II. Background and Summary

This section shall clearly and concisely summarize and highlight the contents of the request in such a way as to provide the State Legislature with a broad understanding of the request. Please include the following:

1. A brief description of the applicant's background;

Hawaii Island Humane Society (HIHS) is a private non-profit animal welfare organization located on the island of Hawaii. Founded in 1963, the mission of HIHS is to prevent cruelty to animals, eliminate pet overpopulation, and enhance the bond between humans and animals. HIHS operates two animal shelters: The Keaau Shelter, located in East Hawaii and the Animal Community Center in Kona, located in West Hawaii. In addition to housing animals for adoption, both shelter locations serve as resource centers for pets and pet owners in the community. HIHS offers a wide scope of lifesaving programs and community outreach services to meet the ongoing and changing needs of both people and animals. HIHS' lifesaving programs, designed to enhance the quality of life of pets during their stay in the shelter and to place pets in loving homes, include pet adoptions, fostering, animal behavior and enrichment, animal transport, volunteering, humane education, and Field Trips for Shelter Dogs. HIHS provides community outreach services to promote responsible pet ownership and to help preserve and develop families by keeping pets in homes. Those services include low-cost spay and neuter, lost-cost microchipping, low-cost and free veterinary care, pet retention services, rehoming consultations and support, behavioral modification and training, end of life support, and assistance with lost/found pets. In addition to the non-profit activities of our organization, HIHS serves as a transfer partner for the County of Hawaii Animal Control Services. Through this partnership, HIHS transfers county animals into our shelter population, provides medical and behavioral care as needed, and makes the pets available for adoption. This reduces the number of animals in the county system, and greatly reduces the number of pets euthanized due to lack of space. HIHS is not compensated by the County of Hawaii for the efforts.

2. The goals and objectives related to the request;

As part of ongoing, evolving discussions on the national level, the animal welfare/animal sheltering industry recognizes that in order to help animals, we must center our focus on supporting people and providing the resources and services that they need to care for their pets. As part of our overarching mission to help keep healthy pets in homes, the goal of this grant request is to expand access to veterinary care in Hawaii County. By providing practical resources and easily accessible services, we will be able to mitigate the number of animals that are abandoned, surrendered, or otherwise entering the shelter system on our island. We will also be able to preserve the bond between people and their pets, by providing alternative solutions to pet relinquishment. Our objectives are 1) Eliminate financial barriers to accessing veterinary care by providing low-cost and free community care, including spay and neuter, for those experiencing financial hardship (kupuna, community members on a fixed income, victims of domestic violence/abuse.) 2) Overcome geographic barriers by expanding our capacity to provide mobile veterinary services to rural communities. 3) Develop sustainable veterinary services, such as speciality procedures and diagnostics, to generate revenue to support the non-profit operations and activities of HIHS. 4) Retain veterinarians in our community, during a national veterinary shortage, by providing fair, equitable wages, competitive benefits, and trained support staff.

3. The public purpose and need to be served;

The United States is currently facing a serious veterinary shortage, which has created a crisis for pet owners both nationally and locally. A recent study by Mars Veterinary Health shows that “nearly 41,000 additional veterinarians will be needed to meet the needs of companion animal healthcare by 2030.” One of the compounding factors is the turnover rate among veterinary professionals, estimated to be about 16%, or double that of medical doctors who treat humans. It is estimated that approximately 17 million dogs and 38 million cats will be without veterinary care by the year 2030. The impacts of the veterinary shortage crisis can be seen and felt locally as available veterinarians at local veterinary clinics have greatly diminished. This has meant that even for pet owners that have the financial capacity to provide veterinary care for their pets, it can often be challenging to schedule an appointment to be seen by a veterinarian. Despite this grim reality, Hawaii Island Humane Society is uniquely poised to assist in filling the gap in veterinary care in Hawaii County. HIHS currently employs three full-time staff veterinarians, as well as a full-time Medical Director, and a contracted relief veterinarian. In addition to having the staffing, HIHS is also developing a new facility that will be instrumental in the expansion of veterinary care in Hawaii County. The Anne Barasch Ryan Animal Hospital is currently under construction on the site of HIHS’ Animal Community Center in Kona. Once completed, the 13,000 sq. ft. hospital will include two surgical suites, a treatment center, exam rooms, isolation units, and diagnostic equipment such as x-ray machines and an ultrasound machine. The public purpose of HIHS’ veterinary staff and the upcoming veterinary hospital is to expand access to both routine and advanced veterinary care for pet owners in Hawaii County.

The increase in access to veterinary care represents significant benefits to the public and community, including:

1) Improved animal welfare. Pets that go without veterinary care are expected to experience greater rates of morbidity and mortality. Lack of access to veterinary care is known to be one of the greatest risk factors for animals being abandoned or surrendered to a shelter. By mitigating the number of animals entering the shelter system, there will be a cost saving benefit for both government-funded agencies (County of Hawaii Animal Control) and non-profit organizations such as Hawaii Island Humane Society.

2) Social justice implications. Studies from Mars Veterinary Health indicate that cultural, socioeconomic, and geographic characteristics of pet owners who are underserved relative to veterinary care also collectively describe communities that experience systematic marginalization. By expanding access to veterinary care for pet owners who are otherwise underserved, there will be a direct and positive impact on the community itself.

3) Public health. The critical importance of pets to the overall wellbeing of humans, both physical and mental health, is becoming more and more widely recognized. Increased access to veterinary care will reduce the spread of contagious diseases, both species-specific and zoonotic (those that can be transmitted from animals to humans, such as leptospirosis.) By assuring adequate access to veterinary care, there will be improvements in public health and decreases in healthcare costs for Hawaii County pet owners.

4. Describe the target population to be served; and

The target population to be served is pet owners in Hawaii County, with particular emphasis on those who are marginalized or otherwise experiencing financial hardship.

5. Describe the geographic coverage.

HIHS serves the entire island of Hawaii, with facilities and services that are directly accessible from the districts of North Hilo, South Hilo, Puna, Kau, South Kona, and North Kona.

III. Service Summary and Outcomes

The Service Summary shall include a detailed discussion of the applicant's approach to the request. The applicant shall clearly and concisely specify the results, outcomes, and measures of effectiveness from this request. The applicant shall:

1. Describe the scope of work, tasks and responsibilities;

Community Veterinary Care and Community Spay/Neuter

HIHS currently employs three full-time veterinarians as well as a contract/relief veterinarian to provide veterinary care for both shelter animals and community-owned pets. Our veterinary care team also includes a Medical Director, a Shelter Care Manager, Community Care Manager, and a team of Animal Care Technicians, who provide basic and routine care for an average population of 200 shelter animals, as well as animals in foster care and community-owned pets. The scope of work provided by the veterinary team include: spay and neuter surgeries, other surgeries (mass removals, amputations, fracture repairs, dental cleanings and extractions, etc.), caring for hospitalized animals, medical treatments, and diagnostic testing. With the increase in veterinary staffing, HIHS has been able to expand our low-cost community spay and neuter clinics in both East and West Hawaii. With continued support, and with the opening of the Anne Barasch Ryan Animal Hospital, HIHS will be able to increase access to both routine and urgent care for pet owners in Hawaii County. Routine care will include wellness exams, core vaccines, diagnostic testing for common diseases (heartworm disease, Feline Immunodeficiency Virus, Feline Leukemia, intestinal parasites, tick-borne bacterial infections, and skin diseases such as mange), and routine preventatives. Through our urgent care model, we will expand available appointments for community-owned pets experiencing medical distress, such as injuries and illnesses. In addition to a regular schedule of services, Hawaii Island Humane Society's veterinary team works in tandem with our shelter teams and Pet Support department to provide services that may result in preventing pet relinquishment or abandonment, or otherwise increase pet retention rates.

2. Provide a projected annual timeline for accomplishing the results or outcomes of the service;

The work of HIHS is ongoing. The projected timeline for this request will be within one year of the funds being released.

3. Describe its quality assurance and evaluation plans for the request. Specify how the applicant plans to monitor, evaluate, and improve their results; and

The leadership team of Hawaii Island Humane Society, comprised of the Chief Executive Officer, Medical Director, and Director of Operations, meets regularly to discuss and assess the efficacy of programs, services, staff, protocols, and procedures. Improvements and adjustments are made as needed to best serve the animals and the community. We seek regular feedback from a variety of constituents such as key stakeholders, staff, volunteers, community partners, and community members.

4. List the measure(s) of effectiveness that will be reported to the State agency through which grant funds are appropriated (the expending agency). The measure(s) will provide a standard and objective way for the State to assess the program's achievement or accomplishment. Please note that if the level of appropriation differs from the amount included in this application that the measure(s) of effectiveness will need to be updated and transmitted to the expending agency.

The metrics utilized to measure the efficacy of HIHS' veterinary programs will include the number of animals served and the number and type of services offered.
