

SB 2232

Testimony of Tracy Coppola
On Behalf of Born Free USA
Before the Hawaii Senate Judiciary Committee
In Support of Senate Bill 2232

February 10, 2012

On behalf of Born Free USA, a nationally-recognized leader in wildlife protection and conservation, as well as our Hawaii members and international supporters like the Animals Asia Foundation, I thank Chairman Clayton Hee and the Senate Judiciary Committee for the opportunity to submit testimony in support of Senate Bill 2232, an important bill that will prohibit in-state trade of bear gallbladders and bile and combat what continues to be one of the most dangerous threats to bears on the mainland and globally.

We commend Chairman Hee for his leadership on this critically important issue.

As a national 501(c)(3) animal protection and wildlife conservation organization, Born Free USA is dedicated to ending the suffering of exotic animals in captivity, rescuing individual animals in need, protecting wildlife in their natural habitats, and encouraging compassionate conservation. Exposing the trade for what it truly is—a brutal death sentence for bears around the world and a means by which criminals can freely profit from their illegal activity—is a core campaign for the organization.

Bear gallbladders, and their bile byproduct, are used in Asia and in the United States to create medicines and even luxury cosmetic items and toiletries such as shampoos and hemorrhoid creams. The modern pharmaceutical industry and the availability of over 50 synthetic alternatives has eliminated the need to use bear gallbladder or bile to the point where many accredited Traditional Chinese Medical Colleges, like the campus in Hilo, refuse to include gallbladder or bile in their practice. However, a worldwide demand for bear gallbladder and bile and the presence of a profit-making industry remains.

Hawaii is one of the few states that still allow the trade of gallbladders taken from bears on the mainland. Although Hawaii does not have a wild bear population, its nexus to international waters and lack of restriction on trade in bear gallbladders and bile creates a convenient loophole for poachers and profiteers, compromising bans already in place on the mainland. We urge Hawaii to join the majority of states in fully banning this trade.

SB 2232 would make it illegal to purchase, sell, transport or deliver bear gallbladders or bile, or any product, item or substance containing, labeled or advertised as containing, bear gallbladder or bile. There is no downside to passing this narrowly crafted conservation bill. Doing so will help law enforcement across the nation and sends a message to bear poachers and commercial profiteers across the world that they cannot come to Hawaii markets to profit from their activities. Passing the bill will also help create more consumer awareness that buying products containing bear gall or bile derivatives poses a major threat to bear conservation.

Trade in Bear Gallbladder and Bile is a Problem throughout the U.S.

Throughout the nation, carcasses of American black bear cubs and adults are discovered, illegally killed for their gallbladders and bile. Because the Asiatic bear is endangered, poachers often turn to the United States to supply market demand.

Undercover surveys on sale of bear bile products found that a number of U.S. shops carrying traditional Asian medicine openly sell bear bile, including intact gallbladders taken from wild bears. Evidence from undercover operations conducted by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service link several states to a network of illegal bear gallbladder trafficking.

The bear gallbladder and bile trade presents a challenge for law enforcement. Officers continue to reflect that “absence of evidence is not evidence of absence” and that bans are in order. Lack of regulation prohibiting the trade in Hawaii makes the challenge even more difficult. For example, once a gallbladder is removed, it is difficult to prove where the bear was killed. If taken in an area that prohibits the trade, poachers in other areas can avoid prosecution by discreetly selling gallbladders or bile derivatives in states that lack explicit bans, like Hawaii.

Furthermore, because Hawaii lacks any in-state regulation on this issue, law enforcement is not able to periodically conduct store-to-store examinations to determine the scope and frequency of the trade.

Trade in Bear Gallbladder and Bile is a Problem throughout the World

While American black bears are poached in the wild to supply the gallbladder trade, in China and Southeast Asia, Asiatic black bears are incarcerated in tiny cages and a steel catheter is inserted into their abdomens in order to “milk” them for their bile. If they survive, sometimes the bears can spend more than 30 years in these horrific conditions. When they stop producing viable quantities of bile, they are usually killed. The Asiatic black bear is now severely endangered precisely because of the trade.

The bile industry is secretive but abundant. China is estimated to have 96 farms – mostly in the north-east – containing between 10,000 and 20,000 bears. Chinese bear farms are aggressively marketing their bear bile products to such an extent that, to the horror of conservationists worldwide, just last week, the BEIJING MORNING POST reported that Guizhentang, China's largest bear gall medicine company, submitted an Initial Public Offering application to the Department of the China Security Regulatory Commission. It is feared that this will bring bear bile products to the attention of even more users around the world and create an upward spiral in demand not only for farmed bile but also for bear gall procured in the wild.

Trade in Bear Gallbladder and Bile is Harmful to Human Health

Research from our colleagues at the Animals Asia Foundation, a global organization that rescues bears from bile farms in China and Vietnam, demonstrates demonstrating that bear bile extracted from farmed bears should be considered unsafe for human use.

Findings from a study conducted by the General Hospital of Chengdu Military Command on farmed bear specimens provided by Animals Asia's China Moon Bear Rescue Centre recently suggested that bile extracted from live bears may contain hepatic carcinoma and inflammatory cells and consequent cytokine, which is harmful to human health. It has also been suggested that because farmed bears are often given large amounts of antibiotics to control inflammation, residual amounts may remain in bear bile products used by humans.

Conclusion

In our press release dated January 20, 2012, Senator Hee said it best:

Bear gallbladders and bile poached for profit and sold in the global black wildlife trade have no place in Hawaii. The contemptible practices employed to extract bear gallbladders and bile for profit cannot be justified in the name of custom and tradition. Hawaii has no tolerance for poachers and profiteers trafficking on the global black market wildlife trade.

Please pass SB 2232 today. Doing so will help protect wild bear populations globally and will assist law enforcement in its efforts to prosecute illegal trade.

We need to close this dangerous loophole.

Best Regards,

Tracy Coppola, J.D., M.S.

“Working within CITES for the protection and conservation of species in international trade”

January ____, 2012

The undersigned members of the Species Survival Network, an international coalition working for the strict implementation of the Convention on International Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora (CITES) fully support Senate Bill 2232 to prohibit the commercial trade in bear gallbladders and bile in the state of Hawaii.

The absence of consistent laws prohibiting the trade in bear parts facilitates a flourishing intrastate, interstate and international commerce in bear gallbladders and bile.

The Hawaii Legislature should act without delay to pass SB2232.

The horrible plight of bears who are caged and suffer open fistulas to drain their gall bladders to produce questionable medicine will only stop when trafficking in bear bile and bear parts is ended.

We thank Senator Hee for his great compassion in introducing this bill. We hope that the Committee will pass it out.

Senator Clayton Hee
Chair, Senate Committee on Judiciary and Labor
Hawaii State Capitol, Room 407
fax: 808-586-7334

February 8, 2012

Dear Senator,

Re: Support for Senate Bill 2232, to make purchase, sell, transport or deliver of any product, item or substance containing, labeled or advertised as containing bear gallbladder or bile illegal

On behalf of the undersigned Hawaii residents and the U.S. office of the World Society for the Protection of Animals (WSPA), I would like to say thank you for introducing Senate Bill 2232.

Hawaii is one of only a few states that allow the sale of bear parts. Even though there are no wild bears in Hawaii, the current lack of restrictions only drives poaching and trade, and undermines related bans in other states, as well as other countries. SB2232 will prevent not only native (U.S.) bear bile from making its way on to the market, but it will also serve as a critical step in ending the international bear bile trade.

We recently sent letters to all members of the Senate Committees on Judiciary and Labor & Agriculture, asking them to support SB2232.

As an organization that has worked on bear protection issues globally since 1992 – to end bear farming for bile, stop bear baiting and bear dancing events, lobby for stricter enforcement and regulations on the trade of bear parts, and educate the public about herbal alternatives to bear bile – WSPA strongly supports SB2232.

Sincerely,
