
A BILL FOR AN ACT

RELATING TO CHILDREN.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF HAWAII:

1 SECTION 1. The legislature finds that many of Hawaii's
2 children lack the fundamental skills they need when they enter
3 kindergarten. According to the 2010 Hawaii State School
4 Readiness Assessment, less than twenty-one per cent of Hawaii's
5 public school kindergarten classes consistently displayed
6 literacy concepts and skills necessary for success in school.
7 This figure represents a drop of nearly four per cent from 8 2009's Hawaii State School Readiness Assessment. The 9 understanding of math concepts fared slightly better, with 10 approximately twenty-three per cent of public school
11 kindergarten classes consistently demonstrating these skills.
12 However, this figure represents a drop of nearly seven per cent
13 from 2009's Hawaii State School Readiness Assessment. These 14 trends do not bode well for Hawaii's keiki.

15 Hawaii has long recognized the importance of early 16 childhood development on future learning. Unfortunately, many 17 services designed to help children succeed in school have been 18 eliminated or drastically cut over the past two years. Without

1 proper funding for these programs, Hawaii's keiki will have a 2 harder time reaching their full potential. From Neurons to
3 Neighborhoods, a report developed by a committee of seventeen
4 national experts in the fields of education, psychiatry,
5 neuroscience, economics, and public policy, found that:

6 [S]triking disparities in what children know and can 7 do are evident well before they enter kindergarten.
8 These differences are strongly associated with social 9 and economic circumstances, and they are predictive of 10 subsequent academic performance.

11 Research has confirmed that a large gap exists between the 12 academic abilities of children from high- and low-income 13 families by age six: the latter "lag further behind in 14 acquiring more sophisticated reading and math knowledge and 15 skills such as recognizing words by sight or solving simple
16 addition and subtraction problems" (National Child Care 17 Association, 2002). Because many of Hawaii's children lack the 18 fundamental skills they should have when they enter 19 kindergarten, it is essential for the State to respond by 20 funding programs designed to address school readiness and early 21 childhood development.

1 The purpose of this Act is to appropriate funds to various 2 early childhood and school readiness programs in the State.
