1 WHEREAS, African elephants and rhinoceroses are nearing
2 extinction due to the high price of ivory; and 3

4 WHEREAS, the Convention on International Trade in 5 Endangered Species, attended by 178 nations in March 2013, noted
6 that elephant slaughter has reached crisis proportions unheard 7 of in two decades; and 8

9 WHEREAS, the black market trade of ivory is skyrocketing
10 through internet sales, including within the United States,
11 according to the International Fund for Animal Welfare; and 12

13 WHEREAS, tens of thousands of African elephants are being 14 slaughtered in Africa each year by poachers intent on selling
15 their ivory, and ivory trafficking is at the highest recorded 16 rate ever; and 17

18 WHEREAS, in Zakouma National Park, in southern Chad, an 19 African game park, an estimated 4,350 elephants were reported in

21 elephants are left in Zakouma today; and 22

23 WHEREAS, it is recorded that family clusters of elephants
24 are being slaughtered by automatic weapons in Africa; and 25

26 WHEREAS, the rhinoceros population has been similarly 27 decimated throughout Africa as criminal gangs kill rhinoceroses 28 for ivory; and 29

30 WHEREAS, scientists believe the population of elephants and 31 rhinoceroses cannot withstand this slaughter; and 32

33 WHEREAS, the Convention on International Trade in 34 Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora, adopted by the

1 United States, banned the sale of African elephant ivory in 2 1989; and

5 certain classes of ivory, generally, African ivory is legally
6 sold in Hawaii as jewelry and antiques if it was imported before 7 1989 or is at least one hundred years old at the time of import;
8 and

9
10 WHEREAS, according to one study by Care for the Wild
11 International, despite the international and national bans, one-
12 third of ivory products sold in the United States have illegal 13 origins; and

14
15 WHEREAS, compliance with the Convention on International
16 Trade in Endangered Species of Wild Fauna and Flora as it
17 relates to the ban on the sale of ivory products in the State
18 will contribute to protecting African elephants and rhinoceroses 19 from extinction; now, therefore,

23 that Hawaii residents and businesses are urged to comply with
