Re: H.B. 2672, Relating to Taxation

The Department appreciates the intent of this measure and provides the following comments regarding H.B. 2672 for your consideration.

H.B. 2672 increases the amount of the income tax credit for low income renters under Hawaii Revised Statutes (HRS) section 235-55.7, from $50 to an unspecified amount, which varies according to the filing status and income of the taxpayer. The measure is effective on July 1, 2018 and applies to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2018.

The Department notes that it is Hawaii adjusted gross income (AGI) is used in determining eligibility for the credit. The Department suggests that using federal adjusted gross income is more accurate in measuring a taxpayer's income. Hawaii law makes adjustments to federal AGI and excludes items such as distributions from certain pensions and social security benefits. In order to specify that federal AGI should be used to determine the credit amount, the definition of "adjusted gross income" in HRS section 235-55.7(a) should be amended, as follows:

"Adjusted gross income" ~~[is defined by section 235-1.]~~ means adjusted gross income as defined by the Internal Revenue Code.

Finally, the Department is able to implement the measure with its current effective date.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide testimony.

House Committee on Housing
Scheduled for Hearing Thursday, February 8, 2018, 9:30 PM, Conference Room 423

Dear Chair Brower, Vice Chair Nakamura, and members of the Committee:

Thank you for the opportunity to testify in SUPPORT of HB 2672, which would expand the low income-household renters' income tax credit based on adjusted gross income and filing status.

Hawai'i's High Rents

A full-time worker in Hawai'i needs to make $35.20 per hour (or over $73,000 per year) to afford a 2-bedroom apartment, the highest "housing wage" in the nation. We also have the largest gap between the average renter's wage and the housing wage, a shortfall of $19.56 per hour.ⁱ

It's no wonder that more than half of our state's renters are housing cost-burdened, spending more than 30% of their income on rent. An astounding three-quarters of Hawai'i residents living at or near the poverty line spend more than 50% of their incomes on rent.ⁱⁱ

Hawai'i's Incomes and Renters' Credit Have Not Kept Up With the Cost of Housing

Median Household Income vs. Rent for a Two-Bedroom Apartment vs. Low-Income Household Renters' Credit

Notes: Index, 1985 = 100. Real values.

The Renters' Credit

Hawai'i's Low-Income Household Renters' Credit was created 40 years ago to help make up for the high rents and tax rates that burden our low- and moderate-income neighbors. However, it has not been updated in nearly three decades to even account for inflation.

The amount of the Renters' Credit was last set over 35 years ago, in 1981, at $50 per exemption. The income eligibility cut-off was set in 1989 at $30,000, which was just above the median household income at that time. Neither of those levels have budged since then.

We recommend that HB 2672 be amended to update the Renters' Credit to fully catch up with inflation. The maximum value of the Renters' Credit should be raised to $150 per exemption (with phase-out levels set at $100 and $50), and the eligibility threshold to just above the medianⁱⁱⁱ, which is $75,000 in annual income for joint filers. We also suggest that it be amended to automatically adjust those amounts and levels for inflation, in order to avoid future erosion of the credit's value and reach.

We appreciate your consideration of this testimony.

SUBJECT: INCOME, Increase Low-Income Household Renters Credit

BILL NUMBER: HB 2672

INTRODUCED BY: HOLT, AQUINO, GATES, HASHEM, JOHANSON, KEOHOKALOLE, MIZUNO, NISHIMOTI, TODD, Kobayashi

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY: Expands eligibility and credit amount of the low income-household renters' income tax credit.

SYNOPSIS: As it relates to the low-income household renters' credit, amends section 235-55.7, HRS, to increase the amount of the credit from $50 to the following:

For unmarried taxpayers or married filing separately:
Adjusted gross income	Tax credit per exemption
Not over $15,000	$ ___
Over $15,000, not over $25,000	___
Over $25,000, not over $35,000	___
For head of household:
Adjusted gross income	Tax credit per exemption
Not over $25,000	$ ___
Over $25,000, not over $37,500	___
Over $37,500, not over $50,000	___
For married taxpayers filing jointly, surviving spouse, head of household:
Adjusted gross income	Tax credit per exemption
Not over $30,000	$ ___
Over $30,000, not over $45,000	___
Over $45,000, not over $60,000	___

EFFECTIVE DATE: Applies to taxable years beginning after December 31, 2018.

STAFF COMMENTS: The 1970 legislature adopted a system of tax credits for household renters which was intended to partially offset the higher tax burden on renters resulting from the lack of tax relief like the home exemption for homeowners and the 4% general excise tax levied on rental income. The current renter credit was established by the 1977 legislature at $20 per exemption for those taxpayers with adjusted gross incomes of less than $20,000 who paid more than $1,000 in rent during the tax year. Act 230, SLH 1981, increased the credit amount to $50.

Act 239, SLH 1989, increased the adjusted gross income (AGI) limit to $30,000 to claim the credit. The proposed measure would increase the amount of the credit from $50 to $150. It does not increase the rent qualification amount – the taxpayer still will need to pay $1,000 in rent during a taxable year to qualify for the credit.

There are some issues to consider with refundable credits targeted at low-income and homeless people generally.

First, a tax return is one of the most complicated documents for government agencies to process. The administrative costs associated with each one can quickly make heads spin. Furthermore, as the U.S. Treasury has experienced with the Earned Income Tax Credit, the combination of complexity and a refundable credit result in a certain percentage of improper payouts, some due to mistake or misunderstanding, and some due to bad actors.

Second, the low-income household renters' credit does nothing for most of the homeless; the credit requires payment of more than $1000 in rent. And even for those in the target population who do qualify for this credit, the relief that the credit provides comes in a tax refund which is paid, at the earliest, in the early part of the year after the tax return filer needs the relief. A person who qualifies for the credit in 2017, for example, won't get a check until early 2018.

Third, as a policy matter, lawmakers might prefer that the recipient of the refund not use the money obtained on such things as cigarettes, alcohol, or illegal drugs. But the tax system contains no way of restricting the uses of a refund check; other departments do have systems in place to give some assurance that the payment will go toward legitimate living expenses such as groceries (EBT, for example).

The better solution is to get such people out of the tax system entirely. They receive peace of mind because they don't have to worry about tax returns, and the department doesn't have to worry about processing those returns. If additional relief to such people is considered desirable, it can be delivered through the agencies that are better equipped to do so.

RELATING TO TAXATION

The Office of Hawaiian Affairs (OHA) Committee on Beneficiary Advocacy and Empowerment will recommend that the OHA Board of Trustees SUPPORT HB2672. This measure would relieve the tax burden on low income individuals and families, by updating the low income household renters tax credit (LIHR), and adjusting the income threshold for those who may claim the credit.

As the legislature recognizes, Hawai‘i is in the midst of an affordable housing crisis: recent research indicates a need for 65,000 more housing units by 2025, with half of this demand for units at or below 60% of the Area Median Income (AMI);¹ only 11 percent of State’s housing demand is for housing units at or above 140% AMI, or for units that do not meet the State’s current definition of “affordable housing.”² With 48% of households in the State already unable to afford basic household necessities including housing, food, transportation, health care and child care,³ the lack of affordable housing and rising housing costs require bold and aggressive policies that provide meaningful relief for local residents, including in particular low-income families facing housing insecurity.

Native Hawaiian families are in particular need of relief targeted to low-income renters. Notably, Native Hawaiians are less likely to own a home and, therefore, disproportionately rely on the rental housing market.⁴ Native Hawaiian households are also much more likely to be “doubled up,” with multi-generational or unrelated individuals living together in single households,⁵ and Native Hawaiian households are more than three times more likely have a ‘hidden homeless’ family member than all state households.⁶ Recent research has further shown that state and Native Hawaiian housing rental housing demand is almost entirely for increasingly rare “affordable” units, rather than for market-rate or other ‘gap’-rate units.⁷ As such, support for housing relief is more critical to OHA’s beneficiaries and many other Hawai’i residents now than ever before.

DHHL ANNUAL REPORT 2014, at 47, available at <http://dhhl.hawaii.gov/wpcontent/uploads/2011/11/DHHL-Annual-Report-2014-Web.pdf>. For non-DHHL properties, the Native Hawaiian homeownership rate is therefore 41.2%, 15.5 percentage points below the statewide rate.

HB2672’s proposed LIHR increase reflects a pragmatic approach to alleviating the tax burden on those low-income individuals and families facing housing insecurity, and will have a particular beneficial impact on Native Hawaiians. Originally created in 1977 to mitigate the high cost of housing in Hawai’i, the LIHR credit currently provides a $50 tax credit per “qualified exemption,” for households with an adjusted gross income of less than $30,000, that pay more than $1,000 a year in rent. Kūpuna over the age of 65 are able to receive double the credit. Notably, while the LIHR credit is intended to provide meaningful relief for those who may need it the most, the value of the LIHR credit has not been updated since 1981. This measure would adjust the credit for the first time in over three decades, setting it at an unspecified amount per qualified exemption for the lowest income households, and providing graduated credit amounts for those with an adjusted gross income of up to $70,000. Updating this targeted, asset-building credit to better reflect today’s housing costs and income levels will better enable our low-income beneficiaries and other similarly-situated community members to remain financially self-sufficient and housing secure.

Accordingly, OHA urges the Committee to PASS HB2672. Mahalo nui for the opportunity to testify on this measure.

⁶ 14.1% of Native Hawaiian households, compared to 4.2% of state households have a hidden homeless family member. Id.
