I. Background and Summary

This section shall clearly and concisely summarize and highlight the contents of the request in such a way as to provide the State Legislature with a broad understanding of the request. Please include the following:

1. A brief description of the applicant's background;

The Japanese American Citizens League -- Honolulu Chapter is a member of the nation's oldest and largest Asian American civil rights organization and was established to challenge racism and bigotry directed against Japanese Americans. Discrimination and intolerance remain the focus of the JACL today and extends to the greater Asian American community and others who are victimized by injustice and prejudice.

The Honolulu Chapter is unique because it draws upon Hawaii's rich, multi-ethnic society and strong cultural values. The Chapter, a member of the National JACL Northern California, Western Nevada, Pacific District (NWCWNP), was chartered in 1980. It was established under the leadership of the late Earl Nishimura. Over the last 28 years, the Honolulu Chapter has stood out as a leader in civil rights advocacy by supporting for redress for Japanese Americans who were interned unfairly, providing legal and media support for Captain Bruce Yamashita in his fight against the Marine Corps for racial discrimination and harassment, hosting an annual Day of Remembrance to commemorate the anniversary of Executive Order 9066, and supporting Lt. Ehren Watada who refused to be deployed to Iraq for an unlawful war.

2. The goals and objectives related to the request;

This project will supplement the history of the U.S. Government's unlawful treatment of Americans of Japanese ancestry (AJAs) during World War II in Hawai'i. It is well documented that approximately 2,000 AJAs were interned in the two major incarceration centers at Honouliuli and Sand Island, as well as 15 other incarceration sites throughout the state. In these cases, AJAs were detained in internment camps, jails, and other physical facilities.

The DOJ Office of Redress Administration identified the 23 evacuation sites as: Pearl Harbor Area (West Loch, Puuloa, McGrew Point), Iwilei, Lualualei, Waiau, Waipio Base, Around Honolulu, Dillingham and Oahu Rail Road, Kahuku, Dillingham Airfield, Kualoa Park, Waiawa, Kunia, Haleiwa, Waialua, Maunawili, Pauoa Valley Artillery Battery, Pearl City, Wahiawa, Makalii Valley, Mokapu Peninsula, Hilo, Kuicha, Haiku, and Kolaoa.

GIA funds will be used to archive and document the unwritten history of an additional 1,500 persons of Japanese ancestry in Hawai'i who were similarly deprived of the civil liberties during the war – those who were not interned but evacuated from their homes in 23 geographic areas throughout the state. Historical and legal writings are virtually silent on this wartime event impacting Hawai'i AJAs. The Commission on Wartime Relocation and Internment of Civilians (CWRIC), the fact-finding body created by Congress to investigate the internment, made no mention of the AJA evacuation in Hawai'i. The Department of Justice (DOJ) became aware of these unique cases after the Civil Liberties Act of 1988 was passed, and ultimately determined that they were eligible for redress under the Act.

Key Goals: The project will have two key goals: 1) Archival and online access of historic documents, military orders and legal papers relating to the redress cases and appeals of the Hawai'i evacuees. Over 5,000 pages of documents are available to be categorized, archived and stored for research and public use, and 2) Research and writing of a book which provides the historic context and circumstances, documentation and summary of government actions, community responses, and personal experiences of the AJA Hawai'i evacuees. The book will also memorialize the legal cases of the Hawai'i evacuees, which provides insights into how the DOJ interpreted these "unique cases" and its applicability to the Civil Liberties Act.

The project is a collaborative effort with the Japanese Cultural Center of Hawaii (JCCH), which will archive the wartime and redress documents collected by the JACL. JACL will research, write and memorialize the AJA evacuation and redress efforts with the Department of Justice.

3. The public purpose and need to be served;

There is no historic documentation, treatment and scholarly writings relating to the Hawai'i AJA evacuation experience during World War II. While the wartime internment of Hawai'i AJAs is well known, the histories of 1,500 Hawai'i AJAs evacuated from their homes in 23 geographic locations remain untold and undocumented. Furthermore, there is no central repository accessible to the public that archives important documents and military orders related to the Hawai'i evacuation cases. Over 5,000 pages of documents remain uncategorized and unavailable for public use and review.

As part of the legal case and justification for redress, thousands of pages of historic documents and military orders were obtained by JACL. The project will archive the most comprehensive collection of historic documents relating to the Hawai'i evacuation in the country. Research was conducted at the National Archives and its branches in Suitland, MD, San Bruno, CA, and Washington, D.C. In Hawai'i, historical documents were reviewed and obtained at the Hawai'i State Archives, University of Hawai'i Hamilton Library, Bishop Museum, U.S. Army Museum, Hawai'i Sugar Planters Association, Hawai'i Department of Agriculture, the various county police and fire departments, radio stations, U.S. post offices, and newspaper publications.

Those documents (approximately 5,000 pages) will be part of the Japanese Cultural Center of Hawai'i collection to be archived as part of this project. They include hundreds of pages of U.S. military documents ordering the evacuation of persons of Japanese ancestry from their homes; correspondence between U.S. Government, military and local officials on the Japanese American evacuation; government research and analysis of the Japanese in Hawai'i, including listing of Japanese residing in certain areas; and wartime articles and news reports relating to the evacuation and internment of Japanese Americans during WWII.

The collection also includes documents relating to the legal proceedings of the AJA evacuees in their quest for redress. These include documents obtained through the Freedom of Information Act (FOIA) requests which reveal how the DOJ ultimately determined that AJAs evacuated during WWII were similarly eligible for redress.

Collectively, the archival of these documents provide for a wealth of knowledge and information that will provide for further historic treatment, understanding and availability to the general public.

Using the historic documents and military orders as a basis for the book, as well as interviews with Hawai'i evacuees, the Hawai'i legal team, former DOJ officials, and key stakeholders, the project will memorialize the facts and historic background and context for the Hawai'i evacuation; actions of the U.S. and local governments as referenced in military orders and documents; understanding of the community impact of the evacuation and internment on Hawai'i AJAs; and the process and evaluation of the Department of Justice's treatment and decision as to grant redress for Hawai'i evacuees under the Civil Liberties Act.

Achieving the desired outcomes (archives and book) will provide a wealth of knowledge and information about the Hawai'i evacuation, and supplement the public understanding and scholarly discourse of the U.S. Government's actions during WWII. Also, with a digitized platform, students, scholars and the general public can view and research the actual documents and military orders which had an impact on hundreds of individuals and families in Hawai'i. These documents will be organized, stored and archived for public use for generations to come. And, with the completion of a book on the Hawai'i evacuees, the historical treatment as well as personal stories will be memorialized in perpetuity.

4. Describe the target population to be served; and

The project will shed light on the broad scope, reach and reactions of the U.S. Government on the AJA community in Hawai'i beyond the unlawful incarceration of 2,000 AJAs. Documents to be archived at JCCH will reveal dozens of military orders and activities that provides greater understanding and insight of government and military officials in Hawai'i.

5. Describe the geographic coverage.

The project will have statewide coverage. Upon completion of the project, JACL will have the most comprehensive archived collection of military and government documents related to the selective incarceration and exclusion of Japanese Americans in Hawai'i, an online document database, and final manuscript ready for publication. These documents will be archived at the Japanese Cultural Center of Hawaii's Resource Center.

Such new information and research will enable further scholarly analysis and public discourse on the impacts of the bombing of Pearl Harbor. JACL intends to publicize the availability of these wartime documents, as well as hold public forums, student discussions, and public availability of the book as a means to educate the general public. In particular, JACL will reach out to the scholarly and historical research community as to the accessibility and availability of the Hawai'i evacuee historical archives, including the Smithsonian Institute, National Endowment for the Humanities, Japanese American National Museum, Bishop Museum, colleges and universities with American Studies, Asian American and Ethnic Studies programs, and others.

II. Service Summary and Outcomes

The Service Summary shall include a detailed discussion of the applicant's approach to the request. The applicant shall clearly and concisely specify the results, outcomes, and measures of effectiveness from this request. The applicant shall:

1. Describe the scope of work, tasks and responsibilities;

The project will have two key activities: 1) Archival and online access of historic documents, military orders and legal papers relating to the redress cases and appeals of the Hawai'i evacuees. Over 5,000 pages of documents are available to be categorized, archived and stored for research and public use, and

2) Research and writing of a book which provides the historic context and circumstances, documentation and summary of government actions, community responses, and personal experiences of the AJA Hawai'i evacuees. The book will also memorialize the legal cases of the Hawai'i evacuees, which provides insights into how the DOJ interpreted these "unique cases" and its applicability to the Civil Liberties Act.

2. Provide a projected annual timeline for accomplishing the results or outcomes of the service;

The project will be managed and conducted in three phases:

Phase I (4 months): Archival and analysis of historic documents and evacuee and key stakeholder interviews. Documents will be read, organized and digitized by JCCH staff and volunteers. The project director will conduct personal interviews of Hawai'i evacuees and others who played an integral role in the legal cases.

Phase II (12 months): Evaluation of historic documents, interviews and writing of book. The project director will write and coordinate activities to complete a comprehensive understanding of the Hawai'i AJA evacuation and the legal cases for redress.

Phase III: Public Education and Distribution: Upon completion of the project, JACL will have the most comprehensive archived collection of military and government documents related to the selective incarceration and exclusion of Japanese Americans in Hawai'i, an online document database, and final manuscript ready for publication. A public education and outreach program will then be planned and implemented to share this wealth of knowledge and lessons learned from the evacuation to communities in Hawaii and throughout the U.S.

3. Describe its quality assurance and evaluation plans for the request. Specify how the applicant plans to monitor, evaluate, and improve their results; and

JACL is committed to ensuring that the research, writing and archiving of the AJA wartime evacuation is accurately portrayed and preserved for generations to come. Archival techniques and standards will be upheld by using trained and quality archivists and digital technology. Historians and scholars will also be consulted to provide peer review of the writing and research.

4. List the measure(s) of effectiveness that will be reported to the State agency through which grant funds are appropriated (the expending agency). The measure(s) will provide a standard and objective way for the State to assess the program's achievement or accomplishment. Please note that if the level of appropriation differs from the amount included in this application that the measure(s) of effectiveness will need to be updated and transmitted to the expending agency.

The applicant will report on a quarterly basis the progress made in achieving the desired outcomes of digitizing the historical document and memorializing the evacuation of Hawaii AJAs.
