3. Public Purpose

Pursuant to Section 42F-102, Hawaii Revised Statues, Molokai Child Abuse Prevention Pathways requests a State of Hawai'i Grant in Aid in the amount of $114,300 for the public purpose of providing evidence-based, culturally responsive, primary childhood sexual abuse prevention education to youth, parents and teachers in every community on the island of Molokai, as described in detail throughout this proposal.

II. Background and Summary

1. A brief description of the applicant's background;

Molokai Child Abuse Prevention Pathways (MCAPP) was launched in 2013 by the Consuelo Foundation as an exploratory pilot program to address childhood sexual violence (CSV) on Molokai through primary prevention education (PPE). PPE is an evidence-based, cost-effective, strengths-based, and culturally responsive solution proven to address and prevent the devastating problem of CSV. The program was founded in response to a statewide study on child wellbeing (Consuelo Foundation, 2011).

After several years as a pilot program, the project gained extraordinary traction in the Molokai community, as well as interest from other communities and service providers seeking to implement PPE at a similar scale. From 2013 to 2017, MCAPP's operating budget came from Consuelo Foundation with support in the first two years from the Office of Hawaiian Affairs. Beginning in January 2018, MCAPP is charged with developing an independent base of funding and its own organizational administrative backbone. Since then, the organization has successfully strengthened funding, programs, and administration. The next two years will be critical to ensuring that MCAPP's innovative, catalyzing work will continue to serve Molokai in the years ahead.

MCAPP's theory of change addresses a prevention spectrum. To prevent child sexual abuse through education, MCAPP utilizes an evidence-based curriculum from the Sex Abuse Treatment Center (SATC), part of Hawai'i Pacific Health Kapi'olani Medical Center on O'ahu. The curricula is modified with culturally relevant instructional approaches. After several years of sustained, robust community work, MCAPP is recognized as a reliable, trusted service organization, particularly well-suited to engage Molokai children, families and communities around the challenging issue of sexual violence.

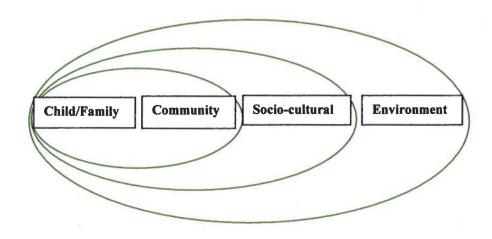

MCAPP's staff consists of three paid individuals performing the following roles: 1) Executive Director, 2) Program Coordinator and Office Manager, 3) Prevention Specialist and Community Organizer. A contract accountant handles bookkeeping and accounting under the supervision of the Executive Director and Board of Directors. A GIA grant would enable MCAPP to financially compensate a Communications Coordinator who currently offers services pro bono. From time to time, this staff capacity is augmented by support from a University of Hawai'i graduate student engaged in theory or practice related to combatting child sexual abuse and program evaluation.

Mission Statement: MCAPP works to keep children safe and support `ohana (family) wellbeing through primary prevention education.

2. The goals and objectives related to the request;

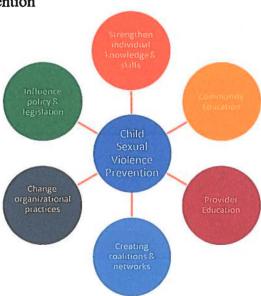

MCAPP's overarching goal – to restore and sustain a culture of safety, wellbeing and protection for children and families in Molokai – grows out of in-depth collaboration with highly experienced and deeply networked Molokai kūpuna (elders) and community organizations. In Molokai, as in other places, childhood sexual violence occurs within a murky context of complex, overlapping interactions between children, families, cultural, societal, and environmental factors (Figure 1).

MCAPP focuses on risk reduction via primary prevention education with schools, families, communities and partner organizations in Molokai. MCAPP's overall strategy targets several areas within the spectrum of prevention²; however this funding request focuses on delivering primary prevention education to youth. Specifically, the MCAPP team will teach Molokai K-12 students a proven, culturally responsive, three-pronged prevention curricula: RESPECT, My Body My Boundaries, and My Body is Special.³ A second key action area will be to mentor and support leadership development for teens. Program evaluation and organizational development are also critical.

The curriculum will prepare children and youth to:

- 1. Recognize and respond to sexually abusive behavior,
- 2. Access help if victimized.
- 3. Respect others' personal boundaries and communicate appropriately to avoid behaving in sexually abusive ways,
- 4. Assert boundaries to reduce the risk of victimization,
- 5. Advocate for respectful relationships and be a positive upstander and ally.

¹ Meta reviews of child abuse prevention studies such as: The Rand Child Policy Center's, "Child Abuse and Neglect Prevention" (Shaw & Kilburn, 2009); Chapin Hall at University of Chicago's, "Innovations in the Field of Child Abuse and Neglect Prevention: A Review of the Literature" (Benedetti, 2012); and the Prevention Institute's policy brief: "Transforming Communities to Prevent Child Sexual Abuse and Exploitation: A Primary Prevention Approach" (Lyles, Cohen, & Brown, 2009), emphasize the need to apply strategies across a spectrum of prevention. Collectively these measures strengthen child abuse prevention knowledge, skills, and practices at multiple levels including: individual, family, community, providers, organizations, policy and legislation.

² MCAPP's strategies include: 1) primary prevention education to children and youth in Molokai elementary, middle and high schools; 2) community education; and 3) local, state and national prevention partnerships,

³ MCAPP staff were trained by the Oahu Sex Abuse Treatment Center to teach these evidence-based curricula. The entire curriculum is available for review upon request.

These learning outcomes prepare youth, schools, families and communities to stop sexual violence before it happens. As the saying goes, an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure. Further, PPE not only prevents child sexual abuse, but teaches life skills that strengthen children and families.

3. The public purpose and need to be served;

While child sexual abuse is a pronounced problem in Molokai, it is also a state, national, and global issue. MCAPP's work in Molokai is meant to serve as a model for communities throughout Hawai'i, particularly those with similar characteristics, including geographic isolation, strong community ties, limited economic development, prevalent subsistence practices, etc.

In 2011, a state-wide study, "And how are the children?" (Consuelo Foundation, 2011) concluded that childhood sexual violence is a key preventable threat to the long-term wellbeing of Hawai'i's future generations, particularly in Molokai and other geographically isolated, underresourced communities that are vulnerable to an epidemic of intergenerational sexual violence. For example, the overall rate of child abuse and neglect in Molokai is estimated to be three times higher than the average rate across all of Hawai'i.

In Hawai'i, sexual violence poses a significant and preventable threat to public health. One in seven women experience forcible rape in their lifetime (Ruggiero & Kilpatrick, 2003). Children and youth experience similar rates of sexual violence as in the continental United States (National Center for Victims of Crime, 2017). Sexual victimization often creates lifelong negative impacts on physical and mental health including by contributing to depression, post-traumatic stress disorder, and substance abuse (Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, 2014; Testa, Hoffman, & Livingston, 2011).

This leads to serious social and economic harm within communities and at the national level (Fang, Brown, Florence, & Mercy, 2012). For example, the Children's Safety Network Economic and Insurance Resource Center, calculates that CSV costs $71 billion every year, by causing 61% of the cost of all violent crime associated with this age group.

Thankfully, we can protect communities by preventing child abuse before it happens. As described previously, the most effective, proven method is evidence-based, culturally responsive primary prevention education, which enables youth from kindergarten through 12th grade to achieve the vital learning outcomes listed previously

⁴ Molokai's population is approximately 7,345 (State of Hawai'i, 2012) with an estimated 1,616 children. In 2015, there were 19 reports of child abuse and neglect on the island, whereas the average incidence across Hawai'i was 4.8 per 1,000 (Department of Human Services, 2015; Child and Welfare League of America, 2017). While the exact rate of childhood sexual violence in Molokai cannot be determined, anecdotal evidence, disclosures by kupuna, and, corroborating evidence from a state-wide study, have all identified childhood sexual abuse, domestic violence, substance abuse, and suicide as unique, interrelated challenges impacting the Molokai community (Consuelo Foundation, 2011). Regarding reports of child abuse and neglect at the state level, 15.5% of the victims were neglected, 10.7% were physically abused, and 4.4% were sexually victimized (Child Welfare League of America, 2017).

4. Describe the target population to be served; and

MCAPP's down-to-earth, yet highly trained and professional educators are local to Molokai and have worked consistently for several years to generate dialogue and understanding about childhood sexual abuse and the value of prevention. Through this years-long engagement with the island's schools, MCAPP has developed the capacity to reach 90% of children, youth, and teens from pre-K through 12th grade in every geographic area and community. By establishing trusting, reciprocal relationships with teachers and administrators at all Molokai schools (Kaunakakai, Kilohana, Kualapuu, and Moanaloa Elementary Schools; Molokai Middle and High School; Akaula Charter School; and Molokai Economic Opportunity, Head Start Preschool), MCAPP has earned permission to provide PPE during valuable regular classroom time in every school. MCAPP also reaches the parents, teachers, and social services agencies that serve these young people.

5. Describe the geographic coverage.

MCAPP is currently the only PPE provider in Hawai'i with this level of reach into the community. While the RESPECT curriculum is implemented very effectively elsewhere in the state, we have been told that we are the only organization currently able to deliver the comprehensive prevention program. This includes teaching all five modules concurrently to school-aged children at key developmental stages. For example, kindergarten students receive a short, basic lesson including "good touch, bad touch," while middle school students experience a six-week course that goes into detail about communication, personal boundaries and consent.

III. Service Summary and Outcomes

1. Describe the scope of work, tasks and responsibilities;

MCAPP will teach evidence-based, culturally responsive, age-appropriate PPE curriculum to 90% of students in target grade levels at the following schools, with parental authorization for participating students:

- Molokai Middle School 8th grade
- Molokai High School 10th & 12th grades
- Kilohana Elementary School K, 1, 2, 4, 6
- Kaunakakai Elementary students K, 1, 2, 4, 6
- Maunaloa Elementary students K, 1, 2, 4, 6
- Kualapu'u Elementary students K, 1, 2, 4, 6
- Akaula Charter School students 6th through 12th grades
- Molokai Economic Opportunity Head Start pre-school

MCAPP will provide leadership development and mentoring to middle and high school students through Lamakū, a proprietary ten-week program held two times per year and rooted in the RESPECT curricula, Hawaiian cultural values, and social emotional learning.

To create conditions where youths' newfound skills can flourish, MCAPP will also train parents and teachers in essential skills and concepts for preventing child sexual abuse, while offering guidance on how to respond appropriately when a child discloses an experience of abuse.

Finally, MCAPP will engage a wide range of local youth, families, parents, teachers, and community leaders outside of the formal training environment through community outreach events, especially in April, which is sexual assault awareness month.

2. Provide a projected annual timeline for accomplishing the results or outcomes of the service;

During the grant period, MCAPP staff will:

- Teach PPE curriculum to children and youth in Molokai on an ongoing basis, reaching over 500 students during the grant period
- Hold at least two engagement events outside of the formal classroom structure, which reach at least 400 participants, including events geared toward youth, parents, and the general public, especially during Sexual Assault Awareness Month (April)
- Hold at least two parent and/or educator/service provider trainings per year (one in spring and one in fall) reaching at least 75 individuals.
- Mentor and support the leadership development of 20 middle and high school students who in turn reach 60 peers through youth-driven activities (one group in spring and one in fall)
- 3. Describe its quality assurance and evaluation plans for the request. Specify how the applicant plans to monitor, evaluate, and improve their results; and MCAPP will conduct qualitative and quantitative evaluation of every education and community outreach event, including post tests and participant evaluations. The individual evaluations will be compiled into cumulative reports on a quarterly basis. The staff will review quarterly results to assess progress against goals, make adjustments, celebrate progress, etc., as appropriate, based on the qualitative and quantitative results. In the past year, MCAPP operationalized the evaluation system with concrete, user-friendly tools and simple internal procedures. that help harness the data to generate insights, spot trends and guide organizational decision-making. A goal in FY 2020 is to improve qualitative evaluation, incorporating Native Hawaiian indicators of wellbeing.

During the grant cycle, MCAPP will engage at least one independent, credible strategic planning consultant and/or evaluation expert to provide expert review of the organization's work and strategy. The organization will document both the recommendations that are received and the tangible steps taken to address them.

Given the intimate and highly interconnected nature of the Molokai community, a great deal of essential feedback (both positive and critical) is conveyed through word of mouth. MCAPP will make an effort to document and evaluate these informal, but essential and highly valuable, feedback mechanisms.

4. List the measure(s) of effectiveness that will be reported to the State agency through which grant funds are appropriated (the expending agency). The measure(s) will provide a standard and objective way for the State to assess the program's achievement or accomplishment. Please note that if the level of appropriation differs from the amount included in this application that the measure(s) of effectiveness will need to be updated and transmitted to the expending agency.

MCAPP will report:

- Number of children, youth, and teens educated, including detail about school and grade level [Goal: 90% of target age group in all schools, 500 students]
- Number of parents and teachers/service providers educated [Goal: 75, including representation from every school, as well as sectors of the community that might not have been reached before, such as clergy and athletic coaches]
- Increase in youths' knowledge and skills regarding the five key learning outcomes, measured in developmentally appropriate ways (i.e. elementary school students will not receive the same written surveys as high school students)
- Number of community members reached during Sexual Assault Awareness month and other outreach activities [Goal: 400]
- Number of youth participating in Lamakū mentoring and leadership development program [Goal: 20]

V. Experience and Capability

1. Necessary Skills and Experience

MCAPP is a recognized leader in the area of preventing childhood sexual abuse through primary prevention education, community building, and building a culture of protection. Letters of support from the following organizations attest to MCAPP's effectiveness in these areas: Alu Like, Inc., Child and Family Service (CFS), Lili'uokalani Trust, Maui Police Department Criminal Investigation, Molokai Community Health Center, Molokai Middle School, Partners in Development Foundation, Sex Abuse Treatment Center (SATC), Tutu and Me Traveling Preschool. In 2018, MCAPP also organized the first annual Keiki Fest, which drew over 700 Molokai residents to a fun event designed to promote positive parent-child interaction and raise awareness about sexual abuse.

MCAPP's success is due in large part to an active, working Board of Directors, which meets monthly and provides a broad range of skills and specialties, coupled with strong ties to the Molokai Community.

In order to sustain and restore a culture of protection, and reduce childhood sexual violence on Molokai through primary prevention education, MCAPP is working to build a diversified funding base of government, private foundation, and individual donors.

A top ongoing goal of the Board of Directors and Executive Director is to develop and implement a strategy to achieve this milestone over the next two years. Already, MCAPP has achieved significant milestones in its two-year transition from an ambitious project largely funded by the Consuelo Foundation to a fully independent organization. In 2017, the organization received 501(c)(3) non-profit status, won two new foundation grants, and hired an Executive Director with fundraising and grant management experience. In 2018, the organization received its first support from state and county government, received five additional grants, and successfully secured its first independent operating budget, slightly exceeding the initial goal. In the FY 19-20 grant cycle, MCAPP will apply for at least five grants, while also building a new base of individual donors and seeking government contracts. We would appreciate, but will not expect, renewed State of Hawai'i GIA funding in the future.
