A brief description of the applicant's background;

Hawai'i Ag and Culinary Alliance (HACA) is a 501(c)(3) nonprofit organization organized for charitable and educational purposes to put a spotlight on Hawai'i as a center for purposeful cultural endeavors by producing world-class culinary experiences which support the farmers, students, chefs and the people who call Hawai'i home.

In 2010, HACA created the Hawai'i Food & Wine Festival (HFWF,) the only statewide epicurean destination event in the Pacific held on three major islands over three weekends. HFWF attracts thousands of visitors from around the world to Hawai'i to experience some of the most unique and authentic culinary and dining experiences in Hawai'i. Co-founded by Alan Wong and Roy Yamaguchi, two of four chefs from Hawai'i to receive the James Beard Award and Denise Yamaguchi, a business development consultant and tourism industry executive, HFWF was created to showcase Hawai'i's history, culture and natural beauty through food. As an internationally recognized brand, it has brought world-class talent to the islands to work with Hawai'i's local agriculture and seafood industries and young culinary talent. In 2023, HFWF completed the Thirteenth Annual Hawaii Food & Wine Festival, which comprised of 13 events ranging from grand tasting events, gala dinners, wine seminars, brunches, and a kids event. HFWF attracted over 5,500 attendees throughout the Island of Hawai'i and O'ahu between October 20 to November 5, 2023.

In addition, HACA has successfully completed the inaugural year of the From Cottage Industry to Commercial Enterprise program (Program), in partnership with Leeward Community College (LCC) and the Wāhiawa Value-Added Product Development Center (WVAPDC). The Program supported 29 entrepreneurs, many whom emerged from the challenged posed by the COVID-19 pandemic. The participants went through LCC's 12-week food product Bootcamp, which served as a robust incubator, accelerating their new business forward.

LCC's Bootcamp featured workshops and sessions with business advisors, coaches and successful entrepreneurs. It included classes on logistics of sourcing ingredients and packaging, sessions on regulatory compliance, and strategies for specialty food marketing. Following the completion of the 12-week Bootcamp, Following the completion of the 12-week Bootcamp, the entrepreneurs participated in a 5-part mentorship series hosted by HACA to provide targeted support in key areas such as production scaling, marketing strategies, financial planning, and regulatory compliance. Through this series, entrepreneurs had the unique opportunity to connect with industry leaders—including celebrity chefs who have leveraged successful brands in the value-added space—and access a network of support beyond the program.

The year-long program culminated in an invitation for entrepreneurs to showcase and feature their products at the Food Innovation Marketplace at Hawai'i Food & Wine Festival's Keiki in the Kitchen event on October 29, 2023, at Bishop Museum.

The Marketplace proved to be successful as many participants expressed that the event provided them a platform to attract new customers and engage in existing ones, reinforce brand loyalty, enhance business networking opportunities, increase brand visibility, increase sales and sales opportunities. The event served as a valuable opportunity to test new products, navigate the complexity of obtaining required forms, permits, insurance and licenses for exhibiting at events. Additionally, participants gathered valuable feedback and insight from customers and industry leaders, further enhancing their business strategies and marketing positioning.

2. The goals and objectives related to the request;

Hawaii Ag & Culinary Alliance is dedicated to forging a vibrant link between HFWF's world-class culinary events and the advancement of culinary education. HACA's goal is to enhance Hawaii's economic development by bolstering tourism through the culinary and agricultural sectors, thereby enriching both the local community and the visitor industry.

HACA is requesting Grant in Aid support for its educational outreach programs, which play a crucial role in promoting and sustaining the local agriculture and culinary sectors. Two notable programs are the Cottage Industry Program and Hashi.

The Cottage Industry Program is an incubator for local value-added food products. In partnership with Leeward Community College and the Wāhiawa Value-Added Product Development Center, HACA successfully launched its inaugural program. This new initiative supported 29 entrepreneurs who incorporated locally grown products, many whom emerged from the COVID-19 pandemic. The entrepreneurs went through LCC's 12-week food product Bootcamp, featuring workshops, business advisory sessions, coaching, logistics classes, regulatory compliance sessions, and approaches to specialty food marketing. Following the Bootcamp, entrepreneurs had the opportunity to participate in a 5-part mentorship series with industry leaders and showcase their products at a Food Innovation Marketplace during the Hawai'i Food & Wine Festival on October 29, 2023. Moving forward, the goal is not only to sustain the Cottage Industry Program but expand and broaden the reach for the Program to support the alumni businesses so that they can grow and scale beyond Hawaii.

Hashi's initiative focuses on community outreach, amplifying and sharing stories across various sectors such as culinary arts, culinary tourism, agriculture, agrotourism, agricultural economics, education, entrepreneurship, hospitality, wine and beverage, environmental sustainability, food science and technology, and culture. The platform showcases the rich cultural heritage and diversity of Hawaii's food and agriculture sectors. One of the ways Hashi will continue to share these compelling stories is through a podcast, an effective medium for community engagement. The podcast will build a dialogue around the diverse cuisines that bridge us together through the universal language of food. Utilizing many of the culinary talents of Hawaii Food & Wine Festival and beyond, it will serve as an educational tool to explore the intersection of food and culture both here in Hawaii and around the world.

3. The public purpose and need to be served;

With 90% of Hawai'i's food imported, Hawai'i now more than ever needs to grow more of its food supply to safeguard the islands' food security, overall sustainability, and economy. Hawai'i as a destination has strong brand name recognition and there is the same demand and opportunity for products made in Hawai'i. As Hawai'i and the world emerge from COVID-19 pandemic and continues its economic recovery, value-added entrepreneurship plays a major role in strengthening the agricultural industry.

The Cottage Industry Program is important to the state because it provides a platform for entrepreneurs to create and market their food products, which contributes to the economic development of Hawaii, as well as creating employment opportunities. empowering entrepreneurs to establish and market their food products, the program fosters the growth of small businesses, ultimately leading to the generation of more jobs within the state. Not only does the Program strengthen Hawaii's economy, but also promotes the use of locally grown produce and livestock, thereby supporting local farmers. This contributes to the diversification of agriculture in Hawaii, reducing the state's reliance on imported goods and strengthening food security. Lastly, the Program also plays a role in preserving and promoting traditional Hawaiian culinary practices by encouraging the use of indigenous ingredients in value-added products.

The Hashi platform will serve as a way to showcase the rich cultural heritage and diversity of Hawaii's food and agriculture sectors. The podcast will serve as an educational tool to explore the intersection of food and culture both here in Hawaii and around the world.

Both the Cottage Industry Program and Hashi contribute to the sustainable development, economic growth, and cultural preservation of Hawaii. By supporting local entrepreneurs and amplifying the stories of those involved, HACA plays a vital role in shaping the future of these industries in the state.

4. Describe the target population to be served; and

The direct target population to be served for the Cottage Industry Program is 30 value-added entrepreneurs based in Hawai'i who will take part in the From Cottage Industry to Commercial Enterprise program at the University of Hawai'i Leeward Community College, Wāhiawa Value-Added Product Development Center. In addition, the local agricultural community will also be served since the selected entrepreneurs must include a locally grown, caught or raised ingredient in their value-added product, as well as the community at large who will have access to these specialty products. Through Hashi, HACA aims to reach a global audience.
