Re: Testimony of the ACLU of Hawai'i in opposition to S.C.R. 64, Requesting Federal Funding to Provide Resource Officers in Every School in Hawai'i

Dear Chair Nishihara, Chair Kidani, and Committee Members:

The American Civil Liberties Union of Hawai'i ("ACLU of Hawai'i") writes in opposition to S.C.R. 64, which, in light of recent school shootings, including the recent shooting in Parkland, Florida, requests federal funding to provide school resource officers in every school in Hawai'i.

The ACLU of Hawai'i supports taking a hard look at the systems designed to protect our children in Hawai'i and there are a number of effective measures that do not raise any civil rights concerns, including investing in community mental health services, adding more school counselors, and expanding programs to help our youth develop the skills to navigate crises.

Students, however, should not have to bear the burden of additional measures. Already, kids, especially Native Hawaiians, Filipino, Marshallese, Palauan, Micronesian, and students with disabilities, are being referred to law enforcement for misbehavior once handled by school administrators. Adding more school resource officers without defining their role will inevitably increase such referrals, which in Hawai'i already appears to be high according to U.S. Department of Education data.

School shootings and school violence are complex problems that require a thoughtful response. Over policing students—just as arming teachers—is neither effective nor fair to the students. For example, in Florida, eighty percent of districts already have an officer at every high school; many have more than one. And yet, they are too often involved in routine discipline, resulting in increased youth interaction with the criminal justice system. We have heard similar anecdotal evidence from Kaua'i where school resource officers are also used.

In summary, hastily reacting to tragedy without examining the current system to keep students safe would be counterproductive. Therefore, we respectfully request that your Committee defer the matter to consider what set of measures would be most effective to keep Hawai'i students safe without compromising their civil rights.

Comments:

I am in support of this because Hawaii needs to do something. I agree that there also needs to be further discussion on the larger picture. I believe SROs are a quick bandaid but there isn't anything else being offered. Peace of mind....they offer peace of mind.
