The purpose of this informational briefing is to review the U.S. Army's four-point plan on Depleted Uranium:

- To provide all information obtained to the Hawai'i Department of Health in a timely manner.
- To partner with the state in the planning and execution of an extensive survey and monitoring effort during the summer of '07 to address Schofield Barracks' range, Makua Military Reservation and Pohakuloa Training Areas.
- To partner with the state in the planning and execution of a mutually agreed upon response.
- The U.S. Army will provide any necessary training to state participants.

This past year the U.S. Army partnered with the state in planning and executing an extensive survey and monitoring effort. Col. Howard Killian, U.S. Army Deputy Director of the Army Installation Management Command, will report on it's findings and Col. Killian will advise on a timeline and actions the U.S. Military plan to inform and protect the public.
