RE: SCR 195 URGING MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS TO ENACT FEDERAL LEGISLATION GRANTING STATEHOOD TO THE PEOPLE OF WASHINGTON, D.C.

Support for a Hearing on April 13

Americans for Democratic Action is an organization founded in the 1950s by leading supporters of the New Deal and led by Patsy Mink in the 1970s. We are devoted to the promotion of progressive public policies.

Americans for Democratic Action Hawaii supports this resolution as we believe the current status of the District of Columbia is disenfranchisement of its citizens.

Thank you for your consideration.

Sincerely,

John Bickel, President

SCR 195URGING MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS TO ENACT FEDERAL LEGISLATION GRANTING STATEHOOD TO THE PEOPLE OF WASHINGTON, D.C.

Chair GATES, Vice Chair TAM, and Members of the House Culture, Arts, & International Affairs Committee

Common Cause Hawaii supports SCR 195, urging members of the United States congress to enact federal legislation granting statehood to the people of Washington, D.C.

Common Cause Hawaii is a nonprofit, nonpartisan, grassroots organization dedicated to reforming government and strengthening our representative democracy through efforts that increase civic engagement and public participation in our democratic processes.

Washington, DC is our nation's capital. It is home to roughly 712,000 residents, a vibrant city on the Potomac River, straddling Virginia and Maryland. The United States is the only country in the world with a representative, democratic government that denies voting representation in Congress, our national legislature, to the citizens of its capital city. This means that all local legislation affecting the city, including the city's budget, must go before Congress for approval. Congress has used this power as an opportunity to interfere in local affairs, something it is unable to do in any other city in the country.

DC residents have paid taxes and fought and died in every war in our nation's history. They have been treated as second-class citizens even though they pay the highest per-capita federal income taxes in the nation and pay more in total federal income tax than 22 states. The majority of DC residents are people of color, who are already unrepresented in our country's political systems; without statehood, they are further disenfranchised. DC statehood is a civil rights and social justice issue.

Thank you for the opportunity to testify in support of SCR 195. If you have any questions, please contact me at sma@commoncause.org.

Very respectfully yours,

Sandy Ma

Re: Testimony in SUPPORT of SCR 195 – URGING MEMBERS OF THE UNITED STATES CONGRESS TO ENACT FEDERAL LEGISLATION GRANTING STATEHOOD TO THE PEOPLE OF WASHINGTON, D.C.

Chair Gates, Vice Chair Tam, and Members of the Committee:

The United Public Workers, AFSCME Local 646, AFL-CIO (“UPW”) is the exclusive bargaining representative for approximately 14,000 public employees, which includes blue collar, non-supervisory employees in Bargaining Unit 1 and institutional, health, and correctional employees in Bargaining Unit 10, in the State of Hawaii and various counties. The UPW also represents 1,500 members in the private sector.

UPW supports SCR 195, which urges the members of the United States Congress to enact federal legislation granting statehood to the people of Washington, D.C. As stated in the resolution, the District of Columbia has nearly 690,000 residents – more than the populations of other states such as Wyoming and Vermont – yet continues to have no voting representation in our Congress. Besides overwhelming support from the voters of D.C. in 2016 in support of statehood, AFSCME, UPW’s international union, has also included resolutions of support for D.C. statehood at past international conventions to show its support in ensuring D.C. residents have the same voting representation in Congress as the rest of the country.

We appreciate the opportunity to provide testimony.

Sincerely,

Re: Testimony of the ACLU of Hawai'i in support of SCR 195

Dear Chair Gates, Vice Chair Tam and members of the Committee:

The American Civil Liberties Union of Hawai'i ("ACLU of Hawai'i") submits this testimony in support of SCR 195, urging members of the United States Congress to enact federal legislation granting statehood to the people of Washington, D.C.

Washington, D.C. is the only national capital in the democratic world whose citizens do not have equal voting and representation rights. The ongoing denial of full voting rights to the 712,000 residents of D.C., most of whom are Black and Brown, is an egregious example of ongoing voter suppression happening in our country today.

This isn't a coincidence. The hard truth is that denial of statehood to D.C. residents for more than 200 years is rooted in racism. In 1867, just after the Civil War, President Andrew Johnson vetoed a bill that would grant citizens of the District—including Black men—the right to vote. Congress overrode the veto, briefly granting historic political influence to Black Washingtonians. But just as Black voters started to exercise their political power in D.C., Congress replaced D.C.'s local government with federally appointed commissioners, blocking the heavily Black region from having full voting rights or control over its own local government.

Congress made clear that its goal was to disempower an increasingly politically active Black community. In 1890, Senator John Tyler Morgan of Alabama stated, after "the negroes came into this district," it became necessary to "deny the right of suffrage entirely to every human being." Senator Morgan explained his rationale, shamefully saying that Congress had to "burn down the barn to get rid of the rats." It is past time for our country to correct this historical wrong and grant full voting rights to all D.C. residents.

D.C. statehood is constitutional. Under the U.S. Constitution, Congress has the authority to admit new states, so making D.C. a state would not require any new constitutional amendments. In fact, Founding Fathers James Madison, Alexander Hamilton, and John Jay always envisioned full voting rights for D.C. residents, writing in the Federalist Papers that D.C. residents "will have had their voice in the election of the government which is to exercise authority over them."

Fast forward to today: there is already a solution on the table that would allow D.C. to move forward with statehood. The Washington, D.C. Admission Act would create a state from the residential areas of D.C. and carve out federal land—including the U.S. Capitol, the White House, and other federal buildings—as the federal district. The federal district would be two-square miles and called the Capital. The 51st state, called the State of Washington, Douglass Commonwealth, would have no jurisdiction over the Capital. We know Congress has the constitutional power to reduce the size of the Capital because it has already done so. In 1848, Congress returned most of Arlington and Alexandria from D.C. to the state of Virginia. Even before that, in 1791 (just four years after the Constitution was signed) Congress changed the District's configuration.

Denying D.C. statehood means denying D.C. residents autonomy. D.C. doesn't have control over its own laws or even full control over its own criminal legal system. Unlike every other state, D.C. cannot pass its own laws without "congressional review," something Congress has repeatedly used to block the will of the people in D.C. Congress is also able to create its own laws for D.C. residents, without any input from D.C. residents themselves—something Congress does frequently through forced "riders" on D.C.'s budget every year. Some of the many examples of how Congress has stepped in to block the will of the people in D.C. include:

- In 1998, Congress blocked D.C. from using its own funds to pay for an HIV/Needle Exchange Program, stalling the program by nearly a decade and costing D.C. residents' lives and money.
- In 1989, Congress introduced the Dornan Amendment, which to this day blocks D.C. from using its own local tax dollars to provide abortion coverage for individuals enrolled in Medicaid—something that all other states are free to do.
- In 1992, the D.C. Council legalized same-sex domestic partnerships in the Health Benefits Expansion Act, but Congress refused to allow D.C. to fund the measure until 2002, delaying benefits of the act for a decade.
- In 1981, the D.C. Council repealed the District's death penalty. In 1992, Congress ordered a referendum in D.C. in an attempt to reinstate the death penalty in the District.
- In 1981, Congress overturned legislation to decriminalize same sex activity in D.C., stalling D.C.'s effort to remove a discriminatory law against L.G.T.B.Q. people by more than a decade.

It is anti-democratic for Congress to overrule the will of D.C. residents to determine local laws. It's not just a political issue, but a health and safety issue for everyone who calls D.C. home.

As of December 2020, the U.S. Census Bureau estimates D.C.'s population has grown to 712,000. As noted in this resolution, that's more than the populations of both Vermont and Wyoming, and it's comparable to the populations of Alaska, North Dakota, South Dakota, and Delaware. Among D.C.'s voting population today are more than 11,000 active-duty service members and more than 30,000 veterans, all of whom are being denied their full voting rights simply because they live in D.C. These service members risk their lives to protect this country, and then are denied their own full rights at home.

D.C. already operates with the responsibilities of statehood—just without the same representation or rights afforded all other states. D.C. residents pay the highest per-capita federal income taxes in the U.S. In total, D.C. residents pay more in federal income tax than residents of 22 other states, but they have no say over how those federal tax dollars are spent by Congress. D.C. receives less federal funding than five states, and about the same as three other states. In fact,

Chair Gates and Members of the Committee

D.C. has a greater gross domestic product than many states. and has balanced its budget every year for at least 20 years. D.C. has a AAA bond rating—a rating higher than 35 states.

It is overdue for D.C. to be granted statehood. Making D.C. a state is not a partisan issue, but a campaign for equal civil rights. It is a democratic effort to re-enfranchise more than 712,000 Americans who have been wrongly denied their full voting rights for more than 200 years. Every member of our state legislature, every member of the U.S. Congress, and every person who believes in democracy and equal rights should support D.C. statehood.

Thank you for the opportunity to submit testimony in support of SCR 195.

Sincerely,

Joshua Wisch
