A BILL FOR AN ACT

RELATING TO HEALTH CARE PROVIDERS.

BE IT ENACTED BY THE LEGISLATURE OF THE STATE OF HAWAII:

1 SECTION 1. The legislature finds that the physician-
2 patient relationship is essential to the practice of medicine
3 and the proper diagnosis and treatment of illness and disease.
4 A good physician-patient relationship facilitates the transfer
5 of information between the physician and patient, enhances 6 accuracy of the diagnosis, and increases the patient's knowledge 7 about the patient's diagnosis and treatment. A patient should 8 feel comfortable to confide in the physician and in return a
9 physician should be honest and provide reassurance and comfort
10 to the patient.

11 Historically, physicians have been advised, and sometimes 12 are even required, to stay silent when an unanticipated medical 13 care event occurs that results in pain and suffering or death of 14 the patient. In absence of any laws that shield physicians, an 15 apology in which the physician admits fault may be considered an 16 admission against interest and may be admissible in a
17 malpractice proceeding as evidence of acknowledgment of fault.

1 However, medical standards require that health care providers
2 disclose to patients any unanticipated event, including details
3 of, reasons for, and any consequences of the unanticipated
4 event. This type of conversation can be difficult to conduct 5 with a patient without expressing sympathy or regret for 6 unanticipated and sometimes negative outcomes.

7 The physician-patient relationship is threatened by the 8 rising number of medical malpractice lawsuits and increasing
9 medical malpractice insurance premiums. Physician apology laws 10 enable candid communication between a physician and the 11 physician's patient following an unanticipated medical care
12 outcome, and appear to reduce overall medical malpractice
13 liability costs by reducing the number of lawsuits and 14 consequent attorney's fees and claim costs. Studies show that 15 patients are far less likely to sue when provided a full 16 explanation and apology.

17 In response, states have passed legislation to create
18 apology exemptions. Massachusetts was the first state to adopt
19 a physician apology law to protect physicians from statements 20 they might make to their patients regarding complications their 21 patients may have suffered while under their care. More

1 recently enacted apology laws specifically declare that a
2 statement of apology by a physician to a patient is inadmissible
3 as evidence of liability in court.

4 In Hawaii, section 626-1, rule 409.5, Hawaii Rules of 5 Evidence, allows individuals and entities to express sympathy 6 and condolence concerning the consequences of an event in which 7 the declarant was a participant without the expression being 8 used to establish liability. However, this rule does not 9 specifically protect communication that amounts to an apology,
10 which could be admissible as evidence to establish liability.
11 Under section 626-1, rule 104, Hawaii Rules of Evidence, the 12 court is authorized to determine whether the utterance amounts
13 to an expression of sympathy or an acknowledgement of fault.
14 Furthermore, section 626-1, rule 409.5, Hawaii Rules of 15 Evidence, generally applies to individuals and entities and 16 fails to specifically address the communications with health
17 care providers regarding the consequences of an unanticipated
18 medical care outcome involving pain, suffering, or death.

19 The purpose of this Act is to remove the obstacles that may 20 discourage physicians from apologizing by establishing that 21 statements of apology made by a health care provider concerning

1 an unanticipated medical care outcome are inadmissible to prove 2 liability for any claim arising out of the event.

3 SECTION 2. Section 626-1, Hawaii Revised Statutes, is 4 amended by adding a new rule to article IV to be appropriately
5 designated and to read as follows:

6 "Rule _____ Inadmissibility of unanticipated medical 7 outcomes; health care provider apologies. Evidence of 8 statements, affirmations, gestures, or conduct that expresses 9 apology, sympathy, commiseration, condolence, compassion, or a
10 general sense of benevolence that are made by a health care 11 provider or an employee of a health care provider concerning the 12 consequences of an unanticipated outcome of medical care 13 resulting in discomfort, pain, suffering, injury, or death is 14 not admissible to prove liability for any claim arising out of 15 the event."

16 SECTION 3. This Act does not affect rights and duties that 17 matured, penalties that were incurred, and proceedings that were 18 begun before its effective date.

19 SECTION 4. New statutory material is underscored.
