Aloha Chair Yamane, Vice Chair Morikawa, and Members of the House Committee on Health. Papa Ola Lokahi (POL) supports this measure.

In our prior testimony we have indicated the need for the ability to have poi prepared in the traditional way. We also know that the Native Hawaiian community will assist in this effort in any way that it can.

Thank you for the opportunity to support this legislation.

HOUSE COMMITTEE ON HEALTH

February 11, 2011, 9:00 A.M.

(Testimony is 1 page long)

TESTIMONY IN SUPPORT OF HB 1344 (HD1)

Chair Yamane and members of the Committee:

The Sierra Club, Hawaii Chapter, with 8000 dues paying members and supporters statewide, supports HB 1344 (HD1). This measure would appropriately authorize the traditional and customary practice of making hand-pounded taro.

It is important for the state find ways to protect and encourage traditional and cultural practices so as to ensure the unique elements that form the basis for modern Hawai'i are preserved. This measure follows other states in allowing small cottage industries to be exempt from a strict construction of health regulations. The revisions proposed in the HD1 form of this bill appropriately attempt to balance safety concerns while respecting the traditional method of hand-pounding taro.

We appreciate the Legislature's willingness to support this important cultural practice. Please move this measure forward.

Mahalo for the opportunity to testify.

Traditional food preparation practices should be encouraged and not discouraged in the land of their origin. Changing the laws recognizing traditional/cultural practices and permitting modern practitioners to provide a healthy food staple such as hand-made kalo pa'i'ai as well as to make a living are worthy of support by the people of Hawai'i and enactment into law. House Bill 1344

I support HB 1344. My name is Punahale, and I am a Junior at Ke Kula Kaiapuni o Anuenue. As a kanaka Hawaii, the selling of Pa'i 'Ai should be legal. It has the same meaning behind and ingredients as Poi. Yet Poi is still allowed to be sold in Hawaii. This is Hawaii, we are Hawaiian, if they have a problem with the selling and buying of Pa'i 'Ai, then don't buy it. If you have a problem with what how it's made, then don't bother with it. Why should the whole state be put under the same effect. America already "annexed" our land and stole our culture, the least we should be allowed to do, is sell or benefit with what culture we have left, whether its hand pounded Taro or anything else. Mahalo (:

Hawaii State Legislature and Department of Health

Dear sir or madam,

My name is Kimiko Lahapa-Nani Patcho; I am a junior at Ke Kula Kaiapuni o Anuenue. I am writing to you to support the bill to legalize the selling of pa'iai. I have been going to a Hawaiian immersion school since pre-school, and I have learned a lot of things about my Hawaiian culture. I can say I have done many cultural things, like for example hula, oli, makahiki and even preparing food from the things that we grow in our very own lo'i. Through all my years I've been doing all these wonderful things I have never seen someone pound the taro from a dirty or unsanitary rock and board. We Hawaiians are very clean; all the utensils we use are thoroughly washed and clean before we touch any food with them. Hawaiians have been doing this for the past thousands of years and we never have gotten sick. Selling pa'iai is how we make money to survive and feed our families; if you do not pass this bill then there will be more Hawaiians/ people on the street because they cannot afford the things that they need to help their families. Isn't that we're trying to prevent on this island? Less people on the road and more people living a better life and having jobs, selling pa'iai is a very important thing to do, or else we will lose it. This is why I strongly support the bill passing of selling pa'iai.

Sincerely,

Kimiko Lahapa-Nani Patcho

Aloha mai kakou,

Aloha my name is Laiana Kanoa-Wong I am a teacher at Ke Kula Kaiapuni ‘o Anuenue. As a native Hawaiian I am fully supporting house bill 1344to legalize the selling of Pa’i ‘ai to consumers. As a teacher I have taught the making of Pa’i ‘ai in my class, it has become one of the most interesting and engaging activities, because it relates to them as Hawaiians connected to our land. Making Pa’i ‘ai is a traditional practice that has been a way of life for thousands of years. Pa’i ‘ai as a food and primary staple plant is considered the ultimate in nutrition, and also the safest of all foods to eat as it is hypo allergenic. Purchasing Pa’i ‘ai should be the individual’s decision not up to the department of health. I hope that this bill passes so that my children will be able to purchase pa’i ‘ai.

Aloha Honorable Committee Members;

Regarding HB1344 Relating to Health:

I support HB1334 and request that committee members adopt the language of the amended bill.

The Department of Health has indicated that the language of the amended bill is something they can work with and support. It achieves the purposes of supporting makers of hand pounded poi but releases the DOH from having to cross into the culturally sensitive area of having to define which cultural foods and practices are valid under the law change proposed by HB1344.

Hand pounding pa'i'ai and poi has been a traditional Hawaiian cultural practice and means of making and preserving food for at least 1,200 years. In that time, it fed a nation of hundreds of thousands of people and kept them well. In 1852, the Department of Interior recognized the making of poi as "a method for preserving kalo... in common use on these islands from time immemorial" (Int.Dept. Bk.6.p.22.1852.Sept15). Today, people continue to honor the practice of hand pounding poi and to pass that on to successive generations as a valid means by which to feed a family and a community.

The choice of an individual to make a livelihood born of this traditional practice is not an easy one. Production is limited by physical endurance. To carry this work forward during the economically difficult times of today is a demonstration of strength and resiliency that we all have within us and should encourage and support. With a stone and a board and good kalo, one can make a living that both honors Hawaiian culture and invests in the future – of their family and of taro farmers.

The Hawai'i State Constitution Article IX Public Health Section 9 provides that "the State shall have the power to preserve and develop the cultural, creative and traditional arts of its various ethnic groups" (ConCon1978); thereby, giving the legislature the authority to support HB1344 and recognize the making of pa'i'ai and poi using traditional hand pounding methods as a cultural and traditional art, with the sale of that product as an extension of that development.

HB1344 allows this practice to become an economically viable and dignified way to make a living without undue economic burden on small cottage industry producers of hand pounded poi.

Poi is also a naturally fermenting product. Only in recent decades, due to more general food safety concerns, has the DOH required the refrigeration of poi. The unique bacteriocin-producing bacteria which creates the souring element in poi is scientifically recognized as a food preservation element and methodology historically and in modern times.

C.S. Stewart, in 1823 wrote "Hard or dry poi [pa'i'ai] is kalo (taro) baked and beaten in the manner described, but not moistened with water...In this manner, it will keep without injury for months; and makes a principle article in the sea stores of the native vessel."

In 1932, Carey Miller, in Bishop Museum Bulletin 37 (1932) describes the longevity of poi and backs it up with laboratory science; "Good poi made as the old Hawaiians prepared it will remain in good condition for as long as two weeks. Tests made in the laboratory seemed to indicate that poi reaches a maximum acidity in eight or nine days, beyond which it ordinarily does not progress.” Natural fermentation increases Vitamin A and B levels important in brain and body health and function. Miller also records the changes in pH, from 6.0 for fresh poi to pH2.75 by day seven or eight “without showing signs of spoilage. This souring process acts...in preventing the development of undesirable bacteria and produces a food that will keep without refrigeration for several weeks” with little change in carbohydrate content.

The U.S. Office of Patents in 2002 lists USP No. 6,753,024 A Method for Making a Food Preservative and for Preserving Food, in which it is recorded as previously recognized that “Taro (Colocasia esculenta), a native crop of Hawaii, is known to naturally ferment to produce an end product, poi...It is known that bacteriocins, small anti-microbial peptides that are naturally produced by certain bacteria, that is, food-safe organisms, can inhibit food spoilage by inhibiting the growth of food spoilage/pathogenic bacteria. It has been discovered that poi can support the growth of bacteria that produce bacteriocin.” Refrigeration or pasteurization slows or destroys this process.

I have made and eaten hand-pounded pa’i’ai and poi fresh from the papa ku’i ‘ai, and soured, with confidence for more than 20 years, as I know that hundreds of thousands of others have done before me.

The legislature experienced the resounding beat of the pohaku ku’i ‘ai rising from the Rotunda in 2009. Many of you joined us and experienced the aloha and the sharing of poi that occurred throughout the day. To hear the joyful beat of the stones in neighborhoods and valleys all over the islands again is to hear the sound of a healthy and food self-sufficient community.

Mahalo for being willing to hear this bill. Please support HB1344.

Myself and my family have participated in the traditional pounding of kalo as well as buying and eating pa'i'ai and poi on a regular basis as part of what I consider to be healthy and safe food source for myself and my family. I consider the traditional sanitation practices to be more than adequate, and as a consumer I wish to have the choice and right to buy this traditionally hand-pounded cultural food from friends, practitioners and my community.

As a primary care provider I strongly support Pa`i `Ai as a very safe food that meets the food accessibility, affordability, availability and long term storage needs of the people of Hawai`i. Hunger is a palpable issue in Hawai`i and pa`i `ai has historically provided needed energy and nutrition to sustained people in the toughest food economic times. I urge you - leaders of the people - please support HB 1344, now.

I was thinking of the simple nuances of bills HB 1344/SB 101. This is the bill that enables Department of Health to regulate the time immemorial practice of making what Queen Liliuokalani calls " Our national dish" poi, as it's purer form pa'i 'ai. It's a win-win situation. The bottom line is that we would like to make a living from our hand turned product. That said, try to imagine groups of people in awe of these 'in the style of utilitarian objects of old the pohaku ku'i 'ai (stone pounder). Along with the sound of the papa ku'i 'ai (wood board) that would take them back to the stone age. Put in their hand a pure form of generational sacred food. I know I was in awe the first time I experienced it. Soon it won't be a mystery anymore and we'll be able to enjoy it again freely while rebuilding our traditions. A stone and board in every home!

I am in support of the proposed bill for hand pounded poi exception from food safety laws. Those that take the time to hand pound poi and make it available for others in their community are practicing a primal part of life that feeds and nurtures self along with others on a physical, mental emotional and spiritual level. Having the respect to clear any obstacles while encouraging them to preform this cultural practice is the pono thing to do.

Aloha Representatives

My name is Anthony Aalto and as a citizen I ask you to support this bill.

It is beyond bizarre that the State of Hawaii restricts the sale of a staple of the ancient Hawaiian diet, a food that is fundamental to the Hawaiian culture. This situation is synonymous with colonialism.

For shame!

Please vote to approve this bill

As a Native Hawaiian I fully support the Native Hawaiian cultural tradition of making poi by "hand" and feel that we should have the right to buy our poi from cultural practitioners. We have been making poi this way for hundreds of years and have flourished. Although I resent the efforts to impose any kind of regulation on this practice, I support this bill because it offers at least some kind of compromise that enables us to continue this practice. Between a rock and a hard place.

Traditional food preparation practices should be encouraged, not discouraged, in the land of their origin. Laws recognizing the traditional aspects and permitting modern practitioners to make a living are worthy of support by the people.

Comments:

Aloha Representative Yamane and HLT Committee members,

I wanted to express my strongly support for HB1344 that allows the sale of hand-pounded poi by an individual producer directly to consumers. Hand-pounded poi is a core value for Hawaiian cultural practices. The decision to eat or not to eat such poi is ultimately with the consumer, who after all should she be lucky enough to get access to hand-pounded poi, ultimately decide for herself what to eat or not to eat.

By creating a framework as provisioned in the law that steps such as universal sanitary precautions and labeling are taken and taught I feel the public health concerns are addressed adequately.

Thank you.

Markus Faigle

I often hear people saying that Hawaii is losing the essence of our unique identity. The only way to perpetuate the health and vibrancy of Hawaii is to support the cultural practices that make this unlike any place in the world.

I find it in comprehensible that it could possibly become illegal to make and/or sell traditionally made poi here in the State of Hawaii. At a time when Native Hawaiians overwhelmingly find themselves at the bottom of so many health indicators why would we want to do anything that would further discourage the production and consumption of a traditional, and very healthy, food source?

Traditional Hawaiian food preparation practices have been the foundation of sustaining a thriving Hawaiian society for hundreds of years. These practices should be encouraged and supported in this our native lands. Contemporary practitioners should have the ability to continue and pass down these food preparation practices as an essential part of Hawaiian cultural practice and sustenance without the fear of punitive measures.

Comments:

Traditional foods are not dangerous like today's chemicalized processed foods. Raw meat is legal and it is filled with dangerous microbes, do people cook it. Traditionally pounded paiai is a nourishing food. I pan fry mine in coconut oil, with a little sea salt. Try it and you will be hooked!

Comments:

Food sovereignty is crucial for the sustainability of our islands. Traditionally pounded poi is culturally and ecologically appropriate for Hawai'i and should be allowed by law. Mahalo
