil.us/Download/29657/B20-0501-CommitteeReport1.pdf. Similarly, Samantha Ames of the NCLR testified in Geneva, Switzerland on November 11, 2014 in front of the United Nations. for a therapist to tell a child that sexual desires can be controlled or changed, why wouldn't it be child abuse for someone else to say the same thing?[22]

This legislation was ultimately defeated again in 2015, was not introduced in 2016, and reintroduced again in 2017, only to fail once again.

5. "Not everyone walked out alive" in Virginia

The Commonwealth of Virginia has been a tough battle for gay activists to convince lawmakers to ban SOCE therapy for minors. Three years in a row, gay activists valiantly showed up to testify at the Republican-dominated legislature, only to see their bill die in committee. In 2016, one of the more shocking witnesses was Matthew Shurka, who is a prominent spokesperson for the NCLR's #BornPerfect campaign. During the late January committee hearing, Shurka (who allegedly went through "ex-gay therapy" from the age of 16-21) testified of the following (acccording to an article in a gay activist website):

> "I was in camp in Charlottesville," he said about a short stint in a conversion therapy camp called Journey Into Manhood located about 50 miles outside of RVA. "Not everyone walked out alive." Shurka has been involved in fighting ex-gay therapy since he abandoned the treatment, and he is unafraid to share some of the darker parts of his treatment, including "masturbation therapy" and being kept from his mother and sister for three years to avoid picking up feminine traits. He said folks like himself entered the treatments believing they could change, hoping to please their family and/or their faith, and were emotionally destroyed when they failed. "Every week someone is committing suicide or overdosing on drugs because they know they can't succeed," he said.[23]

Perhaps the most disturbing part of Shurka's testimony is that no one, not even the press, asked him why he didn't report the so-called "deaths" that occurred during his experience with Journey Into Manhood. Surely, if a crime, suicide, or homicide had occurred, a police report would have been filed. Yet, these stories continue to be recorded as testimony in front of state legislatures and printed in gay activist media outlets such as GAYRVA.com.

6. Samuel Brinton, Washington, D.C. and the United Nations

Another one of NCLR's prominent spokespersons to end SOCE therapy is Samuel Brinton, who has testified on multiple occasions in state legislatures and, in 2014, even traveled to Geneva, Switzerland to speak of his "therapy torture" at the United Nations. When Washington, D.C. considered (and ultimately passed) a bill to ban SOCE therapy for minors in 2014, one witness, Dr. Gregory Jones, included this quote (in part) from a TIME Magazine article telling Brinton's story:

> Sam Brinton says that his father first tried physical abuse to rid his young son of homosexual feelings. When that didn't work, Brinton's parents turned to something called reparative therapy. Some of the memories are hazy more than 10 years later, but Brinton does remember the tactics the counselor used. There was talk therapy, about how God disapproved, and there was aversion therapy, during which pictures of men touching men would be accompanied by the application of heat or ice. "It was pretty much mental torture," Brinton says. "To this day, I still have light pain when I shake hands with another male." [24, 25]

On November 14, 2014, Brinton spoke at the United Nations in Geneva, Switzerland to testify of the alleged abuse he suffered from an unnamed licensed therapist. According to CNSNews.com, Brinton "testified about the licensed psychotherapist who tied his arms down, wrapped his hands in hot copper coils, and stuck needles in his finger to channel electric

Samuel Brinton: "A Therapist Told Me I Was Sick"

By NCLR Staff

I never imagined I would be in Geneva, Switzerland, but last week there I was. I was no tourist, I was there to testify before a United Nations Committee. To say this was surreal would be a vast understatement.

In the two minutes that I was given to address the U.N.'s Committee Against Torture, I fought back tears as I described how a psychotherapist, at the request of my parents, tried to change my sexual orientation through conversion therapy when I was 10 years old.

You can help NCLR's #BornPerfect protect LGBT kids with your donation. Will you support us in our fight to end this dangerous and discredited practice?

I told the Committee how the therapist said I was sick, that God hated me, and that the government was exterminating all LGBT people. My voice shook as I detailed the physical abuse I endured in an effort to make me straight, including being restrained and physically hurt.

But last week, as part of NCLR's #BornPerfect campaign delegation, I was finally vindicated. Our testimony resulted in the Committee addressing the issue of conversion therapy with the U.S. State Department for the first time in history. We brought international awareness to conversion therapy, a dangerous and discredited practice that is still wreaking havoc in the lives of youth across the country.

As co-chair of the #BornPerfect Advisory Committee, I hope that my testimony will save other children across the U.S. and around the world. No one should ever be told that they need to change who they are. WE ARE ALL BORN PERFECT.

Will you help us in our fight to end this practice in the next five years by donating today?

Samuel Brinton
#BornPerfect Advisory Committee Co-Chair

While Brinton's story sounds compelling, it has yet to be confirmed by any legitimate source or news outlet. According to a 2014 article, some pro-gay media tried to verify this report—and couldn't.[27] Even Wayne Besen, the most rabid "anti-ex-gay" activist, declared, "[U] ntil he [Brinton] provides more information to verify his experience, he makes it impossible for us to use him as an example. Indeed, it would be grossly irresponsible for us to do so."[28]

7. SPLC Opinion-Based Smears and Innuendos Convey Sexual Orientation is Unchangeable, and Efforts to Change Do Not Include Aversive Therapy or Electric Shock But Regularly Lead to Suicide

In May 2016, the SPLC published a paper on its website titled: "Quacks: 'Conversion Therapists,' the Anti-LGBT Right, and the Demonization of Homosexuality."[29] The SPLC's "primary technique[s]" in its "Quacks" online paper are "opinion-based smears and innuendos" and "smearing by association, some of the same techniques that another organization, the Federation for American Immigration Reform (FAIR), documented in its complaint against the SPLC to the IRS."[30]

The Southern Poverty Law Center (SPLC) is a megalithic organization with a war chest of hundreds of millions of dollars. Since it has the means to hire a multitude of attorneys and any other consultants it wishes, one can be rather sure this report represents what the SPLC considers the best case it has to offer against therapy that is open to a client's goal of sexual orientation or gender identity (SOGI) change. With all the SPLC's resources, it should know whether its claims misrepresent current and scientifically accurate information or not.

The SPLC used the term "conversion therapy" about 250 times and never mentioned the terms actual psychotherapy providers use such as "sexual orientation change efforts (SOCE)," "sexual attraction fluidity exploration through therapy (SAFE-T)," or "heterosexual-affirming therapy." "Conversion therapy" is a term regularly used by opponents of real psychotherapy that is open to sexual orientation or gender identity (SOGI) change. Even unlicensed religious practitioners generally do not use the term "conversion therapy." They may speak of "religiously-mediated sexual orientation change efforts." Why avoid the actual terms in usage for the very subject of the paper?

The term, "conversion therapy" deceptively associates religious practice, "conversion," with the term appropriate for licensed professions, "therapy." Religious practices are not psychotherapy, and psychotherapy is not religious practice. The term "conversion therapy" also helps opponents lump unlicensed and licensed actors into one group. In this way, the SPLC can collect smears on a lay counselor, member of the clergy, or coach, none of whom are licensed psychotherapy professionals, and make it appear that such smears apply to all unlicensed and licensed actors.

This method is guilt by association, a sleight of hand, and it permeates the SPLC's paper. The high powered and well-financed lawyers and professionals who work for the SPLC do know the difference between criticism that applies to some individuals in a group but not the whole group, between religious practice and psychotherapy, and between licensed and unlicensed, and they do know what they are doing when they use this deceptive practice.

Anti-change therapy activists have scandals of their own. Some leaders have left, claimed to change their sexual orientation, and married an opposite sex partner. And there have been scandals of another sort. As Rosik said:

> I would find it contemptible if someone argued that because some highly influential gay rights leaders have recently been fighting charges of felony sodomy and sexual abuse with teenage boys and felony possession of child pornography that this must be the case for all such leaders.[31]

The SPLC itself specifically has the scandal that it has targeted organizations of traditional values on a hate map leading to a gunman opening fire at the Family Research Council.[32] We doubt the SPLC would accept the accuracy of their smear-by-innuendo-and-association method if it were applied to itself.

The SPLC conveys deceptive perceptions indirectly not only about individuals who provide religious practices or professional psychotherapy. It also uses indirect methods to purvey false information about sexual orientation such as the falsehood that it cannot change. Here are some examples.

> A Pew Research Center poll finds that 51% of Americans do not believe that gay men and lesbians can change their sexual orientation, while 36% think they can. Answering the same question for Pew a decade earlier, in 2003, 42% said sexual orientation could be changed and 42% said it could not.[33]

> The National Gay and Lesbian Task Force...warned that the ex-gay industry was undermining the battle for LGBT rights by suggesting that homosexuality is a choice, not an unchangeable condition like skin color.[34]

The SPLC is careful not to put the generalization into its own mouth that sexual orientation never changes or is like skin color. Instead, it always presents the assertion from the mouths of others. There is a very good reason it is so careful. Research has established that the assertion is false. The organization may think if it cannot be pinned with actually stating a falsehood itself, it cannot be accused of being a purveyor of a falsehood. Thus, the SPLC shields its misrepresentations behind the assertions of others throughout the paper.

The SPLC is careful not to put the generalization into its own mouth that sexual orientation never changes or is like skin color. Instead, it always presents the assertion from the mouths of others. There is a very good reason it is so careful. Research has established that the assertion is false.

We will document that the American Psychological Association (APA) says in the APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology (2014) (APA Handbook or Handbook) and other researchers show that sexual orientation changes for many who experience same-sex attractions. In addition, the co-editor-in-chief of the Handbook (Dr. Lisa Diamond) has been telling political activists since 2008 to stop the "born-that-way-and-can't-change false claim" because it harms those who change—most same-sex attracted individuals, as we will also later document. Yet the SPLC has continued to propagate this deception.

The SPLC paper also conveys the impression that sexual orientation is dichotomous, that is, that it predominantly comes in two types—"gay" or "straight," barely acknowledging bisexuality. We will show that the APA Handbook says this portrayal is false; the vast majority of same-sex attracted individuals are also attracted to the opposite sex, and those who are exclusively same-sex attracted are the minority. We will substantiate that the majority of individuals who are both-sex attracted experience changes in their sexual attraction, behavior, and identity self-label—all three. This is the case for both men and women and for both adolescents and adults. Most of their change is toward or to exclusive opposite-sex attraction. We will substantiate all of this.

The term "bisexual" is used only 2 times. In one of the two uses of the term bisexual, the paper says Ted Haggard, leader of the National Association of Evangelicals, had "intensive counseling with senior evangelicals for three weeks," was pronounced "completely heterosexual" by one of them, but later said "that if he were 21, he would consider himself bisexual."[35] We would question what would be accomplished in three weeks of "intensive counseling" with an apparently unlicensed counselor in any case. But the SPLC seems to infer that if someone were to change from exclusive homosexual attraction to bisexual attraction, and did not change to exclusive heterosexual attraction, he would not have experienced sexual orientation change.

As we will show, most researchers and the APA Handbook would consider a change from exclusively homosexually attracted to bisexually attracted to be sexual orientation change. Even a change of one point on a five point continuum from exclusive heterosexual to mostly heterosexual to bisexual (attracted about equally to both sexes) to mostly homosexual to exclusive homosexual is considered change in modern research. Further, a change to bisexual or mostly heterosexual would allow an individual to live in a heterosexual relationship in accordance with the individual's desire.

The SPLC conveys the impression that no can go from exclusively same-sex attracted to exclusively opposite-sex attracted. Research shows some do make that kind of change, as we will document.

The SPLC also leaves the reader with the impression that contemporary licensed mental health professionals generally claim they can make everyone go from exclusively gay to exclusively straight. However, licensed mental health professionals generally do not claim they can make anyone do anything, but they can assist individuals in the work they do in psychotherapy, and some individuals, though not all, make a significant and meaningful change through therapy.[36]

However, licensed mental health professionals generally do not claim they can make anyone do anything, but they can assist individuals in the work they do in psychotherapy, and some individuals, though not all, make a significant and meaningful change through therapy.

The SPLC also leaves the reader with the impression that therapy that is open to change harms many people. However, there is no scientific evidence that meets scientific standards for that claim, again made through the mouths of others whom the SPLC quotes. The "Report of the Task Force on Appropriate Therapeutic Responses to Sexual Orientation" for the APA in 2009[37] said it was unable to conclude from scientific evidence whether gay affirmative therapy or therapy that is open to a client's goal of change is safe or effective.[38]

The vast majority of the SPLC paper is not about professional psychotherapy; it is about religious support groups, but the reader gets the impression that all of the tabloid smears of religious support groups apply to licensed professional psychotherapists. The following are examples of the SPLC's presentations in its paper of what some individuals believe about whether sexual orientation can change through religious support groups. These examples have the effect of conveying to the reader that sexual orientation is immutable or never changes through religiously-mediated practices and through professional psychotherapy.

> John Paulk said that he did not believe that sexual orientation change was possible. He also said: "I do not believe that reparative therapy changes sexual orientation; in fact, it does harm to many people."[39]

> Michael Bussee, one of the 5 co-founders of Exodus International, said: "'I never saw one of our members or other Exodus leaders or other Exodus members become heterosexual' and added that it had harmed many people."[40]

Here are some quotes from an interview with Alan Chambers, former leader of Exodus International, whom the SPLC quotes extensively:

> Alan Chambers...led his board to close down the largest religiously based conversion therapy group in the country.[41]

> You've said that trying not to be gay is 'one big excruciating struggle, because it is impossible.'[42]

> ...I publicly denounced reparative therapy in 2012 after repeated calls from reparative therapists offering me free counseling to 'cure' me of my same-sex attractions.[43]

The term Reparative Therapy (RT) appears here. Therapy that is open to change generally is not a form of therapy but a therapist's openness to a client's goal of change using any contemporary form of talk therapy. RT, however, is a specific form of therapy pioneered by the late Dr. Joseph Nicolosi. Nicolosi laid out RT in his book, Shame and Attachment Loss: The Practical Work of Reparative Therapy.[44]

Nicolosi considered reparative therapy appropriate for about 80% of men who seek professional psychotherapy for unwanted same-sex attraction. The SPLC uses the term RT frequently and as a synonym for any effort to change sexual orientation, even though they quote Chambers as correctly designating RT as a type of professional psychotherapy that not all therapists who are open to change use. By knowingly misusing the term, the SPLC emphasizes that some therapists think there could be something in same-sex attractions to repair, a possibility the SPLC denies, even though the APA acknowledges trauma could be a potentially causal factor of same-sex attractions because research has shown that,[45] and even though excellent research shows absence or loss of a biological parent—an attachment loss, especially the loss of the parent of the same sex as the child, is potentially causally related to same-sex attractions.[46]

In this interview, Chambers reportedly said there were about 30 therapists in Exodus, and about 10% focused on RT, hence about 3 therapists focused on RT then. Therefore, according to the SPLC's report, only 30 members, or a tiny number of Exodus members, actually were licensed mental health professionals providing therapy that is open to change, 3 of which did RT. Activities of Exodus members were not representative of professional sexual orientation change efforts. Also, notably, by the SPLC's report of Chambers own words, Chambers never experienced RT or probably any professional therapy that is open to a goal of change. Therefore, Chambers is not an example of a therapy failure. Nicolosi published his book on RT in 2009. He was still training a handful of people. Chambers did not know enough about it and did not try it.

It is possible that the men who gave their opinions that no one changed were using the erroneous model that sexual orientation comes in two discreet categories rather than a continuum, so if any amount of same-sex attraction remains, they might make the interpretation that no sexual orientation has occurred.

It is also possible that the men who testified that neither they nor anyone changed simply believed sexual orientation never changes for anyone, with or without therapy. A 2014 study gained insight into non-heterosexuals who held such a belief. These researchers studied spontaneous change, not change through therapy. In their non-representative study of non-heterosexual young adults, the researchers found, unsurprisingly, that the majority reported they had experienced spontaneous sexual attraction fluidity, some of them more than once. What was interesting was that the minority who had not experienced sexual attraction fluidity themselves, especially among men, more often believed sexual orientation is not changeable for all non-heterosexuals, contrary to findings in their study and in research broadly as we will later show.[47]

Alan Chambers and some others said they did not change through religiously-mediated efforts and believed no one else did either. In the case of Alan Chambers, the former president of Exodus International, his view also was contrary to actual research specific to Exodus. There is a prospective, longitudinal study on religiously-mediated sexual orientation change efforts that was conducted with individuals who were participating in some programs of member organizations of Exodus. It has been published in a book and a peer reviewed journal.[48] The study showed that some individuals diminished their same-sex attraction, some also developed heterosexual attraction, and some did not change. Out of all the subjects in the sample, there was one who reported change and later said he did not change. When Chambers took a position generalizing from his experience to the supposed experience of all members, he was wrong. Member organizations correctly disagreed with Chambers, left him, and formed new organizations (specifically, Restored Hope Network and later, Hope for Wholeness), effectively closing him down within a year of his taking his erroneous stand.

In addition to arguing indirectly that sexual orientation cannot change generally, and cannot change in therapy, the SPLC makes a claim coming from its own mouth directly that efforts to change sexual orientation through therapy are harmful. "The 'science' examined here actively harms people, leading with grim regularity to suicide, depression and an array of self-destructive behaviors."[49]

There is no credible scientific evidence that therapy that is open to change leads to harm, as the APA Task Force Report said in 2009, yet the SPLC repeatedly conveys it. The assertion of "leading with grim regularly to suicide" is a particularly egregious misrepresentation of therapy that is open to change provided by licensed mental health professionals.

There is no credible scientific evidence that therapy that is open to change leads to harm, as the APA Task Force Report said in 2009, yet the SPLC repeatedly conveys it. The assertion of "leading with grim regularly to suicide" is a particularly egregious misrepresentation of therapy that is open to change provided by licensed mental health professionals.

The SPLC also said: "Leelah Alcorn, 17-year-old transgender girl in Ohio, commits suicide.... her parents... forced her to go to a Christian-based conversion therapy program."[50]

Leelah's suicide note did not say her parents "forced her to go to a Christian-based conversion therapy program." It says the parents provided therapy from Christian therapists." The SPLC merely projects that onto the story, or assumes that all Christian counselors do "conversion therapy," which, of course, is far from the truth, since most have not been trained in it.

Even if Leelah's therapist were so trained, we believe the therapist would not do that kind of work with Leelah. Leelah said in her note that she did not want therapy to change her gender identity. A contemporary licensed professional psychotherapist, Christian or not, who is open to a client's goal of change in gender identity would accept that Leelah did not have a goal of change in gender identity and would not pursue that therapy goal with her. Contrary to what opponents regularly say, therapists open to change do not coerce a therapy goal.

The suicide note also cites disappointment in peers, saying, "I finally had my friends back. They were extremely excited to see me and talk to me, but only at first. Eventually they realized they didn't actually give a st about me, and I felt even lonelier than I did before. The only friends I thought I had only liked me because they saw me five times a week. After a summer of having almost no friends...." Leelah reports multiple stressors.

The SPLC implies from one sensational and questionable story that therapists who are open to a client's goal of change have clients' suiciding right and left. There are more examples of statements in the SPLC paper show their use of innuendo to misrepresent therapy open to sexual orientation or gender identity change.

The SPLC says: "[E]lectric shock therapy...has virtually disappeared at this point."[51]

We note that even the SPLC can no longer assert SOCE uses an electric shock method, but still brings it up to keep the association ongoing. Electric shock was an experimental and small part of mainstream behavior modification therapy in the 1960's to early 1980's that was not created just for unwanted sexual behaviors. It was used for other unwanted behaviors such as smoking cessation and control of alcohol abuse.[52]

Another example from the SPLC is:

> Historically, attempts to 'cure' gay people of their homosexuality have been marked by real horror stories—the use of castration, shock therapy, brain surgery, aversion therapy, the implantation of a heterosexual man's testicles and more.[53]

None of this bears any resemblance to contemporary professional therapy by licensed professionals, but there is little doubt that reporting this is intended to create such an association in the mind of the reader. By saying electric shock therapy and aversion therapy are historical, that is, not current, the SPLC is creating a current association between electric shock and archaic forms of medicine with contemporary talk therapy.

What the SPLC has actually established inadvertently is that even the SPLC—a staunch opponent of therapy that is open to change, with all its resources to research the matter and with its high motivation to find every possible flaw, acknowledges that such therapy does not use electric shock therapy or aversion therapy.

The SPLC also acknowledges a small number of researchers who had something positive to say about change therapy. Given that there are over 600 research publications, mostly peer reviewed, that span 125 years, the SPLC is quite minimalistic. These researchers pose a problem for the SPLC's disparagement of therapy that is open to change. We will illustrate how the SPLC deals with them.

> Even Masters and Johnson, the pioneering sexologists who were the first to show that homosexuality is common, claimed that gay people could be converted.[54]

Again, the inappropriate term "converted" falsely associates professional psychotherapy with religious practice in the mind of the reader. This is a misrepresentation. Saying only that the researchers "claimed" same-sex attracted individuals can change is an understatement. Masters and Johnson actually published research showing they had a high success rate at sexual orientation change therapy, using the behavioristic methods of their day (but not electric shock), that were similar to the methods by which Alfred Kinsey, arguably the father of the scientific study into homosexuality and himself a bisexual, also successfully helped homosexual men change sexual orientation.[55]

Again, the inappropriate term "converted" falsely associates professional psychotherapy with religious practice in the mind of the reader.

Notably, the SPLC embedded Master's and Johnson in the context of truly archaic medical practices such as an experiment with a testicle transplant, an "icepick" lobotomy, convulsive therapies using drugs, and Nazi experiments, as though these have any bearing on licensed mental health professionals using contemporary talk therapies. Clearly, the purpose is to create associations in the readers' minds that flagrantly misrepresent contemporary therapy and distract the reader from actual research showing change therapy that is safe and effective.

Sigmund Freud is also mentioned:

> But it was Sigmund Freud, the father of psychoanalysis, whose ideas about homosexuality, developed in the first decades of the 20th century, formed the basis of what most conversion therapists today believe. Although Freud did not demonize gay people...he did see homosexuality in both men and women as a former arrested psychosexual development...the triadic family... A closely related theory blames early childhood trauma like sexual molestation... Today, the consensus of the vast majority of psychologists, psychiatrists and other counselors is that the model is entirely false.[56]

This passage conveys that the link between childhood trauma like sexual molestation and same-sex attractions is a false model. The APA takes a position that sexual variations are normal, but since its 2014 Handbook, at least, is not consistent with that view. The APA Handbook said there is a potentially causal link between documented cases of childhood molestation and having a same-sex relationship.[57] The APA Handbook also says there are "psychoanalytic" factors in same-sex attraction.[58] Excellent research shows there is also a potentially causal link between same-sex attraction, behavior, and self-label identity and absence of a biological parent, especially the parent of the same-sex as the child, as through death, divorce, end of parent co-habitation, or unknown paternity, and especially during the first six years of life and, for girls, in the case of a mother's death during adolescence. Denying these realities suppresses knowledge from individuals who have been injured and stand to benefit from accurate knowledge.

Another religious support group is brought up as the SPLC focuses on its lawsuit against JONAH (Jews Offering New Alternatives to Healing):

> The judge in the case barred almost all testimony from the six experts proffered by the defendants, saying that 'the theory that homosexuality is a disorder is not novel but—like the notion that the earth is flat and the sun revolves around it—instead is outdated and refuted.'[59]

The SPLC makes much of its victory over JONAH. JONAH was a two volunteer non-profit dependent for its defense on the pro bono services of a small law firm going up against the SPLC with its multitude of attorneys and probably quarter of a billion dollar resources. As a non-profit, JONAH simply engaged in no commercial activity, a requirement to be covered by the Consumer Fraud Act. JONAH's attorney and a co-author summarized:

> The Court allowed the New Jersey Consumer Fraud Act (CFA) to be applied to a religious organization and a non-profit organization for the first time ever, and allowed recovery for non-economic damages, even though the New Jersey CFA specifically disallows such recovery. In retrospect, this was the first sign that the lawsuit had a pre-determined outcome.[60]

The Court conducted the trial on the assumption that same-sex attraction, unlike seemingly every other aspect of human experience, is remarkably never affected by trauma. As we have said and will later document, however, research shows potentially causal links between childhood sexual molestation and parent loss with same-sex attraction.[61]

Through this illustration and others, it is clear that the SPLC is a bully that tries to destroy volunteer-run religious support groups and psychotherapy for victims of sexual molestation and parent loss linked to same-sex attractions through suppressing, denying, and misrepresenting accurate scientific information and through viciously perpetrating falsehoods and deception.

The SPLC also reports research of another famous clinician and researcher:

> The NARTH Institute/Alliance for Therapeutic Choice presents 'initial data' from a longitudinal study of 102 psychotherapy patients at NARTH founder Joseph Nicolosi's Thomas Aquinas Psychological Clinic. Nicolosi and Alliance President Carolyn Pela claim that 12 months of data show 'statistically significant reductions in distress and improvements in well-being, significant movement toward heterosexual identity, and significant increases in heterosexual desires and thoughts with accompanying significant decreases in homosexual thoughts and desires."[62]

This study is being conducted to meet the recommendations of the APA Task Force in 2009 for research that can show that therapy causes sexual orientation change and is safe. The SPLC has to include this research so as not to be embarrassed by critics pointing it out and so as not to be accused of not offering other views to the reader. Ironically, the SPLC surrounds the study with a chorus of unsupported opinions that SOCE is "potentially harmful" in an effort to dilute the study's impact on the reader. But this credible evidence that SOCE is safe and effective undermines the position of the SPLC that it has spread in courts and legislatures—that sexual orientation never changes, especially never changes through therapy, and that efforts to change it through therapy are harmful. The result has been depriving children of therapy—children who are victims of child abuse and other trauma that forced same-sex attraction on them. Another result has been discouraging adults who were such children from even trying therapy that addresses their childhood trauma.

More evidence of the SPLC's practices of using "opinion-based smears and innuendos" as though they were educational and of violating governmental regulations comes from a 2017 Complaint against the SPLC to the IRS filed by the Federation for American Immigration Reform (FAIR). A press release published by FAIR that summarizes their complaint is titled, "FAIR Files Formal Exhaustive Complaint with the IRS: SPLC Violated Its Tax Exempt Status Repeatedly in the Last Election Cycle Alleges FAIR."[63]

The following quotes are from FAIR's press release summary of the complaint and address SPLC smear tactics:

> The SPLC used its tried and true formula of opinion-based smears and innuendos - tactics that it claims shield it from liability suits- to engage in blatant political activity masquerading as 'teaching tolerance.' The complaint reiterates that 'smear[ing] by association' is a 'primary technique of the SPLC'....

> According to IRS rules, organizations are not deemed educational, for instance, if their 'principal function is the mere presentation of unsupported opinion', if they 'fail [to] provide a factual foundation for the viewpoint or position being advocated' or they lack a 'full and fair exposition of the pertinent facts' which 'permit[s] an individual or the public to form an independent opinion or conclusion.'

These statements from the FAIR complaint also accurately describe the SPLC 2016 paper published on its website.

C. Summary

The purpose of this section was to highlight a few of the more egregious examples of false and misleading statements by the HRC, SPLC, and NCLR, their colleagues, and spokespersons.

Based on public statements on their websites, the NTFTE can now prove that these three organizations worked together, officially, in many of the campaigns described above. At the very least, it is clear they have cooperated with each other in other campaigns, spreading lies and providing misleading and false information to state liaisons (such as Garden State Equality) and actively promoted false stories of therapy torture, such as Brielle Goldani and NCLR spokesperson Samuel Brinton, while supporting persons who are providing misleading statements in front of state legislatures, such as the NCLR's spokesperson, Matthew Shurka, and Troy Stevenson, former Executive Director of Garden State Equality.

Additionally, SPLC also admits to working in cooperation with figures such as Wayne Besen, an active purveyor of tabloid-style journalism that regularly spins half-truths and lies of SOCE therapy on his website. In many cases, these three organizations (including Wayne Besen's Truth Wins Out) actively fundraise by promoting false and misleading statements about SOCE therapy. We believe this constitutes a clear violation of the Federal Trade Commission's consumer fraud laws.

We also want to acknowledge that while many additional inaccuracies have been told in front of state legislatures in the last five years by gay activists and other organizations working in cooperation with the HRC, SPLC, and NCLR, it would, however, be virtually impossible to document all of the fraudulent testimony and misleading statements. There are dozens, if not hundreds, of additional examples of fraudulent and misleading statements that exist in the public record of each of the twenty-five or so states that have introduced bills to ban SOCE therapy for minors.

IV. PETITIONERS' (LICENSED THERAPISTS AND CLIENTS) STATEMENT AND REQUEST

The Petitioners respectfully request that the Federal Trade Commission (FTC) investigate and put an end to the damaging, deceptive, and misleading hate campaigns of the SPLC, HRC and NCLR.

Pursuant to the FTC's mission to protect consumers from egregious, unfair, deceptive and fraudulent practices, in violation of Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission Act, we request that the FTC take enforcement action to stop the deceptive practices promoted by the SPLC, HRC and NCLR, including advertising, marketing, and other business practices in all forms, including through their websites, brochures, videos, social media, fundraising e-mails, and other advertisements and promotional materials.

A. The Respondents Violations of Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission

The Three Respondents' hate campaigns are intended to provide the public little or no choice in how to respond to unwanted same-sex attraction (SSA). The hate campaign propaganda is based on the false premise that being lesbian, gay, or bisexual is an unvarying and inborn characteristic of humanity.

There is no competent and reliable scientific evidence that has determined that SSA is fixed and not fluid. There is no scientific evidence that people are born gay. For those who are unhappy feeling SSA, a choice should be permitted. In fact, over the past 125 years there has been substantial valid and reliable scientific evidence that traditional therapy can work as well for unwanted SSA as it does for any other unwanted human behavior. Claims by respondents that therapies for SSA are ineffective are false and harmful to the public. Further, statistics show that both male and female homosexuals experience serious physical and emotional health risks as a result of their sexual behavior.

Despite the abundance of the historical and present day evidence of more than 125 years determining that traditional psychotherapy for unwanted SSA is effective in changing sexual attraction, behavior, and/or identity and is as effective as therapy for any other behavioral or emotional issue, Respondents' hate campaigns continue to mislead the public and pose serious health and safety risks to consumers, including the increased risk of death by suicide.

Section 5 of the Federal Trade Commission ACT (FTC Act) prohibits unfair and deceptive acts and practices.[65] To determine whether business practices are deceptive, the FTC considers three elements.[66]

First, it considers whether there has been a representation, omission, or practice that is likely to mislead the consumer. Second, it examines the practice from the perspective of a consumer acting reasonably in the circumstances. Third, it asks whether the representation, omission or practice is a "material" one. Neither an intent to deceive nor actual consumer harm is required to find an act deceptive under the FTC Act.[67] This analysis focuses on the risk of consumer harm.

Both expressed misrepresentations and implied misrepresentations are violations of the FTC Act. If a claim is likely to be misleading without qualifying information, the qualifying information must be disclosed in a "clear and conspicuous" manner. Clear and conspicuous disclosure is required because the FTC focuses on the overall net impression of an advertisement, and if a disclosure is not seen or comprehended, it will not change the net impression consumers take from an advertisement. A disclosure can qualify or limit a claim to avoid a misleading impression; it cannot, however, cure a false claim.[68]

The FTC has also issued rules for specific areas relating to deceptive acts or practices, such as the use of testimonials in advertising.[69]

B. The "Born Gay" Lie is a Deliberate Hoax Perpetrated by the Respondents

According to Kirk and Madsen, authors of After the Ball: How America Will Conquer Its Fear and Hatred of Gays in the 90's, the central role to be played by gay victimhood in the homosexual revolution, was that gay strategists would espouse the theory that homosexuals are "born that way"- in other words, that their sexual orientation is already determined at birth-whether or not there existed any scientific basis for such a claim. Individuals developing the hate campaigns of the HRC, SPLC, and NCLR, according to Kirk and Madsen, counsel their followers that they should portray themselves as victims of circumstances who "no more chose their sexual orientation than they did, say, their height, skin color, talents, or limitations." Revealingly, gay individuals such as Kirk and Madsen stress the need for homosexuals to stand behind the "Born Gay" theory--even though the authors themselves recognize its invalidity: "For all practical purposes, gays should be considered to have been born gay-even though sexual orientation, for most humans, seems to be the product of a complex interaction between innate predispositions and environmental factors during childhood and early adolescence."[70, 71]

The need to portray gays as victims is inseparably linked to the "Born Gay" hypothesis and needs to be addressed directly.

Jan Clausen, a former leader of New York's lesbian community (later expelled by her comrades for marrying a man) details how gay advocates developed this "born gay" fictive science as a tactic to influence public perceptions of sexual identity: "Fueled by the prestige of contemporary genetic science, the craze for biological explanations of all sorts of human behavior has given boost to 'born that way' theories of erotic attraction." Such pressure from "determinist" quarters, as well as "high profile campaigns for basic rights for gay men and lesbians" resulted in "obsessive media coverage of scientists' efforts to identify possible biological influences on sexuality," which, as the author herself acknowledges, were "commonly reported in oversimplified terms that foster notions of genetic determination not claimed by the researchers themselves." [72]

"People very much want to find simple answers... A gene for this, a gene for that...

Human behavior is much more complicated than that."

It bears stressing that as of the date of this publication, no genetic earmark distinguishing homosexuals from heterosexuals has been identified. So far as science has been able to discover, homosexuals and heterosexuals are genetically indistinguishable.[73] Moreover, as noted in 73 Not one of the researchers commonly cited by gay activists has reported anything even close to proving the genetic nature of sexual orientation. Not one study claiming results favorable to the "gay gene" theory has ever been replicated under the scrutiny of rigorous experimental controls. The three most cited studies are not only seriously flawed, but the authors themselves have admitted that those studies should not be cited as proof of the gay gene theory. For example:

1. Dean Hamer claimed his study showed a statistically significant correlation between homosexual orientation and the genetic sequence of the top of the X chromosome. His study has been widely criticized for lacking a control group and for a statistical methodology that, according to charges by a former research colleague, was flawed by data selectively chosen to enhance Hamer's thesis. Even Dr. Hamer admitted that "These genes do not cause people to become homosexuals ...the biology of personality is much more complicated than that." Time, April 27, 1998, cited in Chad Thompson, The Homophobia Stops Here: Addressing the Ex Gay Perspective in Public Schools, Des Moines: In Queery (2004), p. 10.

2. In an attempt to show that sexuality is hard-wired into the brain via the hypothalamus, Simon LeVay examined the corpses of 19 homosexuals who died of AIDS complications and compared them with a group of 16 male and 6 female corpses he presumed were heterosexual. His debatable conclusion noted a difference in the size of a specific neuron group (INA H3). His results, too, could never be replicated. Shortly after the study's publication, an openly homosexual reporter correctly observed, "It turns out that LeVay doesn't know anything about the sexual orientation of his control group." Critiquing LeVay's claim that "he knows his control group are heterosexual because their brains are different from HIVer corpses," the same commentator jibes, "Sorry, doctor; this is circular logic. You can use the sample to prove the theory or vice versa, but not both at the same time." Michael Botkin, "Salt and Pepper," The Bay Area Reporter, September 6, 1991, pp. 21, 24, as quoted in Anton M. Marco, "Gay Marriage," <http://www.narth.com/ docs/marco.html.>. LeVay himself is on record as stating: "The most common mistake people make in interpreting my work" is either that "homosexuality is genetic" or that it can prove "a genetic cause for being gay." Discover, March, 1994, as cited in Thompson, supra, p. 9. Hence, in spite of the torrents of propaganda about claimed differences ... versus "heterosexual" brains, no credible evidence has yet been found to support such claims. As Masters & Johnson conclude, "no serious scientist" would apply the "simple cause-effect relationship" of the genetic theory of homosexuality. Wm. Masters, Virginia Johnson, Robert Kolodny, Human Sexuality, Boston: Little Brown & Co. (2d ed. 1985), p. 411.

the highly respected British Medical Journal: "From an evolutionary perspective, genetically determined homosexuality would have become extinct long ago because of reduced reproduction."[74]

C. Evidence Against the Genetic/Biological Argument for Homosexuality

Genetics researcher Neil Risch noted in an August 1998 Newsweek article that the public has misunderstood behavioral genetics. "People very much want to find simple answers . . . A gene for this, a gene for that . . . Human behavior is much more complicated than that."[75]

Researchers Dar-Nimrod & Heine conclude:

> As there are no known complex human behaviors in which genetics render the actor unable to resist performing a behavior, we contend that genetic etiological accounts should not serve as the basis for moral evaluations . . . there are many other sources of influence at play... Furthermore, the amount of influence that genes have on behaviors is considerably smaller than one might think.[76]

The three rules of behavioral genetics by genetics researcher Erik Turkheimer (University of Virginia) are:[77]

1. All human behavioral traits are heritable.

2. The effect of being raised in the same family is smaller than the effect of genes.

3. A substantial portion of the variation in complex human behavioral traits is not accounted for by the effects of genes or families.

A 1993 scientific literature critique by Byne and Parsons in Archives of General Psychiatry reviewed more than 130 major studies on the subject and found no evidence favoring sexual orientation being either genetically or biologically determined.[78]

A 1993 scientific literature critique by Byne and Parsons in Archives of General Psychiatry reviewed more than 130 major studies on the subject and found no evidence favoring sexual orientation being either genetically or biologically determined

In 1987, sociologist Lee Ellis proposed the Maternal Stress Theory, which argues that maternal neurohormones functioned in determining the sexual orientation of a fetus.[79] In January 2012, psychology professor Stanton Jones posted an essay: "Sexual orientation and reason: On the implications of false beliefs about homosexuality." Jones details three primary theories in the debate regarding biological origins of same-sex sexual orientation: Maternal stress, fraternal birth order, and genetics. In reviewing Ellis' work on Maternal Stress Theory, Jones found strong selection bias in Ellis' study in that Ellis surveyed mothers of gay sons while the mothers were being instructed about maternal stress theory itself. [80]

In 2003, Anthony Bogaert of Canada's Brock University published a survey study showing that fraternal birth order of men, specifically the number of older brothers born to the same mother, correlated to increased chances of homosexual orientation. The theoretical explanation was that the mother's immune system became sensitized to male-derived proteins.[81]

1. Recruitment bias in the study led to non-representative sampling.

2. Canadian Psychiatrist Joseph Berger, M.D., a Distinguished Fellow with the American Psychiatric Association, said: "It [Bogert's study] is rubbish. It should never have been published. I suspect it was not peer-reviewed properly or was reviewed by someone so biased and ignorant that they were unable to see the huge flaws and [are] essentially ignorant of the literature."[82]

3. The media was quick to carry Bogaert's claims but not the criticisms. Dr. Stanton Jones noted in his review:

   a. Bogaert [then] analyzed two smaller nationally representative samples, finding an exceptionally weak 'older brother' effect only for same-sex attraction (and no effect for same-sex behavior)."[83]

   b. Bogaert then assessed "an independent . . . and representative sample eight times the size those of his previous studies, in which he found that the older brother effect had disappeared."[84]

   c. A study of two million Danish subjects[85] and another of 10,000 American adolescents also identified no "older brother" effect.[86]

The genetic hypothesis of same-sex sexual orientation has long held sway in the media, and twin studies helped propel this. Michael Bailey and colleagues conducted numerous studies in an attempt to show a statistically significant concordance of homosexuality in identical twins. Since identical twins share the same gene pool, the existence of a "gay gene" should have produced a near 100% rate of concordance. However, the highest percentage ever tabulated was just over 50%. When Bailey tried to replicate his findings with an Australian population of twins, his new study showed homosexuality concurring in less than half the number claimed in his original study. Dr. Neil Whitehead has extensively analyzed these studies and debunked the genetic theories.[87]

Since identical twins share the same gene pool, the existence of a "gay gene" should have produced a near 100% rate of concordance. However, the highest percentage ever tabulated was just over 50%.

Prof. Jones wrote that in a 1991 Archives of General Psychiatry study, J. Bailey claimed that the concordance rate for homosexuality was 52 percent in identical male twin pairs.[88] Bailey had second thoughts about how his study subjects were recruited through advertisements in Chicago's gay community (multiple biases). He next examined samples from the Australian Twin Registry, producing an identical male twin homosexual orientation concordance rate of 20 percent with simple descriptive matching at 11 percent. Bailey reported that the genetic contribution to homosexual orientation failed to show statistical significance, but the media did not tune in.[89]

A 2010 study of the Swedish Twin Registry found only 9.8 percent of identical male twin pairs matching for homosexual orientation.[90]

Dr. Francis Collins, who was the director of the Human Genome Project at the National Institutes for Health stated: "... the likelihood that the identical twin of a homosexual male will also be gay is about 20% (compared with 2-4 percent of males in the general population), indicating that sexual orientation is genetically influenced but not hardwired by DNA, and that whatever genes are involved represent predispositions, not predeterminations."[91]

Per Dr. Neil Whitehead's analysis: "... if one identical twin—male or female—has SSA, the chances are only about 10 percent that the co-twin also has it. In other words, identical twins usually differ for SSA."[92]

Dr. Eric Turkheimer, psychologist and behavioral genetics researcher, indicates there are two reasons why identical twins raised in the same family do not have identical outcomes. One is measurement error. The other: "...is the self-determinative ability of humans to chart a course for their own lives, . . . in a phrase, is free will." [93]

In a review by Kelly Servick in 2014, it was reported that Bailey and Sanders presented another X-linked "gay gene" study. Scientists were not impressed because "genetic linkage" was used for DNA analysis rather than the current "genome-wide association" (GWA), and the researchers took an awfully long time to get published. They didn't show underlying/causative genes, and Sanders reportedly admitted the Xq28 linkage was not statistically significant. (Neil Risch's 1999 study disproving Xq28 was cited).[94]

D. So how much of sexual orientation is genetic versus environmental?

Eric Turkheimer, an expert in the field, warns that heritability statistics are tricky due to difficulty in clearly seeing and assessing environmental factors, which he feels contribute strongly to development.[95]

Elsewhere, Turkheimer states: "... the amount of influence that genes have on behaviors is considerably smaller than one might think."[96] He insists: "... genetic essentialists were wrong about gay genes and similar nonsense."[97]

Epigenetics analyzes the interaction of genes and environment. There is a life-long interplay between our genetic blueprints and our chains of choices and their consequences. For example, the more weight one gains, the more likely diabetes manifests. But even in the genetically disposed, diabetes can often be avoided or reversed by the right choices over time. Epigenetics changes constantly in response to environment and the choices we make. Looking for causation there is a recipe for misunderstanding behavior. Again, genes determine predispositions, not destiny. Heritability is not inevitability.

A UCLA team reported at the October 2015 American Society of Human Genetics conference identifying epigenetic markers with which they could predict with nearly 70% accuracy if men were homosexual. The media reported approvingly, and the scientists at the conference tore it apart for poor method and poor validity of results. Dr. John Greally (Albert Einstein College of Medicine) stated: "We can no longer allow poor epigenetics studies to be given credibility if this field is to survive . . . The problems in the field are systematic."[98]

Notwithstanding the flaws in "gay gene studies," and thanks to the constant bombardment of misinformation and disinformation by the media and the hoax perpetrated by SPLC, HRC and NCLR, the myth of a "gay gene" has seeped into the public consciousness.

Notwithstanding the flaws in "gay gene studies," and thanks to the constant bombardment of misinformation and disinformation by the media and the hoax perpetrated by SPLC, HRC and NCLR, the myth of a "gay gene" has seeped into the public consciousness. For example, after the 1993 publication of Dr. Hamer's study, the New York Times headlined: "Report Suggests Homosexuality is Linked to Genes," while the Wall Street Journal trumpeted, "Research Points Toward a 'Gay' Gene." Two later headlines in the New York Times illustrate the ongoing effort to keep the theory alive: "Study Reveals New Difference between the Sexes" and "For Gay Men, Different Scent of Attraction."[99]

Prof. Paul McHugh of Johns Hopkins University said: "Unlike the traits of race and sex, and again despite popular beliefs to the contrary, no replicated scientific study supports the view that sexual orientation is determined at birth."[100]

The American Psychological Association has reviewed the research literature on origins of same-sex sexuality in the APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology (APA Handbook).[101] There is no question that the APA considers its Handbook to be authoritative. In its "Series Preface," the APA Handbook on Sexuality and Psychology states:

With the imprimatur of the largest scientific and professional organization representing psychology in the United States and the largest association of psychologists in the world, and with content edited and authored by some of its most respected members, the APA Handbooks in Psychology series will be the indispensable and authoritative reference resource to turn to for researchers, instructors, practitioners, and field leaders alike.[102]

The American Psychological Association (APA) could not confer any higher authority on the APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology than it does, bestowing its "imprimatur" and calling it "authoritative." In addition, Dr. Lisa Diamond, a self-avowed lesbian, is co-editor-in-chief of the Handbook, and she authors and co-authors chapters in it. She qualifies as one of the APA's "most respected members."

Regarding whether there is a "gay gene," Rosario and Scrimshaw say in the APA Handbook, "[W]e are far from identifying potential genes that may explain not just male homosexuality but also female homosexuality."[103] The authors of the APA Handbook still hold that as-yet-unidentified genes contribute toward same-sex attraction in some way.

Diamond and colleagues said in 2016, "To provide a basis of comparison, it is helpful to note that higher estimates of heritability (ranging from .4 [40%] to .6 [60%]) have been found for a range of characteristics that are not widely considered immutable, such as being divorced, smoking, having low back pain, and feeling body dissatisfaction."[104] One may well note that these conditions (with the exception generally for lower back pain) are also widely considered to be changeable for some through psychological intervention and without harm.[105] Estimates of heritability for same-sex attraction are 40% to 50% in the APA Handbook[106] but 32% in more recent publications of Diamond and colleagues.[107]

With respect to the role of epigenetics, Diamond and Rosky point out, "In essence, the current scientific revolution in our understanding of the human epigenome challenges the very notion of being "born gay," along with the notion of being "born" with any complex trait. Rather, our genetic legacy is dynamic, developmental, and environmentally embedded" (emphasis added).[108]

Regarding the fraternal birth order hypothesis, Diamond and Rosky conclude: "Prenatal hormones potentially contribute to same-sex sexuality in some individuals but do not determine it."[109]

Historically, some have conceded that some same-sex sexuality is not biologically determined while maintaining that some is. Kleinplatz and Diamond conclude: "The inconvenient reality... is that social behaviors are always jointly determined by 'a range of constitutional propensities interacting with a range of facultative opportunities' ... rendering the entire constitution-facultative distinction (and, of course, its implied nature-nurture distinction) overly simplistic."[110]

Diamond and Rosky explain: "Even if sexual orientation were wholly determined by genes or by perinatal hormones, it would not mean that it was immutable, given that immutable means unchangeable. Although the status of a trait as biologically determined is

Diamond and Rosky explain: "Even if sexual orientation were wholly determined by genes or by perinatal hormones, it would not mean that it was immutable, given that immutable means unchangeable. Although the status of a trait as biologically determined is often inflated with its capacity to change over the life course, these are not synonymous constructs."

In summary, the scientific literature does not (emphasis added) support sexual orientation being genetically or biologically determined.

E. What Else Contributes to Same-Sex Attractions and Gender Dysphoria?

The 2008 American Psychological Association's brochure (and their current website, April 2017) states:

> There is no consensus among scientists about the exact reasons that an individual develops a heterosexual, bisexual, gay, or lesbian orientation. Although much research has examined the possible genetic, hormonal, developmental, social, and cultural influences on sexual orientation, no findings have emerged that permit scientists to conclude that sexual orientation is determined by any particular factor or factors. Many think that nature and nurture both play complex roles; most people experience little or no sense of choice about their sexual orientation.[112]

Dr. Jeffrey Satinover says of homosexuality: "It is most often a deeply-embedded condition that develops over many years, beginning long before the development of moral and self-awareness, and is genuinely experienced by the individual as though it was never absent in one form or another. It is, in other words, similar to most human characteristics, and shares with them the typical possibilities for, and difficulties in, achieving sustained change."[113]

Dr. Nicholas Cummings, Ph.D., Sc.D. (past APA president, 20 years Chief of Mental Health of Kaiser-Permanente HMO, practiced in San Francisco) oversaw the treatment of 18,000 gay and lesbian clients in their system over the years with conflicts over their homosexuality and personally treated 2000.[114] He concluded:

> There are many kinds of homosexuality: "There are as many kinds of homosexuals as heterosexuals. Homosexuality is not a unitary experience. [Some gays were quite promiscuous in response to a chaotic upbringing; some had wonderful families. Some were very conforming with traditional gender roles and others were not."]. No single cause for all homosexuality: "Dogmatism about causes is unwarranted . . . clinical experience contradicts efforts to reduce homosexuality to one set of factors."[115]

In 2001, a study published by Tomeo, et al. found that 942 nonclinical adult participants: homosexual molestation was reported by 46% of the homosexual men, but 7% of the heterosexual men; and 22% of lesbian women, but only 1% of heterosexual women.

In 2001, a study published by Tomeo, et al. found that 942 nonclinical adult participants: homosexual molestation was reported by 46% of the homosexual men, but 7% of the heterosexual men; and 22% of lesbian women, but only 1% of heterosexual women.[116]

In the APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology, Mustanski, Kuper, and Greene confirm there is excellent research evidence for "associative or potentially causal links" between childhood sexual abuse and ever having same-sex partners, especially for some men."[117] They said, "The largest reviews of the literature in this area indicated that MSM [men who have sex with men] report rates of childhood sexual abuse that are approximately three times higher than that of the general male population (Purcell, Malow, Dolezal, & Carballo-Dieguez, 2004)."[118]

Mustanski and colleagues continue in the APA Handbook: "One of the most methodologically rigorous studies in this area used a prospective longitudinal case-control design that involved following abused and matched nonabused children into adulthood 30 years later. It found that men with documented histories of childhood sexual abuse had 6.75 times greater odds than controls of reporting ever having same-sex sexual partners (H. W. Wilson & Widom, 2010...The effect in women was smaller (odds ratio = 2.11) and a statistical trend (p = .09)."[119]

Not only sexual trauma, but psychoanalytic factors also contribute to same-sex attractions, according to the APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology upon which the APA confers its imprimatur and which it declares "authoritative." In the Handbook, Rosario and Schrimshaw say: "Biological explanations, however, do not entirely explain sexual orientation. Psychoanalytic contingencies are evident as main effects or in interaction with biological factors....A joint program of research by psychoanalysts and biologically oriented scientists may prove fruitful."[120]

There is excellent research showing loss of living with a biological parent, as through death, divorce, end of parent co-habitation, or unknown paternity, is potentially causally linked to same-sex attraction, relationships, and self-label identity. Evidence comes from three large, prospective, longitudinal, population-based studies.[121]

In the most stunning of these, a study of an entire population cohort of 2 million Danes found that loss of a biological parent—especially the parent of the same-sex as the child, especially during the first six years of life, and for girls the death of the mother during adolescence—was potentially causally related to entering a same-sex marriage rather then an opposite-sex marriage. The effects were stronger for boys than for girls.[122] The study found no evidence of the FBO effect. These findings give evidence that potentially causal social environmental factors have effects in the earliest years of childhood development. Hence, evidence for an early origin for same-sex sexuality does not in itself argue for a biological origin.

There is evidence that transgender identity also may not be a normal sexual variation. The APA Handbook says the origin of transgender identity is "most likely the result of a complex interaction between biological and environmental factors..."

In America, similar evidence was found by studies that used the data set of the National Longitudinal Study of Adolescent to Adult Health, or Ad Health. [123] In one of these studies, Francis[124] looked at the first two waves conducted with participants at ages 16 and 17. He found that growing up without a biological mother increased the likelihood of identifying as non heterosexual by 9.5 percentage points for girls and by 4.5 percentage points for boys. Thus, mother absence was related to increased non-heterosexual identity, especially in daughters. A boy growing up without either biological parent increased the likelihood of same-sex attraction, behavior, and sexual orientation identity. The study failed to find evidence for the FBO effect.

But Francis did not find a relationship specifically between absence of the father and same-sex sexuality for a son during the first two waves of the Ad Health study. Udry and Chantala[125] looked at the first three waves, obtaining data at ages 16, 17, and 18 through 24, from the Ad Health data set. Unlike Francis, Udry and Chantala measured sexual attraction on two separate scales for degree of same-sex attraction and degree of opposite-sex attraction. They found that among boys who had strong same-sex interest, 90% had absent fathers, a very strong affect. The stronger the degree of same-sex attraction, the greater the likelihood of father absence, delinquency, and suicidal thoughts. As opposite sex attraction also rose, that relationship completely disappeared. [126] Where the biological father was present, boys were likely to experience opposite-sex attraction, possibly alongside same-sex attraction. Girls who grew up with their father absent evidenced high sex interest directed at either sex.[127] Thus, father absence was related to same-sex attraction, especially in boys.

Regarding childhood gender dysphoria or distress, the APA Handbook has some important things to say. There is evidence that transgender identity also may not be a normal sexual variation. The APA Handbook says the origin of transgender identity is "most likely the result of a complex interaction between biological and environmental factors... Research on the influence of family of origin dynamics has found some support for separation anxiety among gender-nonconforming boys and psychopathology among mothers."[128]

Further, Bockting says in the APA Handbook: "Premature labeling of gender identity should be avoided. Early social transition (i.e., change of gender role, such as registering a birth-assigned boy in school as a girl) should be approached with caution to avoid foreclosing this stage of (trans)gender identity development." If there is early social transition, "the stress associated with possible reversal of this decision has been shown to be substantial...."[129]

The American Psychological Association, in its Handbook,[130] and the American Psychiatric Association in its Diagnostic and Statistical Manual[131] say there are three approaches to treatment: attempts to lessen the dysphoria and nonconformity, attempts to get the environment—family, school, and community—to fully accept the child's gender-variant identity, and the wait-and-see approach. The APA Handbook warns that the full acceptance approach "runs the risk of neglecting individual problems the child might be experiencing and may involve an early gender role transition that might be challenging to reverse if cross-gender feelings do not persist."

The falsehoods that the SPLC, HRC, and NCLR promote lead the public and some mental health professionals to assume that all individuals who experience any same-sex attraction are really exclusively homosexual and would be happier leaving their heterosexual marriage and breaking up their family to go have same-sex relationships.

F. Living Things Change and So Can Same-Sex Attraction: Change is Well Documented in Adolescents and Adults without Intervention

Conventional wisdom that the APA Handbook says it is not true is that same-sex attraction never changes. The APA Handbook states: "[R]esearch on sexual minorities has long documented that many recall having undergone notable shifts in their patterns of sexual attractions, behaviors, or [orientation] identities over time."[132] "Although change in adolescence and emerging adulthood is understandable, change in adulthood contradicts the prevailing view of consistency in sexual orientation."[133] "Over the course of life, individuals experience the following:...changes or fluctuations in sexual attractions, behaviors, and romantic partnerships."[134]

The APA Handbook states: "[I]n all studies, heterosexual identified individuals show greater stability than non heterosexual..."[135] That is, change is greater for same-sex sexuality than for heterosexuality.

Many individuals who seek therapy with the goal of making a significant and meaningful shift in their sexual attraction already begin with some degree of opposite-sex attraction alongside same-sex attraction, and the combination generally increases potential for change. In the APA Handbook, Dr. Diamond states: "Hence, directly contrary to the conventional wisdom that individuals with exclusive same-sex attractions represent the prototypical 'type' of sexual-minority individual, and that those with bisexual patterns of attraction are infrequent exceptions, the opposite is true. Individuals with nonexclusive patterns of attraction are indisputably the 'norm,' and those with exclusive same-sex attractions are the exception." This pattern has been found internationally.[136]

Plentiful evidence (multiple large, prospective, longitudinal, representative sample and cohort studies) makes clear that both-sex attracted individuals (including bisexual and mostly heterosexual individuals) account for most same-sex sexuality, and both-sex attracted individuals experience the most change in attraction, behavior, and identity over time.[137]

Kleinplatz and Diamond say: "Historically such individuals [mostly heterosexual] have been treated with skepticism and suspicion by laypeople and scientists alike. They have been viewed as either closeted lesbian, gay, or bisexual individuals (who cling to a mostly heterosexual label to avoid the stigma associated with same-sex sexuality) or as confused or questioning 'heteroflexibles.'"[138]

Kleinplatz and Diamond urge that "it is critically important for clinicians not to assume that any experience of same-sex desire or behavior is a sign of latent homosexuality and instead to allow individuals to determine for themselves the role of same-sex sexuality in their lives and identity."[139]

The falsehoods that the SPLC, HRC, and NCLR promote lead the public and some mental health professionals to assume that all individuals who experience any same-sex attraction are really exclusively homosexual and would be happier leaving their heterosexual marriage and breaking up their family to go have same-sex relationships. An anecdotal illustration of the harm comes from the experience of a man whose therapist told him his sexual attraction could not change, and he would be happier leaving his wife and daughter to have gay relationships. In despair, not relief, he left his marriage and family, and for nine years he had gay relationships, living a life he did not want to live. At the end, he decided to get help to change his sexual attraction, and he married a woman. But he grieves the years he and his daughter lost that he was not living with her and raising her full time, a loss that can never be made up to them. [140]

Diamond and Rosky concluded: "Several... studies have now been completed and they unequivocally demonstrate that same-sex and other-sex attractions do change over time in some individuals." Across several large, population-based, prospective, longitudinal studies, among same-sex attracted individuals who changed, 50 to 100% changed to exclusive heterosexuality.

Yes, they should. Some non exclusively same-sex attracted individuals want to protect their heterosexual relationship and family by stopping periodic same-sex behavior. Should they be able to get that help? Yes, they should, Some non exclusively same-sex attracted minors or young adults aspire to be able to be in an opposite sex relationship and to procreate children with their partner and raise them together, as many people aspire to do, but they may need help to change periodic or a small amount of same-sex attraction. The SPLC, HRC, and NCLR tell them they can never change and try to make therapy to help them be illegal.

Also, both the American Psychiatric Association[141] and the American Psychological Association[142] recognize childhood transgender identity fluctuates. As many as 75% to 98% of gender-confused boys and as many as 75% to 88% of gender confused girls will eventually accept their chromosomal sex by adolescence or adulthood if allowed to do so.

Change is the norm for sexual orientation and childhood gender dysphoria. Therapy that is open to exploring an individual's potential for a shift in sexual attraction or gender identity is better aligned with the norm of change and direction of change for sexual orientation and childhood gender dysphoria than is gay-affirmative or transgender-affirmative therapy.

Adolescents who experience any same-sex attraction, behavior, or identity self-label should not be led to interpret these as meaning they have a stable sexual orientation trait. Researchers nowadays do not even try to measure homosexuality as a stable or coherent trait. Instead, they often measure sexual orientation by one or more of three separate components: sexual attraction, behavior, or self-label identity. The APA Handbook says these do not necessarily match within the same individual.[143]

For example, heterosexual minors who had same-sex attraction and behavior forced upon them by childhood molestation could have bisexual attraction, homosexual behavior, and heterosexual identity, if there is a sense that the same-sex sexuality does not represent the authentic self.

Diamond and Rosky concluded: "Several...studies have now been completed and they unequivocally demonstrate that same-sex and other-sex attractions do change over time in some individuals."[144] Across several large, population-based, prospective, longitudinal studies, among same-sex attracted individuals who changed, 50 to 100% changed to exclusive heterosexuality.[145]

Opponents of SOCE often claim that sexual attraction can never change from exclusively same-sex attraction to exclusively opposite-sex attraction. But that is not true. The University of Chicago 1994 (US) National Health and Social Life Survey (UHSLS) conducted by Laumann and colleagues reported that "men who report same-gender sex only before they turned eighteen, not afterward, constitute 42 percent of the total number of men who report ever having a same-gender experience."[146] This study continues to be highly regarded and has not ceased to be cited by leading researchers to this day, as exemplified by numerous citations in the APA Handbook.[147]

Udry and Chantala, examining the data from the first two waves, found 89% of exclusively same-sex attracted boys experienced change in sexual identity in just one year from age 16 to age 17. After one year's time, only 11% remained identified as exclusively same-sex attracted. The majority, 54%, migrated toward or to exclusive heterosexuality, with 48% exclusively opposite-sex attracted and 6% newly attracted to both sexes. These results show that nearly half of adolescent boys changed from exclusive homosexual attraction to exclusive heterosexual attraction in just one year.

There is yet more excellent evidence of complete change from exclusive same-sex attraction to exclusive opposite-sex attraction in adolescents. The National Longitudinal Study of Adolescent to Adult Health (Ad Health) is also highly regarded and is reviewed in the APA Handbook. It has now gone through five waves of data collection on a large, nationally representative sample. Udry and Chantala, examining the data from the first two waves, found 89% of exclusively same-sex attracted boys experienced change in sexual identity in just one year from age 16 to age 17. After one year's time, only 11% remained identified as exclusively same-sex attracted. The majority, 54%, migrated toward or to exclusive heterosexuality, with 48% exclusively opposite-sex attracted and 6% newly attracted to both sexes. These results show that nearly half of adolescent boys changed from exclusive homosexual attraction to exclusive heterosexual attraction in just one year. For 35% of the boys, same-sex attraction dropped out, but heterosexual attraction had not developed. They became neither-sex attracted. Boys who were neither-sex attracted in early adolescence went on to develop attraction to women in the Ad Health study as Savin-Williams and Ream continued to follow them.[148]

In support of findings of Savin-William and Ream, it may be noted here that similar results were found in the Growing Up Today Study (GUTS) in 2013. This study is a large, prospective, longitudinal cohort study of the children of women participating in the Nurses' Health Study II. The researchers, Ott and colleagues, documented the plasticity of same-sex sexuality of youth beginning at ages 9 through 14 and following up every two years thereafter.[149] They found that youth who were unsure or uncertain of their sexual identity predominantly migrated to an exclusive heterosexual identity.[150]

Savin-Williams and Ream (2007), commenting on the findings of the first three waves of the Ad Health study, said that, overall, the majority of shifts in sexual behavior were toward heterosexuality.[151] "Participants indicating non heterosexuality in Wave 1 were often not the same individuals who indicated non heterosexuality one and five years later.[152] "All attraction categories other than opposite-sex were associated with a lower likelihood of stability over time."[153]

Reflecting on the first four waves of the Ad Health study, Savin-Williams and Joyner in 2014 observed that: "approximately 80% of adolescent boys and half of adolescent girls who expressed either partial or exclusive same-sex romantic attraction at Wave I 'turned' hetero-sexual (opposite-sex attraction or exclusively heterosexual identity) as young adults."[154]

There has been some debate as to whether some of the adolescent participants that Savin-William and Ream studied in the first three waves acted as "jokesters" in their responses, resulting in the high rates of same-sex attracted adolescents becoming heterosexual.[155] However, the authors had noted that their findings are consistent with those of other highly regarded studies, including that of Laumann and colleagues. The latter, one may note, obtained their findings from retrospective reports by adults aged 18 to 59,[156] not from 16 or 17 year olds. Savin-Williams and colleagues had highlighted that Laumann et al. "expressed doubt about the extent to which non heterosexual sexual categories, behaviors, and attractions remained stable over time.... Yet, researchers readily acknowledge the existence of such sexual groups ("gay youth") with little evidence that these individuals will be in the same group a month, a year, or a decade henceforth."[157]

It was important that students' sexual confusion is not entrenched by the born-that-way-and-can't-change rhetoric of the SPLC, HRC, and NCLR. The norm is that most will experience change if allowed to. It is possible, however, that some may need help from therapy in the process.

Prof. Paul McHugh said: "... researchers have found that all three of the most frequently mentioned dimensions of sexual orientation – attraction, behavior, and identity – are subject to change over time."[158]

From Columbia University Press: "At clinical conferences one often hears . . . that homosexuality is fixed and unmodifiable. Neither assertion is true...The assertion that homosexuality is genetic is so reductionist that it must be dismissed out of hand as a general principle of psychology."[159]

Dr. Dean Hammer said: "Women tend to be more sexually fluid. We've interviewed lesbians who have always identified as lesbian but who fantasize about men."[160]

Dr. Lisa Diamond determined from her research: "Sexuality identity is far from fixed in women who aren't exclusively heterosexual."[161]

Dr. Lisa Diamond, co-editor in chief of the APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology, an avowed lesbian, and a political activist, is adamantly on a campaign to get political activists such as those at the SPLC, HRC, and NCLR, to stop perpetrating the harmful claim that sexual orientation does not change, like skin color. For nearly a decade, she has not backed down on her mission, yet the SPLC, HRC, and NCLR have knowingly continued to push their false and misleading claims.

The following are some examples of her statements that such claims are false, misleading, and harmful.

Dr. Diamond reported on her 10-year longitudinal study of non-heterosexual women in her book, Sexual Fluidity: Understanding Women's Love and Desire. This book won the "Distinguished Book Award" from the APA Division 44 (LGBT). In this book, Dr. Diamond weighed in on the harm of political activists promoting the "can't change" myth. She acknowledged that, for political motives, some activists "keep propagating a deterministic model: sexual minorities are born that way and can never be otherwise." She addressed the question, "[I]s it really so bad that it is inaccurate?" Her answer was, "Over the long term, yes, particularly because women are systematically disenfranchised by this approach." She said this deceptive practice does harm to women who have experienced sexual attraction fluidity and have "thought there was something wrong with them." She said this "silencing is ironic," because it is being inflicted by the modern lesbian/gay/bisexual rights movement.[162]

In a 2013 lecture to an LGBT audience at Cornell University, Dr. Diamond said, "I feel as a community, the queers have to stop saying, 'Please help us. We're born this way, and we can't change' as an argument for legal standing. I don't think we need that argument, and that argument is going to bite us in the ass, because now we know that there's enough data out there, that the other side is aware of as much as we are aware of it."[163] In other words, she said, "Stop saying 'born that way and can't change' for political purposes, because the other side knows it's not true as much as we do."

A 2016 "Annual Review of Sex Research Special Issue" of the Journal of Sex Research features a review by Diamond and attorney, Rosky. The abstract says, "We review scientific research and legal authorities to argue that the immutability of sexual orientation should no longer be invoked as a foundation for the rights of individuals with same-sex attractions and relationships (ie., sexual minorities)....arguments based on the immutability of sexual orientation are unscientific, given what we now know from longitudinal, population-based studies of naturally occurring changes in the same-sex attractions of some individuals over time.... arguments about the immutability of sexual orientation are unjust...."[164]

In this paper, the authors further said: "We hope that our review of scientific findings and legal rulings regarding immutability will deal these arguments a final and fatal blow."[165]

Diamond and Rosky testify that the immutability claims of activists, such as those in the SPLC, HRC, and NCLR, are "unjust." Diamond testifies such claims cause harm, and the methods of political activists who perpetrate the falsehood inflict "silencing." They lead individuals who experience change in same-sex attractions to think there is something wrong with them and can leave them feeling alone in their experience.

As we will document, so that would mean they admit it is not being used on minors. Is there credible evidence that electric shock has ever been used on children or adolescents to change sexuality?

H. No "Electric Shock," "Electroconvulsive Shock," or Credible Evidence of Harm

The SPLC has admitted electric shock is not presently being used at all in psychotherapy to change sexual attraction or behavior. As we will document, so that would mean they admit it is not being used on minors. Is there credible evidence that electric shock has ever been used on children or adolescents to change sexuality?

An extensive research review by an APA task force in 2009[166] concluded there is no research on sexual orientation change efforts for children[167] or adolescents.[168] Although the task force conducted a review of behavior modification research on sexual orientation change efforts, it found no research showing that electric shock has ever been used or coerced on children or adolescents to modify sexuality. In fact, it said there is no research on change therapy for minors whatever. Those who make such claims furnish no scientific research or reliable evidence of such a practice either. The petitioners of this complaint to the FTC do not use electric shock methods, nor do they know of anyone who does, and certainly not with minors.

Historically, aversive methods such as electric shock were used with informed and consenting adult clients by mainstream psychotherapists, especially in the 1960's and early 1980's, as a small, experimental part of the dominant form of psychotherapy at the time called behavior modification. The philosophy of behavior modification was to treat only objectively observable behaviors, not internal experiences per se. Behavior modification provided positive consequences for behaviors a client wanted to increase and aversive consequences for behaviors a client wanted to decrease. When electric shock was used, an adult client chose the level of shock, and the shock was delivered into a muscle in an arm or leg, never the genitals. The use of electric shock was voluntary, not coerced. Aversive methods such as electric shock certainly were not used just for unwanted sexual behaviors. They were also used for cessation of smoking and for alcohol abuse.[169]

Behavior modification was so popular among therapists that an individual practically had to be a behaviorist to be the chair of a psychology department in a college or university. Therapists flocked to huge conferences on behavior modification. Use of electric shock to diminish same-sex attraction stopped, not because of lawsuits, but because the American Psychiatric Association removed homosexuality from the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual, second edition. By the end of the 1980's, behavior modification was being replaced by cognitive behavioral therapy (CBT) that was becoming dominant, and aversive methods such as electric shock went by the wayside.

To our knowledge, psychotherapists have not used electric shock or other aversive methods for decades, and we know of no reliable evidence that licensed psychotherapists ever used electric shock on minors for sexual behaviors. If anyone who was born in recent decades claims they received electric shock or aversive methods from a licensed mental health professional when they were a child, especially for same-sex attractions or gender identity, their claim should be taken with a very large grain of salt. But if there was a case where such a method was used, the claimant should make a complaint to the licensing board in their state, and doing so will stop its use.

There is no evidence that "electroconvulsive shock" was ever used by licensed mental health professionals to modify sexuality, contrary to the claims of the NCLR and Washington state bill HB 2541 quoted above. Electroconvulsive shock therapy (ECT) is a method used by some psychiatrists for the most severe cases of depression, mania, or some other severe psychiatric disorders.[170] Electroconvulsive therapy is not the electric shock method that was used in behavior modification to modify behavior. We know of no instances where clients were caused to convulse from electric shock as a method of modifying behavior or sexuality. There is little doubt that the purpose in using the term "electroconvulsive electric shock" is to alarm and deceive legislators into banning therapy.

The SPLC, HRC, and NCLR claim that therapy with minors that is open to SOGI change results in "suicide" or "death." Opponents frequently cite research by Ryan et al. (2009) about suicide in same-sex attracted minors as if it is about SOCE change therapy, but therapy that is open to SOGI change was not even mentioned in the study, and there was no indication any of the participants had such therapy.[171]

Opponents not only regularly claim therapy that is open to change employs aversive methods such as electric shock or electroconvulsive shock therapy and leads to suicide and death. Opponents also often claim the American Psychological Association Task Force Report in 2009 found scientific evidence that sexual orientation change efforts are ineffective or harmful, even using such words as "dangerous," "psychologically damaging" or "stark," but such claims are false. Diamond and Rosky are guilty of this, as a review by Rosik penetratingly critiques.[172]

In reality, the APA task force report found research evidence for the safety and effectiveness of both therapy that is open to change and gay-affirmative therapy to be inconclusive. "Inconclusive" just means the task force had no idea. The Task Force also reported that no data for the safety of gay-affirmative therapy existed.[173] Lack of evidence as to whether a therapy is safe or effective—whether the therapy be heterosexual affirmative therapy or gay affirmative therapy—does not equal evidence that the therapy is ineffective or harmful. Put another way, lack of evidence does not equal evidence of lack.

If lack of conclusive research evidence is grounds for labeling a goal of therapy, "harmful, quackery, snake oil, bogus, consumer fraud" and something that "should be banned," then gay-affirmative therapy, transgender-affirmative therapy, "wait-and-see" therapy, and many other approaches to therapy should be given those same labels and be "banned."

Peter Sprigg, senior fellow for policy studies at the Family Research Council, offered the following analysis of what the APA has said about sexual orientation change efforts in his testimony to the state of Vermont.[174]

> The American Psychological Association (APA), under the sway of ideological opponents of reorientation therapy, has criticized and discouraged (but never banned) reorientation therapy. Yet even the APA acknowledges that: "participants reporting beneficial effects in some studies perceived changes to their sexuality, such as in their sexual orientation [attraction], gender identity, sexual behavior, [and/or] sexual orientation identity."
> Critics cite another APA statement that there is "no sufficiently scientifically sound evidence that sexual orientation can be changed." This, however, means only that the evidence does not meet all the criteria for "gold standard" social science research, such as large, random samples, a prospective and longitudinal design (tracking people before, during, and after therapy), and use of a control group.
> Yet the evidence that sexual orientation change efforts, or SOCE, are harmful is virtually all anecdotal – the kind of evidence which critics of SOCE refuse to accept with regard to the effectiveness question.
> ...[T]he APA reported anecdotal evidence of both benefits and harms, but ultimately declared that "the recent studies do not provide valid causal evidence of the efficacy of SOCE or of its harm."

Yet the evidence that sexual orientation change efforts, or SOCE, are harmful is virtually all anecdotal – the kind of evidence which critics of SOCE refuse to accept with regard to the effectiveness question.

[T]he APA reported anecdotal evidence of both benefits and harms, but ultimately declared that "the recent studies do not provide valid causal evidence of the efficacy of SOCE or of its harm."

Psychotherapy, in general, results in harm for 5-10% of adults and 15-24% of minors.[175] For anti-change therapy activists to justify their claims, they would need research that meets scientific standards and demonstrates that harm from therapy that is open to change significantly exceeds the general rate of harm and is prevalent. No such data exists.

Wild anecdotes claiming harm from therapy that is open to change that some opponents' repeat should be carefully checked for validity. The fact is, there are 600 reports of successful sexual orientation change spanning 125 years. Dr. Alfred Kinsey himself, arguably the father of scientific study into homosexuality, helped more than 80 homosexual men make a "satisfactory heterosexual adjustment, which either accompanied or largely replaced earlier homosexual experience." The record includes that he helped "a boy"[176]

Former APA president Nicholas Cummings initiated the 1975 APA resolution that homosexuality is not a mental illness. As Kaiser San Francisco psychology chief, he saw "hundreds" of homosexuals "change and live very happy heterosexual lives."[177] Dr. Robert Spitzer, famous for his parallel resolution to remove homosexuality from the list of mental disorders in the American Psychiatric Association, published research showing change therapy is effective for

V. PETITIONERS' STATEMENT: PROTECT THERAPY EQUALITY FOR MINORS THAT HAVE UNWANTED SAME-SEX ATTRACTIONS OR GENDER IDENTITY

California was the first of a handful of states to ban sexual orientation or gender identity (SOGI) change efforts for minors. Since that time, several states and multiple cities and other jurisdictions have moved to enact similar bans, despite having truthful and scientifically accurate information. Thank you for the opportunity to provide information and share concerns about the unintended consequences we have seen from this anti-change-therapy legislation, and the three organizations discussed in this complaint that are known to be pushing these bills across the country.

Therapy that is open to SOGI change is generally not a form of therapy but openness to a client's freely chosen goal of change using any contemporary form of talk therapy. Contemporary licensed mental health professionals use no coercion or aversive methods. If any exceptions occurred, licensing boards would address these issues. The SPLC, HRC, and NCLR grotesquely misrepresent therapy that is open to a client's goal of change in sexual attraction or behavior or gender identity. Their flagrant and deceptive claims scare minors and adults and are used to deprive children of therapy.

The SPLC, HRC, and NCLR also perpetuate the false and misleading impression that sexual orientation is immutable like skin color. Sexual orientation is not resistant to change; in fact, it is the norm for sexual orientation to change. The American Psychological Association recognizes sexual orientation change.[181] Abundant excellent research has now established that sexual orientation—including attraction, behavior, and identity self label—all three—is fluid for both adolescents and adults and for both genders, and exceptions for LGB individuals are a minority. Change from exclusive homosexual attraction to exclusive heterosexual attraction occurs frequently among adolescents.[182] Sometimes sexual attraction and identity change more than once.[183] Imagine a statement that skin color changes, sometimes from extremely light to extremely dark, in both adolescents and adults and in both men and women, sometimes more than once, and the exceptions are the minority. Such a statement would be absurd. Sexual orientation is not like skin color. "Born that way and can't change" is not true.[184]

The SPLC, HRC, and NCLR also perpetuate the false and misleading impression that sexual orientation is immutable like skin color. Sexual orientation is not resistant to change; in fact, it is the norm for sexual orientation to change. The American Psychological Association recognizes sexual orientation change.

In addition, both the American Psychiatric Association[185] and the American Psychological Association[186] recognize gender identity fluctuates for the vast majority of minors, again, unlike skin color.

Individuals who experience same-sex sexuality and gender variation have a right to know the truth about change. Perpetrating the falsehood that same-sex sexuality and childhood gender variation do not change leaves those who experience change—most individuals who experience same-sex sexuality or childhood gender distress—to think there is something wrong with them, and it subjects them to feeling alone in their experience. As Rosik summarized from Diamond and Rosky:

"Immutability arguments actually marginalize and stigmatize those who do not experience their sexuality as fixed,"[187] namely, most same-sex attracted minors and adults.

Non-heterosexual adults who have not experienced fluidity themselves are the minority and are more likely to believe sexual orientation is resistant to change for all non-heterosexuals,[188] contrary to abundant and conclusive research.[189] The SPLC, HRC, and NCLR seek therapy bans that privilege minors who do not change over minors who do change or could change with help from therapy, that is, most SOGI minors.

One gets the impression from the SPLC, HRC, and NCLR that same-sex attracted minors and adults are exclusively and permanently same-sex attracted, so attempts to change same-sex attraction are attempts to change a person's essential or core self, hence impossible and harmful. However, abundant research has established that the majority of individuals who experience same-sex attraction (SSA) not only experience change in sexual attraction, they also already experience opposite-sex attraction (OSA). In fact, the majority of individuals who experience SSA are mostly opposite sex attracted (mostly OSA). These mostly heterosexual individuals are greater in number than all other individuals with gay, lesbian, and bisexual attractions combined. The majority of bisexually attracted individuals experience change toward or to exclusive heterosexual attraction. The majority of mostly heterosexually attracted individuals undergo a complete transformation to exclusive heterosexual attraction.[190]

Some who are attracted to both sexes are in heterosexual relationships and desire therapy to help them be faithful and keep their families together. Some youths are not yet in relationships, but they aspire to have faithful heterosexual relationships and families and need therapy assistance to fulfill their potential to do so. The SPLC, HRC, and NCLR create a false portrayal of sexual orientation that excludes them—the vast majority of same-sex attracted individuals— and deprives them of therapy appropriate to their needs.

Most adolescents and adults who identify themselves as same-sex-attracted will change toward or to exclusive opposite sex attraction. [191] Therapy that is open to change is far more congruent with the norm of change in adolescent and adult sexual attraction development than is gay-affirmative therapy. So it should be successful for some, and how dangerous can it be?[192]

Therapy that is open to change is far more congruent with the norm of change in adolescent and adult sexual attraction development than is gay-affirmative therapy. According to the American Psychiatric Association's Diagnostic and Statistical Manual, Fifth Edition (DSM-5) and the APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology, as many as 75%[193] to 98%[194] of gender dysphoric boys and as many as 75%[195] to 88%[196] of gender dysphoric girls eventually accept their chromosomal sex. Therapy that is open to change is far more congruent with the norm of gender dysphoria development in minors than is transgender-affirmative therapy, so it should be successful for some, and how dangerous can it be?

There is credible scientific evidence that childhood sexual molestation[197] and parent absence through death, divorce, end of parent co-habitation, or unknown paternity are potentially causally linked to same-sex sexuality.[198] Some individuals would like to decide for themselves whether their sexual orientation or gender identity (SOGI) represents an authentic or positive variation of sexuality for themselves. No activist organization, professional organization, or legislature should decide that for others. A position that sexual variation is always normal and positive marginalizes and stigmatizes those who are experiencing a painful link between trauma, parent loss, other psychoanalytic injuries, and same-sex sexuality.

The SPLC, HRC, and NCLR have, through propagating falsehoods to legislatures, caused therapy to be denied to heterosexual children who had same-sex sexuality forced on them through childhood molestation. These children specifically want therapy that will help them CHANGE their attractions and behavior. Depriving children of therapy to help them change same-sex attraction or behavior abuses victims of childhood sexual abuse.

All have a right to know that non-heterosexual orientation and childhood gender confusion change spontaneously in most cases and therapy assistance may be needed to help.

Therapy that is open to change seeks to help parents love their same-sex attracted (SSA) or transgendered or gender non-conforming (TGNC) minor who may have suffered psychological injuries and respect their child's wish to have or not have therapy that is open to change.

The American Psychiatric Association could not conclude whether various therapeutic approaches for children—to change gender dysphoria, to affirm TGNC identity, or to "wait and see"—affected whether gender dysphoria persisted or changed, because no systematic longitudinal studies of gender dysphoric children exist, nor can conclusions be made on safety or harm of these various psychotherapeutic approaches.[199]

Bocking says in the APA Handbook that there is evidence of pathology in the etiology of transgender or transsexual identity.[200] He warns against early social transitioning, because most children will eventually identify with their chromosomal sex, but transitioning may foreclose a child's gender identity development.[201] If the child transitions back to identifying with the chromosomal sex, it may be challenging to reverse the social role, and the stress of doing so has been shown to be substantial.[202] Early social transitioning also risks neglecting individual problems that the child might be experiencing.[203] Children should be able to receive therapy for such problems that may be leading to their transgender identity. Unfortunately, opponents seek to deprive such children of therapy, contrary to the advice of Bockting in the authoritative APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology.[204]

Protocols for chemical transitioning of transgender adolescents and adults are based on research that is rated to be of poor and very poor quality. It is known that puberty blocking hormones and cross-sex hormones (testosterone and estrogen) are associated with dangerous health risks.[205]

Changes in sexuality are not only spontaneous. Sexual orientation also may change through an individual's choices. On choice, Rosik quotes Diamond and Rosky this way, in a not-so-subtle rebuke to the APA, the authors observe that, "Both scientists and laypeople commonly claim that same-sex sexuality is rarely or never chosen (e.g., American Psychological Association, 2008), and individuals who claim otherwise (or who imply the capacity for choice by using terms such as sexual preference instead of sexual orientation) are often interpreted as misguided, insensitive, or homophobic. Yet similar to bisexuals, individuals who perceive that they have chosen some choice in their same-sex sexuality are more numerous than most people think."[206]

What we know is that sexual orientation ordinarily changes, some individuals change by choosing to change, and same-sex sexuality is potentially causally linked to childhood molestation, parent absence, or other psychoanalytic factors that are treatable. Since we know these things, it makes little sense to say the only place where sexual orientation does not change is in therapy. We also know childhood gender dysphoria usually resolves toward the child accepting the chromosomal sex by adulthood if allowed to, and the condition may be due to pathology. Childhood gender dysphoria, too, should be changeable in therapy.

All have a right to know that therapy that is open to a goal of change is an option by which some, though not all, make a significant and meaningful shift in their sexual orientation or gender identity. A research review of "600 reports of clinicians, researchers, and former clients—primarily from professional and peer-reviewed scientific journals" conducted over "125 years of clinical and scientific reports...documents[s] that professional-assisted and other attempts at volitional change from homosexuality toward heterosexuality has been successful for many and that such change continues to be possible for those who are motivated to try."[207]

Many minors who actually do have same-sex attraction or gender distress think their experience is something they are born with that can never be otherwise, potentially leading to depression, anxiety, and suicidal thoughts for some minors, excessive distress for their parents and families. These beliefs also lead to depression and anxiety for some adults, and excessive distress for the spouses and children of same-sex attracted adults who may fear marriage and family breakdown as a result. Attacks on therapy add to these harms.

VI. CONCLUSION

The HRC, SPLC, and NCLR have been documented in this report to be actively promoting harmful, dangerous, deceptive, and misleading campaigns to mislead and deceive the public and shut down licensed therapists who are helping clients distressed by unwanted same-sex attractions and gender identity confusion. The National Task Force for Therapy Equality respectfully asks the Federal Trade Commission to review their hate campaigns and immediately order them to cease operating.

The SPLC, HRC, NCLR, and others are continually portraying that same-sex attractions comes in two types, gay and straight, that are fixed at birth and never change, like skin color. Their portrayals also create the impression that the probability of being LGBT is far higher than it actually is. Gallop polls indicate these organizations, along with other willing organizations and individuals, have successfully convinced a majority of the American public to believe these deceptions.

A Gallop poll also shows the public has believed that the large numbers of LGBT displayed to them in the media accurately indicate how many people of LGBT. Gallop reported: "The American public estimates on average that 23% of Americans are gay or lesbian, little changed from Americans' 25% estimate in 2011, and only slightly higher than separate 2002 estimates of the gay and lesbian population. These estimates are many times higher than the 3.8% of the adult population who identified themselves as lesbian, gay, bisexual or transgender in Gallup Daily tracking in the first four months of this year.

There is anecdotal evidence that many adolescents think there is a high probability they could be LGBT, and they are worried over it. Teens are straining to detect whether they might be same-sex attracted based on very little evidence. They are wondering, if they admire another teen of their own sex that does mean they are gay? If there is any indication of any degree of potential same-sex attraction, that would mean they are gay, and only if there is none would it mean they are straight, with no in-between.

Whichever it is will be permanent and determine their future. Parents are hearing from their children that their children are confused, worried, and even downright panicked. Many youths are wondering whether they are transgender. Not only is the extreme and false message of sexual variations being delivered, but there is anecdotal evidence it is being concerningly overdone. Research evidence indicates that unsure youth turn out to be heterosexual, but for many of them, worrying over what their sexual orientation or gender identity is has become one more thing adolescents are having to worry about without good reason, and their parents and teachers do not have the accurate knowledge to help them through it either.

Many minors who actually do have same-sex attraction or gender distress think their experience is something they are born with that can never be otherwise, potentially leading to depression, anxiety, and suicidal thoughts for some minors, excessive distress for their parents and families. These beliefs also lead to depression and anxiety for some adults, and excessive distress for the spouses and children of same-sex attracted adults who may fear marriage and family breakdown as a result. Attacks on therapy add to these harms.

The public should have a right to know that no one is born with a same-sex sexual orientation or transgender or nonconforming identity. Adolescents and adults should have access to accurate scientific knowledge that same-sex attraction, behavior, and self-label identity as well as childhood gender distress change for most, mostly toward or to the norm of heterosexuality and identity with ones chromosomal sex.

Individuals should have the right to know that many, though not all, make a significant and meaningful shift in their same-sex attraction or gender identity variation, some of them assisted by therapy that is open to their goal of change. In the best study on adolescents, 89 percent of same-sex attracted boys changed, and in just one year. Only 11 percent did not change. The SPLC, HRC, and NCLR make a claim (which has poor empirical support) that "reorientation therapy may harm the self-esteem of those who do not change"—the 11% in this study. But it makes no sense to address that theoretical harm by hiding the truth from, and denying help to, the 89% of teens who may lose, or overcome, their same-sex attractions," explains Peter Sprigg, senior fellow for policy studies at Family Research Council.[208]

Some individuals who have changed through therapy have regretted that these political organizations, some professional organizations, their culture, or their family led them to believe they could not and should not try to change their sexual attraction or behavior through therapy. They feel they have lost years of their lives that could have been lived the way they are now able to live because they finally did have therapy.

For those who do not change in therapy, not all regret that they tried. Therapy has many benefits. Laws that ban therapy privilege those who do not experience sexual orientation or gender identity change over those who do and who are the majority.

There are other harmful results of the "can't change" deception being perpetrated by the SPLC, HRC, and NCLR. Individuals with same-sex attractions who change, the majority, are left to feel there is something wrong with them and that they are alone in their experience.[209] Another harm of the "can't change" falsehood is that children with a gender identity variation who believe they are born that way and can never change may pursue hasty social transitioning of gender identity or even premature chemical or surgical gender transitioning contrary to the advice of the APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology.[210] It is tragic that minors may permanently remove healthy parts of their own bodies and render their bodies forever infertile when, if allowed, they more than likely would come to accept their chromosomal sex.

The SPLC, HRC, and NCLR conspire to keep from the public the knowledge that some children had same-sex attraction forced on them because a pedophile or older adolescent sexually abused them. For some children, absence or loss of a biological parent, especially a parent of the same sex as the child, affected the development of the child's sexual orientation. Other psychoanalytic or social environmental factors may also have diverted a child's sexual orientation.[211]

Some of these children do not experience their sexual variation as normal or authentic for them. They are marginalized by the generalization that sexual variation is always normal. They desire therapy to help them change their unwanted sexual attraction or behavior. Treatment for links between their sexual variation and childhood sexual molestation, the effects of an absent parent—especially the parent of the same-sex as the child, or other social environmental factors could lead to a significant and meaningful shift in that variation for some. The SPLC, HRC, and NCLR seek to make helping these children change their sexual attraction or behavior illegal. Banning therapy for children whose sexual orientation or gender identity may have been injured also bans speech about such realities from therapy.

Therapy bans for these children are cruel and unjust. In effect these children are victimized twice, first by their sexual abuser or other life injuries, and second by these organizations that deprive them of therapy. Heterosexual-affirming therapy is more appropriate for them than gay affirmative therapy, but opponents want them only to have a choice of gay-affirmative therapy or therapy that will not lift a finger to try to help them change their attractions and behaviors to match who they feel themselves most authentically to be.

Some individuals who have changed through therapy have regretted that these political organizations, some professional organizations, their culture, or their family led them to believe they could not and should not try to change their sexual attraction or behavior through therapy. They feel they have lost years of their lives that could have been lived the way they are now able to live because they finally did have therapy.

A small minority of states has banned therapy that is open to sexual variation change. Lawmakers in these states failed to foresee that individuals who are distressed by their unwanted sexual orientation or unwanted gender identity are not going to go to a gay-affirmative or gender-variant-affirmative therapist or a therapist who does not share their values and whom they do not trust. They are now being sent to unlicensed counselors or getting no help at all. These minors are not being served. Some have been victims of sexual abuse and are suicidal. Some aspire to live according to their chromosomal gender or to be faithful in a heterosexual relationship with family, as do most individuals.

Coercing any goal of therapy on a client is unethical, because it violates the client's right to self-determine the goal of therapy and risks being ineffective and harmful.

Therapists should not have to abandon such individuals under threat of being thrown out of their professional organizations, losing their licenses, or being bankrupted. Banning sexual orientation or gender identity change efforts for individuals who desire it has been harmful and ineffective.

It should not be missed that laws banning openness to sexual variation change place all therapists in a dangerous trap — regardless of their view on sexual orientation, gender identity, or therapy that is open to change. If a client desires help to change sexual attraction or behavior, it is unethical for any therapist to provide gay- or gender-variant-affirmative therapy, because the client does not want it. Coercing any goal of therapy on a client is unethical, because it violates the client's right to self-determine the goal of therapy and risks being ineffective and harmful.

The therapist cannot provide or refer the client for therapy that is open to change, because doing so is against the law. Ethically, the therapist cannot abandon the client. If the therapist agrees to treat the client for other concerns though not for the goal of changing sexual attraction or gender identity, there is the real possibility that fluidity, fluctuation, or change in the client's sexual orientation or gender identity will occur, and then it is an open question as to whether the therapist may be in violation of the law. At least, the therapist is opened up to liability.

Some therapists are afraid of treating adolescents who want therapy that is open to sexual orientation or gender identity change, and at the same time, they are afraid of discriminating against taking some adolescents as clients based on unwanted sexual orientation, unwanted gender identity, or goal of therapy. An unintended consequence of the laws passed already in a handful of states has been that some therapists are discerning that their only protection is to stop treating all adolescents or all adolescents who have unwanted same-sex attraction or unwanted gender variation, and most especially if they want therapy to explore their potential for sexual variant change.

Some sexually variant minors are already being turned away from professional mental health services. For example, the California Board of Behavioral Science has been asked more than once to clarify the law on this very liability question and has declined. All banned providers and their sexually variant minor clients are endangered. Bans on sexual orientation or gender identity change efforts are not safe or effective, and the work of HRC, SPLC, and NCLR are actively putting minors, and their families, in danger of not receiving competent, qualified mental healthcare while deceiving consumers and the general public. We respectfully ask you to put an end to these dangerous and deceptive hate campaigns so that future lives can be saved.

ACPeds, AAPS, CMDA and CMA Support Minors' Right to Therapy

Legislators must NOT ban therapy for minors with unwanted same-sex attractions and/or gender dysphoria. The State must not violate minors' right to seek psychotherapy they believe may aid them, and must not restrict the right of licensed professional counselors to provide this ethical care.

So-called "conversion therapy bans" bar ethical talk therapy. Specifically, when minors present with unwanted same-sex attractions and/or gender dysphoria, therapists are blocked from exploring potential factors underlying the attractions or beliefs, including but not limited to, sexual abuse, family and peer dynamics, social media use and social contagion. Instead, therapists are required to engage solely in speech that affirms the child as lesbian, gay, bisexual or transgender. Therapists are barred from providing heterosexual-affirming psychotherapy even when the minor him or herself asks for help to identify as heterosexual. As a result, a number of youth will be legislated into a false sexual identity, and many others will unnecessarily begin the high-risk sex change process prior to puberty that renders them permanently sterile. This fact alone makes it highly unethical, if not criminal, for the law to require therapists to affirm every child with gender dysphoria as transgender.

Proposed bans not rooted in science

Therapy bans are rooted in four myths: First, that sexual orientation and gender dysphoria are fixed, inborn traits like race. Secondly, that homosexual attractions and gender dysphoria experienced by minors are enduring. Thirdly, that LGBQT behaviors carry no increased health risks as compared to heterosexual behavior, and finally, that scientific research proves that psychotherapy to explore sexual attractions and gender identity (pejoratively dubbed 'conversion' therapy) is universally harmful.

Homosexuality is not like race

Identical twins share exactly the same genetic makeup and are exposed to the same pre-natal hormones. If homosexuality were genetic like race, or determined by pre-natal hormones alone, then identical twins would have the same sexual orientation 100% of the time. Instead, at most, identical twins are both homosexual only 20% of the time. Dr. Francis Collins, former director of the Human Genome Project, summed it up best when he wrote sexual orientation "is not hardwired by DNA, and whatever genes are involved represent predispositions, not predetermination."[1] This means that at least 80% of what causes homosexuality in one identical twin is postnatal and rooted in non-shared experiences.

The Association of Gay and Lesbian Psychiatrists acknowledges that "[s]ome people believe that sexual orientation is innate and fixed; however, sexual orientation develops across a person's lifetime."[2] The psychodynamic and social learning theories of homosexuality have never been disproven. There is good evidence that parental and social influences, including childhood trauma, can contribute to same sex attractions for some. These adolescents have the right to therapy for their trauma; they do not deserve the added trauma of being legislated into a false sexual identity.

Homosexual attractions in minors are more fluid than fixed

The American Psychological Association Handbook acknowledges that adolescence is well recognized for its sexual fluidity and instability of homosexual attractions.[3] In 2007, Savin-Williams and Ream examined data from the large longitudinal AdHealth study and documented changes in attraction so great between the ages of 16 and 17 that they questioned whether the concept of sexual orientation had any meaning for adolescents with homosexual attractions. Seventy-five percent of adolescents who had some initial homosexual attraction between the ages of 17-21 changed to experience heterosexual attraction only. This is in stark contrast to the stability they found among adolescents experiencing heterosexual attractions. Among these adolescents, fully 98% retained their heterosexual-only attractions into adulthood.[4] Another study demonstrating significant change away from homosexual attractions in adolescence involved 13,840 youth. Of those initially "unsure" of their sexual orientation, 66% became exclusively heterosexual.[5] It follows logically that if such high rates of change in homosexual attraction occur adventitiously among youth, then many adolescents who desire and receive therapeutic assistance should succeed.

Gender Dysphoria is not like race.

As with homosexual attraction, twin studies of transsexual adults prove definitively that prenatal genetic and hormonal influence is minimal. The largest twin study of transsexual adults found that only 20% of identical twins were both transgender-identified.[6] Since identical twins contain 100% of the same DNA from conception, and are exposed to the same prenatal hormones, if genes and/or prenatal hormones contributed to a significant degree to transgenderism, the concordance rates would be close to 100%. Instead, 80% of identical twin pairs were discordant. As with homosexual attractions, this means that at least 80% of what contributes to transgenderism as an adult in one co-twin consists of one or more non-shared post-natal experiences. This is consistent with the dramatic rates of resolution of gender dysphoria documented among children when they are not counseled to impersonate the opposite sex.

Gender Identity is FLUID: 80-95% of "trans-children" outgrow it with watchful waiting or therapy

Experts agree that when not affirmed, 80-95% of pre-pubertal youth with gender dysphoria will come to accept their biological sex by late adolescence.[7] One increasingly hears the fanciful claim that a child with gender dysphoria is born with a brain that is of the opposite sex of his body. This is biologically impossible. Every cell of the human body contains identical copies of a person's sex chromosomes and the brains of biologically normal infants are imprinted prenatally by their own endogenous sex hormones at 8 weeks' gestation.[8] Every infant boy is born with a brain imprinted by his own testosterone; every infant girl is born with a brain imprinted by endogenous estrogen. Brain studies of transgender adults that purport to show differences in brain microstructures are of notoriously poor quality and more than likely reflect the fact that long-term transgender behavior alters brain microstructures.[9] This latter phenomenon of behavior altering the chemical and physical structure of the brain is known as neuroplasticity, and is well established.[10]

Non-heterosexual & Transgender Behavior Carries Grave Health Risks

There are many reasons for an adolescent, especially males, who are distressed by unwanted homosexual attractions to seek therapy. According to the CDC, from 2006-2009, young men who have sex with men aged 13-24 years had the greatest percentage increase in diagnosed HIV infections of all age groups. Among all adolescent males aged 13-24 years, approximately 91% of all diagnosed HIV infections were from male-to-male sexual contact.[11] This is because receptive anal intercourse is 20 times riskier than receptive vaginal intercourse.[12]

Moreover, compared with heterosexual youth, non-heterosexual youth are at increased risk (by a median of 76% if bisexual; 63.8% if homosexual) for contracting other sexually transmitted infections, using tobacco, alcohol and other drugs, and engaging in behaviors that contribute to violence, depression and suicide.[13]

Is therapy that affirms heterosexual potential harmful:

Studies do not demonstrate harm to minors who want to diminish same-sex attractions in psychotherapy because no studies on youth have ever been published. However, there is significant documentation of successful outcomes among some adults who sought to increase their heterosexual potential in psychotherapy.[14,15,16,17] More importantly, no studies exist to demonstrate that the LGBQT-affirming therapy mandated by these bills is universally helpful and without significant risk.

Bans condemn minors to a false sexual identity and/or toxic hormones and irreversible surgery

Therapy bans are crafted such that youth troubled by their sexual attractions and all youth with gender dysphoria will receive only one choice: in the first case, to be affirmed into a false sexual identity, and in the second case, to pursue a so-called sex change. In other words, therapists will be criminalized if they provide heterosexual affirming therapy, and help boys feel more like boys, or help girls feel more like girls, but not if they help children to feel, dress and act more like the opposite sex, and encourage them to use toxic cross-sex hormones followed by sex reassignment surgery to mutilate healthy body parts. The state should not violate minors' right to choose therapy that they believe will aid them in aligning their sexual identity and/or gender identity with biological reality.

Homosexuality is not like race

Identical twins share exactly the same genetic makeup and are exposed to the same pre-natal hormones. If homosexuality were genetic like race, or determined by pre-natal hormones alone, then identical twins would have the same sexual orientation 100% of the time. Instead, at most, identical twins are both homosexual only 20% of the time. Dr. Francis Collins, former director of the Human Genome Project, summed it up best when he wrote sexual orientation "is not hardwired by DNA, and whatever genes are involved represent predispositions, not predetermination."[1] This means that at least 80% of what causes homosexuality in one identical twin is postnatal and rooted in non-shared experiences.

The Association of Gay and Lesbian Psychiatrists acknowledges that "[s]ome people believe that sexual orientation is innate and fixed; however, sexual orientation develops across a person's lifetime."[2] The psychodynamic and social learning theories of homosexuality have never been disproven. There is good evidence that parental and social influences, including childhood trauma, can contribute to same sex attractions for some. These adolescents have the right to therapy for their trauma; they do not deserve the added trauma of being legislated into a false sexual identity.

Homosexual attractions in minors are more fluid than fixed

The American Psychological Association Handbook acknowledges that adolescence is well recognized for its sexual fluidity and instability of homosexual attractions.[3] In 2007, Savin-Williams and Ream examined data from the large longitudinal AdHealth study and documented changes in attraction so great between the ages of 16 and 17 that they questioned whether the concept of sexual orientation had any meaning for adolescents with homosexual attractions. Seventy-five percent of adolescents who had some initial homosexual attraction between the ages of 17-21 changed to experience heterosexual attraction only. This is in stark contrast to the stability they found among adolescents experiencing heterosexual attractions. Among these adolescents, fully 98% retained their heterosexual-only attractions into adulthood.[4] Another study demonstrating significant change away from homosexual attractions in adolescence involved 13,840 youth. Of those initially "unsure" of their sexual orientation, 66% became exclusively heterosexual.[5] It follows logically that if such high rates of change in homosexual attraction occur adventitiously among youth, then many adolescents who desire and receive therapeutic assistance should succeed.

Gender Dysphoria is not like race.

As with homosexual attraction, twin studies of transsexual adults prove definitively that prenatal genetic and hormonal influence is minimal. The largest twin study of transsexual adults found that only 20% of identical twins were both transgender-identified.[6] Since identical twins contain 100% of the same DNA from conception, and are exposed to the same prenatal hormones, if genes and/or prenatal hormones contributed to a significant degree to transgenderism, the concordance rates would be close to 100%. Instead, 80% of identical twin pairs were discordant. As with homosexual attractions, this means that at least 80% of what contributes to transgenderism as an adult in one co-twin consists of one or more non-shared post-natal experiences. This is consistent with the dramatic rates of resolution of gender dysphoria documented among children when they are not counseled to impersonate the opposite sex.

Gender Identity is FLUID: 80-95% of "trans-children" outgrow it with watchful waiting or therapy

Experts agree that when not affirmed, 80-95% of pre-pubertal youth with gender dysphoria will come to accept their biological sex by late adolescence.[7] One increasingly hears the fanciful claim that a child with gender dysphoria is born with a brain that is of the opposite sex of his body. This is biologically impossible. Every cell of the human body contains identical copies of a person's sex chromosomes and the brains of biologically normal infants are imprinted prenatally by their own endogenous sex hormones at 8 weeks' gestation.[8] Every infant boy is born with a brain imprinted by his own testosterone; every infant girl is born with a brain imprinted by endogenous estrogen. Brain studies of transgender adults that purport to show differences in brain microstructures are of notoriously poor quality and more than likely reflect the fact that long-term transgender behavior alters brain microstructures.[9] This latter phenomenon of behavior altering the chemical and physical structure of the brain is known as neuroplasticity, and is well established.[10]

Non-heterosexual & Transgender Behavior Carries Grave Health Risks

There are many reasons for an adolescent, especially males, who are distressed by unwanted homosexual attractions to seek therapy. According to the CDC, from 2006-2009, young men who have sex with men aged 13-24 years had the greatest percentage increase in diagnosed HIV infections of all age groups. Among all adolescent males aged 13-24 years, approximately 91% of all diagnosed HIV infections were from male-to-male sexual contact.[11] This is because receptive anal intercourse is 20 times riskier than receptive vaginal intercourse.[12]

Moreover, compared with heterosexual youth, non-heterosexual youth are at increased risk (by a median of 76% if bisexual; 63.8% if homosexual) for contracting other sexually transmitted infections, using tobacco, alcohol and other drugs, and engaging in behaviors that contribute to violence, depression and suicide.[13]

Is therapy that affirms heterosexual potential harmful:

Studies do not demonstrate harm to minors who want to diminish same-sex attractions in psychotherapy because no studies on youth have ever been published. However, there is significant documentation of successful outcomes among some adults who sought to increase their heterosexual potential in psychotherapy.[14,15,16,17] More importantly, no studies exist to demonstrate that the LGBQT-affirming therapy mandated by these bills is universally helpful and without significant risk.

Bans condemn minors to a false sexual identity and/or toxic hormones and irreversible surgery

Therapy bans are crafted such that youth troubled by their sexual attractions and all youth with gender dysphoria will receive only one choice: in the first case, to be affirmed into a false sexual identity, and in the second case, to pursue a so-called sex change. In other words, therapists will be criminalized if they provide heterosexual affirming therapy, and help boys feel more like boys, or help girls feel more like girls, but not if they help children to feel, dress and act more like the opposite sex, and encourage them to use toxic cross-sex hormones followed by sex reassignment surgery to mutilate healthy body parts. The state should not violate minors' right to choose therapy that they believe will aid them in aligning their sexual identity and/or gender identity with biological reality.

ACPeds, AAPS, CMDA and CMA Support Minors' Right to Therapy

Legislators must NOT ban therapy for minors with unwanted same-sex attractions and/or gender dysphoria. The State must not violate minors' right to seek psychotherapy they believe may aid them, and must not restrict the right of licensed professional counselors to provide this ethical care.

So-called "conversion therapy bans" bar ethical talk therapy. Specifically, when minors present with unwanted same-sex attractions and/or gender dysphoria, therapists are blocked from exploring potential factors underlying the attractions or beliefs, including but not limited to, sexual abuse, family and peer dynamics, social media use and social contagion. Instead, therapists are required to engage solely in speech that affirms the child as lesbian, gay, bisexual or transgender. Therapists are barred from providing heterosexual-affirming psychotherapy even when the minor him or herself asks for help to identify as heterosexual. As a result, a number of youth will be legislated into a false sexual identity, and many others will unnecessarily begin the high-risk sex change process prior to puberty that renders them permanently sterile. This fact alone makes it highly unethical, if not criminal, for the law to require therapists to affirm every child with gender dysphoria as transgender.

Proposed bans not rooted in science

Therapy bans are rooted in four myths: First, that sexual orientation and gender dysphoria are fixed, inborn traits like race. Secondly, that homosexual attractions and gender dysphoria experienced by minors are enduring. Thirdly, that LGBQT behaviors carry no increased health risks as compared to heterosexual behavior, and finally, that scientific research proves that psychotherapy to explore sexual attractions and gender identity (pejoratively dubbed 'conversion' therapy) is universally harmful.

Homosexuality is not like race

Identical twins share exactly the same genetic makeup and are exposed to the same pre-natal hormones. If homosexuality were genetic like race, or determined by pre-natal hormones alone, then identical twins would have the same sexual orientation 100% of the time. RE: Opposing "Conversion Therapy"

Dear Honorable Legislator:

As a board-certified family physician I strongly encourage you to oppose the bill banning "Conversion Therapy." The bill is both unnecessary and misguided.

1. The bill is needless. Twenty-two states have voted down therapy bans. The legislature already has a process in place to address complaints of harmful practice and clinician malfeasance through the appointed licensed mental health professionals on the state licensing board. If clients had been harmed or treated unethically, the licensing boards would already have known, documented, and acted. No such complaints exist.
2. There is no evidence of harm from sexual orientation change therapy from licensed and trained professionals.[i] [ii] [iii] [iv] [v] Generations of supportive studies exist.[vi] [vii] [viii] [ix] Change therapy is talk therapy, just talk, by trained and licensed professionals working with willing and motivated clients. Anything less is not it. No licensed therapist wants unwilling clients, as therapy for any issue requires a willing patient. Even the Southern Poverty Law Center noted in their May 2016 report that SOCE/change therapists do not use electrical shocks or other aversion therapy. The "torture" stories have not involved trained therapists and generally are unsubstantiated. It is also ironic that no bill has been put forth to actually ban electro-aversion therapy altogether, if that is the problem.
3. The American Psychological Association 2014 Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology documents that same-sex attraction is neither inborn nor immutable. The APA website notes, "There is no consensus among scientists about the exact reasons that an individual develops a heterosexual, bisexual, gay, or lesbian orientation," and "…no findings have emerged that permit scientists to conclude that sexual orientation is determined by any particular factor or factors." In 2014 the UK's Royal College of Psychiatrists revised its position on same-sex attraction to say: "sexual orientation is determined by a combination of biological and postnatal environmental factors" . . . "[it] is not the case that sexual orientation is immutable or might not vary to some extent in a person's life. . . "
4. Both the APA Handbook[x] and numerous peer-reviewed studies acknowledge that childhood sexual abuse can be a cause of same-sex attraction in some.[xi] [xii] Children who have experienced abuse by teens or pedophiles can go on to experience undesired homosexual thoughts and impulses. Banning professional talk therapy to address wounds and undesired impulses can lead to depression and suicidality.
5. Religious counseling and camps, however well intentioned, are not therapy by licenses therapists, and the anti-therapy bill bans professional psychotherapy.[xiii]

6. Everyone should enjoy the basic right to choose the legal direction of their life, including those with undesired same-sex attractions who wish help with change. Voices-of-change.org provides 100 plus testimonials of people who have changed undesired same-sex attraction with professional therapy.

Dear Legislators,

This Therapy Ban bill is child abuse. This naïve and destructive bill makes it illegal for little children to receive therapy for unwanted same-sex attractions caused by sexual abuse by older teens or pedophiles. Can you imagine a heterosexual boy walking into a therapist's office to be told that it's illegal to give him the therapy that resolves his sexual attractions experienced from an older man?

Do YOU know what it feels like to be heterosexual and sexually abused by a budding pedophile? I do. I underwent authentic Reparative Therapy for homosexual attractions because of emotional abuse and sexual abuse that I experienced as a child. And, during the sexual abuse, just like some children in your state, that sexual stimulation resulted in unwanted sexual attractions in puberty. Authentic Reparative Therapy helped save my life and I experienced change in my sexual feelings. And yet, with sexual abuse of children just like it happens in every other state, somehow this bill is being considered. If the sponsors of this bill really cared about children they would never hurt one group of children to help another group. They would have at least amended this bill to account for the professional, licensed therapy for unwanted attractions that truly works.

I am one of the experts in real Reparative Therapy in this country. The sponsors of this bill have not even bothered to ask professional therapists what goes on in these sessions. Real RT is about the rise of the authentic secure gendered self. It's about resolving the emotional issues that cause homosexual feelings for those who know that, for them, their feelings are not genetically inborn. It's about resolving inferiority, depression and suicide ideation. This bill would have you believe that we do electroshock, aversion and shaming techniques. It connotes that all this horror is going on and then describes it as religious shaming or some kind of pray away the gay boot camps, which has nothing to do with authentic therapy. In fact, we do not conduct "conversion therapy." This was a term invented by LGBT activists to push their agenda for bills like this one.

Real RT gets rid of all shame for having homosexual feelings. Real therapists love all children no matter what their beliefs are. I also love my Gay clients. I don't force them to change or tell them they're inferior, and we don't believe that this is a mental illness.

The American Psychological Association says there is no proof of harm of Reparative Therapy. They have not condemned this therapy, and they have not declared it unethical. Check their website www.apa.org about therapy for these issues. Check pg. 82-83 of the APA Task Force on SOCE.

What if your heterosexual child or grandchild came to you and said they were bothered or traumatized by homosexual feelings from being abused from having their genitals stimulated beyond their control by their abuser? According to this bill, there's not a thing you could do to help them with suicide ideation, anxiety or depression resulting from unwanted homosexual feelings. Nothing you or a professional therapist could do except try to tell them it will all work out fine. That, or send them to a pray away the gay boot camp.

The lives of your children, ALL their children, are in your hands.

Laura Haynes, Ph.D., Testimony in opposition to banning so-called "conversion" therapy

Dear Honorable Legislators,

I am Dr. Laura Haynes, licensed psychologist, representing both the National Task Force for Therapy Equality—for which I am the Chair of Research and Legislative Policy, and the American College of Pediatricians—for which I am a Consultant. In addition, I am a member of the research committee of the Alliance for Therapeutic Choice and Scientific Integrity and a 38-year member of the American Psychological Association.

The organizations I am representing urge you to oppose the bill that would ban so-called "conversion therapy" for minors. Many states have rejected these bans, along with several mainstream mental health and medical associations[1] collectively comprising tens of thousands of members who support a client's right to self determination and parents' rights.

- Our clients are boys who want to love girls, girls who want to love boys, and boys and girls who want to embrace their innate body sex. Our clients have the same freedom and the right as everyone else to resolve unwanted feelings, love who they want, and choose their own gender identity. No one should take that away from them.

- Some want to live and love in accordance with their religious faith. No one should take away their right to do so.

- According to the American Psychological Association, in its APA Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology[2] which the APA officially approved and declared authoritative,[3] sexual orientation and gender identity are not inborn like skin color.[4] They are not determined by genes, prenatal hormones, or brain structures. Psychological and family factors are involved.[5] While it says sexual orientation variations are normal, it also now acknowledges childhood sexual abuse potentially leads to having a same-sex relationship for some.[6] And it says there is some evidence family pathology may be involved in the development of transgender identity.[7] The Handbook says sexual attraction and childhood gender dysphoria frequently shift or change.[8] "Born that way and can't change" is a theory that turned out not to be true.

- A rigorous study of 16-year-old boys who identified as exclusively same-sex attracted found that one year later, only 11% still did. 90% of the exclusively and strongly same-sex attracted boys experienced father absence or loss.[9] Several rigorous studies show absence of a parent, especially the parent of the same sex as the child, can lead to same-sex attraction, behavior, and orientation identity.[10]

- According to the American Psychiatric Association and the American Psychological Association, as many as 98% of boys and 88% of girls,[11] and no less than 75 of boys and girls[12] come to identify with their innate body sex if supported through natural puberty and not socially transitioned.[13]

- This bill legislates gender dysphoric children onto a path of experimental puberty blockers and toxic sex-change hormones—that often sterilize them for life, having their breasts chopped off, potential castration, and a lifetime of being a medical patient, with the assumption minors are able to consent to such treatment, all before they are old enough to drive, yet forbids them talk therapy to help them embrace their body.

- Pro-gay professional organizations have formed to oppose social or medical transitioning and support psychotherapy that considers underlying causes for gender dysphoric minors. They are YouthTransCritical Professionals and 4thWaveNow. They report that letting children live as the opposite sex—a practice unheard of until recently—virtually assures children will not resolve their gender identity.[14]

- They warn that social contagion is tragically leading some vulnerable adolescents, including whole Facebook peer groups, to attach to the idea they are transgender and their problems will all be solved if they transition to the opposite sex. In addition, autistic traits and socioeconomically disadvantaged families predict greater vulnerability to persisting in transgender identity.[15]

- The American Psychological Association's authoritative Handbook also cautions against socially transitioning gender dysphoric children, and warns the full acceptance of transgender identity approach "runs the risk of neglecting individual problems the child might be experiencing…."[16]

- Yet vocal transgender activists do not hesitate to pressure legislators, clinicians, and parents for acquiescence, laws, and treatments that do not distinguish among types of gender dysphoric children.[17]

- The coercion of these vocal activists tragically rushes vulnerable adolescents to mutilating treatments, and it also opposes therapy for children and adolescents who want to love and identify as they choose and opposes parents' rights. Coercing acquiescence is dangerous and unjust for children and parents, but when encased in law, it is legalized viewpoint discrimination and unconstitutional. No one should force their ideology on someone else.

Talk therapy treats individual problems that may be causing gender distress or unwanted same-sex attraction. A therapy ban takes away a child's right to that specific talk therapy.

- Even the Southern Poverty Law Center affirms "conversion therapy" uses only non aversive methods. Stories of "therapy torture" and "aversion therapy" have been documented to be fraudulent in a report sent to the Federal Trade Commission.[18]

- More than 100 years of research have found that, when the therapy is done right, it can effectively and safely lead to significant and meaningful change for some.[19] A new five-year study of adult male clients who have unwanted same-sex attraction feelings is currently underway and meets APA standards. Results in the first year found distress decreased, sense of wellbeing increased, heterosexual thoughts and feelings increased, and homosexual thoughts and feelings decreased.[20]

- Leading pro LGBT researchers, Dr. Michael Bailey and Dr. Ray Blanchard, report that it is simply not true that gender dysphoric children must be transitioned or they will commit suicide. "[S]uicide is rare even among gender dysphoric persons. There is no persuasive evidence that gender transition reduces gender dysphoric children's likelihood of killing themselves." The higher suicide rates for individuals who began or completed medical gender transition in the liberal and accepting countries of the Netherlands and Sweden "hardly support the curative effects of transition."[21]

- Leading suicide researchers found that, world-wide, 90% of people who commit suicide had mental disorders. The researchers' number one prevention recommendation is to let them have psychotherapy.[22]

RE: Opposition to SB 270 SD1 Relating to Child Protection

Honorable Chairs and members of the Senate Committee on Consumer Protection & Health, I am Walter Yoshimitsu, representing the Hawaii Catholic Conference. The Hawaii Catholic Conference is the public policy voice for the Roman Catholic Church in the State of Hawaii, which under the leadership of Bishop Larry Silva, represents Roman Catholics in Hawaii.

We oppose this bill because it bans reparative therapy for minors, even if the minor themselves or the parents want the therapy. That is awfully invasive on the part of the legislature, which has no competence in this area. The wording in SB270 SD1 offers no exemption for clergy, religious or spiritual counselors who are licensed by the state, which we find problematic and a violation of religious freedom.

To make it abundantly clear, the Catholic Church is concerned for the whole person. And in the mind of the Church, the psychological sciences, in accord with Christian anthropology, are not considered separate from pastoral care, but rather integral to it. The care and dignity of the human person is the core foundation for what we believe as Catholics.

In 1995, the Pontifical Council for the Family issued a document, "The Truth and Meaning of Human Sexuality: Guidelines for Education in the Family." The document states that "[y]oung people need to be helped to distinguish between the concepts of what is normal and abnormal, between subjective guilt and objective disorder, avoiding what would arouse hostility." It also states that "if parents notice the appearance of this tendency or of related behavior in their children during childhood or adolescence, they should seek help from expert qualified persons to obtain all possible assistance."

Banning these "efforts" as specified in this bill (pg 4 line 3ff) is overly broad. Since local medical licensing boards already provide a mechanism for a patient (or their parents) to complain if therapists are providing questionable therapy outside of accepted practices, and/or patients can simply choose to change doctors they are unhappy with, we simply do not see the need for this bill. If there is a true need to clarify bad practices, why not be specific in the "bad therapy" you are banning?

This bill would keep patients, and their parents, from exercising their fundamental right to choose the therapy they feel best meets their needs. Their individual choice in therapy should be taken into consideration. Every patient, especially those who may have been sexually abused as children and experiencing gender identification confusion, deserves the right to get the help they need and secure a counselor that supports their counseling goals. Mahalo for the opportunity to testify.

RE: STRONG SUPPORT for Senate Bill 270 – RELATING TO MINORS

Aloha Chair Takumi, Vice Chair Ichiyama and fellow committee members,

I am writing in STRONG SUPPORT for Senate Bill 270 on behalf of the LGBT Caucus of the Democratic Party of Hawai'i. SB 270 prohibits specific state-licensed persons who are licensed to provide professional counseling from engaging in, attempting to engage in, or advertising sexual orientation change efforts on persons under eighteen years of age.

This so-called conversion therapy or as it is also known as in the counseling field "sexual orientation change effort", is the false idea that one can change their sexual orientation through therapy/counseling. The facts are quite clear that your sexual orientation, gender identity and/or gender expression is part of your genetic make-up and no amount of coercive therapy/counseling can change them.

Here are the side effects from conversion therapy:
Depression, guilt, helplessness, hopelessness, shame, social withdrawal, suicidality, substance abuse, stress, disappointment, self-blame, decreased self-esteem and authenticity to others, hostility and blame toward parents, increased self-hatred, feelings of anger and betrayal, loss of friends and potential romantic partners, problems in sexual and emotional intimacy, sexual dysfunction, high-risk sexual behaviors, a feeling of being dehumanized and untrue to self, a loss of faith, and a sense of having wasted time and resources.

President Barack Obama and the Democratic Party of Hawai'i via our 2016 DPH Platform pg. 7-8 lines 389-392 https://hawaiidemocrats.org/wp-content/uploads/2015/06/2016-democratic-party-of-hawaii-platform.pdf) and Resolution HHS 2016-06 Supporting a Ban of Conversion Therapy (see below) along with the American Psychological Association, American Counseling Association, American Academy of Pediatrics, American School Counselor Association, and the National Association of Social Workers have all come out against conversion therapy. California, Connecticut, Illinois, New Jersey, New Mexico, Nevada, Oregon, Rhode Island, Vermont, and the District of Columbia have all passed laws banning this barbaric practice.

A New Jersey jury, under their state's law, went so far as finding the Jewish conversion therapy organization, JONAH, guilty of consumer fraud for promising to be able to change its client's sexual urges and determined its commercial practices to be unconscionable. The Supreme Court agreed with the jury's determination and upheld New Jersey's law.

The LGBT Caucus would also like to clear up some misconceptions that have come to light from the opposition to banning conversion therapy proposed by Senate Bill 270.

The inference that this bill interferes with parents' rights to raise their kids:

The State of Hawai'i has a lot of laws on the books that "interfere" with the way parents raise their kids from mandating seatbelts for all and booster seats for minors under 70 lbs; requiring lifesaving vaccinations; getting an education; requiring members of Christian Scientists to get their children lifesaving medical treatment; and outlawing child abuse. Every leading professional medical and mental health associations have rejected conversion therapy as unnecessary, ineffective, and dangerous. So to inflict conversion therapy on minors is child abuse.

That somehow this bill stop therapist from helping minors that are struggling with their sexual orientation; gender identity; and/or gender expression:

This bill does not bar anyone from seeking therapy with regards to their sexual orientation; gender identity; and/or gender expression, plain and simple. It does bar therapists from putting their patients in danger by exposing them the disavowed conversion therapy.

Conversion therapy is nothing but coercion, forcing the will of the parents for the minor to reject who they are and how they were born. That is not the role of a therapist, especially when dealing with minors. The false idea behind conversion therapy is that there can be a guaranteed set predetermined outcome from the therapy sessions – changing a person's sexual orientation, gender identity and/or gender expression.

That this bill is unconstitutional on religious grounds and will have "unintended consequences":

The legal language found in this bill mirrors to what appears in the laws of California, Illinois, New Jersey, Oregon and District of Columbia. Which has been challenged in court, all the way up to the Supreme Court in fact and the Supreme Court has rejected all challenges. It should be noted that NONE of those laws have religious exemptions and they have passed constitutional muster. This is because priests, pastors and other persons of the cloth, as long as they are doing their ministerial duties, have constitutional protection.

It is when those few priests, pastors and other persons of the cloth, that are licensed therapists, decide to hang a shingle and offer therapy that they would fall under the jurisdiction of this law. Much like those pastors that advocate for the death of President Obama from the pulpit, not one has been arrested. Even though it is against federal law to threaten the life of the President of the United States, they have constitutional protection.

As we pointed out earlier, New Jersey was able to sue JONAH a therapy group with religious ties because it was outside of their ministerial duties. The group with religious ties hung up a therapy shingle and said they could convert gays to straight, which they could not do. JONAH lost all the way to the Supreme Court.
http://www.metroweekly.com/2015/05/supreme-court-allows-n-j-gay-conversion-therapy-ban-to-stand/

As for "unintended consequences", this seems to be to go to phrase by the opposition to anything that would bring justice and equality to the LGBT community. They used that phrase constantly during the battle for marriage equality and to this day there has not been one “unintended consequence” by bringing marriage equality to the Aloha State.

That somehow this bill will bring out unlicensed therapists:

We already have laws on the books to handle unlicensed therapists. If the opposition is really concerned about unlicensed therapists then they should advocate for a stronger punishment be placed on the books.

There is a direct correlation between being a member of the LGBT community and drug abuse:

This is false, there is no study that shows a correlation between being a member of the LGBT community and drug abuse. There is however a direct link between a member of the LGBT community going through conversion therapy and drug abuse, suicide and the complete list of other adverse side effects that we listed in our main testimony.

The LGBT Caucus of the DPH asks that you support this very important bill as it will save lives as well as send a message loud and clear that child abuse encased in junk science has no place in the Aloha State.

Mahalo nui loa,

Michael Golojuch, Jr.
Chair

What Are Some Examples of Conversion Therapy?

In the past, some mental health professionals resorted to extreme measures such as institutionalization, castration, and electroconvulsive shock therapy to try to stop people from being lesbian, gay, bisexual, or transgender (LGBT). Today, while some counselors still use physical treatments like aversive conditioning, the techniques most commonly used include a variety of behavioral, cognitive, psychoanalytic, and other practices that try to change or reduce same-sex attraction or alter a person's gender identity. While these contemporary versions of conversion therapy are less shocking and extreme than some of those more frequently used in the past, they are equally devoid of scientific validity and pose serious dangers to patients—especially to minors, who are often forced to undergo them by their parents or legal guardians, and who are at especially high risk of being harmed.

According to a 2009 report of the American Psychological Association, the techniques therapists have used to try to change sexual orientation and gender identity include inducing nausea, vomiting, or paralysis while showing the patient homoerotic images; providing electric shocks; having the individual snap an elastic band around the wrist when aroused by same-sex erotic images or thoughts; using shame to create aversion to same-sex attractions; orgasmic reconditioning; and satiation therapy. Other techniques include trying to make patients' behavior more stereotypically feminine or masculine, teaching heterosexual dating skills, using hypnosis to try to redirect desires and arousal, and other techniques—all based on the scientifically discredited premise that being LGBT is a defect or disorder.

The current practice guidelines for the National Association for Research & Therapy of Homosexuality (NARTH), which is a group of therapists who endorse and practice conversion therapy in the United States, encourage its members to consider techniques that include hypnosis, behavior and cognitive therapies, sex therapies, and psychotropic medication, among others.

HHS 2016-06 Supporting a Ban of Conversion Therapy

Whereas, The Democratic Party of Hawaiʻi supports banning conversion therapy for minors and adults as stated in the Health Care plank of our Party's Platform passed by unanimous vote at the Democratic Party of Hawaiʻi 2014 State Convention and conversion therapy is currently being practiced in Hawaiʻi,; and

Whereas, the American Counseling Association's Standard A.1.a. ("Primary Responsibility"), states that "the primary responsibility of counselors is to respect the dignity and to promote the welfare of clients." Referring a client to a counselor who engages in a treatment modality not endorsed by the profession and that may, in fact, cause harm does not promote the welfare of clients as supported by Standard A.4.a ("Avoiding Harm"); and

Whereas, President Barack Obama, along with every recognized medical professional organization from the World Psychiatric Association American Psychological Association, American Counseling Association, American Academy of Pediatrics, American School Counselor Association, to the National Association of Social Workers have all come out against conversion therapy as a form of torture; now, therefore, be it

Resolved, That the Democratic Party of Hawaiʻi support the banning of conversion therapy based on the overwhelming scientific evidence there is no way to change a person's sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression, regardless of the type of adverse therapy a person is put through including but not limited to: inducing nausea, vomiting, or paralysis while showing the patient homoerotic images; providing electric shocks; having the individual snap an elastic band around the wrist when aroused by same-sex erotic images or thoughts; using shame to create aversion to same-sex attractions; orgasmic reconditioning; hypnosis; behavior and cognitive therapies; sex therapies; psychotropic medication; and satiation therapy; and be it further

Resolved, That the Democratic Party of Hawaiʻi support the banning of conversion therapy also based on the fact that this barbaric practice is detrimental to society as a whole since as it is totally futile and the side effects on the survivors are depression, guilt, helplessness, hopelessness, shame, social withdrawal, suicidality, substance abuse, stress, disappointment, self-blame, decreased self-esteem and authenticity to others, hostility and blame toward parents, increased self-hatred, feelings of anger and betrayal, loss of friends and potential romantic partners, problems in sexual and emotional intimacy, sexual dysfunction, high-risk sexual behaviors, a feeling of being dehumanized and untrue to self, a loss of faith, and a sense of having wasted time and resources; and be it further

Resolved, That the Democratic Party of Hawaiʻi calls upon all members of the Hawaiʻi State Legislature who are members of the Democratic Party of Hawaiʻi to support the introduction and passage of a bill in the 2017 Legislative Session that will ban conversion therapy outright; and be it further

Resolved, That the Democratic Party of Hawaiʻi call upon the Governor of the State of Hawaiʻi to support the legislation and once it is passed by the legislature to sign the bill that will ban conversion therapy outright into law; and be it further

Resolved, That the Democratic Party of Hawaiʻi call upon all members of Hawaii's Congressional Delegation to introduce and support the passage of bill that would ban conversion therapy at the national level; and be it

Ordered, That copies of this resolution be transmitted to all members of Hawaii's Congressional Delegation, the Governor of the State of Hawaiʻi, the Lieutenant Governor of the State of Hawaiʻi, and all members of the Hawaiʻi State Legislature who are members of the Democratic Party of Hawaiʻi

RE: SB 270, SD 1 - RELATING TO MINORS

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 14, 2018

COREY ROSENLEE, PRESIDENT
HAWAII STATE TEACHERS ASSOCIATION

Chair Takumi and Members of the Committee:

The Hawaii State Teachers Association supports SB 270, SD 1, relating to minors.

Conversion therapy, often called "ex-gay" therapy, has no place in our society. It involves a rejection of a child's sexual or gender identity. Minors who experience rejection based on their sexual orientation face serious health risks. In a study published in the medical journal Pediatrics, lesbian, gay, and bisexual young adults who reported higher levels of rejection during adolescence were 8.4 times more likely to report having attempted suicide, 5.9 times more likely to report high levels of depression, 3.4 times more likely to use illegal drugs, and 3.4 times more likely to report having engaged in unprotected sexual intercourse compared with their peers.

Numerous medical, psychological, and mental health organizations have condemned conversion therapy as unscientific and developmentally dangerous, including the American Psychological Association. In the education world, HSTA helped pass a 2015 National Education Association Convention Item opposing conversion therapy, NBI 86, that states, "NEA will disseminate to educators through existing publications current information regarding the damaging effects of anti-gay conversion/reparative therapies." Thus, teachers, too, understand the harm caused by conversion therapy, which undermines childhood development. We believe this practice is tantamount to child abuse and should be banned statewide.

To protect our keiki from discriminatory pseudo-psychology, the Hawaii State Teachers Association asks your committee to support this bill.

Re: SUPPORT for SB 270, Testimony from the Human Rights Campaign in support of the bill to protect minors in Hawaii from the abusive practice of conversion therapy

Dear Chairperson Takumi and Members of the Committee:

The Human Rights Campaign (HRC), on behalf of its members and supporters in Hawaii, thanks you for the opportunity to submit testimony on Senate Bill (SB) 270, a vital measure that will protect young people in Hawaii from dangerous and discredited practices that falsely claim to change one's sexual orientation or gender identity or expression. We urge you to swiftly pass this important legislation.

The Human Rights Campaign is America's largest civil rights organization working to achieve lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer (LGBTQ) equality. By inspiring and engaging all Americans, HRC strives to end discrimination against LGBTQ citizens and realize a nation that achieves fundamental fairness and equality for all. As an advocate for LGBTQ young people, HRC believes that no young person should be coerced or subjected to dangerous practices that lack legitimate medical purpose, such as conversion therapy.

Conversion therapy, sometimes called "sexual orientation change efforts" or "reparative therapy," refers to practices that seek to change an individual's sexual orientation or gender identity or expression. These practices are based on the false idea that being LGBTQ is a mental illness that needs to be cured, an idea which has been rejected by every major mental health group. Conversion therapy does not include therapies that provide acceptance, support, or understanding of LGBTQ identities; that facilitate coping, social support, or identity exploration; or that address unlawful conduct or unsafe sexual practices. This legislation enacts professional standards for state-licensed mental health providers to clarify that conversion therapy is not an acceptable or responsible professional practice when applied to young people under the age of eighteen.

There is no credible evidence that conversion therapy can change a person's sexual orientation or gender identity or expression, and it is abundantly clear that conversion therapy poses devastating health risks for LGBTQ youth. These practices can lead to depression, decreased self-esteem, substance abuse, homelessness, and even suicidal behavior, and for this reason the nation's leading mental health organizations have roundly decried them.[1] Unfortunately, due to discrimination against LGBTQ people and the fact that professional rules have not kept up with this widespread understanding, some licensed mental health professionals continue to engage in conversion therapy. A recent Williams Institute at UCLA School of Law report revealed that an estimated 20,000 LGBT minors in states without protections will be subjected to conversion therapy by a licensed healthcare professional if state officials fail to act.[2] These protections simply cannot wait.

Research shows that young people experience conversion therapy as a form of family rejection, and LGBTQ youth who experience family rejection face increased health risks. In one study, such youth were 8.4 times more likely to report having attempted suicide, 5.9 times more likely to report high levels of depression, and 3.4 times more likely to use illegal drugs compared with peers who had not experienced such rejection.[3] On the other hand, family acceptance has been shown to be an important protective factor that can help to prevent suicide behavior and mental health issues. Providers who engage in conversion therapy under state license can mislead families about the risks involved, leading to negative psychological outcomes and irreparable damage to family cohesiveness. This legislation is needed to protect families from these damaging practices.

Thank you for the opportunity to submit testimony in favor of this critical bill to protect LGBTQ youth.

Sincerely,

Sarah Warbelow

Thank you for this opportunity to testify in support of SB 270, a vital bill that would protect lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and queer (LGBTQ) youth in Hawaii from the dangerous and discredited practice of so-called "conversion therapy."
The Hawaii Chapter of the American Academy of Pediatrics (AAP) is a voluntary organization of over 200 pediatricians in Hawaii. Our mission is to attain optimal physical, mental and social health and well being for infants, children, adolescents and young adults in Hawaii.

Conversion therapy, sometimes referred to as "sexual orientation change efforts" or "reparative therapy," refers to practices that seek to change a person's sexual orientation or gender identity. These practices are based on the false notion that LGBTQ youth need to be "converted" or "repaired." Contemporary science recognizes that being LGBTQ is not a disease, disorder, or illness, and is part of the natural spectrum of human identity. Conversion therapy is especially dangerous to young people, who have no protections against being coercively subjected to these ineffective and harmful practices. Well-meaning parents can be deceived by misrepresentations of conversion therapy providers, leading them to expose their children to this harmful practice.

It is important to note that this legislation is carefully drafted to clearly and narrowly define these dangerous and discredited practices. SB 270 does not prevent mental health practitioners from providing competent counseling in line with the mental health and scientific community's understanding that sexual orientation and gender identity cannot be changed at will, and should not be the subject of conversion efforts by licensed professionals. This bill would not impede our ability to facilitate our patients' coping, social support, and identity exploration. Rather, this legislation enacts professional standards for state-licensed mental health providers to clarify that conversion therapy is ineffective, detrimental, and irresponsible when applied to minors. No credible study says otherwise; in fact, all credible research affirms the devastating harms of conversion therapy.

As pediatricians, our main responsibility is to put the wellbeing of our patients first. We have an obligation to protect all young people from harm. This bill would do just that.
We strongly support SB 270.
Respectfully,

TESTIMONY IN STRONG SUPPORT OF SB270 SD1 RELATING TO MINORS

Aloha Chair Takumi, Vice Chair Ichiyama, Members of the House Committee on Consumer Protection & Commerce,

My name is Jun Shin. I am a freshman at UH Manoa and a board member at-large for Young Progressives Demanding Action - Hawaii. I am writing this in strong support of SB270 SD1.

In November 12, 2013, the Hawaii Marriage Equality Act of 2013 passed. The State of Hawaii was further ahead than the federal government, with marriage equality becoming the law of the whole United States in June 26, 2015. However, despite such accomplishments, we still have a lot of work to do to insure that our friends and family in the LGBTQIA+ community get the equality that they deserve as human beings because who you choose to love, who you choose to be as a person, how you choose to express yourself should never ever be looked upon as something weird or something to be looked down upon. What this bill does is stands up for this and takes the fight to the next layer of bigotry we need to take down and that is conversion therapy. As the Human Rights Campaign describes it, conversion therapy, "sometimes known as "reparative therapy," is a range of dangerous and discredited practices that falsely claim to change a person's sexual orientation or gender identity or expression".

This is horrifying. They are trying to change something that's normal, which should never have been disputed. Being a gay person, being an asexual person, being a bisexual person, that's not like having appendicitis or having to get scoliosis surgery like I did to straighten my spine, it's just who you are as a person. People who are in charge of bringing you comfort, people who you look to for advice when things get tough, they shouldn't be trying to destroy you and your love for someone because they or people around you don't like the fact that you love and want to share your life with an individual who just so happens to be of the same gender as yourself or you want to begin the transition to become who you truly are. This is incompatible with the progress that activists have made throughout the long struggle for equality. I am 18 years old, and I am fighting, here and now because I want to inherit a world and I want my future kids to inherit a world where equality for all applies to everyone in every situation. I will not stop till the concept of conversion therapy becomes as old as the horse and the buggy.

As the Hawaii State Department of Health's 2017 health report on Hawaii's Sexual and Gender Minority communities pointed out, LGB youth are almost 4 times as likely to have attempted suicide and 43% of them have been bullied either at school or online. It is heartbreaking that is also pointed out that more than 1 in 3 young people of the LGBTQIA+ community lack an adult voice to guide them (http://health.hawaii.gov/surveillance/files/2017/05/HawaiiSexualandGenderMinorityHealthReport.pdf). By fighting for this bill, it is my hope that I will be able to help give my contemporaries real role models and counselors who are really there to understand and give guidance, and not there to promote an agenda that will only hurt the individual seeking help in the end. That is why I urge you to please pass SB270 SD1. It's cliché, but do it for the children!

Re: SB 270_SD1 – Relating to Minors
Position: STRONG SUPPORT

The Hawaii Section of the American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists (HI ACOG) strongly supports SB 270, which would prohibit licensed professional counselors from engaging in or advertising sexual orientation change efforts to minors. As a Section of the Nation's leading group of physicians dedicated to improving health care for women, HI ACOG represents more than 200 obstetrician/gynecologist physicians in our state.

ACOG states that "reparative therapy aimed to change sexual orientation by provoking guilt and anxiety to shame those who do not identify as heterosexual is ineffective and harmful."[1] In addition, we agree with the recent policy statement released by the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry (AACAP) which states "the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry finds no evidence to support the application of any 'therapeutic intervention' operating under the premise that a specific sexual orientation, gender identity, and/or gender expression is pathological. Furthermore, based on the scientific evidence, the AACAP asserts that such 'conversion therapies' (or other interventions imposed with the intent of promoting a particular sexual orientation and/or gender as a preferred outcome) lack scientific credibility and clinical utility. Additionally, there is evidence that such interventions are harmful."[2]

"Conversion therapy" is opposed by most of the mainstream medical and mental health organizations, including the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American College of Physicians, the American Psychiatric Association, the American Psychological Association, the American Medical Association to name a few.

Increasingly more states are taking action to protect LGBTQ youth from this harmful practice, including California, Connecticut, Illinois, Nevada, New Jersey, New Mexico, New York, Oregon, Rhode Island, Vermont, and the District of Columbia. It is high time Hawaii joined this list.

For these reasons, we urge you to protect Hawaii's youth and pass this critical bill. Thank you for the opportunity to testify.

Re. SB 270, Relating to Minors

Dear Chairperson Baker and Vice Chairperson Tokuda:

I write to you in support of SB 270, "Relating to Minors."

The National Center for Lesbian Rights (NCLR) is a national nonprofit legal organization dedicated to protecting and advancing the civil rights of lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) people and their families. NCLR's youth project was founded in 1993 specifically to address the mistreatment of LGBT youth in the mental health system. As part of the #BornPerfect campaign, we support a network of survivors of these dangerous and discredited practices through the process of telling what can be deeply re-traumatizing stories. We have seen firsthand the devastating impact on parents and families when they are misled by state-licensed professionals who give them false information that therapy can change a child's sexual orientation or gender identity. Tragically, based on our direct experience as well as that of others who serve this young population, all the children subjected to these dangerous practices are harmed, but not all of them survive.

Modern science recognizes that being LGBT is not a disorder. In 2009, the American Psychological Association reviewed all the empirical and expert clinical data on decades of conversion therapy treatments and concluded that there is no scientific evidence that such efforts are effective, and significant evidence that they are harmful—especially for children—and linked to dramatically increased rates of depression, substance abuse, risky sexual behavior, isolation, and even suicide. Because these practices have no scientific basis, provide no benefits, and carry such high risks, every one of the nation's leading medical and mental health associations have issued policy statements condemning them. In October 2015, the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration published a report from the nation's foremost experts on LGBTQ youth mental health, describing these practices as ineffective and inappropriate and calling for their end.

NCLR has helped defend laws like SB 270 before the Third and Ninth Federal Circuit Courts, both of which have concluded that these regulations are legally beyond dispute. Last May, the U.S. Supreme Court declined to review a law just like this one for a fourth time. The courts have made it clear that these regulations are constitutionally sound. This bill does not affect the free speech of doctors or the ability of minors to seek any type of medically sound therapeutic treatment. Like all other laws that protect the public against ineffective and unsafe treatment by licensed professionals, it will only ensure that state-licensed mental health providers cannot subject minor patients to dangerous, ineffective, and discredited practices—and cannot defraud and mislead loving parents who would never knowingly place their children at risk of such serious harms, and who count on the law to regulate medical professionals to prevent them from harming their children.

Working closely with survivors of conversion therapy, I know all too well that this is truly a matter of life and death. We have lost too many along the way to finally ending these practices for good. The tragic death by suicide of Leelah Alcorn, a transgender teenage girl who said that undergoing conversion therapy made her feel more isolated and rejected, has been a wake-up call to much of the country that we need to act now to protect our children from an industry that profits from their pain. SB 270 would protect the most vulnerable among us from being told that who they are is wrong and protect families from the terrible pain of discovering that they have been defrauded by trusted professionals who abuse their state licenses to tell children that they were born anything but perfect.

I respectfully request that the Committee adopt a favorable report for SB 270 as expeditiously as possible.

Thank you for your consideration on this important matter.

Respectfully,

Re: Testimony in strong support of S.B. 270, SD1, relating to Minors

Dear Chair Takumi and Members of the Committee,

Planned Parenthood Votes Northwest and Hawaii ("PPVNH") writes in strong support of S.B. 270, SD1, which seeks to prohibit persons licensed to provide professional counseling from engaging in, attempting to engage in, or advertising sexual orientation change efforts (commonly known as "conversion therapy") on persons under 18 years of age.

LGBTQ rights and reproductive rights are deeply connected to justice for all. We have long stood with lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender people in the struggle for full equality — many of whom turn to Planned Parenthood for health care, information, and education. We are committed to building a world where no one experiences discrimination or violence because of their gender identity, gender expression, or sexual orientation.

We support S.B. 270 because it seeks to protect LGBT youth from "conversion therapy," which has been found to be dangerous, inhumane and long discredited by respected medical and mental health institutions, including the American Psychological Association. It has subsequently been outlawed for licensed mental health providers in nine states and the District of Colombia. We can do better for Hawaii's youth.

Thank you for this opportunity to testify in support of this important measure.

Re: TESTIMONY IN SUPPORT OF SB 270SD 1 RELATING TO MINORS

Hearing: March 14, 2018, 2:00 pm, CR 329

Thank you for allowing us to testify in support of Senate Bill 270 SD 1, which prohibits licensed persons who provide professional counseling from engaging in sexual orientation change efforts involving persons under eighteen years of age.

Mental Health America of Hawaii (MHAH) is a 501(c)3 organization founded in Hawai‘i 76 years ago, that serves the community by promoting mental health through advocacy, education and service. MHAH actively works on the issue of youth suicide and bullying prevention with a special focus on LGBTQ+ youth and organizes a coalition of LGBTQ+ youth advocates, called the Rainbow Youth Coalition. LGBTQ+ youth are put in harms' way when they face a lack of acceptance in their families, schools and communities. The practice of conversion therapy is one of the most harmful manifestations of that lack of acceptance. This bill supports the mental health of Hawaii's youth by offering legal protection against a practice that is not supported or validated by research. Conversion therapy is harmful and should not be a part of any mental health treatment.

Our position is supported by many professional mental health and education associations, including Just the Facts Coalition (American Academy of Pediatrics, American Association of School Administrators, American Counseling Association, American Federation of Teachers, American Psychological Association, American School Counselor Association, American School Health Association, Interfaith Alliance Foundation, National Association of School Psychologists, National Association of Secondary School Principals, National Association of Social Workers, national Education Association, School Social Work Association of America), Just the Facts About Sexual Orientation and Youth: A Primer for Principals, Educators, and School Personnel (2008), available at http://www.apa.org/pi/lgbt/resources/just-the-facts.pdf.

> "The most important fact about 'reparative therapy,' also sometimes known as 'conversion' therapy, is that it is based on an understanding of homosexuality that has been rejected by all the major health and mental health professions. The American Academy of Pediatrics, the American Counseling Association, the American Psychiatric Association, the American Psychological Association, the National Association of School Psychologists, and the National Association of Social Workers, together representing more than 477,000 health and mental health professionals, have all taken the position that homosexuality is not a mental disorder and thus there is no need for a 'cure.'"

Thank you for the opportunity to testify in support of this bill. Please contact me at trisha.kajimura@mentalhealthhawaii.org or (808)521-1846 if you have any questions.

RE: Opposition to SB270 SD1 Relating to Minors

Hawaii Family Forum is a non-profit, pro-family education organization committed to preserving and strengthening families in Hawaii, representing a network of various Christian Churches and various faith-based groups. We oppose this bill for two reasons: (1) the bill is not necessary and (2) we believe that this bill violates the right of parents to choose their child's therapy and provide appropriate and professional health care services.

The ban language is so vague, we have no idea what forms of "bad" therapy you are addressing. Claims of "barbaric 'therapy' treatment aimed at converting lesbians and gays to heterosexuality" and alleged licensed therapists using "pseudoscience and torture" are extremely concerning to all of us.

If these types of abusive therapy are indeed happening here in Hawai'i, complaints need to be filed through the State Licensing Board – not the Hawaii State Legislature. In fact, a report of how many complaints were filed should be accessible by this legislature. The bottom line is that if patients in Hawaii have truly have been harmed or treated unethically, the licensing boards would already have known, documented, and acted.

Rather than punishing all therapists, a thorough study of the issue needs to happen. Protection of children against "harmful" and "medieval" therapeutic practices should be taken up with the authority that has been established to do so. The strongest safeguard against these alleged abuses should start and end with the licensing board. At the very least, rather than passing this bill, a task force should be established to study how many instances of abuses have been filed here in the State of Hawaii.

Finally, there is an unintended consequence to the passing of this bill. Parents would be prohibited from accessing licensed health professionals who are trained to help their son or daughter dealing with unwanted same-sex attraction issues that may be occurring because of childhood sexual assault and abuse inflicted by an adult same-sex perpetrator. This bill, if passed, will stop these victims of sexual abuse from getting the help they need. In light of current news stories about this very issue, surely that is not what this legislature intends.

For these reasons we ask that you defer this bill. Mahalo for the opportunity to testify.

TESTIMONY to: House Consumer Protection and Commerce Committee

Regarding: S.B. 270 S.D.1 Relating to Minors

Wednesday, March 14, 2018

2:00 PM in House conference room 329

Submitted In STRONG OPPOSITION by

Mary Smart, Mililani, HI, Hawaii Federation of Republican Women

Chair Takuma, Vice-Chair Ichiyama and Committee Members:

1. As an individual and an officer of The Hawaii Federation of Republican Women, we most strongly oppose S.B. 270 S.D. 1 and request you Vote NO at this committee hearing.

2. Choice is always promoted in every other instance of life, but this bill shuts down the choice of many individuals. This bill also discriminates against young men and women who identify as heterosexual or being hetero-flexible (different from bi-sexual). According to this bill, only people who identify as lesbian, gay, and bisexual are allowed to get the therapy they desire. Others must suffer with their unwanted sexual attractions until they reach age 18. No legislation should discriminate against particular segments of society. People who identify as heterosexual can suffer the same pain and stigma as everyone else. They deserve to receive the therapy they seek, even if others disagree with their lifestyle. Bills like this impose shame and stigma on minors who want to overcome their attractions that may lead to suicide if they don't receive appropriate treatment. This bill criminalizes doctors and other counselors who could provide the desired counseling that could relieve the minor's pain and suffering. This bill will negatively impact counselor's ability to service the needs of their clients. If "self-autonomy" is provided to one group, youth with unwanted sexual attractions should have the right to choose the therapy they want.

3. Words have meaning. For many people, the counseling desired is to address sexual attraction fluidity through therapy (SAFE-T). This has also been called "Reparative Therapy." These counseling efforts are in place to affirm the individual's desired orientation – NOT change it. The therapy banned by this bill could assist in acclimating minors to the orientation with which he or she is most comfortable. S.B.270 S.D.1 demands those minors suffer until they are 18 years old, and that is only if they manage to survive until that age. We worry about teenage suicide yet this bill bans the very support measure that could prevent such a drastic measure. Research has revealed that people with same sex attractions had a higher incidence of reporting they were victims of sexual abuse. Sexual abuse is a serious problem. Denial of counseling to victims make it more difficult for them. Some, not all, victims may have unwillingly adopted a particular “orientation” after this abusive experience. Denying them the therapy they seek may also facilitate the abuser going scot-free and able to abuse more youth.

4. Fact: some youth have unwanted same-sex attractions. They suffer, are stressed and are in pain because of these attractions. They don’t want to be affirmed, they want to be free of these feelings. Adolescence is a particularly difficult time of life with all the physical changes that occur and the other demands (academic, acne, weight gains/losses, inferiority complexes, etc.), that when someone needs help, they shouldn’t be prohibited by their government to receive the counseling that they want.

5. Vote NO on S.B. 270 S.D1 and let our youth get their CHOICE of counseling and therapy. Do not pass this bill.

RE: SB 270 – STRONG SUPPORT OF BAN ON CONVERSION THERAPY

Rainbow Family 808, 1,000 voices strong, are strongly suporting SB 270 for a Ban on Conversion Therapy and have for some years. Our Rainbow Family 808 stands up for support of the many families in Hawaii and their rights to live lives free of assaults, persecution, fear and intimidation.

These years of listening to the horror of the non-medical, non-scientific psudo 'Therapy" began for me in 1996. First, there were the Former Mormon men suffering from the long term effects of Ice Baths required by their families and churches when they were minors. It was the most horrific, painful experiences to listen to. All I could do was listen and validate their pain. I never understood how families would allow their children to under go such painful, persecution and intimidation. These Ice Baths were not successful.

Then came the son of a local roman catholic deacon whose therapist required the minor to masterbate for a solid hour in a room by himself. All the time, this church called masterbation a sin. Minors in the roman catholic church cements this sin with the validation of parents. Minors are stuck between a rock and a hard spot to do what the 'therapist' required all the time under the pain of sin identified by a church and their families that paid for and made sure the minor complied by taking them to the 'therapist appointment. How duplistic is this!! What this produced was pain for decades, nightmares of the horrific 'therapy' required of families and some churches. These examples are straight out of a Horror story!

Our Aloha state repeated says that our keiki are prescious and respected. Yet many issues continue to allow situations that cause our children pain and suffering. It is reprehensible that our children have been used as pawns by those with less than respectible goals. Now is the time for our children and their families to live free to be who they are. Hawaii needs to provide an atmosphere of aloha, support and love of justice for all families.

Rainbow Family 808 respectfully requests that SB 270 be passed to establish protection from this fake scheme that destroys self identification, human worth and sometimes their lives. This is not a church issue but a Social Justice Issue. Please vote in favor of our minors.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide our support for our families with SB 207.

TESTIMONY FOR SENATE BILL 270, SENATE DRAFT 1, RELATING TO MINORS

House Committee on Consumer Protection and Commerce
Hon. Roy M. Takumi, Chair
Hon. Linda Ichiyama, Vice Chair

Wednesday, March 14, 2018, 2:00 PM
State Capitol, Conference Room 329

Honorable Chair Takimi and committee members:

I am Kris Coffield, representing IMUAlliance, a nonpartisan political advocacy organization that currently boasts over 400 members. On behalf of our members, we offer this testimony in strong support of Senate Bill 270, SD 1, relating to minors.

Conversion therapy, often called "ex-gay" therapy, is child abuse and, as such, has no place in our society. Just a few years ago, our state recognized same-sex marriage. Yet, the consecration of this most basic of freedoms is a small step toward eradicating institutionalized bias toward LGBT citizens, whose sexuality is often seen as a discretionary act, rather than an essential aspect of their identities. Today, more than ever, the science is clear: sexual orientation is not a choice, but a biological fact, only the expression of which is socially determined.

Conversion therapy involves a rejection of a child's sexual or gender identity. Minors who experience rejection based on their sexual orientation face especially serious health risks. In one study, lesbian, gay, and bisexual young adults who reported higher levels of rejection during adolescence were 8.4 times more likely to report having attempted suicide, 5.9 times more likely to report high levels of depression, 3.4 times more likely to use illegal drugs, and 3.4 times more likely to report having engaged in unprotected sexual intercourse compared with their peers. This is documented by Caitlin Ryan et al. in their article entitled "Family Rejection as a Predictor of Negative Health Outcomes in White and Latino Lesbian, Gay, and Bisexual Young Adults," (2009) 123 Pediatrics 346.

Numerous medical, psychological, and mental health organizations have condemned conversion therapy as problematic, unscientific, and developmentally dangerous. The American Psychological Association convened a Task Force on Appropriate Therapeutic Responses to Sexual Orientation. The task force conducted a systematic review of peer-reviewed journal literature on sexual orientation change efforts and issued a report in 2009. The task force concluded that sexual orientation change efforts can pose critical health risks to lesbian, gay, and bisexual people, including confusion, depression, guilt, helplessness, hopelessness, shame, social withdrawal, suicidality, substance abuse, stress, disappointment, self-blame, decreased self-esteem and authenticity to others, increased self-hatred, hostility and blame toward parents, feelings of anger and betrayal, loss of friends and potential romantic partners, problems in sexual and emotional intimacy, sexual dysfunction, high-risk sexual behaviors, a feeling of being dehumanized and untrue to self, a loss of faith, and a sense of having wasted time and resources.

The American Psychological Association issued a resolution on Appropriate Affirmative Responses to Sexual Orientation Distress and Change Efforts in 2009, which states: "[T]he [American Psychological Association] advises parents, guardians, young people, and their families to avoid sexual orientation change efforts that portray homosexuality as a mental illness or developmental disorder and to seek psychotherapy, social support, and educational services that provide accurate information on sexual orientation and sexuality, increase family and school support, and reduce rejection of sexual minority youth."

The American Psychiatric Association published a position statement in March of 2000 in which it stated: "Psychotherapeutic modalities to convert or 'repair' homosexuality are based on developmental theories whose scientific validity is questionable. Furthermore, anecdotal reports of 'cures' are counterbalanced by anecdotal claims of psychological harm. In the last four decades, 'reparative' therapists have not produced any rigorous scientific research to substantiate their claims of cure. Until there is such research available, [the American Psychiatric Association] recommends that ethical practitioners refrain from attempts to change individuals' sexual orientation, keeping in mind the medical dictum to first, do no harm. The potential risks of reparative therapy are great, including depression, anxiety and self-destructive behavior, since therapist alignment with societal prejudices against homosexuality may reinforce self-hatred already experienced by the patient. Many patients who have undergone reparative therapy relate that they were inaccurately told that homosexuals are lonely, unhappy individuals who never achieve acceptance or satisfaction. The possibility that the person might achieve happiness and satisfying interpersonal relationships as a gay man or lesbian is not presented, nor are alternative approaches to dealing with the effects of societal stigmatization discussed.Therefore, the American Psychiatric Association opposes any psychiatric treatment such as reparative or conversion therapy which is based upon the assumption that homosexuality per se is a mental disorder or based upon the a priori assumption that a patient should change his or her sexual homosexual orientation."

The American School Counselor Association's position statement on professional school counselors and lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender, and questioning (LGBTQ) youth states: "It is not the role of the professional school counselor to attempt to change a student's sexual orientation/gender identity but instead to provide support to LGBTQ students to promote student achievement and personal well-being. Recognizing that sexual orientation is not an illness and does not require treatment, professional school counselors may provide individual student planning or responsive services to LGBTQ students to promote self-acceptance, deal with social acceptance, understand issues related to coming out, including issues that families may face when a student goes through this process and identify appropriate community resources."

The American Academy of Pediatrics in 1993 published an article in its journal, Pediatrics, stating: "Therapy directed at specifically changing sexual orientation is contraindicated, since it can provoke guilt and anxiety while having little or no potential for achieving changes in orientation."

The American Medical Association Council on Scientific Affairs prepared a report in 1994 in which it stated: "Aversion therapy (a behavioral or medical intervention which pairs unwanted behavior, in this case, homosexual behavior, with unpleasant sensations or aversive consequences) is no longer recommended for gay men and lesbians. Through psychotherapy, gay men and lesbians can become comfortable with their sexual orientation and understand the societal response to it."

The National Association of Social Workers prepared a 1997 policy statement in which it stated: "Social stigmatization of lesbian, gay, and bisexual people is widespread and is a primary motivating factor in leading some people to seek sexual orientation changes. Sexual orientation conversion therapies assume that homosexual orientation is both pathological and freely chosen. No data demonstrates that reparative or conversion therapies are effective, and, in fact, they may be harmful."

The American Counseling Association Governing Council issued a position statement in April of 1999, and in it the council states: "We oppose 'the promotion of "reparative therapy" as a "cure" for individuals who are homosexual'."

The American Psychoanalytic Association issued a position statement in June 2012 on attempts to change sexual orientation, gender, identity, or gender expression, and in it the association states: "As with any societal prejudice, bias against individuals based on actual or perceived sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression negatively affects mental health, contributing to an enduring sense of stigma and pervasive self-criticism through the internalization of such prejudice; and psychoanalytic technique does not encompass purposeful attempts to 'convert,' 'repair,' change or shift an individual's sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression. Such directed efforts are against fundamental principles of psychoanalytic treatment and often result in substantial psychological pain by reinforcing damaging internalized attitudes."

The American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry in 2012 published an article in its journal, Journal of the American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry, stating: "Clinicians should be aware that there is no evidence that sexual orientation can be altered through therapy, and that attempts to do so may be harmful. There is no empirical evidence adult homosexuality can be prevented if gender nonconforming children are influenced to be more gender conforming. Indeed, there is no medically valid basis for attempting to prevent homosexuality, which is not an illness. On the contrary, such efforts may encourage family rejection and undermine self-esteem, connectedness and caring, important protective factors against suicidal ideation and attempts. Given that there is no evidence that efforts to alter sexual orientation are effective, beneficial or necessary, and the possibility that they carry the risk of significant harm, such interventions are contraindicated."

The Pan American Health Organization, a regional office of the World Health Organization, issued a statement in May of 2012 and in it the organization states: "These supposed conversion therapies constitute a violation of the ethical principles of health care and violate human rights that are protected by international and regional agreements." The organization also noted that reparative therapies "lack medical justification and represent a serious threat to the health and well-being of affected people."

Finally, it is imperative to note that this measure in no way impacts the right of religious organizations to offer conversion counseling or “ex-gay” programs on their own grounds or under the supervision of churches. Rather, this bill merely prevents certified professional counselors from doing so, protecting the public from those who would misuse their professional status to perpetrate medically inaccurate and psychologically hazardous practices—bullying and discrimination—on our keiki.

Mahalo for the opportunity to testify in support of this bill.

Sincerely,
Kris Coffield

Testimony IN SUPPORT OF SB270
RELATING TO MINORS

The Hawaii Psychological Association (HPA) strongly supports SB270 which seeks to protect the physical and psychological wellbeing of minors against exposure to harm caused by Sexual "Conversion Therapies" including efforts to change an individuals' sexual orientation or gender identity. According to the American Psychological Association (APA), there is insufficient research evidence to demonstrate the efficacy of these change efforts. There is also no evidence that providing these interventions to children or adolescents has an impact on Adult sexual orientation or adult gender identity.

The APA found that these therapies often do harm to the participants. Not only do children and adolescents get misinformation, they also are at risk of increased self-stigma and psychological distress. Children and adolescents who participate in these types of therapies are given inaccurate scientific information regarding sexual orientation. These types of therapies also often use fear based techniques and have the potential to increase stigma. Participants also often report an increase in distress and depression especially when such "therapies" do not work. As such, these types of coercive therapies are contrary to current clinical and professional standards. These types of therapies violate current clinical practice by not protecting the client's autonomy and by ignoring scientific information on sexual orientation and gender identity.

In addition, we support the recommendation that this bill should define "conversion therapy" as including "sexual orientation change efforts" and "gender identity change efforts." This would make it clear that these are two distinct kinds of conversion efforts that are prohibited by this bill. The HPA supports the idea that this bill needs to present gender identity change efforts correctly to equally highlight the importance of protecting youths' gender identity as well as their sexual orientations.

Although some opponents of this bill have tried to suggest that there is disagreement among researchers about the evidence in this area, they have referenced publications by anti-gay organizations only. All the major organizations of professionals involved in treating children have issued statements opposing Sexual Orientation Change therapy, including the American Psychological Association, the American Medical Association, the American Academy of Pediatrics, the American Psychiatric Association, and the National Association of Social Workers. This consensus of professional opinion is very well documented in a 2015 publication by the Federal Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA; Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, Ending Conversion Therapy: Supporting and Affirming LGBTQ Youth. HHS Publication No. (SMA) 15-4928. Rockville, MD: Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration, 2015. It can be read by following this link: https://store.samhsa.gov/shin/content/SMA15-4928/SMA15-4928.pdf)

The bill does not hinder mental health providers, clergy or parents from counseling youth or offering a range of other, more standard clinical psychological services to lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) children and adolescents. The bill regulates the services being provided to LGBT children and adolescents to protect them against being exposed to harm through change efforts or Conversion "therapies" that might be chosen for them by adults. The bill is in line with APA practice standards.

Thank you for the opportunity to submit testimony on this important subject.

Sincerely,

Hawaii State Capitol, Room 329, March 14, 2018, 2:00 PM

On behalf of Hawaii Children's Action Network (HCAN), we are writing to support SB 270, SD1, which would prohibit licensed mental health professionals from practicing conversion therapy on minors.

Hawaii's children should never be subjected to harmful practices by their trusted mental health professionals. Sexual orientation change efforts ("SOCE"), commonly known as conversion therapy, has been shown to cause lasting harm to young people, and the nation's leading mental health organizations, including but not limited to the American Psychological Association and the National Association of Social Workers, have condemned the practice.[1] SOCE and family rejection of lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender (LGBT) youth has been linked to anxiety, depression, and suicide. Those who practice SOCE on minors base their practice on the false assumption that sexual orientation is a choice, and that homosexuality is a disorder that can and should be "cured." The medical consensus is that this is untrue, and the practice of conversion therapy violates best practices in mental health.

In addition to potentially causing serious negative health outcomes for young people, SOCE is ineffective in changing a person's sexual orientation. Those who advertise that they can change a person's sexual orientation through therapy may be acting in violation of Hawaii's consumer protection laws. In 2015, a New Jersey trial court found that an organization claiming to have the ability to "convert" people from gay to straight acted in violation of the state's consumer protection laws.[2] Laws banning SOCE, on the other hand, have been upheld in several jurisdictions, and the United States Supreme Court has declined review of federal rulings upholding these bans, including the ruling in the 9th Circuit which set binding precedent for our jurisdiction.[3] SB 270, if passed into law, would almost certainly withstand any similar First Amendment challenge.

For these reasons, HCAN respectfully requests your Committee to support this measure.

HCAN is committed to building a unified voice advocating for Hawaii's children by improving their safety, health, and education.

Re: Testimony of the ACLU of Hawai'i in Support of S.B. 270, S.D. 1, Relating to Minors

Dear Chair Takumi, Vice Chair Ichiyama, and Committee Members:

The American Civil Liberties Union of Hawai'i writes in support of S.B. 270, S.D. 1, which prohibits licensed professional counselors from engaging or offering to engage in "sexual orientation change efforts," also known as conversion therapy, on minors.

"Therapies" to change a person's sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression are based on the long-discredited notion that being gay, lesbian, bisexual, or transgender is a mental disorder in need of a "cure." Historically, these therapies have perpetuated and legitimized state-sanctioned discrimination against gay men, lesbians, bisexuals, and transgender individuals. Through S.B. 270, S.D. 1, Hawai'i seeks to codify the widespread consensus in the mental health profession that "therapy" to change a person's sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression is not efficacious, poses a risk of serious harm, and is unethical. The measure serves both to protect minors and to avoid state sanction of harmful and discriminatory professional practices.

The ACLU of Hawai'i also proposes the attached clarifying amendments to S.B. 270, S.D.1.

Thank you for the opportunity to testify.

Sincerely,

Mateo Caballero

THE SENATE
TWENTY-NINTH LEGISLATURE, 2017
STATE OF HAWAII

S.B. NO. 270 S.D. 1

A BILL FOR AN ACT

RELATING TO MINORS.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF HAWAII:

SECTION 1. The legislature finds that the American Psychological Association convened a task force on appropriate therapeutic responses to sexual orientation. The task force conducted a systematic review of peer-reviewed journal literature on sexual orientation change efforts. The task force concluded that sexual orientation change efforts are unlikely to be successful and involve risk of harm to lesbian, gay, and bisexual individuals, including depression, suicidality, loss of sexual feeling, anxiety, shame, negative self-image, and other negative feelings and behaviors. The legislature further finds that children and adolescents who participate in these types of sexual orientation change efforts, also known as conversion therapy, which often use fear-based techniques, are given inaccurate scientific information regarding sexual orientation and gender identity and are also at risk of increased self-stigma and psychological distress.

The legislature additionally finds that ~~sexual orientation change efforts are~~ conversion therapy is opposed by the country's leading medical and mental health professional organizations, including the American Psychological Association, American Medical Association, American Academy of Pediatrics, American Psychiatric Association, National Association of Social Workers, American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists, and American Academy of Child and Adolescent Psychiatry.

The purpose of this Act is to protect the physical and psychological well-being of minors, including lesbian, gay, bisexual, and transgender youth, against exposure to serious harms caused by ~~sexual orientation change efforts~~ conversion therapy by regulating the conduct of specific state-licensed persons who provide professional counseling to minors under the age of eighteen and prohibiting these professionals from engaging in, attempting to engage in, or advertising the offering of ~~sexual orientation change efforts~~ conversion therapy on persons under eighteen years of age.

SECTION 2. The Hawaii Revised Statutes is amended by adding a new chapter to title 25 to be appropriately designated and to read as follows:

"CHAPTER

~~SEXUAL ORIENTATION CHANGE EFFORTS~~ CONVERSION THERAPY

§ -1 ~~Sexual orientation change efforts~~ Conversion therapy prohibited; advertising prohibited. (a) No person who is licensed to provide professional counseling shall:

(1) Engage in or attempt to engage in ~~sexual orientation change efforts~~ conversion therapy on a person under eighteen years of age; or

(2) Advertise the offering of ~~sexual orientation change efforts~~ conversion therapy on a person under eighteen years of age.

(b) Any person who is licensed to provide professional counseling who engages in or attempts to engage in the offering of ~~sexual orientation change efforts~~ conversion therapy on a person under eighteen years of age shall be subject to disciplinary action by the appropriate professional licensing authority.

(c) For purposes of this section:

"Person who is licensed to provide professional counseling" means a person who performs counseling as part of the person's professional training, including a physician, especially one practicing psychiatry, licensed pursuant to chapter 453; psychologist licensed pursuant to chapter 465; nurse licensed pursuant to chapter 457; social worker licensed pursuant to chapter 467E; licensed mental health counselor licensed pursuant to chapter 453D; or licensed marriage and family therapist licensed pursuant to chapter 451J.

"~~Sexual orientation change efforts~~Conversion therapy" means the practice of attempting to change a person's sexual orientation, including but not limited to efforts to change gender identity or gender expressions and behaviors; or to reduce or eliminate sexual or romantic attractions or feelings toward a person of the same gender.

"~~Sexual orientation change efforts~~Conversion therapy" shall not include counseling for a person seeking to socially, medically, or otherwise transition from one gender to another, or counseling that:

(1) Provides acceptance, support, and understanding of a person or facilitates a person's coping, social support, and identity exploration and development, including sexual orientation or gender identity/gender expression-neutral interventions to prevent or address unlawful conduct or unsafe sexual practices; and

(2) Does not seek to change sexual orientation, gender identity, or gender expression."

SECTION 3. This Act does not affect rights and duties that matured, penalties that were incurred, and proceedings that were begun before its effective date.

SECTION 4. This Act shall take effect upon its approval.

Report Title:
Sexual Orientation Change Efforts; Conversion Therapy; Prohibition; Minors; Licensed Professionals

Description:
Prohibits specific state-licensed persons who are licensed to provide professional counseling from engaging in, attempting to engage in, or advertising sexual orientation change efforts on persons under eighteen years of age. (SD1)

Comments:

To the Honorable Roy M. Takumi, Chair; the Honorable Linda Ichiyama, Vice-Chair and the Members of the House Committee on Consumer Protection and Commerce:

Good afternoon, my name is Melodie Aduja. I serve as Chair of the Oahu County Committee ("OCC") Legislative Priorities Committee of the Democratic Party of Hawaii. Thank you for the opportunity to provide written testimony on SB270 SD1 relating to Sexual Orientation Change Efforts; Conversion Therapy; Prohibition; Minors; and Licensed Professionals.

The OCC Legislative Priorities Committee is in favor of SB270 SD1 and supports its passage.

SB270 SD1 is in alignment with the Platform of the Democratic Party of Hawai'i ("DPH"), 2016, as it prohibits specific state-licensed persons who are licensed to provide professional counseling from engaging in, attempting to engage in, or advertising sexual orientation change efforts on persons under eighteen years of age.

The DPH Platform states that "[w]e support the passage and enforcement of laws banning both medical and therapeutic treatments for the purpose of forcing sexual orientation, and gender identity and gender expression conversions, such as conversion therapy (aka reparative therapy), for minors and adults at the State and Federal level. We believe that everyone should have the opportunity to live a true and authentic self.(Platform of the DPH, PP. 7-8, Lines 389-392 (2016)).

Given that SB270 SD1 prohibits specific state-licensed persons who are licensed to provide professional counseling from engaging in, attempting to engage in, or advertising sexual orientation change efforts on persons under eighteen years of age, it is the position of the OCC Legislative Priorities Committee to support this measure.

Thank you very much for your kind consideration.

Sincerely yours,

/s/ Melodie Aduja

Aloha Chair Takumi, Vice Chair Ichiyama and members of the House Committee on Consumer Protection and Commerce,

On behalf of the nearly 600 registered members of the Young Progressives Demanding Action (YPDA) Hawaii, I would like to express strong support for SB270 SD1.

Conversion therapy is unethical. Not only has the American Psychological Association determined that the “results of scientifically valid research indicate that it is unlikely that individuals will be able to reduce same-sex attractions or increase other-sex sexual attractions through [conversion therapy],” but it has also shown that children experiencing the parental rejection associated with such therapy are more than eight times as likely to commit suicide, nearly six times more likely to report high levels of depression, more than three times as likely to use drugs and more than three times as likely to be at high risk for HIV and other STDs.

Conversion therapy is wrong. Sexual orientation is not a choice, it is a part of a persons' identity. To arbitrarily decide that an integral part of another human being's identity is wrong based on religious or so-called "moral" reasons is a cruel violation of that human being's self-determination. Self-determination is a human right. What's more, these are children. And forcing conversion therapy on them is tantamount to predation. Conversion therapists are taking advantage of vulnerable children who are struggling with their identities in an often hostile society. There is nothing moral about violating human rights and taking advantage of children to push an organized religious creed or social agenda. We must outlaw this harmful, unethical, immoral practice in Hawaii.

Mahalo,

Will Caron

Letter: Greetings,

Ban Conversion Therapy for Minors.

Conversion therapy is the barbaric "therapy" treatment aimed at converting lesbians and gays to heterosexuality as well as transgender individuals to the gender they were miss-assigned at birth. Such treatments are and have been criticized as a form of pseudoscience and torture.

By banning conversion therapy for minors will help ensure that LGBT youth know that their sexual orientation and/or gender identity are fine just the way they are and there is nothing to "fix".

Here are the side effects from conversion therapy:
Depression, guilt, helplessness, hopelessness, shame, social withdrawal, suicidality, substance abuse, stress, disappointment, self-blame, decreased self-esteem and authenticity to others, hostility and blame toward parents, increased self-hatred, feelings of anger and betrayal, loss of friends and potential romantic partners, problems in sexual and emotional intimacy, sexual dysfunction, high-risk sexual behaviors, a feeling of being dehumanized and untrue to self, a loss of faith, and a sense of having wasted time and resources.

We need Hawai'i to join the other states that have banned conversion therapy. Those laws are court tested and U.S. Supreme Court approved!

The American Psychological Association, American Counseling Association, American Academy of Pediatrics, American School Counselor Association, and the National Association of Social Workers have all come out against conversion therapy.

Re: SB 270 SD 1 "Relating to Minors"

Position: Strong Support

Dear Committee Chair, Vice-Chair and Committee Members ,

I am presenting this testimony in strong support of SB 270 SD 1 "Relating to Minors." In my profession of pediatrics, and in virtually all other professions focused on the health and well-being of children and youth, "conversion therapy" is deemed to be dangerous and unethical, and over past decades has damaged or destroyed untold numbers of young lives. And yet, without doubt, it continues to be practiced in our Hawai`i community.

Over the past 25 years, through my position as Assistant Professor and later Associate Professor of Pediatrics and Director of Adolescent Medicine at the UH John A. Burns School of Medicine (1988-2012), I have provided health care and counseling to many of Hawai`i's children and youth. I have continued to provide such care in my present position as Associate Clinical Professor of Pediatrics (2013-present). In this latter position I have had the privilege of providing health care and counseling to many children and youth facing issues of sexual orientation, gender identity, and gender expression in their young lives, as well as addressing the questions and needs of their parents and extended families.

In 2018, the standard-of-care for serving lesbian, gay, bisexual, transgender (LGBT) and gender non-binary young people is well-established across the breadth of health-care professions, based on a robust body of research and clinical experience. This standard-of-care is based on the premise that being LGB, straight, transgender, cisgender or gender non-binary are all equally valid and healthy developmental outcomes for young people. In other words, in being LGBT "nothing has gone wrong" and no identity is "lesser than" any other identity. A young person's discovery of and comfort with their identity related to sexual orientation and gender, no matter what that identity might be, is something to be celebrated as a pediatrician or other health care provider. The standard-of-care for serving LGBT young people is also based on a research-based understanding that the risks associated with growing up LGBT or gender non-binary (for example, increased risk of suicide, school failure, homelessness, and sexual exploitation and other forms of violence) are not inherent in their LGBT or gender non-binary identities. Instead, they most often come from growing up in environments that are non-accepting of and often actively hostile toward them specifically because of their sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression. It is these two premises that guide us as health professionals in our work with LGBT and gender non-binary children and youth.

As pediatricians following present standards-of-care in serving LGBT youth, our responsibility is to recognize and affirm the normalcy of their professed sexual orientation and gender identity, provide information and correct misconceptions, address issues of safety and other risks in the home, school and community, identify and build upon areas of resiliency, facilitate access to supportive resources, and above all to wholeheartedly offer the expectation that they may look forward to a happy, healthy and fulfilling life no matter what their sexual orientation or gender identity might be. "Conversion therapy" has no role in present standards-of-care in serving LGBT youth in that its goals are completely counter to those described above which reflect the recommendations of the American Academy of Pediatrics appearing its official 2013 policy titled "Office-Based Care for Lesbian, Gay, Bisexual, Transgender and Questioning Youth." [1] In addition to its recommendations to pediatricians to provide affirming care and advocacy, it specifically states, "Referral for 'conversion' or 'reparative therapy' is never indicated. Therapy is not effective and may be harmful to LGBTQ individuals by increasing internalized stigma, distress, and depression."

It is for the above reasons that I respectfully encourage members of your Committee to vote in favor of SB 270 SD1 "Relating to Minors." From the pediatric perspective, and that of virtually all other health care professions, "conversion therapy" is an antiquated, misguided, cruel and ultimately dangerous practice to which some LGBT youth undoubtedly are still subjected behind the closed doors of licensed therapists, advisors and counselors across our state.

Thank you so much for the opportunity to share my testimony with you.

Respectfully yours,

Robert J. Bidwell, MD

Re: S.B. 270, SD1 Relating to Minors

Testimony of Josephine Chang on S.B. 270, SD1 in Support w/Amendments to Terminology

I am in full support of prohibiting conversion therapy on minors that would include practices or treatments that seek to change an individual's sexual orientation or to change an individual's gender identity. S.B. 270, SD1 states that its purpose is to protect transgender youth, as well as lesbian, gay, and bisexual (LGB) youth from conversion therapy efforts. However, the use in this bill of the term "sexual orientation change efforts" as an umbrella terminology that would also protect transgender youths' gender identities as well as LGB youths' sexual orientations is wrong.

Transgender youths' suffer from "gender identity change efforts", that is not the same as "sexual orientation change efforts". Gender identity and sexual orientation are different aspects of people, and gender identity is not the same as or simply a part of sexual orientation, as the definition of "sexual orientation change efforts" in this bill presents. The conflation of gender identity change efforts under the term "sexual orientation change efforts" is simply incorrect, would do a disservice to transgender persons, and would create erroneous and confusing law that would be difficult to enforce.

Therefore I am recommending that the bill be simply titled "conversion therapy" and that it define "conversion therapy" as including "sexual orientation change efforts" and "gender identity change efforts", making it clear that these are two distinct kinds of conversion efforts that are prohibited by this bill. This would not be a substantive change but would make a very important distinction between sexual orientation and gender identity that is so important to those who struggle to have society understand and recognize their gender identity and the particular risks they suffer from discrimination against their gender identities. This bill needs to present gender identity change efforts correctly, in order to equally highlight the importance of protecting youths' gender identity as well as their sexual orientations.

I am also providing here some resources that show that sexual orientation and gender identity are two distinct aspects of human sexuality and gender identity, as defined by medical and mental health authorities. See for example, the definitions in "Sexual orientation and adolescents", Journal of the American Academy of Pediatrics, at: http://pediatrics.aappublications.org/content/pediatrics/113/6/1827.full.pdf , and "Definitions Related to Sexual Orientation and Gender Diversity in APA Documents", American Psychological Association, at: https://www.apa.org/pi/lgbt/resources/sexuality-definitions.pdf .)

I am also including here the link to the model legislation that was developed by the National Center on Lesbian Rights, an organization that is in the forefront of assisting states in developing their conversion therapy legislation (See "Sample Legislation to Protect Youth from Conversion Therapy", at http://www.nclrights.org/wp-content/uploads/2015/10/SampleAntiConversionTherapyBill_2016-1.pdf. In this "Sample Legislation," you will see a well regarded draft legislation and the correct use of terminology, and also will find more justification for prohibiting both sexual orientation and gender identity conversion therapy than is currently in SB 270, SD1, that could also be cited in SB 270. Additionally, a review of the increasing number of states that adopted laws to prohibit conversion therapy in recent years shows that the erroneous conflation of sexual orientation and gender identity in such laws is not used.

I would also like to emphasize that there is a clear need to prohibit conversion therapy as ineffective and harmful to youth that is fully documented in the 2015 federal SAMHSA report, "Ending Conversion Therapy: Supporting and Affirming LGBTQ Youth" at: https://store.samhsa.gov/shin/content/SMA15-4928/SMA15-4928.pdf (see also the definitions of terms in the Glossary in the appendix of this report, that further demonstrates shows the error in the use of "sexual orientation change efforts" in SB 270, SD1.) Hawaii needs a law prohibiting conversion therapy on youth but needs a law that is correctly stated.

I ask your Kokua in making the necessary changes to SB 270, SD1, and hearing the voices of so many lesbian, gay, bisexual and transgender youth who are also looking to all of you to protect them, who are too often placed in unbearable situations of sexual orientation change therapies and gender identity change therapies. Please amend this bill and give it your full support.

With much appreciation,

Josephine (Jo) Chang

Testimony Opposing Banning Therapy for Those with Unwanted Same Sex Attraction

My name is Karl Benzio, MD. I am a psychiatrist licensed to practice in Pennsylvania and Florida and have been treating patients since 1989. A psychiatrist is a medical doctor specializing in how the brain works, how we think and make decisions, how this can go wrong, and how to fix it. With this expertise, I am skilled to order medical tests, prescribe medications when helpful, and perform psychotherapy (often called "talk therapy").

To give you some brief background, I have worked in Iraq, Uganda, and Kenya with traumatized, abused, and despairing people. I've been honored to testify in front of various state legislatures, U.S. Congress, and the President's Bioethics Committee. I am also the Pennsylvania state director of the American Academy of Medical Ethics.

As I go on and use the terms "treatment" and "therapy," I am using this in the context of an appropriate psychotherapy using evidenced-based, research validated talk therapy treatments by a state licensed therapist. I am not talking about forms of so-called "treatment" by well-meaning lay people or people with a certificate, masters, or even a PhD, but not in a mental health or psychology discipline. This is a very important distinction because some non-trained people have tried to treat same sex attraction, but not using scientifically based treatment methods, and have hurt people.

I have treated many people over the years who have opposite sex attraction (heterosexual orientation) and same sex attraction (homosexual orientation). They come to my office for various reasons most common of which are depression, anxiety, relationship issues, difficulty managing stress, or they want more out of life.

As we define goals and work on their present issues, we need to look back into their past experiences to see why and how they developed the present lenses they now see life through and how their present skills, or lack thereof, developed. The reason for their present struggle is the incorrect or smudged lenses they presently have in combination with some ineffective skills in understanding and managing their present life circumstances.

As we start to uncover past experiences that pertain to present day lenses and skills, we invariably discover some past unhealed relational wounds that still hurt and interferes with an accurate view of themselves and present situations leading to some inefficient, and often dysfunctional coping mechanisms. These coping mechanisms are in place to avoid the past hurts happening again, or experiencing similar scenarios.

The amazing phenomena I have discovered is the following. As we work on uncovering, exploring, and healing the past wounds, while correcting misinformation from their past that was stored in their brain's databanks, many of my patients with same sex attraction start to lose this impulse and feeling and develop opposite sex attraction and feel very comfortable with this new choice. The same sex attraction was actually a coping mechanism to deal with some past wounding. Amazingly, I have never seen it go the other way where the patient has, after a healing and appropriate therapeutic process, switched from opposite sex attraction to same sex attraction.

Thinking this was only my observation; I looked through all the medical literature, research studies, and single case presentations to see what others have found. Looking at tens of thousands of cases, I have found many situations like the one I described, patients changing their attraction from same sex to opposite sex, but never going from opposite sex to same sex attraction. The lone exceptions were several cases of heterosexual male patients who were sexually molested by their male therapists (obviously not an appropriate therapy technique or process), and then developed same sex attraction. For some it was unwanted feelings and others it was embraced.

You might think my database was biased, but it includes both patients from religious backgrounds and non-religious, as well as those who were uncomfortable with their same sex attraction and those who were very comfortable, but who later changed.

The research I looked through also bore this out. It didn't matter the sex, religion, or sexual orientation of the therapist, nor did it matter what the religion, sex, or whether the same sex attraction was wanted or unwanted, with sound psychological therapy and healing, many changed to opposite sex attraction. They were also happy about the change and not fighting or unhappy about it.

This amazing, real life phenomena, shows what the medical and brain science, genetic studies, and sociological research has always born out. Same sex attraction is a choice. No one is born with it. Although many who have same sex attraction don't think it is a choice, for most it is an unconscious choice, made over time deep in their core, that is their way of avoiding pain or coping with unresolved issues, usually emanating from developmental issued with parents and/or premature exposure to sex in some form. The third most common reason is same sex peer or sibling issues during their early childhood.

The data I present to you about those who undergo therapy and change can't be ignored. It shows 2 powerful points:

1. Same sex attraction is a choice as evidenced by the many people who have comfortably changed to opposite sex attraction and lead happy, healthy and fulfilling lives.
2. When looking on a spectrum of pathology or illness on one end and full health on the other end, opposite sex attraction is closer to the full health side than same sex attraction is. When a same sex attraction person gets therapy for their psychological struggles, they often become opposite sex attracted. But no opposite sex attracted patient, while getting therapy and becoming healthier ever becomes same sex attracted.
3. If there were cases out there where therapy moves someone from opposite to same sex attraction (haven't found it except for the abuse situations I shared), then this would also show how sexual attraction is a choice and fluid based on the psychological dynamics a person has going on inside, and static or innate state a person is born with.

Based on this data alone, please do not withhold or deny someone the opportunity of healing their desire and need. You are not a doctor, psychiatrist, or trained therapist. I don't expect you to be able to treat someone and give them the skills to enjoy a full life and achieve their God-given potential. But your standing in the way of someone who wants to have this peace, joy, and fulfilled life would truly be cruel and unusual punishment.

By approving this bill and banning treatment options for those with same sex attraction, especially unwanted same sex attraction, you are limiting the therapeutic repertoire of doctors and others in the healing field. In essence, you would be forcing us to commit malpractice by not allowing us to provide the patient with the healing answers with the least side effects.

Finally, approving this bill and denying proven and effective treatment to a hurting person would not only be cruel and unusual punishment to the patient while forcing the therapist to engage in malpractice, you would also be trampling the First Amendment right of the patient to pursue treatment consistent with their religious beliefs (Jews, Christians, Mormons, and Muslims, as well as many other faith groups oppose same sex attraction) and trampling the Right of Conscience we need protected for all healthcare professionals. Right of Conscience is a necessary foundational building block of our healthcare system solidifying the trust necessary for a strong doctor-patient relationship. Without this trust, patients don't divulge important information to their treaters and health measures decline and healthcare costs dramatically rise.

I am not asking you to mandate treatment for those with same sex attraction. But please vote to oppose this bill as it denies scientifically proven healing options for those needing help who also have same sex attraction.

Thank you for your time, willingness to be open to these facts, and consideration, by HIS grace,

Karl Benzio, MD

Christopher Rosik, Ph.D. letter to legislators re therapy ban bill

Dear Legislator,

I am the Past-President of the Alliance for Therapeutic Choice and Scientific Integrity. I am also a licensed psychologist and a longtime member of the American Psychological Association. I am writing you to request that you vote against the therapy ban bill. While there are many things wrong with this bill, let me address just a few of them here.

1. This bill assumes that the components of sexual orientation (e.g., attractions and behavior) are fixed and enduring and cannot change. However, as summarized by Ott et al., (2013), "Reported sexual identity, attraction, and behavior have been shown to change substantially across adolescence and young adulthood" (p. 466). Dickson and colleagues (2013) further asserted that, "People with changing sexual attractions may be reassured to know that these are common rather than atypical" (p. 762). Research on youth ages 15 to 21 noted a naturally occurring decline in non-heterosexuality over the time of the study and further observed: "All attraction categories other than opposite-sex were associated with a lower likelihood of stability over time" (Savin-Williams and Ream, 2007; p. 389). A recent longitudinal study of non-heterosexual youth reported, "In the LGB population, the dominant pattern was change" (Hu, Xu, and Tornello, 2016). Clearly the possibility of change for many minors is scientifically established, and the experience of Alliance clinicians indicates that professional psychological care for minors with unwanted same-sex attractions and behaviors can promote this naturally occurring change for some individuals on a continuum of change.

2. Proponents of the therapy ban would have you believe that people are simply born gay. However, the absence of genetic or biological determinism in sexual orientation is underscored and clarified by large scale studies of identical twins. These studies indicate that if one twin sibling has a non-heterosexual orientation the other sibling shares this orientation only about 11% of the time (Bailey, Dunne, & Martin, 2000; Bearman & Brueckner, 2002; Langstrom, Rahman, Carlstrom, & Lichtenstein, 2010). If factors in common like genetics or conditions in the womb overwhelmingly caused same-sex attractions, then identical twins would always be identical for same-sex attraction, as is the case for race. These studies instead suggest that the largest influence in the development of same-sex attractions are environmental factors that effect one twin sibling but not the other, such as unique events or idiosyncratic personal responses.

3. This bill creates the impression that the opinions of major mental health associations such as the American Psychological Association (APA) regarding sexual orientation change efforts (SOCE) represent scientifically established facts. However, these resolutions represent advocacy and ideology more than science. Consider the fact that although many qualified conservative psychologists were nominated to serve on the task force that developed the APA Report on SOCE, all of them were rejected. This fact was noted in a book co-edited by a past-president of the APA (Yarhouse, 2009). The director of the APA's Lesbian, Gay and Bisexual Concerns Office, Clinton Anderson, offered the following defense: "We cannot take into account what are fundamentally negative religious perceptions of homosexuality—they don't fit into our world view" (Carey, 2007). It appears that the APA operated with a litmus test when considering Task Force membership—the only views of homosexuality that were tolerated were those the APA deemed acceptable. The absence of divergent viewpoints as pertains to sexual orientation is further demonstrated in the 157-0 vote of the APA's leadership body—the Council of Representatives—to support same-sex marriage, a result that undoubtedly represents a "statistically impossible lack of diversity" (Jayson, 2011; Tierney, 2011). This lack of viewpoint diversity among the leaders of the APA and other mental health organizations has an inhibitory influence on the production of diverse scholarship in areas such as same-sex attraction change that might run counter to preferred world views and advocacy interests (Duarte et al., 2015).

4. In spite of these clear biases, the APA Report on SOCE, which I remind you is referenced by many of the mental health associations identified as opposing this therapy, explicitly states, "Given the limited amount of methodologically sound research, we cannot draw a conclusion regarding whether recent forms of SOCE are or are not effective" (APA, p. 43). Similarly, "[T]here are no scientifically rigorous studies of recent SOCE that would enable us to make a definitive statement about whether recent SOCE is safe or harmful and for whom" (APA, p. 83; cf. p. 67, 120). Therefore, definitive claims by therapy ban proponents that professionally conducted SOCE are by definition harmful and ineffective is not supported by the APA's own review of the scientific literature on SOCE. As the APA Report noted above, the prevalence of success and harm from SOCE cannot be determined at present. Given this backdrop, anecdotal accounts of harm, which are a focal point of attention by supporters of this bill, cannot serve as a basis for the blanket prohibition of an entire form of psychological care, however meaningful they may be on a personal level. The proper course of action for politicians to take given the current limited scientific base of knowledge regarding SOCE should be to encourage further and ideologically diverse research, not place a ban on its professional practice that supersedes existing regulatory oversight and may create unintended consequences for licensed therapists.

5. If legislators want to address a genuine health threat to minors, they should address the frequent pursuit of elective cosmetic surgery among teens. In 2015 alone, 7,840 girls and young women between the ages of 13 and 19 underwent breast augmentation surgery, with an additional 1,797 teens receiving breast lifts, in spite of the lack of physical health benefits and well-documented health risks (Zuckerman, 2008, 2016). These risks include a 40% occurrence of at least one serious complication within three years post-surgery and a four times greater likelihood of committing suicide compared to their peers of the same age. While legislatively addressing this serious risk to the health of minors is not politically sexy, it would be an exponentially greater means of preventing scientifically established harm to youth than the political grandstanding currently going on over therapy bans.

6. The APA is quite clear that it supports the competence of a 17-year old girl to give consent to an abortion. Why does the 17-year old lose competence when it comes to SOCE? Similarly, the APA is on record as supporting the availability of sexual reassignment surgery for adolescents. Is it reasonable that 17-year olds who experience themselves to be the wrong biological sex be allowed to surgically alter genitalia while others with unwanted same-sex attractions and behavior be prohibited from even talking to a licensed therapist in a manner that could be construed as promoting the pursuit of change?

These considerations are just scratching the surface regarding what is wrong with this bill. On behalf of the Alliance and our affiliated licensed mental health professionals, I strongly urge you to support the normal process of scientific discovery relative to SOCE rather than side with activists who would stifle science through a highly premature legislative ban. Please vote against banning therapy.

Robin Goodspeed – Testimony AGAINST Conversion Therapy Ban

My name is Robin Goodspeed. I'm a Christian ex-lesbian. I lived my adult life as a homosexual. In 2009, in my 50s, I was freed from the horrible, harmful homosexual life I chose by the grace of God and the power of Jesus Christ. I was not born homosexual. I was not "born that way." I was sexually abused as a small child by a pedophile babysitter without the knowledge of my family. I came from a middle class family in the Midwest with a working father and a stay-at-home mother. I went to school and attended church. However, as a result of being sexually abused, I began a life-long battle with anger, depression, addiction, and suicide and suffered a nervous breakdown at the age of 13. I began making choices that led to a life of homosexuality. I needed help desperately, but my family did not believe in therapy and I turned away from God and the church and became an atheist lesbian.

When I finally sought help for addiction and suicidal depression in the 1980s and 90s, I was told over and over by every therapist I saw that I was born homosexual. That was a bold faced lie. The psychotherapy community was already pushing the "born homosexual" lie when there was no scientific evidence of a homosexual gene. There is still no scientific proof. Homosexuality is a choice, a behavior, and a sin.

I was given "born gay, be happy, take a pill" therapy. I embraced the lie and lived my adult life as an "out" atheist lesbian, but the anger, depression, addiction, and suicide never went away and never healed. I just learned to manage the misery better. I believed the "born that way" lie because "professionals" told me so and because I never had to be accountable for the damage I did to myself and others. I could always blame my "genes." The harm done to me and the dysfunctional, addicted, miserable life I lived was because I chose to behave as a homosexual. During another suicidal crisis at the age of 40, even the therapist who helped me face the sexual abuse I suffered as a small child told me: "You're homosexual. That's who you are." This was while I was on suicide watch. The pain of the natural negative consequences of choosing a lesbian life never left. I could not find a therapist who would be honest and help me heal from sexual abuse and recover my real self. I sought out 12 Step groups that reinforced the same "born that way" lie, but kept me alive long enough to find real healing. In truth, I was recruited into the homosexual life as a small child by pedophile sexual abuse and enslaved as an adult by an abusive psychotherapy community perpetrating the "born gay" lie.

I did not choose to be sexually abused as a child, but I did choose homosexuality. I was not "born that way." I am one of thousands of ex-homosexuals who have chosen to leave homosexuality. There are now excellent Licensed Professional Therapists helping children, families, and adults heal from unwanted same sex attraction, sexual abuse, and gender confusion. The children, families, and adults in this state deserve the choice to heal. Today innocent and abused children, like me, are being deceived and recruited into homosexuality by a dishonest therapy community and a legal system that criminalizes, and then persecutes for profit, the professionals trying to help. This legislation makes heterosexual therapy illegal. Its agenda re-victimizes children who have already been traumatized by sexual predators and then enslaves them in a harmful homosexual life until the age of 18, when the harm done to them is harder to heal. This is what happened to me and it is cruel and inhumane punishment.

The natural negative consequences of my choice to live a homosexual life were; shame, depression, anger, addiction, disease, violence, and suicide. When I finally reached out for and received real help and healing, I was freed from all of it. Licensed Professional Therapists help people heal, recover their true selves, and leave the homosexual life. There is no such thing as conversion therapy because there is no such thing as genetic homosexuality. Homosexuality is a behavior, a choice, and a sin. The children, families, and adults in this state deserve the truth and that same choice. Do not condemn your children and grandchildren to travel the same difficult path that I was forced to take. Please vote against this legislation.

I benefited from "sexual orientation change efforts" (SOCE)

SOCE is a legitimate therapy for people with unwanted same-sex attractions and is supported by groups like the Catholic Medical Association and the American College of Pediatricians.

I received help from one of these counselors going on 30 years ago. The information I learned about myself and my relations to others was priceless. During the talk sessions I kept thinking, "Was this guy following me around when I was a kid? How did he know this about me?!" So, he was very helpful.
But there was no "shock treatment" or cruel abuse involved in any of it (I only wish I knew about this therapy when I was a teenager).

I also learned that this therapy can only work with people with unwanted same-sex attractions, so I don't recommend it for everyone. Not all gays can or should change. I still have some of my old friends who are gay and are perfectly happy in their lives. I'm happy for them as long as they're happy. They know I'm no longer gay and they respect me for it. Nor do they support on any criminalizing of SOCE.
I'm just asking that this valuable therapy not be demonized and eventually outlawed based on misinformation.
Please contact me if you have any questions.

Comments:

I am in strong support of SB270 SD1 as a good start in tackling the problem of the reprehensible practice of "conversion therapy." However, I don't believe that SB270 SD1 goes far enough.

Young adults ages 18-21 are some of the most vulnerable persons to fall victim to this abhorrent practice. We prohibit the sale of cigarettes, alcohol and guns to persons under 21 because they're some of the most at-risk persons to fall victim to the harmful effects of these products. I believe SB270 SD1 should be amended to include persons under the age of 21.

SB270 SD1 only restricts certain LICENSED persons from advertising or engaging in this practice. I believe the bill should be amended to prohibit ALL persons, including pubic or parochial school teachers and counselors, religion-based practitioners, and everyone else.

Think of it this way: what if someone was offering STRAIGHT to GAY conversion therapy. Would you find that to be reprehensible? If you do, then the opposite should apply as well.

Comments:

I strongly support passage of SB270. I have met LGBT adults, who as children, were subjected to a variety of physical and mental abuses "to make them straight." One man said, it didn't work and the treatment did more harm than good when he was a teenager. Another individual as a teen said he was forced into ice baths as part of his "therapy."

This is criminal and children should not be subjected to such violence. Please pass SB270.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide my comments.

I am submitting testimony in STRONG SUPPORT of SB270

I am a licensed mental health professional and have been a mental health therapist for over 40 years. Additionally, I am an active member of the American Psychological Association (APA), The American Mental Health Counselors Association (AMHCA), and the American Counseling Association (ACA).

It is neither wise nor even possible to turn a gay person straight. “Conversion therapy” is not based on science, and there is no statistical track record that it works. Medical professionals have warned that it can cause depression.

Psychoanalytic technique does not encompass purposeful attempts to convert, repair, change or shift an individual’s sexual orientation, gender identity or gender expression. Such directed efforts are against fundamental principles of psychoanalytic treatment and often result in substantial psychological pain by reinforcing damaging internalized attitudes”. So-called “conversion therapy” has been denounced by every mainstream medical and mental health association, including the American Medical Association and American Psychological Association. Youth in the child welfare and juvenile justice systems may be especially vulnerable to these practices. Some researchers estimate that as many as one-third of LGBT youth may encounter these practices in some form.

There is an overwhelming scientific consensus that these practices have no scientific basis, contradict the modern scientific understanding of sexual orientation, and put young people at risk of serious harm, including severe depression and suicide. In addition to harming youth directly, the therapists who engage in these practices prevent parents from obtaining accurate information about their child’s sexual orientation and gender identity, including the critical importance of family acceptance and support to a child’s long term health and wellbeing.

There is no evidence that sexual orientation can be altered through therapy, and that attempts to do so can be harmful. There is no empirical evidence adult homosexuality can be prevented if gender nonconforming children are influenced to be more gender conforming. Indeed, there is no medically valid basis for attempting to prevent homosexuality, which is not an illness. On the contrary, such efforts may encourage family rejection and undermine self-esteem, connectedness and caring, important protective factors against suicidal ideation and attempts. Given that there is no evidence that efforts to alter sexual orientation are effective, beneficial or necessary, and the possibility that they carry the risk of significant harm, such interventions are contraindicated.

“Conversion therapy” has no grounding in mainstream medicine. It is a pseudoscience—junk science. This is why it has been condemned by such groups as the American Psychological Association (APA) and the American Medical Association (AMA). Dr. Jack Drescher, a New York psychiatrist who has written extensively about the “conversion therapy” movement, says that most of its practitioners are religious counselor, most of them are unlicensed and all base their treatment on theories that are scientifically unsound.

Dear Legislators:

I testify in strong support of this very important and necessary bill.

I have learned, from first hand experience, that conversion therapy is generally a waste of time. I went through a type of this "therapy". I went through such therapy sessions for about two and a half years. I saw no change in my sexual orientation whatsoever. This type of bogus therapy is condemned by all of the reputable professional medical and psychiatric associations that deal with treating people with psychosis. These professionals have learned from decades of experience that attempting to change a gay person into a straight person is something that rarely (if ever) actually happens. These doctors and therapists who claim that such a change is possible know that they are promoting something for which they have no real evidence to show. They know that successful cases of change are extremely hard to find, even after years of expensive, (and self esteem damaging) conversion therapy.

If an adult wishes to do this to himself, he has every right to do that. Passing this bill won't change that. But why subject a minor to this dubious, wasteful and ineffective practice. Please support this bill (SB270).

Thank you.

I stand in strong support for this SB270 in providing protections for minors against conversion therapy. In joining 9 other states that have also provided protections, Hawai'i can help urge the nation as a whole to accept greater tolerance and awareness in various communities. Having gone through the difficult trials of discovering my own sexuality and difficulting excepting who I am, the pain and agony of being forced to undergo exteme psychological trauma to "fix" who I am would have only put me at greater risk for greater physical and emotional trauma. The views of one's parents do not need to be the views of the child, and the protection of these children, like the protection reserved to them in the event of physical abuse, should extend to conversion therapy as well. Please protect our keiki from misguided and unaccepting parents.

Conversion so called "therapy" is very dangerous and is a well-documented destroyer of mental health, leading to homelessness and suicide. This is an important landmark case. Do the right thing for the vulnerable adolescents in your state by banning conversion "therapy."

My Dear Friend Legislators,

This short note is to inform you of my support of bill SB 270 on which you will soon vote. I also wish to share a short version of my personal hell that I went through due to my parents submitting me to conversion therapy in an attempt to “fix”me.

Unfortunately I was born a gay man to parents who were Pentecostal Church of God ministers. My entire childhood it was repeatedly beaten into me that being different was wrong. It was easy to see I was different because I was a feminine acting child. By the age of twelve years old I knew that sexually I was solely attracted to those of my same gender. I knew I was “gay”. Of course I never heard that word. The words I heard were “faggot” “fairy” and such demeaning types of words. But the words I heard most were “shame” and “disgrace”.

When I was seventeen my parents decided I needed to be turned over to the church group to have the demons cast out of me in order to “heal” me of being gay. You’ve no idea of the absolute hell I went through as these deluded people tried to pray the gay out of me by casting out demons within me. Not only was I mentally abused but I was also physically attacked if I spoke up and tried to say anything in my defense.

I left home after that experience as soon as I possibly could.

Please bear in mind that there are churches all over the country doing these horrible things and you can do nothing about it. I realize this is not pertinent to the bill I am writing about but I also realize that you can do something about the groups that these churches set up and claim to be “conversion therapy” groups acting under the guise of psychologically “helping” to change gay people. They’re no different than the people at churches who band together, without any knowledge, and decide to change people. It does not work! It never will! Unless you act to ban “conversion therapy” you are allowing these people the right to go on destroying the mental wellbeing of thousands of innocent young people who have every right to live their life, to which they were naturally born, in peace and happiness. What right does anyone have to decide they must act to change the nature of a person simply because they don’t agree with it?

Conversion therapy is wrong. Conversion therapy is dangerous. It destroys the minds of innocent young people at a point in their lives when they’re most vulnerable. Please stop this heinous practice in your beautiful state. Your citizens deserve the best life they can have. Being psychologically tortured is no way to treat the young people of your lovely state.

Thank you,

Rick Watson

I support SB270 to ban conversion therapy. Please read the following from the American Psychiatric Association. "Psychotherapeutic modalities to convert or “repair” homosexuality are based on developmental theories whose scientific validity is questionable. Furthermore, anecdotal reports of “cures” are counterbalanced by anecdotal claims of psychological harm. In the last four decades, “reparative” therapists have not produced any rigorous scientific research to substantiate their claims of cure. Until there is such research available, [the American Psychiatric Association] recommends that ethical practitioners refrain from attempts to change individuals’ sexual orientation, keeping in mind the medical dictum to first, do no harm."

"The potential risks of reparative therapy are great, including depression, anxiety and self-destructive behavior, since therapist alignment with societal prejudices against homosexuality may reinforce self-hatred already experienced by the patient. Many patients who have undergone reparative therapy relate that they were inaccurately told that homosexuals are lonely, unhappy individuals who never achieve acceptance or satisfaction. The possibility that the person might achieve happiness and satisfying interpersonal relationships as a gay man or lesbian is not presented, nor are alternative approaches to dealing with the effects of societal stigmatization discussed."

Sincere thanks,

John Czapkowicz

Banning conversion therapy for minors will help ensure that LGBT youth know that their sexual orientation and/or gender identity are fine just the way they are and there is nothing to "fix".

Here are the side effects from conversion therapy:
Depression, guilt, helplessness, hopelessness, shame, social withdrawal, suicidality, substance abuse, stress, disappointment, self-blame, decreased self-esteem and authenticity to others, hostility and blame toward parents, increased self-hatred, feelings of anger and betrayal, loss of friends and potential romantic partners, problems in sexual and emotional intimacy, sexual dysfunction, high-risk sexual behaviors, a feeling of being dehumanized and untrue to self, a loss of faith, and a sense of having wasted time and resources.

We need Hawai'i to join the other states that have banned conversion therapy. Those laws are court tested and U.S. Supreme Court approved!

The American Psychological Association, American Counseling Association, American Academy of Pediatrics, American School Counselor Association, and the National Association of Social Workers have all come out against conversion therapy.

This is why we are asking the Hawai'i State Legislature to ban conversion therapy for minors.

DEAN HAMER, PHD

SCIENTIST EMERITUS, NATIONAL INSTITIUTES OF HEALTH

TESTIMONY ON SB270,SD1

March 10, 2018

I'm writing in strong support of SB2270 SD because it is scientifically sound and medically prudent to protect the health and well-being of youth. I do so as Harvard Medical School-trained behavioral geneticist and scientist emeritus of the National Institutes of Health where I was the Chief of the Section on Gene Structure and Regulation for 35 years and published over 100 peer-reviewed articles and three books on this subject matter.

“Gay Conversion Therapy” has a long, sad history. People have tried lobotomy, castration, electroshock, nausea-inducing drugs, even testicular transplants. It's never worked. The reason is that sexual orientation is a deeply ingrained, largely innate trait.

Modern methods of talk therapy may be less dramatic, but they're no less cruel. Can you imagine being told by a doctor, or teacher, or even your own parents that you are sick and diseased just for being who you are? That make make a kid feel ashamed and guilty, helpless, depressed, even suicidal – but it won't turn them straight.

Please note that this bill does NOT have anything to do with what parents tell their kids or preachers tell their flock. This bill regulates state-licensed counseling professionals, and that's it.

The bill also doesn't stop counsellors from talking to patients about how to deal with whatever difficulties they might have because of their sexuality. In fact, it allows a counselor to suggest sexual abstinence, which is one solution.

As you consider this bill, I challenge you to ask whether a single psychologist or counsellor who legitimately claims to be able to change sexual orientation has stepped forward to testify. Why not? Probably because it doesn't work.

The bill is not a violation of free speech or freedom of religion. This issue has already been brought all the way to the Supremem Court twice, for legislation identical to the Hawaii Bill, and the Supreme Court said: let the law stand.

Lastly, please not that this bill is very much in accord with Kanaka Maoli culture and values. The concepts of aikane and mahu are well know in Hawaiian history. Trying to “convert” people from same-sex attraction is an affront to the true spirit of aloha: love, honor and respect for all.

I hope you will vote Aye on this measure, and help prevent Hawaii's youth from being exposed to dangerous and unnecessary forms of psychological manipulation.

I write in STRONG SUPPORT of SB270 SD1 and the proposal “to prohibit specific state-licensed persons who are licensed to provide professional counseling from engaging in, attempting to engage in, or advertising sexual orientation change efforts on persons under eighteen years of age.

Since the bill itself outlines the critical health risks associated with such practices, I won't dwell for long on the facts of which you are already aware, e.g. that:

- So-called “conversion therapy” is a range of dangerous and discredited practices that falsely claim to change a person's sexual orientation or gender identity or expression,

- Such practices have been rejected by every mainstream American medical and mental health organization for decades,

- Due to continuing societal bias and discrimination against LGBT people, minors are especially vulnerable to the harms of this so-called “conversion therapy,” and often suffer increased levels of depression, anxiety, drug use, family rejection, homelessness, and suicide as a result. (American Psychological Association and San Francisco State University)

No society should allow children to be the targets of such abuse, particularly by licensed practitioners.

Re: SB 270:
Sexual Orientation Change Efforts; Conversion Therapy; Prohibition; Minors; Licensed Professionals

Please note that I stand in very strong opposition to this bill. It is a bill that over past years keeps coming back to haunt us.

How does anyone justify the proposed one size fits all diagnoses is beyond me?

How does one then justify that licensed professionals are not allowed to meet with the child, not allowed to access their unique individual case or history and possible causes for the confusion.

It appears that if this bill were to become law, it would only endorse/support those licensed professionals that would help to guide the child through the sexual change process.

It that not considered one sided?

You have each, I hoped, study this bill closely and if you plan to vote in support of it becoming law, let me ask you a question ... what if it turns out that you are wrong? Are you willing to take the responsibility for the harm done, for the lives of these children that will be ruined?

In closing I ask that you look within yourselves for the truth and vote no on this bill.

With deep concern,
Rita Kama-Kimura

This Bill is critical for all LGBT youth. As we know, so called Sexual Orientation Change procedures have been shown by the American Psychiatric Association and many other medical professionals to be Very HARMFUL and detrimental. LGBT youth need to be protected against such archaic "treatment".

Professional counselors should not be allowed to advertise and certainly not practice so called, unsuccessful and harmful sexual orientation change procedures.

Aloha,

I think it is vital we pass SB 270 - Prohibiting Conversion therapy. This type of therapy seems to discourage people from their ability to pursue happiness. It seems neglectful/abusive for youth to be forced into a therapy preventing them from being their true selves. As an educator in the state, I witness the challenges and confusing times as children develop an autonomous sense of self. It is a trialing and a sensitive time in their lives, depression and anxiety can already be a struggle. If we allow conversion therapy this is an extra dynamic that could cause severy psychological and emotional harm to our youth. I find it vital that we prohibit conversion therapy to protect our youth.

I am writing to testify in support of SB 270. I am a concerned citizen, a social worker, an educator, a youth advocate, and a member of many minority and marginalized communities, including the LGBTQ+ community. It concerns me that Hawai'i is the last state who continues to struggle to ban this type of "therapy" with all of the evidence existing stating the probability of harm incurred as a result.

I know, deep down, that you care deeply for our keiki and the generations to come. As a member of the LGBTQ+ community who did not have the option of living authentically as a youth with the support of those around them, I know how devastating it can be to confide in those closest to you and hear them say they want to change you. I know how crippling it can be to one's mind, and how traumatic to one's spirit to be told that something is inherently wrong with you because of whom you love or how you identify.

Youth in this community are 4 times more likely to attempt suicide than their straight peers, and if these youth come from rejecting families or families who try to change them, that statistic balloons to 8.4 times more likely (http://www.thetrevorproject.org/pages/facts-about-suicide); 40%of homeless youth identify as LGBTQ (http://williamsinstitute.law.ucla.edu/press/americas-shame-40-of-homeless-youth-are-lgbt-kids/). These statistics don't exist because of the identity of the children-they exist because of the rejection of them by the people they are supposed to be able to count on the most. 70% of these youth identify family rejection as the reason they are in these predicaments.

Parents will still have the right to express how they feel. Enough parents will continue to express their disproval of their LGBTQ child without continuing to allow licensed professionals and educators to use their positions of influence to bring more trauma to the lives of youth still in the midst of discovering who they are. I'm in support of SB 270, and you should be too.

Re: Ban on Conversion Therapy

Trigger Warning: The following testimonial contains detailed references to a real-life event involving trauma and torture.

To the Hawaii State Legislature:

With the consent and support of my husband, Max E. Hughey, Jr., I implore you to ban so-called conversion therapy, which has long been, and continues to be, a cruel euphemism for sanctioned programmatic torture.

In the 1970s, my husband, then a completely sexually inexperienced sixteen-year-old, came out to his Michigan Assemblies of God family, the single-most disastrous decision of his life. His parents were persuaded to commit him to a local sanitarium for a period of three months of religiously based “therapy,” during which time he was daily strapped to a gurney, sobbing and screaming, savaged by caustic chemicals like Indoklon gas, and unremittingly shocked with electroconvulsive treatments—all for having done nothing but admit a same-sex attraction. Among the many horrific details of the procedure that so often go overlooked and undiscussed is its tacit terror. It is, in point of fact, a form of renditioning: subjects are typically taken off the grid for their so-called therapy and are gulaged from any chance of rescue or outside support; they‘re kept in a controlled state of secrecy, vulnerability, anxiety, and helpless dependency on their captors. In Max’s case, not only were his parents prevented from monitoring his brutal reprogramming procedures, even sympathetic medical staff were threatened not to intervene on his behalf, leaving subjects at the merciless discretion of their captors. Case in point: eventually, Max’s involuntary screams during the procedure had become so uncomfortable for the staff to hear, a paralyzing agent was administered to his vocal cords to ensure he would remain unheard during and after the procedure. To this very day, now at age 63, he still has full-on night terrors, not just about how the electroshock made him think his brain way burning in ash, but about being still conscious and unable to use his voice to scream for help moments before they flipped a switch.

None of my own words can adequately capture with accuracy the degree of terror this innocent sixteen-year-old was forced to experience, nor the ineluctable lifelong consequences of it. An extremely bright, ethically grounded, and otherwise untroublesome “A” student--one who dutifully looked out for his blind younger brother and was just trying to make sense of his own adolescence, just like any other teen—had his life, his health, and his family relationships destroyed in the name of therapy. After his sanitarium experience, Max broke ties with his family, lapsed into life-threatening depression, and lived homeless out of his car. After meeting a partner, Chip, who helped to lift him from this lowest point of his life, Max found the courage to go back to school, earned a prestigious scholarship to attend law school, and eventually landed a career as one of the youngest hospital administrators ever to have worked for an ivy league medical center. However, just as he seemed to be putting the past behind him, those three months in the sanitarium found yet more ways to scourge his life. The combination of the post-traumatic stress and the long-term effects of the chemicals he endured caused Max to succumb to a rare intractable ulcer syndrome that led to a near fatal gastric bleed and incurred two major surgeries, the last of which led to a subtotal gastrectomy: the removal two-thirds of his stomach. The primary and secondary consequences of these surgeries have resulted in more than thirty years of living with severe--severe--medical disability, unrelenting physical discomfort, and daily pain management. Owing to the permanent postsurgical gastric syndrome that followed, he has been generally unable to eat solid food without becoming violently ill and going into shock. For a while, the subsequent damage to his pancreas also made him a subject of curiosity for medical research: he had been one of merely a handful of insulin-resistant patients in the U.S. to be hooked up to a U500 insulin pump 24-hours a day. Throughout all of this, though, the emotional scars of his conversion experience have not lessened, nor have they been overshadowed by these ongoing physical and medical problems. Unalleviated by clinical trauma therapy, the post-traumatic stress remains shackled to him for life, manifesting in heart disease, chronic sleep deprivation, frequent and dangerous somnambulance, not to mention the very a constant wariness of the triggers that will send him into sudden panic attacks.

In submitting this testimonial, Max and I realize how fortunate we are to be alive in an era where our relationship is at last respected through the sanctity of civil marriage. However, that this testimonial should warrant a trigger warning is more than just a painful irony. Hiding in plain sight, bigoted religion-based rendition techniques like conversion “therapy” continue to torture young people in the name of religious freedom and health, as if there were anything legitimately spiritual or medical about any of it. (In fact, some of its victims have been gender nonconformist heterosexual youth!) As a nation, we cannot claim to be uncomfortably disturbed by the plight of minors forced to submit to torture, then at the same time sanction paralyzing them of the one defense they have left: an ability to cry out to us for help! Max and I beg you--BEG YOU!--not to let his happen to your children, your neighbors’ children, your fellow parishioners’ children, or anyone else. Conversion therapy is not merely a lie, it is a life sentence of trauma and misery. Confusing moral rectitude with wellness, it gives the false imprimatur of “therapy” to an inquisitor’s brainwashing, for the sole purpose of making an ideological minority feel more comfortable with a child’s difference.

You have a voice that can speak for the silenced, and the power to stand up to their abusers. Please use these to make compassion and justice your legacy. Your decision today can inspire others to ban conversion therapy once and for all from all U.S. territories. I'm sure you agree, we've lost far too many young people to senseless violence this past year.

Sincerely,

I strongly support this legislation. I am a professional state licensed clinician working with youth who are directly impacted by this bill. I have seen, firsthand, the damage to the psyche that occurs when "conversion" efforts are thinly veiled behind the credentials of one who is self-serving their personal moral position. This is unethical, but insufficiently prohibitive against unscrupulous practitioners by simply directing complaints to ethical boards for the professional's credentials. I support this legislation.

Aloha Mr. Chair and Committee members,

I am testifying in support of SB 270 SD1.

All human beings are created equal under our constitutionl.

Yet every human being is different. Different eyes, skin, hair, personality, brains, right down to our DNA.

Attempts to force a human being to be something they are not is to treat them unequally. Such attempts are, therefore, a violation of our constitution.

Please vote in favor of SB 270 SD1, which seeks to strengthen our constitutional right to be equal, but different.

Mahalo for the opportunity to voice my strongest possible support for SB270 RELATING TO MINORS. So-called "repartative or conversion therapy" is grounded in the lie that sexual orientation can be changed, and in the lie that the sexual oreintation of non-heterosexal people or the gender expression/identity of non-gender-conforming people should be changed. There is nothing inherently broken in non-heterosexul, or transgender, or gender non-conforming youth, so there is nothing to fix. I encourage Hawai'i to join the states that recognize this fact and therefor ban this harmful practice.

I strongly oppose SB 270 SD1 because all people, INCLUDING MINORS, should have the right to choose to speak to a licensed professional that would help them resolve inner conflict related to unwanted same-sex attraction or gender identity. Why would we deny the right for our most vulnerable to seek help in the way that they desire? I believe our state should respect and affirm the autonomy of ALL PERSONS to choose counseling in accordance with their own personal desires, inner convictions and faith. Thank you for your consideration.

I stronlgy oppose SB 270 as it would prevent persons who may have unwanted same sex attraction or gender identity issues from receiving counseling in accordance with their desires, personal convictions, and/or faith. Minors as well as adults should have the freedom to seek out counseling that agrees with their desires and beliefs.

Additionally, the legislature should not tell counselors what they should and should not be saying in counseling with their clients. This is a relationship that is to be open and free for both parties, the client and counselor, to honestly discuss thier feelings and thoughts in order to help work towards the client's desired goals.

Please support this bill.

The supporters of conversion therapy are using religion in an aggressively ignorant manner.

Clearly sexual orientation is genetically determined.

Attempting to persuade someone to 'be' of a different genetic make up is ignorant and very anti social.

Please protect the public from the overreaching zealotry of religious bigots.

By passing this bill you will reassure GLBTG individuals that the state has evolved to the point of respecting their right to live as they are born.

To whom it may concern,

My name is Andria Kirk. I am a 17 year old student from Honolulu, a part of the LGBTQ community, and I am strongly in favour of SB270.

As someone who attends regular therapy weekly I know that the purpose of it is to self reflect, self motivate, and finally accept oneself all while developing coping strategies to deal with difficult situations. The same goes for physical therapy, animal therapy, etc. Overall the purpose of therapy is to make yourself stronger as well as be able to recognize your weaknesses.

Although I have never personally experienced the effects of conversion therapy I have read about the controversy surrounding it. Conversion therapy and especially the forced conversion therapy of minors is not at all therapy. Instead of self motivation and the ability to make oneself stronger despite weaknesses there is instead suppression, guilt, and fear. Conversion therapy is a way to try to “eradicate” feelings and knowledge of being gay. I have heard techniques being used such as pinching yourself whenever you have a gay thought, being physically and verbally abused to banish one's thoughts, and in extreme cases electroshock therapy. As a queer teenager the idea of having to do these things simply for something as innocent as a crush terrifies me and reminds me to be thankful that I have a supportive family.

I had only heard about this bill a few months ago and was horrified to learn that the forced conversion therapy of minors was still legal here, but I was also hopeful for the change that was about to come. As a queer teenager, coming out was a nerve wracking experience that thankfully ended with the love and support of my family. Some of my peers were not as lucky. I remember sending a message out on social media about how shocked I was that forcing minors to participate in conversion therapy was still legal here. The response I got back from my fellow LGBTQ friends was one of fear and outrage. I find this to be reminicent of the Native Hawaiian Aikane and Mahus I had learned about in history class. We now face similar practices of conversion therapy and are forced to change who we are in the name of westernized religion and politics.

I have spent the last few months convincing my friends that this bill will pass. I have wiped away their tears, soothed their anxieties, and echoed their outrage. After explaining the controversy of conversion therapy to one of my closest friends, a trans girl, she called me crying and said that if her parents ever sent her to one of these places she would kill herself at the front door.

I received similar responses to that from friends whose families couldn’t accept their gender or sexuality. It saddened me to see my peers this way: fearful, angry, and even suicidal. Those with more supportive families, such as myself, tried to calm them by offering them places to stay, trying to talk to their parents, and staying up all night trying to talk them down from self destructive behaviour. Although this sense of community and love was heartwarming it saddened me as well. As minors we do not feel safe having to turn to our peers for support and safety instead of our surrounding community, parents, and other family. As minors we do not feel safe with the threat of being brainwashed, degraded, and told everything we know about ourselves is wrong. As minors we do not feel safe with the idea of being forced to go to conversion therapy. With LGBTQ suicide, depression, and bullying rates already much higher than those for our cis, straight counterparts we should do everything possible to love and encourage our keiki instead of allow programs like conversion therapy to stifle and degrade them.

If SB270 passes it will not only strengthen the love and support surrounding us in the LGBTQ community, but it will also protect us from abuse and suppression at the hands of strangers. Minors should be able to grow up here feeling safe and should be able to choose whether they want to attend conversion therapy in the future. Something as innocent as love, whether it is love for your community, your partner, or yourself should be able to exist freely without suppression.

It serves no pupose to attempt to change a person's sexual orientation. What is the reasoning for this? Religious? Are these children threat to society or themselves? No! However, studies have shown that conversion therapy is harmful to one's psychological and phsycisal well-being. Protect our children from conversion therapy.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES
THE TWENTY-NINTH LEGISLATURE
REGULAR SESSION OF 2018

Attention: The House Committee on Consumer Protections and Commerce
Rep. Roy M. Takumki, Chair
Rep. Linda Ichiyama, Vice Chair

My name is Benton Rodden and I am writing as a citizen of Hawai'i and a member of the LGBTQ community. SB 270 if passed will prohibit the practice known as conversion therapy from being used against those below the age of majority. The practice of conversion therapy, trying to change someone's sexuality through any number of unethical practices, has been thoroughly debunked as junk psychology and causes harm to those who have to endure it. Further, homosexuality was removed from the list of disorders in the Diagnostic and Statistics Manual (DSM) in 1972. Providing harmful treatment when no condition exists to justify it is unethical and ought to be illegal.

While laws are not always required to stop unethical psychological practices from occurring, the stigma and discrimination LBGTQ people face continues to drive the use of this practice. Minors are in a particularly vulnerable position. Lastly, as an openly gay man, I find it deeply problematic that the state has not already moved forward on this. By permitting a practice that only serves to harm LGBTQ people, the state has given legitimacy to the idea that something is wrong with me and my community. It is not my community that needs to change, but rather the law that needs to.

Respectfully,

Benton Rodden

RE: SB270, SD1 Relating to Minors

Thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony.

I am testifying in strong support of SB270, SD1

For almost half a century, mental health professionals have been aware that homosexuality is not a mental disorder. In 1973 the American Psychiatric Association declassified homosexuality from the Diagnostic and Statistical Manual of Mental Disorders (DSM). It takes a number of years to make changes to any DSM version, so this process began well before changes were made. The Pan American Health Organization has noted that the global scientific and professional consensus is that homosexuality is a normal and natural variation of human sexuality.

Looking at history, many cultures embraced the concept of gender identity. The Hawaiian culture definitely embraced Transgender identity and even revered it, and does so to this day. However, when Western society overtook the Hawaiian Islands, the newcomers felt it was evil.

In October, 2015, SAMHSA (the US federal Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration) issued an approximately 40-page booklet, "Ending Conversion Therapy: Supporting and Affirming LGBTQ Youth." This can be found on the SAMHSA website. SAMHSA's rejections include issues such as the fact that there has been no documented evidence that attempts at conversion therapy have been successful and that, rather than being helpful to the individual, are harmful, abusive and fraudulent.

Having worked with sexually abused children and adolescents in the past, I do not believe that sexual abuse causes a person to become, or to think, she/he is lesbian or gay. Regardless of the individual's gender identity or sexual orientation, virtually any child who is sexually abused will feel confused, upset, guilty, even that she/he is possibly at fault. Victims of such abuse typically have low self-esteem and often turn to alcohol, drugs, high-risk behaviors and, too often, self-harmful behaviors, up to and including suicide. For many years, the US Government's annual Youth Risk Behavior Survey (YRBS) has shown that this high-risk symptom profile is tremendously over-represented among LGBTQ youth.

What these children most need is support. The support will hopefully start with their parents who accept them and their feelings, and that is too often not the case. For the most part, the type of support needed requires more than the parents alone; these children also need a qualified professional to help them work through their feelings. That means listening to them, validating them and helping them value themselves so that they can develop a positive sense of identity. It does not mean doing anything to change who they already are.

This is not a mental illness and anything done to make them feel even less okay increases their risks. Gender identity and sexual orientation are factors which individuals are born with. By the time an LGBTQ child is five or six, they know they are different, yet the fear of expressing that to others may make them try to be different; however, they are unable to be the social norm because this is not who they are.

Conversion therapy methods are not therapy, and they confuse and mentally harm any person subjected to this so-called therapy. It is not considered a therapy as it has not been proven to work. In addition, many of my colleagues, as well as myself, believe this is a form of child abuse and is not at all helpful.

I encourage you to pass SB270, SD1.

TESTIMONY IN STRONG OPPOSITION TO SB270 SD1

SUBMITTED BY: Wilma Youtz
P.O. Box 10273
Honolulu, HI 96816
DATE: 3/13/18

SB270 SD1, while seemingly affecting only state-licensed persons who provide counseling or therapy concerning sexual orientation issues, is another weapon being used in the battle for the minds and lives of Hawaii's youth.

I ask that all Committee Members see this bill for what it is: it is an effort to remove any alternative or relief to the efforts being made to expose and persuade our youth to accept and embrace alternative lifestyles and sexual orientations. The main stream media and public schools across the country would have children from a young age believe that their gender can be whatever they choose it to be, that the restroom or locker room assigned to them may very well be invaded by a person of the opposite sex because he or she chooses to identify as a person of the same sex, whether or not they were born of the same gender.

Is it any wonder that minors can experience gender confusion and possibly even harassment over their sexual orientation? SB270 SD1 would take away the right of a parent to seek professional assistance to help navigate such issues for their child. It would then be incumbent upon the parent to seek therapy for their child in another state, adding to the burden and stress of the situation. Please understand why the Hawaii State Teachers Association supports this bill: SB270 SD1 would keep the school turf inviolate and immune to any voices or influences that contradict the social agenda being advanced in Hawaii's classrooms.

SB270 SD1 is an agenda-driven bill. I am not speaking out against the free choice of sexual orientation. I am merely asking that parents' rights to do what they believe is right for their children should be defended, not curtailed. Hawaii's keiki are not wards of the State. To legislate against parental rights is simply wrong.

Please vote NO on SB270 SD1.

Thank you for your serious consideration.

Members of the House Consumer Protection and Commerce Committee

Re: Strong Opposition to SB 270 SD1

Dear Chair Takumi and Members of the House Consumer Protection and Commerce Committee:

I am a practicing attorney, and possess a graduate degree in Counseling. I testify in strong opposition to SB 270 SD1 for the following reasons (due to the short hearings notice, this list is limited):

1. Parents have the fundamental constitutional right to direct the care, upbringing and education of their children. The U.S. Supreme stated in Prince v. Massachusetts, 321 U.S. 158 (1944) that "It is cardinal with us that the custody, care and nurture of the child reside first in the parents, whose primary function and freedom include preparation for obligations the state can neither supply nor hinder." See also Meyer v. Nebraska, 262 U.S. 390 (1923) ("It is the natural duty of the parents to give his children education suitable to their station in life."); Pierce v. Soc'y of Sisters, 268 U.S. 510 (1925) ("The child is not the mere creature of the State; those who nurture him and direct his destiny the right coupled with the high duty to recognize and prepare him for additional obligations. . .")

   When a child is going through personal struggles, the parents who know the child better than the government should decide what is the best course of medical, psychological or psychiatric treatment for the child, not the state.

   Therapy bans are discriminatory because they deny some parents their right to employ therapists who support their goals and values.

Parents and their children can get counseling for unwanted depression and unwanted anxiety but the ban prohibits a therapist from treating children with an unwanted same sex attraction.

It is unfortunate that the child must wait until he/she is an adult to get the type of desired treatment or to have to spend a great deal of money to travel out of state to receive the treatment he/she desires. This bill is unfair to the poor.

2. As drafted, the bill seems unconstitutionally overbroad and appears to ban treating minors with other types of sexual orientation that involves criminal or harmful sexual behavior, such as pedophilia, zoophilia, and necrophilia. Surely, a child who molests young children or is sexually attracted to animals or dead people should be able to receive therapy/counseling.

   Note: Bestiality/zoophilia is becoming more acceptable with the recent the Academy Awards for best picture involving bestiality. Another film involving pedophilia received an award as well.

3. The bill appears to be unconstitutionally vague. The bill appears to be vague in that it fails to define what aspect of conversion therapy is unacceptable. Haven't harmful practices of the past to treat mental illness such as ice baths, shock therapy, lobotomies and vomit-inducing drugs been discredited and are no longer used? Are there not disciplinary guidelines that therapist must adhere to in order to treat patients? Is it the intention of the legislature/state to now regulate simple talk therapy to patients? If so, that is unfortunate indeed.

   Patients can file complaints against their therapists if they have been harmed by the treatment, without the State having to specify, limit or prohibit certain types of treatment. Are there many (or any) complaints in the state against therapists for conversion therapy? If not, then such a bill is not needed.

4. Talk therapy works for those desiring to change.

   Dr. Nicholas Cummings (former President of the APA) said: "Of the patients I oversaw who sought to change their orientation, hundreds were successful. But contending that all same-sex attraction is immutable is a distortion of reality. Attempting to characterize all sexual reorientation therapy as 'unethical' violates patient choice and gives an outside party a veto over patients' goals for their own treatment. A political agenda shouldn't prevent gays and lesbians who desire to change from making their own decisions."[1]

Importantly, according to Dr. Michelle Cretella, studies strongly demonstrate that "80-95% of adolescents outgrow gender dysphoria.[2] Access to therapy to help these children resolve gender dysphoria should not be stigmatized or, worse yet, banned—these children need access to basic talk therapy."

5. Children have a right to treatment for unwanted same sex attraction, particularly those who have been abused. Sometimes children who have been the victims of sexual abuse struggle with sexual orientation or gender dysphoria issues. If a therapist is treating a minor for sexual abuse, and months later, the patient begins talking about unwanted same sex attractions or gender dysphoria, the bill appears to deny treatment to the child, despite the child's pain, depression, anxiety, self-loathing thoughts and actions (such as cutting, suicide ideation, excessive rage, and so on), even when there is a causal connection between the abuse and same sex desires and/or gender dysphoria.

6. The bill violates the First Amendment rights of therapists. The bill infringes on the constitutional rights of therapists to express their views on sexuality and to express words that would help alleviate a patient of certain unwanted same sex desires, gender dysphoria, and so on. It is an unconstitutional viewpoint discrimination.

7. A task force of therapists, attorneys and physicians from both sides of the issue should be appointed to research and present its findings to the Legislature. Suicide rates among transgender people are about 41%. Has the Legislature reviewed sufficient scientific evidence that suicides in the LGBT community have decreased as a result of state legislatures passing bans on conversion therapy? If not, the ban should not pass. For more information see some of the rebuttals below against the conversion therapy ban by prominent physician, Dr. Michelle A. Cretella.

8. Strong Rebuttals to Advocates of Conversion Therapy Ban By A Prominent Physician. Michelle Cretella, M.D., is president of the American College of Pediatricians, a national organization of pediatricians and other health care professionals dedicated to the health and well-being of children. She wrote an article published on Jul 3, 2017 that rebuts some of the troubling assumptions made by medical professionals as there is insufficient evidence for their positions: See link: http://dailysignal.com/2017/07/03/im-pediatrician-transgender-ideology-infiltrated-field-produced-large-scale-child-abuse/.

[2] See, e.g. Michelle A. Cretella, Gender Dysphoria in Children and Suppression of Debate, http://wwww.jpands.org/vol21n02/cretella.pdf.

"Even the American Psychological Association's Handbook of Sexuality and Psychology admits that prior to the widespread promotion of transition affirmation, 75 to 95 percent of pre-pubertal children who were distressed by their biological sex eventually outgrew that distress. The vast majority came to accept their biological sex by late adolescence after passing naturally through puberty."

Dr. Cretella further states: "There is no proof that affirmation prevents suicide in children.

Advocates of the transition-affirming protocol allege that suicide is the direct and inevitable consequence of withholding social affirmation and biological alterations from a gender-dysphoric child. In other words, those who do not endorse the transition-affirming protocol are essentially condemning gender-dysphoric children to suicide.

Yet as noted earlier, prior to the widespread promotion of transition affirmation, 75 to 95 percent of gender-dysphoric youth ended up happy with their biological sex after simply passing through puberty.

In addition, contrary to the claim of activists, there is no evidence that harassment and discrimination, let alone lack of affirmation, are the primary cause of suicide among any minority group. In fact, at least one study from 2008 found perceived discrimination by LGBT-identified individuals not to be causative.

Over 90 percent of people who commit suicide have a diagnosed mental disorder, and there is no evidence that gender-dysphoric children who commit suicide are any different. Many gender dysphoric children simply need therapy to get to the root of their depression, which very well may be the same problem triggering the gender dysphoria".

"Bottom Line: Transition-Affirming Protocol Is Child Abuse
The crux of the matter is that while the transition-affirming movement purports to help children, it is inflicting a grave injustice on them and their nondysphoric peers.

These professionals are using the myth that people are born transgender to justify engaging in massive, uncontrolled, and unconsented experimentation on children who have a psychological condition that would otherwise resolve after puberty in the vast majority of cases.

Today's institutions that promote transition affirmation are pushing children to impersonate the opposite sex, sending many of them down the path of puberty blockers, sterilization, the removal of healthy body parts, and untold psychological damage.

These harms constitute nothing less than institutionalized child abuse. Sound ethics demand an immediate end to the use of pubertal suppression, cross-sex hormones, and sex reassignment surgeries in children and adolescents, as well as an end to promoting gender ideology via school curricula and legislative policies.

It is time for our nation's leaders and the silent majority of health professionals to learn exactly what is happening to our children, and unite to take action."

In light of these valid points and the evidence, why is our Legislature banning a certain type of therapy for minors? Fortunately, most states have rejected a ban on conversion therapy.

9. Many adults have changed with good therapy. Many adults have received treatment, and have successfully left the LGBT life. They are happy and contented with their choices, and live fulfilled lives. One of them is Walt Heyer. Visit: http://www.thepublicdiscourse.com/2015/04/14688/ or http://www.sexchangeregret.com/. And there are many more on youtube and other websites (google it). Please give the youth the same opportunity to get the therapy they desire for their unwanted sexual attractions as we give to adults.

For the foregoing reasons, please vote against the SB 270 SD1. Thank you for this opportunity to express my concerns.

Very truly yours,

Sandra Young

To Our Lawmakers:

I'm very disturbed to hear that my personal private practice is being legislated at this time. I have been practicing as a Licensed Psychologist for 22 years now and have never encountered such overstep of professional boundaries by governmental entities. First of all, the work I do, under state law, is confidential, personal, and private. What happens in the office must remain sacred. The only understandable exceptions are imminent risk for suicide, homicide or child or elder abuse. Every thing else is deemed confidential and sacred, by law.

This bill portrays a pejorative value judgment of the APA, AMA and all other organizations listed. If they could they would probably outlaw any kind of spiritual counseling also. I have heard rumors of this being legislated also. Who decides what is right and wrong in our society? Who has the right to decide? Isn't it up to the individual to decide what they choose to believe in? If a Mormon wants to convert to Christianity do I have the right to tell them not to? If a Christian wants to become a Buddhist should I forbid them to do so? This is a free country or at least it was founded as a free country. It is not your place to decide how I am to practice as a Psychologist. If a Christian teenager is struggling with a conflict between their Christian beliefs and homosexual desires and they desire to be fully heterosexual am I not to help them in this pursuit?

If in another scenario, I'm not comfortable counseling a homosexual teen, then by my code of ethics I should refer them onto a therapist that does feel comfortable addressing these issues. But if I'm practicing in the scope and competence of my practice and profession, no lawmaker should intervene in something they do not have professional competence in. I do not tell you how to interpret the law and you should not tell me how to practice psychology.

Everyone is free to decide for himself or herself. As the old saying goes, "If it ain't broke, don't fix it." This bill is choosing one value system over another. It does not allow me the freedom counsel as the Christian individual desires in my example above. It forbids me or any other professional from helping them to become what they desire, in this case heterosexual.

I ask you to not make moral pronouncements and not to get involved in my private practice or any other therapist's practice. Leave the system as it is. It is fair to both sides. It favors neither. This bill will create stress and moral dilemmas for Christian therapists or any other therapist that wants to help any individual who seeks out a heterosexual orientation.

Thank you for your time and consideration.

Sincerely,

Brian Misaka, Psy.D.

RE: Testimony in STRONG SUPPORT of SB270

Aloha nui e Chair Takumi and Members of the House Committee on Consumer Protection and Commerce:

I write today in strong support of SB270, in protection of our youth from the potentially devastating and dehumanizing effects of conversion therapy. I commend your committees on hosting this hearing - I believe it demonstrates leadership and understanding that the people of Hawai'i believe this is the right thing to do.

The evidence is overwhelmingly clear that conversion therapy is dangerous and inhumane. Steeped in intolerance, perpetuation of these harmful practices is contrary to the health of our youth, who are particularly vulnerable to the traumatic impacts that can lead to depression, anxiety, drug use, homeless, and suicide. It is in part for this very reason that 11 states and a number of jurisdictions have already taken action to protect youth from what could be constituted as abuse by state-licensed mental health providers.

This bill is similarly focused on prohibiting state-licensed professionals from utilizing conversion therapy with youth. It is well supported by the many health organizations both locally and nationally, which have disavowed the practice, many of whom stand in strong support of this measure. While individuals have a right to their personal beliefs, those beliefs cannot go so far as to cause physical, emotional, and mental abuse to others, especially minors. SB270 upholds the responsibility we have to take measures to protect our youth.

Mahalo for your leadership and please stand up for our keiki by supporting SB270.

Me ke aloha pumehana,

Rebecca Justine ‘Iolani Soon

TESTIMONY IN SUPPORT OF SB 270 RELATING TO MINORS

Hawaii Youth Services Network (HYSN), a statewide coalition of youth-serving organizations, supports SB 270 Relating to Minors.

There is no scientific evidence to show that sexual orientation conversion therapy is effective, and much evidence to demonstrate that it can have harmful effects. Sexual conversion therapy can result in depression, social withdrawal, and even suicide. No major mental health professional association sanctions efforts to change sexual orientation and virtually all of them have adopted policy statements cautioning the profession and the public about treatments that purport to change sexual orientation.

Youth who identify as gay, lesbian, bisexual, transgender or questions (LGBTQ) should have access to counseling that provides acceptance, support and understanding. They should not be subjected to ineffective practices that are rooted in intolerance of diversity.

Thank you for this opportunity to testify.

Sincerely,

Judith F. Clark

Comments:

Efforts to ban Sexual Orientation Change Efforts (SOCE) for persons under the age of eighteen violates their rights to liberty and health. Everyone has fundamental right to seek therapy for unwanted same-sex attraction or confusion about sexual orientation just as they do for any other physical or mental health condition.

Comments:

Sexual orientation should never be considered a psychological problem that needs treatment. Conversion therapy treats individuals as if something is wrong with their thinking and thus they can be converted into heterosexual adults.

Instead this misguided and unethical treatment leaves individuals suicidal and depressed.

Outlaw any and all types of conversion therapy in Hawaii.
